dominyon ouer them. And whan they conuerted, & cryed vnto the, thou herdeſt them G from heauen, & many tymes haſt thou delyuered them accordyng to thy greate mercy, and teſtifyedſt vnto them, ẏ thou myghteſt bryng them agayne vnto thy lawe.

Not wythſtādyng, they were proude, and *Leui.xviii.a. Roma.x.a. Gala.iii.b. Ezech.xx.b. herkened not vnto thy comaūdemētes, but ſynned in thy lawes * (whych yf a man do he ſhall lyue in them,) and turned the ſhoulder awaye, and were ſtyffnecked, and wolde not heare. And many yeares dyddeſt thou forbeare them, and teſtifyedſt vnto thē thorow thy ſprete, euen by the hāde of thy prophetes, ⁊ yet wolde they not heare. Therfore gaueſt thou them into the hāde of the nacyōs in ẏ lādes. And for thy great mercyes ſake thou haſt not vtterly conſumed them, nether forſaken them: for ẏ art a gracyous and mercyfull God.

*ii.Eſd.i.b. Exo.xx.a. E.xx;iiii.a.

* Now therfore oure God, ẏ greate God, myghtye ⁊ terrible, thou that kepeſt couenaunt ⁊ mercy, regarde not a lytle all ẏ trauayle that hath happened vnto vs, and our kynges, oure prices, oure preaſtes, oure prophetes, and our fathers, and all thy people, G ſence the tyme of the kynges of Aſſur vnto thys daye. And truly, ẏ art iuſt in all that thou haſt broughte vpon vs: for thou haſt done ryght. As for vs, we haue bene vngodly, ⁊ oure kynges, ⁊ oure princes, oure preaſtes, ⁊ oure fathers haue not done after thy lawe, nor regarded thy commaundemētes, ⁊ thy earneſt exhortacyōs, wherwith ẏ haſt exhorted them, and they haue not ſerued the in theyr kyngdome, ⁊ in thy greate goodes that ẏ gaueſt them, and in the large ⁊ plenteous lāde whych thou gaueſt before them, and haue not conuerted from theyr wycked workes. Beholde, we are in bondage thys daye: ⁊ ſo is ẏ lāde that ẏ gaueſt vnto oure fathers, to enioye ẏ frutes ⁊ goodes therof, beholde, there are we bondmen. And greate is the increaſe of it vnto the kynges, whom ẏ haſt ſet ouer vs, becauſe of oure ſynnes, and they haue dominyon ouer oure bodyes and catell (euen as they wyll them ſelues,) and we are in great trouble. And in all this make we a ſure couenaunt, ⁊ wryte it, ⁊ oure princes, Leuites ⁊ preaſtes ſeale vnto it.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

¶ The names of them that ſealed the couenaunt betwene God and the people.

A The ſealers were: Nehemiah (that is) Hathirſatha the ſonne of Hachaliah and zedekia, Saraia, Aſariah ⁊ Ieremy, Phaſhur, Amaria, Malchia, Hatus, Sebaniah, Malluch, Harim, Merimoth ⁊ Obadia, Daniel, Ienthon ād Baruch, Meſulam, Abia ⁊ Miamin, Maaſia, Belgai and Semeia, theſe were preaſtes. The Leuytes were: Ieſua the ſonne of Azania, Benui amonge the chyldren of Henadad and Cadmiel. And they brethrē: Sechania, Hodia, Celita, Pelaia, Hanan, Micha, Rehob and Haſabiah, Sachur, Serebia, Sabania, Hodia, Bani and Beninu. The heades of the people were: Phares the captayne of Moab, Elam, zathu and Bani, Boni, Aſgad, Bebai, Adonia, Begoai, Adin, Ater, Hezekia, Aſur, Hodia, Haſum, Bezai, Harip, Anathoth and Nebai, Magphias, Meſulam, Heſir, Meſeſabel, zadoc, Iaddua, Phalatia, Hanan, Anaia, Hoſea, Hanania, Haſub, Halohes, Phaleha, Sobek, Rehum Haſebna, Maaſia, Ahia, Hanan and Anan Malluch, Harim and Baana.

B And the other people, the preaſtes, Leuites, porters, ſyngers, Nethinims, ⁊ all they that had ſeparated them ſelues from ẏ people in the lādes vnto the lawe of God, with theyr wyues, theyr ſonnes, ⁊ theyr daughters, ⁊ as many as coulde vnderſtonde, and theyr lordes that had rule of them, receaued it for theyr brethren.

*Ioſ.x ii.Para

* And they came to ſweare, and to bynde them ſelues with an ooth to walke in Gods lawe, whych was geuen by Moſes the ſeruaunt of God, and that they wolde obſerue and do accordynge vnto all the cōmaundementes, iudgementes ⁊ ſtatutes of the Lord our God: *Deut. * and that we wolde not geue oure daughters vnto the people in ẏ lande, nether to take theyr daughters for our ſonnes. *ii.Eſd * And yf ẏ people of the lande broughte ware on the ſaboth, and all maner of vitayles to ſell, that we wolde not take it of thē on the ſaboth ⁊ on ẏ holy dayes, *Leui. Deute. * and that we wolde let the ſeuenth yeare be fre, cōcernynge all maner of charge.

C And we decreed a ſtatute vpō oure ſelues to geue yearly the thyrde parte of a ſycle to the mynyſtracyon in the houſe of oure God, to ẏ ſhewbred, to ẏ daylye meatofferynge, to the daylye burntofferynge of ẏ ſabothes, of the newe mones, and feaſt dayes, and to the thynges that were ſanctified, and to the offerynges of attonement, to reconcyle Iſrael wyth all, and to all the buſynes in the houſe of oure God.

And we caſt the lot amonge the preaſtes, Leuytes and the people, for offerynge of the wood to be brought vnto the houſe of our God from yeare to yeare, after the houſes of oure fathers ẏ it myght be brēt at tymes appoynted, vpon ẏ aultare of ẏ Lorde God, as it is wrytten in the lawe: ⁊ to bryng the fyrſtlynges of oure lād, and the fyrſtlynges D of oure frutes of all trees, yeare by yeare, vnto ẏ houſe of ẏ Lorde: and ẏ fyrſtlynges of oure ſōnes, ⁊ of oure catell, as it is wrytten in the lawe: and the fyrſtlynges of oure oxen ⁊ of oure ſhepe, which we ſhulde bryng to the houſe of oure God, vnto the preaſtes that mynyſter in the houſe of oure God: and that we ſhuld bryng the fyrſtlynges of oure dough, and of oure heueofferynges, and the frutes of all maner of trees, of wyne alſo and of oyle, vnto the preaſtes to the cheſtes of the houſe of oure God. And the tythes of our lande vnto the Leuytes, that the Leuytes myght haue the tythes in all the cyties of oure mynyſtracyon.

And the preaſt the ſonne of Aaron ſhall wyth yͤ Leuites haue alſo of yͤ tythes of the Leuites, ſo that yͤ Leuites ſhall brynge vp the tythes of theyr tythes vnto the houſe of oure God, to the ſtore houſes & to yͤ treaſure houſes. For yͤ chyldren of Iſrael and the chyldren of Leui ſhall brynge vp yͤ heue offerynges of the corne, wyne & oyle vnto the ſtore houſes, there as are the veſſels of the ſanctuary, and the preaſtes that mynyſter, and the porters & ſyngers, that we forſake not the houſe of oure God.

¶The.xi.Chapter.

A And the rulers of the people dwelt at Ieruſalem. The other people alſo caſt lottes, that amõge ten, one parte ſhulde go to Ieruſalem into the holy cytie to dwell, and nyne partes to be in yͤ cyties. And yͤ people thanked all the men, that were wyllynge to dwell at Ieruſalem.

These are the heades of the lande, that dwelt in Ieruſalem and in the cyties of Iuda, euery one in hys poſſeſſyon, and in theyr cyties: they of Iſrael, the preaſtes, Leuytes, the Nethinims, and yͤ chyldren of Salomõs ſeruauntes. And at Ieruſalem dwelt certayne of yͤ chyldren of Iuda and of BenIamin.

Of the chyldren of Iuda: Athaiah yͤ ſonne of Uſia, the ſonne of zachary, the ſonne of Amaria, the ſonne of Saphtia, the ſonne of Mahalaleel, of the chyldren of Phares. And Maaſia the ſonne of Baruch, the ſonne of Chal Hoſe, the ſonne of Haſaia, yͤ ſonne of Adaia, the ſonne of Ioiarib, the ſonne of zachary, the ſonne of Siloni. All theſe were the chyldren of Phares that dwelt at Ieruſalem: euen foure. C. thre ſkore & eyght valeaunt men.

B These are yͤ chyldren of BẽIamin: Sallu yͤ ſonne of Meſullam, the ſonne of Ioed, the ſonne of Pedaia, the ſonne of Calaia, the ſonne of Maſia, the ſonne of Ithiel, the ſonne of Iſai. And after him Gabai, Selai nyne hundreth and eyght & twentye. And Ioel the ſonne of zichri had the ouerſyght of them: and Iuda yͤ ſonne of Senua was next ouer the cytie.

*i.Para.x.b. * Of the preaſtes: Iedaiah yͤ ſonne of Ioiarib, Iachin Saraiah the ſonne of Helkia the ſonne of Meſullam, the ſonne of zadoc, the ſonne of Meraioth, yͤ ſonne of Achitob, was prince in the houſe of God: and his brethren that perfourmed the worke in yͤ tẽple viii. C. & .xxii. And Adaia yͤ ſonne of Ierobam, yͤ ſonne of Palaliel, yͤ ſonne of Amzi, the ſonne of zacari, the ſonne of Phaſhur, the ſonne of Malchia & hys brethren chefe amonge the fathers: two hundreth and two and fortye. And Amaſai the ſonne of Azrael the ſonne of Ahaſai, the ſonne of Moſelemoth, yͤ ſonne of Immer: and hys brethren were valiaunt men, an hundreth and eyght and twẽtie. And their ouerſear was zabdiel a ſonne of one of the great men.

* Of the Leuytes: Semeia the ſonne of *ii.Para.ix.b.
Haſub, the ſonne of Aſerikam, the ſonne of C Haſabia, the ſonne of Bũni: and Sabathai and Ioſabad of yͤ chefe of the Leuytes, had the ouerſyght of yͤ outwarde buſynes of the houſe of God. And Mathania the ſonne of Micha, yͤ ſonne of zabdi, yͤ ſonne of Aſaph, was the principall to begynne the thankeſgeuynge and prayer. And bakbukia the ſeconde amonge hys brethren, and Abda the ſonne of Sammua, the ſonne of Galal, the ſonne of Ieduthun. All yͤ Leuites in the holy cytie were two hundred foure ſkore and foure. * And yͤ porters Acub and Talmon, *ii.Para.ix.b. and theyr brethren yͤ kepte the portes, were an hundreth and two and ſeuentye. As for the reſydue of Iſrael, yͤ preaſtes and Leuytes, they were in all the cyties of Iuda, euery one in hys inherytaunce.

And the Nethinims dwelt in Ophel: and ziba and Giſpa was ſet ouer yͤ Nethinims. The ouerſear of the Leuites at Ieruſalem, was Uſi the ſonne of Baani, the ſonne of Aaſabia, the ſonne of Mathania, the ſonne of Micha.

Of yͤ chyldren of Aſaph there were ſyngers aboute the buſynes in yͤ houſe of God: for it was the kynges commaundemẽt concernyng them, that yͤ ſyngers ſhulde deale faythfully euery daye as was accordynge.

And Pathaia the ſonne of Meſebabel of D the chyldren of zerah yͤ ſonne of Iuda nexte the kynge in all matters concernynge the people, and theyr vyllages, and landes. And ſome of the chyldren of Iuda that were wythout in the townes of theyr lande dwelt at Kariath Arbe. And in the vyllages therof, at Didon, and in the vyllages therof: and at Iecabzeel, and in the vyllages therof: at Ieſua, Moladah, Bethphalet in the towne of Sual: Beerſeba, and in theyr vyllages, at Sykelag and Moconah, and theyr vyllages: And at Enremon, zarah, Ierimuth, zonoa, Odollam and in theyr vyllages: At Lachis, and in the feldes therof: At Aſeka, and in yͤ vyllages therof: and they dwelt from Berſabe vnto yͤ valley of Hinnon.

The chyldren alſo of BenIamin of Geba, dwelt a Machmas, Aia, Bethel, and in theyr vyllages. And at Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah, Hazor, Ramah, Gethaim, Hadid, zeboim, Nabalath, Lod, and Ono, the carpenters valley. And the Leuytes had poſſeſſyon both in Iuda and in BenIamin.

¶ The .xii. Chapter.

¶ The preaſtes and Leuytes whych cam wyth zorobabel to Jeruſalem are nõbred, and the wall is dedycate.

A These are the preaſtes ⁊ Leuytes that wente vp wyth zorobabel the ſonne of Salathiel and with Jeſua: Sararia, Jeremi, ⁊ Eſdras, Amaria, Maluch, Hatus, Sechania, Rehum, Merimoth. Jddo, Genthoi, Abia, Miamin, Maaria, Belga, Semaia, Joiarib, Jadaia, Salu, Amok, Helkia and Jadaia. These were the heades among yͤ preaſtes, and theyr brethren, in the dayes of Jeſua. The Leuytes were theſe: Jeſua, Bennui, Cadmiel, Sarabia, Juda and Mathania whych was ouer the offyce of thankeſgeuynge, he ⁊ his brethren: Bacbukia and Himni and theyr brethren, were aboute them in the watches.

Jeſua begat Joakim. Joakim alſo begat Eliaſib, ⁊ Eliaſib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan, ⁊ Jonathan begat Jadua. In the dayes of Joakim were theſe yͤ chefe fathers amõge the preſtes: vnder Saraia, Maraia: vnder Jeremy, Hanania: vnder Eſdras, Meſullam: vnder Amaria, Jehoanan: vnder Milico, Jonathan: vnder Sebania, Joſeph: vnder Harim, Adna: vnder Maraioth, Helca: vnder Jddo, zachary: vnder Gẽthon, Meſullam: vnder Abia, zichri: vnder Miniamin and Moadia, Piltai: vnder Belga, Samua: vnder Semeia, Jehonathan: vnder Joiarib, Mathenai: vnder Jadaia, Vſi: vnder Selai, Kelai: vnder Amok, Eber: vnder Helchia, Haſabia: vnder Jadaia, Nathanael.

B And in yͤ tyme of Eliaſib: Joiada, Johanan ⁊ Jadua, were the chefe fathers amõge the Leuytes ⁊ the preaſtes, wrytten vnder the raygne of Darius yͤ Perſian. The chyldren of Leuy, the principall fathers were written in yͤ Chronicles, vntill the tyme of Jonathan yͤ ſonne of Eliaſib. And theſe were yͤ chefe among yͤ Leuytes, Haſabia, Serebia and Jeſua the ſonne of Cadmiel, and their brethrẽ in their preſence, to geue prayſe ⁊ thankes, accordynge as Dauid the man of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynſt another Mathania, Balbukia, Obadia, Meſullam, Talmon ⁊ Abub were porters in the watch at yͤ threſholdes of the gates. Theſe were in the dayes of Joiakim the ſonne of Jeſua the ſonne of Joſedec, and in the dayes of Nehemia the captayne, and of the preaſte Eſdras the ſcrybe.

And in the dedycacyon of the wall at Jeruſalem, they ſought the Leuytes out of all theyr places, that they myghte be brought to Jeruſalem, to kepe yͤ dedycacyon ⁊ gladneſſe, wyth thankeſgeuynges, ⁊ ſyngynge wyth Cymbales, Pſalteries, and harpes. And the chyldren of the ſyngers geathered them ſelues together from euery ſyde out of the playne countre aboute Jeruſalem, and from yͤ vyllages of Netho phathi, from the houſe of Gilgal, and out of the countrees of Geba and Aſmaueth: for the ſyngers had buylded them vyllages rounde aboute Jeruſalem. And the preaſtes ⁊ Leuytes were purifyed, and clenſed the people, and the gates and the wall.

C And J brought yͤ princes of Juda vp vpõ the wall, and appoynted two greate queers of men to geue thankes, which wẽte on the ryghte hãde of the wall towarde the Donggate, and after them wẽte Hoſaia, and halfe of the princes of Juda, ⁊ Aſaria, Eſdras, and Meſullam, Juda, Ben Jamin, Semia and Jeremy: and certayne of the preaſtes chyldren with trompettes, namely zachary the ſonne of Jonathan, yͤ ſonne of Semeia, the ſonne of Mathania, yͤ ſonne of Michaia, the ſonne of zacur, the ſonne of Aſaph, and hys brethren Semeia, Aſarael, Melalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathanael and Juda and Hanani, wyth the muſicall inſtrumentes of Dauid the man of God.

And Eſdras the ſcrybe went before thẽ, and beſyde yͤ wellgate, they wente vp ouer agaynſt them vpon the ſteppes of the cytie of Dauid at the goynge vp of the wall bepõde the houſe of Dauid, vnto the Watergate Eaſtwarde.

The other queer of them that gaue thankes, went ouer agaynſt them, and J after them, and yͤ halfe parte of the people vpon the wall, beyonde the fornace gate, vntyll the brode wall, and beyonde the porte of Ephraim, and beyonde the Oldgate, beyõde the fyſhgate, and the tower of Hananeel, and the tower of Mea, vntyll the Shepegate. D And they ſtode ſtyll in the preſongate, and ſo ſtode the two queers (of them that gaue thanckes) in the houſe of God, and J, and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the preaſtes, namely Eliakim, Maaſia, Miniamin, Michaia, Elioenai, zachary and Hanania, wyth trompettes, and Maaſia, Semeiah, Eleaſar, Vrſi, Jehohanan, Melchiah, Elam and Ser. And the ſyngers ſange loude, hauynge Jeſtahiah for theyr overſeer.

And the ſame daye, they offred greate ſacrifyces ⁊ reioyſed: for God had geuen them greate gladneſſe, ſo that both yͤ wyues and chyldren were ioyfull, and the myrth of Jeruſalem was herde farre of.

At yͤ ſame tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treaſure houſes (wherin were the Heue offerynges, yͤ fyrſtlynges, and the tythes) that they ſhulde geather them out of the feldes aboute the cyties, to deſtribute them vnto the preaſtes and Leuytes accordyng to the lawe: for Juda was glad of the preaſtes, and Leuites, that they ſtode & wayted vpon the office of their God, whyche is a pure offyce. And the ſyngers & porters ſtode after the commaundement of Dauid and *I.Para xxiiii.a. of Salomon his ſonne: *for in the tyme of Dauid and Aſaph, were the chefe ſyngers founded, and the ſonges of prayſe & thankeſgeuynge vnto God. In the tyme of zorobabel and Nehemia, dyd al they of Iſrael geue porcions vnto the ſyngers & porters, euery daye his porcion, and they gaue tythes vnto the Leuites: and the Leuites gaue tythes agayne, vnto the children of Aaron.

¶The lawe is read, and when they haue heard it, they ſeparate from them all ſtraungers. &c.

A AND that daye dyd they read in ẏ boke of Moſes, & the people herkened therto, deu.xxiiii.a and there was founde wrytten, that the Ammonites and Moabites ſhulde neuer come into the congregacion of God, becauſe they met not the chyldren of Iſrael wͭ Nu.xxiiii a bread and water, but hyred Balaam agaynſt them, that he ſhulde curſe them, and our God turned ẏ curſe into a bleſſynge. Nowe when they herde the lawe it fortuned, ẏ they ſeparated from Iſraell euerye one that had myxte hym ſelfe therin. And before this had the preaſt Eliaſib the ouerſyght of the treaſury of the houſe of our God, ād he was kynſman vnto Tobia: ād had made hym a great chambre, and there had they afore tyme layed the offerynges, frankencenſe, veſſell, and the tythes of corne, and wyne and oyle (accordynge to the commaundement geuen to the Leuites, ſyngers and porters) & the heue offerynges of the preaſtes.

But in all this tyme was not I at Ieruſalem: for in ẏ two & thirtie yere of Artaxerſes kyng of Babylō, came I vnto the kyng, and after certayne dayes optayned I lycēce B of the kyng to come to Ieruſalē. And I gat knowlege of the euel that Eliaſib dyd vnto Tobia, in ẏ he had made hym a chambre in ẏ court of the houſe of God, and it greued me ſore, & I caſt forth all the veſſels of the houſe of Tobia out of the chambre, and commaunded thē to clenſe the chambres. And thyther brought I agayne ẏ veſſels of the houſe of God, with the meatoffering, ād the incenſe.

And I perceaued that the porcions of the Leuites were not geuē them, and that euery one fled to his lande, euen the Leuites & ſyngers ẏ executed ẏ worke. Thē reproued I ẏ rulers, & ſayde: why is ẏ houſe of God forſakē? And I gathered thē together, & ſet thē in their place. Then brought al Iuda ẏ tythes of corne, & wyne and oyle vnto the treaſure. And I made treaſurers ouer ẏ treaſure, euē Selemiah the preaſt, & zadoc the ſcrybe, and of the Leuites, Phadaia, & vnder theyr hand was Hanan the ſonne of zacur the ſonne of Mathania: for they were counted faythfull and their office was to diſtribute the porciōs vnto their brethren. *Thyncke vpon me O *I.Eſd.v.a my God here in, and wipe not out my mercy that I haue ſhewed on the houſe of my God, and on the offyces therof.

At the ſame tyme ſawe I ſome tredynge wyne preſſes on the Saboth, & bryngyng in ſhefes, & aſſes laden wͭ wyne, grapes, fygges & bryngyng all maner of burthens vnto Ieruſalē, vpon the Saboth daye. And I rebuked thē earneſtly ẏ ſame daye that they ſold the vitayles. There dwelt men of Tyre alſo therin, which brought fyſh and all maner of C ware, & ſolde on the Saboth vnto ẏ chyldrē of Iuda in Ieruſalem. Then reproued I the rulers in Iuda, & ſayde vnto thē: what euell thinge is this ẏ ye do, & breake the Saboth daye? Dyd not youre fathers euē thus, & our God brought all thys plage vpon vs & vpō this cytie? And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Iſrael, in that ye breake the Saboth.

And it fortuned that whē the portes of Ieruſalem beganne to be darke in the euenyng before the Saboth, I commaunded to ſhut the gates, ād charged, that they ſhuld not be opened tyll after the Saboth: & ſome of my ſeruauntes ſet I at the gates, ẏ there ſhulde no burthē be brought in on ẏ Saboth daye. Then remayned ẏ chapmen & marchauntes once or twyce ouer nyght without Ieruſalē wyth all maner of wares. Then reproued I them ſore, and ſayd vnto them: why tary ye all nyght about the wall? Yf ye do it once agayne, I wyll laye handes vpon you. From ẏ tyme forth came they nomore on the Saboth. And I ſayde vnto the Leuites ẏ they ſhulde clenſe thē ſelues, and that they ſhulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Saboth daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) D concernyng this alſo, & ſpare me, accordyng to thy great mercy.

And at the ſame tyme ſawe I Iewes, that maryed wyues of Aſdod, of Ammon and of Moab, & their childrē ſpake halfe in ẏ ſpeach of Aſdod, & coulde not ſpeake in the Iewes language, but by the tong myght a man perceaue euery people. Then I reproued them, and curſed thē, & ſmote certayne men of thē, and made thē bare, & toke an oth of them by God: Ye ſhal not geue your daughters vnto their ſōnes, nether ſhal ye take theyr daughters vnto youre ſonnes, or for youre ſelues. Dyd not Salomō the kyng of Iſrael ſynne for ſoch? and yet amonge many Heythē was there no kynge lyke hym, whych was deare vnto hys God, and God made hym kynge ouer all Iſrael, and yet neuertheles, outlandyſhe wemen cauſed hym to ſynne? Shall we then obeye vnto you, to do all this great euell, and to tranſgreſſe agaynſt oure God, and marye ſtraunge wyues?

And one of the chyldren of Jehoiada the ſonne of Eliaſib the hye preaſte, had made a cõtracte with Sanabalat the Horonite: but I chaced him from me. (O my God) thynke thou vpon them that defyle the preſthode, & the couenaunt of the preſthode & of the Leuites. Thus clenſed I them frõ all ſoch as were outlandiſch, and appoynted the courſes of the preaſtes and Leuites, euerye one in hys office, and to offre yͤ wodd at tymes appoynted, and the fyrſt frutes. Thynke thou vpon me (O my God) for the beſt. (Amen)

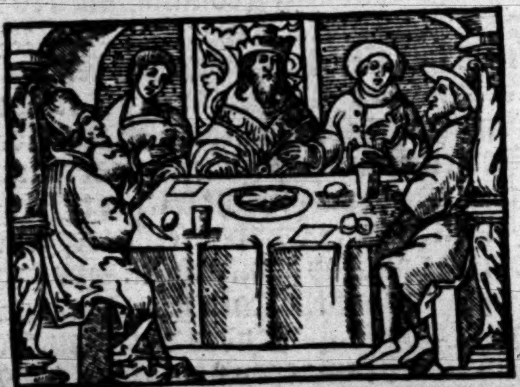
¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ Kynge Ahaſuerus maketh a royall feaſt, wherunto the quene Vaſthi wyll not come, for whyche cauſe ſhe is deuorced.



IT fortuned in the dayes of A Ahaſuerus whyche raygned from India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hundred and ſeuen and twentye landes) euen in in thoſe dayes whan yͤ kyng Ahaſuerus ſate on hys ſeate royall, which was in Suſan the chefe cytie, in the thyrde yeare of hys raygne, he made a feaſt vnto all his princes & ſeruauntes. And the myghtie men of Perſia & Media, the capitaynes alſo & rulers of his countrees were before hym, & he ſhewed the ryches ãd glory of his kyngdome, & the glorious worſhyppe of hys greatneſſe, many dayes longe, euen B an hundreth and foure ſcore dayes.

And when theſe dayes were expyred, the kyng made a feaſt vnto all yͤ people, yͭ were in Suſan the chefe cytie, both vnto great ãd ſmall, ſeuen dayes long in the court of yͤ garden by the kinges palace: where there hãged whyte, grene and palowe clothes, faſtened with coardes of fyne ſylke & purple in ſiluer rynges, vpon pylers of Marble ſtone.

The benches alſo were of golde ãd ſyluer C made vpon a pauement of grene, whyte, yalow and black Marble. And they dranke in veſſels of golde, & chaũged veſſell after veſſell. And the kynges wyne was moch, accordyng to the power of the kyng. And yͤ drinke was ſo appoynted yͭ none ſhulde compel any man, for ſo the kynge had cõmaunded by the officers of his houſe, yͭ euery one ſhulde do as it lyked hym. And the quene Vaſthi made a feaſt alſo for the wemẽ in the palace of Ahaſuerus. And on the ſeuenth daye when the kynge was mery after the wyne, he cõmaũded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, zethar and Carchas, the ſeuen chamberlaynes (that dyd ſeruyce in the preſence of kyng Ahaſuerus) to fetch the quene D Vaſti wyth the crowne regall into the kynges preſence that he myght ſhewe the people and prynces her fayrneſſe, for ſhe was bewtyfull. But the quene Vaſthi wolde not come at the kynges worde by his chamberlaynes. Then was the kynge very wroth, & his indignacion kyndled in hym.

And the kynge ſpake to the wyſe mẽ, that had vnderſtanding in the ordinaunces of the land, for the kinges matters muſt be hãdled before all ſoch as haue knowlege of the law and iudgement: and the *(chefe and) next vnto hym were, Carſena, Sethar, Admata, Tharſis, Mares, Marſena, and Mamucã, the ſeuen Princes of Perſia, & Media, which ſawe the kynges face, and ſat aboue in the kyngdome: What lawe (ſayeth the kynge) ſhulde be executed vpõ the quene Vaſthi, becauſe ſhe dyd not accordynge to the worde of the kynge Ahaſuerus, whych he commaunded by hys chamberlaynes? And Memucan anſwered before the kynge and the princes: the quene Vaſthi hath not onelye done euell E agaynſt the kynge, but alſo agaynſt all the princes ãd agaynſt all the people that are in all the landes of kynge Ahaſuerus: for thys dede of the quene ſhall come abrode vnto all wemen, ſo that they ſhall deſpyſe theyr huſbandes before theyr eyes, and ſhall ſaye: the kynge Ahaſuerus commaunded Vaſthi the quene to be brought in before hym, but ſhe wold not come. And ſo ſhal the princeſſes in Perſia ãd Media ſaye lykewyſe vnto al the kynges princes, whẽ they heare of thys dede of the quene, thus ſhall there aryſe to moche deſpytefulnes & wrath. Yf it pleaſe the kyng therfore, let there go a commaundement frõ him, & let it be writtẽ accordinge to yͤ lawes of the Perſians and Medians (and not to be tranſgreſſed) yͭ Vaſthi come nomore before kynge Ahaſuerus & let yͤ king geue her kingdome vnto another, that is better then ſhe.

And when thys commaundement of the kynge (which ſhalbe made) is publiſhed thorow out all his empire (whych is greate) all wemen ſhal holde their huſbãdes in honoure both amonge great and ſmall.

This pleaſed the kyng & the princes: and the kyng dyd according to the worde of Memucan. For he ſent letters forth into all the kynges landes, into euery lād, accordyng to the wrytinge therof, & to euerye people after theyr lāguage, yͭ euery man ſhulde be lord in his awne houſe. And this cauſed he to be ſpoken after the language of his people.

¶ The.ii.Chapter

¶ After the quene is put awaye, certē goodly yonge damoſelles are ſearched out. Ediſſa otherwyſe called Eſther, pleaſeth the king, & is made quene. Mardocheus ſheweth vnto the kynge thoſe that wolde betraye hym.

A After theſe actes, whē the diſpleaſure of kyng Ahaſuerus was nowe layed, he thought vpon Vaſthi, ād what ſhe had done, and what was concluded agaynſt her. Then ſayd the kynges ſeruauntes that mynyſtred vnto hym: Let there be fayre younge virgins ſought for the kynge, and yͤ kyng appoynted certayne men in all the lādes of his empyre, whome he charged yͭ they ſhuld bryng together al yͤ fayre young vyrgins vnto Suſan the head cytie, to the wemens buyldynge, vnder the hand of Hagei yͤ kynges chamberlayne, that kepte the wemē to geue them theyr apparel ☞ (and other thynges neceſſary to be had.) And that the damoſel which pleaſed the kynge ſhuld be quene in Vaſthis ſteade. And thys pleaſed the kynge and he dyd ſo.

In the cytie of Suſan there was a Iewe, whoſe name was Mardocheus, the ſonne of Iair, the ſonne of Semei, the ſonne of Cis a mā of Iemini, which was caryed awaye frō Ieruſalem, *whan Iekonia the kyng of Iuda was led awaye, (whome Nabuchodonozor the kyng of Babilon caryed thence) & he norished Hadaſſa (that is Eſther) his vncles daughter: for ſhe had nether father nor mother, and ſhe was a fayre & bewtyful dāſell: B whō Mardocheus (whē her father & mother was deed) receaued for his awne daughter.

Iere.xxiiii.a

So it fortuned that when the kynges cōmaundement and cōmiſſion was publiſhed, and many damoſels were brought together in the cytie of Suſan vnder the hand of Hagei. Eſther was brought alſo vnto the kynges houſe vnder the hand of Hagei the keper of the wemen, & the damoſell pleaſed hym, & ſhe founde fauoure in his ſyght. And he cauſed ornamentes to be geuen her & ſoch thynges as belonged to her, ād appoynted her ſeuen comly damſels out of the kynges houſe, & fauoured both her and her gentyll wemen ſyngularly in the houſe of the wemen. But Eſther ſhewed not her people & her kynred: for Mardocheus had charged her, that ſhe ſhuld not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery daye before the courte of the wemens houſe, that he myghte knowe howe Eſther dyd, and what ſhulde become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of euerye damoſel cam, that ſhe ſhuld go into yͤ kynge Ahaſuerus, after that ſhe had bene twelue monethes in the deckynge of the wemen (for their deckynge muſt haue ſo moch tyme, namely ſyxe monethes with Balme & Myrre, ād ſyxe monethes with good ſpyces, ſo were the wemen beutyfyed) then went there one damoſell vnto the kyng, ād whatſoeuer ſhe requyred ☞ (ſo that it were comely) that muſte be geuen her to go wyth her out of the wemens buylding vnto the kynges palace. C In yͤ euenynge ſhe went, and on the morowe agayne into the ſecōde houſe of the wemen abydinge vnder the hand of Saaſgas the kynges chāberlayne, whych kept the concubines. And ſhe came in vnto the kyng no more, except it pleaſed the kynge to haue her, and that he called her by name.

Now when the tyme came of Eſther the daughter of Abihan the vncle of Mardocheus (whyche had receaued her as hys awne daughter) that ſhe ſhulde come into yͤ kyng, ſhe deſyred nothynge, but what Hagei the kynges chamberlayne the keper of the wemen ſayde.

And Eſther found fauoure in the ſyght of all them yͭ loked vpon her. And Eſther was taken vnto kyng Ahaſuerus into his houſe royall, in yͤ tenth moneth which is yͤ moneth *Tebeth, in yͤ ſeuenth yeare of his raygne.

*December.

And the kyng loued Eſther aboue al yͤ wemen, and ſhe found grace and fauoure in hys ſyght before al the virgins: ſo that he ſet the crowne of the kyngdome vpon hir head, and made her quene in ſteade of Vaſthi. And the kyng made a great feaſt vnto al his princes and ſeruauntes (which feaſt was becauſe of Eſther) & cauſed yͤ landes to be in quyetnes, & gaue giftes, as became yͤ royalty of a kīg.

D And when the virgyns were gathered together the ſeconde tyme, Mardocheus ſat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Eſther ſhewed her kynred & her people, accordynge as Mardocheus had bydden her: for Eſther dyd after the worde of Mardocheus, lyke as yf ſhe had bene yet vnder hys gouernaunce. At the ſame time, whyle Mardocheus ſat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chāberlaynes Bigthan ād Theres which kept the dore, were wroth, & ſought to laye their handes on yͤ kyng Ahaſuerus: wherof alſo Mardocheus gat knowledge, *and tolde it vnto quene Eſther, & Eſther certifyed the kynge therof in Mardocheus name. And when inquiſicion was made, it was founde ſo. And they were both hanged on tree: and it was wrytten in the chronicles before the kynge.

¶ The.iii.Chapter.

¶ Haman the Macedonian, after he was exalted obtayned of the kynge that al the Iewes ſhuld be put to deeth, becauſe Mardocheus had not done hym worſhyp, as other had.

A After theſe actes dyd the kynge Ahaſuerus promote Haman the ſonne of Amadatha the Agagite, and ſet hym hye, and ſet hys ſeat aboue all the prynces ẏ he had wyth hym. And all the kynges ſeruaūtes that were in the kynges gate, bowed theyr knees and worſhypped Hamā: for the kyng had ſo commaunded concernyng him.
But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worſhypped hym not. Then the kynges ſeruaūtes whych were in the kynges gate, ſaid vnto Mardocheus: why tranſgreſſeſt thou the kynges commaundement? And when they ſpake thus dayly vnto him, he folowed them not, and they tolde Haman, that they myght ſe how Mardocheus matters wolde
B endure: for he had tolde them, that he was a Jewe. And when Haman ſawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto hym, nor worſhipped him, he was full of indignacyō, and thought it to lyttel to laye handes onely on Mardocheus: for they had ſhewed him ẏ naciō of Mardocheus, wherfore he ſought to deſtroye all the Jewes, that were thorow out the whole empyre of Ahaſuerus, ād that were of the nacion of Mardocheus.

In the fyrſt moneth (that is the moneth Niſan) in the twelueth yeare of kynge Ahaſuerus they caſt Phur (that is a lot) before Haman from daye to daye, and frō moneth to moneth, to the twelueth moneth that is the moneth Adar. And Haman ſayde vnto kynge Ahaſuerus: There is here a people ſcatred abrode and diſperſed amōge all people C in all the landes of thyne empyre, & they haue theyr lawes contrary from al people, & do not after the kynges lawes, nether is it the kynges profet to ſuffre them after thys maner. If it pleaſe the kynge, let it be wrytten, that they maye be deſtroyed, & ſo wyll I weye downe ten thouſand talētes of ſyluer, by the handes of ẏ workemē, to be brought into the kynges treaſure. And ẏ kynge toke his rynge from his hand, & gaue it vnto Hamā the ſonne of Amidatha the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kynge ſayde vnto Haman: Let the ſyluer be geuen the, and do with that people as it pleaſeth the.

D Then were the kynges ſcrybes called on ẏ thirtenth daye of ẏ fyrſt moneth * (Niſan) *Marche. and there was written (accordyng as Hamā commaunded) vnto all the kynges offycers & to the captaynes that were in all the landes, and to the rulars of euerye people in the contreyes on euerye ſyde, accordynge to the wryting of euery nacion, and after theyr lāguage, in the name of kyng Ahaſuerus was it wrytten and ſealed with the kynges rynge.
And the wrytynges were ſent by poſtes into all the kynges lādes, to rote out, to kyl and to deſtroye all Jewes, both yonge & old, chyldren and wemen in one daye (namelye vpon the thirtenth daye of the twelueth moneth, whyche is the moneth * Adar) and to *Februarij; ſpoyle theyr goodes.

This was the ſomme of the wryting, that there ſhulde be a cōmaundement geuen in al landes, and publyſhed vnto all people, that they ſhulde be ready agaynſt the ſame daye.
And the poſtes went in all ẏ haſt, accordyng to the kynges commaundement. And in Suſan the chefe cytie was the commaundemēt deuyſed. And the kynge and Haman ſate ād dranke: whan in the meane tyme the citie of Suſan was dyſquyeted.

¶ The .iiii. Chapter.

A Whē Mardocheus perceaued al that was done, he rent his clothes ād put on ſackcloth, with aſſhes, and went oute into the myddes of the cytie, and cryed loud and lamentably, and came before the kynges gate: but he myght not entre within the kynges gate, because he had ſackcloth on. And in all landes, countrees, ād places, as farre as the kynges worde & commaundement extended, there was great lamentacion amonge the Jewes faſtynge, weppynge, and mournyng, & many laye in ſackclothes and in Aſſhes. So Eſthers damoſels ād her chamber laynes, came B and tolde it her. Then was the quene exceadingly aſtonnied. And ſhe ſent raymēt, that Mardocheus ſhulde put on, ād laye the ſack cloth from him. But Mardocheus wold not take them. Then called Eſther Hathath one of the kynges chamberlaynes (whych ſtode before her) ād gaue hym a commaundement vnto Mardocheus, ẏ he might knowe what it were, wherfore he dyd ſo. So Ha that wēt forth to Mardocheus vnto the ſtrete of ẏ cytie, whych was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde hym of all ẏ had happened vnto him, ād of the ſumme of ſyluer ẏ Haman had promyſed to weye downe into ẏ kynges treaſury, becauſe of ẏ Jewes yf he wolde deſtroye thē (ād he gaue hym the coppye of the kynges commaundement, that was deuyſed at Suſan, to deſtroye thē, that he might ſhewe it vnto Eſther) ād to ſpeake to her, and charge her, that ſhe ſhulde go into the kyng, and make her prayer and ſupplication vnto him for her people.

C And whē Hathath cam in, he told Eſther the wordes of Mardocheus. And agayne, Eſther ſpake vnto Hathath, & commaūded hym to ſaye vnto Mardocheus: al the kynges ſeruauntes, & the people in the landes of the kynge, knowe that whoſoeuer commeth wythin the court vnto the kyng, whether it be man or woman, whych is not called, ẏ cōmaundement is, ẏ the ſame ſhall dye, excepte
the

the kynge holde out the golden ſcepter vnto hym * (in token of graciouſnes) for then he ſhall lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come into the kynge nowe this thyrtie dayes.

And they certifyed Mardocheus of Eſt-hers wordes, & Mardocheus bad ſaye agayne vnto Eſther, thynke not to ſaue thyne awne lyfe, while thou art in ẏ kinges houſe, before all Iewes: for yf ẏ holdeſt thy peace at this tyme, thē ſhall the Iewes haue helpe and deliueraūce out of another place, & thou D ād thy fathers houſe ſhalbe deſtroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to the kyngdome, for this cauſes ſake? Eſther bad thē geue Mardocheus this anſwer: Go thou thy waye, ād gather together all the Iewes that are found at Suſan, and faſt ye for me, that ye eat not and drynke not in thre dayes nether daye nor nyghte. I and my damoſels wyll faſt lykewyſe, and ſo wyl I go into the kyng, which thing yet, is contrary to the cō-maundemēt: and yf I periſhe, I periſhe. So Mardocheus went his waye, & dyd all that Eſther had commaunded hym.

The.v.Chapter.

Eſther entreth into the kynge and byddeth hym and Haman to a feaſt, Haman prepareth a gallowſe for Mardocheus.

A AND on the thyrde daye it fortuned ẏ Eſther put on her royall apparel, and ſtode in the court of the kynges palace within, ouer agaynſt the kinges houſe. And the kynge ſate vpon hys royal ſeat in the kynges palace ouer agaynſt the gate of the houſe. And whē the kynge ſawe Eſther the quene ſtādyng in ẏ court, ſhe founde grace in hys ſyght. And the kynge helde out the golden ſceptre that was in hys hande towarde Eſther. So Eſther ſtepte forth, and touched B the toppe of the ſcepter. Then ſayd the kyng vnto her: What wylt thou quene Eſther? ād what requyreſt thou? aſke euen the halfe of the empire, and it ſhalbe geuen the. And Eſther anſwered. If it pleaſe the kynge, let the kynge and Haman come thys daye vnto the bancket, that I haue prepared for him. And the kynge ſayde: cauſe Haman to make haſt that he maye do as Eſther hath ſayde.

So the kyng & Haman came to the bancket ẏ Eſther had prepared, & the kyng ſayde vnto Eſther at the bancket of wyne: What is thy peticiō? that it maye be geuē the. And what requyreſt thou? If it be euen the halfe of the empire, it ſhalbe done.

C Then anſwered Eſther, and ſayde, my pe-ticion and deſyre is, yf I haue founde grace in the ſyght of the kynge, and yf it pleaſe the kyng, to geue me my peticiō, & to fulfyll my requeſt, then let the kyng & Haman come to the bancket ẏ I ſhall prepare for them, ād ſo wyl I do to morow, as the kynge hath ſayd.

Then went Haman forth the ſame daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And whē the ſame Hamā ſawe Mardocheus in ẏ kynges gate, ẏ he ſtode not vp & kneled before hym, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus.
Neuertheles, Haman refrayned him ſelfe: & whē he came home, he ſent, and called for his frendes, & zares hys wyfe, and Haman tolde them of the glory of his ryches, and the multitude of his chyldren, & all together howe ẏ D kyng had promoted hym ſo greatly, & howe that he had ſet him aboue the princes ād ſeruauntes of the kyng. Hamā ſayd moreouer: Yee & Eſther ẏ quene dyd let no man come in with the king vnto the bancket that ſhe had prepared, except me, & to morowe am I byd-den vnto her alſo with the kynge. But in al this am I not ſatiſfyed, as lōge as I ſe Mar-docheus the Iewe ſyttynge at the kynges gate. Then ſayd zares hys wyfe and all hys frēdes vnto hym: Let them make a galowſe of fyftye cubytes hye, ād to morowe ſpeake thou vnto ẏ kynge, that Mardocheus maye be hanged theron, & go thou in merely wyth the kynge vnto the bācket. And Hamā was wel content wyth all, & cauſed the galowes to be made.

The.vi.Chapter

The kynge turneth ouer the Chronycles and fyndeth ẏ fidelite of Mardocheus, and then to the cōfuſion of Haman, cōmaundeth Mardocheus to be had in honoure.

A THe ſame night could not the king ſlepe, and he commaunded to bryng the Chronicles and ſtoryes: whych when they were red before the kynge they happened on the place where it was wrytten, how
* Mardocheus had told that Bigthana and * Eſther.ii.
Theres ẏ kynges two chāberlaynes (which kept the threſholdes) ſought, to laye handes on kynge Ahaſuerus. And the kynge ſayd:
What worſhyppe and good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then ſayde the kynges ſeruauntes that mynyſtred vnto hym:
There is nothynge at all done for hym. And the kynge ſayde: Who is in the courte? (for B Haman was gone into the court wythoute before ẏ kinges houſe, that he myght ſpeake vnto the kyng to hange Mardocheus on ẏ tre (that he had prepared for hym.) And the kynges ſeruauntes ſayde vnto hym: beholde, Haman ſtandeth without in the courte.
And ẏ kyng ſayd: let hym come in. And whē Haman came in, the kynge ſayde vnto hym:
What ſhall be done vnto the man, whom the kyng wolde fayne brynge vnto worſhyppe?
C Haman thought in hys herte: Whom deſy-reth the kyng to bryng vnto worſhippe more then me? And Haman anſwered the kyng Let the mā whō the kyng pleaſeth to bryng vnto worſhippe, be brought hyther, that he maye be arayed with the royall garmentes which the kyng vſeth to weare: & the horſe ẏ the kynge rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royal maye be ſet vpō his heed. And let this rayment and horſe be delyuered vnder the hand of one of the kynges princes, that they maye araye the man withall (whō the kyng is diſpoſed to bryng to honoure) & cary hym vpō the horſe thorow the ſtrete of the cytie, ād proclayme before him: thus ſhal it be done to the man, whom the kynge pleaſeth to brynge to honoure.

And the kynge ſayd: make haſt, and take as thou haſt ſayde, the rayment & the horſe:
and do euē ſo vnto Mardocheus the Jewe, ẏ ſytteth before the kinges gate, & let nothing fayle of all that thou haſt ſpokē. Then toke Haman the rayment & the horſe, and arayed D Mardocheus, ād brought him on horſbacke thorow the ſtrete of ẏ cytie, and proclaymed before hym: Euen thus ſhall it be done vnto ẏ man whō the kyng is diſpoſed to honoure.
And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Haman gat hym home in all ẏ haſt mournynge bare headed, ād tolde zares hys wyfe and all hys frendes, euery thing ẏ had happened him. Then ſayd his wyſe men and zares his wyfe vnto hym: If it be Mardocheus, of the ſede of ẏ Jewes, before whō thou haſt begonne to fall, thou ſhalt not preuayle agaynſt hym, but ſhalt ſurely fall before him. And whyle they were yet talkyng with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, & cauſed Haman to make haſt, to come vnto the bancket that Eſther had prepared.

The. vii. Chapter.

The quene byddeth the kynge & Haman agayne and prayeth for her ſelfe and her people. She accuſeth Hamā and he is hanged on the gallouſe, which he had prepared for Mardocheus.

A And the kynge & Haman came in to ẏ bancket that quene Eſther had prepared, & the kynge ſayde vnto Eſther on ẏ ſecōde daye at the bācket of wyne: what is thy peticion (quene Eſther) that it maye be geuē the? And what requyreſt thou? Yee, aſke euē halfe of the empyre, and it ſhal be done. And Eſther ẏ quene anſwered, & ſayde: If I haue found grace in thy ſyght (O kynge,) and yf it pleaſe the kyng, then graūt me my lyfe at my deſyre & my people, for my peticiōs ſake:
for we are ſolde, I & my people, to be deſtroyed, B to be ſlayne & to periſhe. And wold God we were ſolde to be bondmen & bondwemē, then wold I hold my tonge: For the enemye pondreth not the kynges harme. The kynge Ahaſuerus anſwered, and ſayde vnto quene Eſther: who is he? And where is he, ẏ darre preſume in hys mynde, to do after ẏ maner?
And Eſther ſayd: the enemye and aduerſary is this wicked Haman.

Haman, was exceadingly afrayed before
C the kyng and the quene. And the kyng aroſe from the bancket and from the wyne in hys diſpleaſure, & went into the palace garden.
And Haman ſtode vp, and beſought quene Eſther for hys lyfe: for he ſawe, that there was a myſchefe prepared for hym of ẏ kyng all ready.

D And when the kyng came agayne out of the palace garden into the place where they dranke wyne, Haman had layed him vpon ẏ bed, ẏ Eſther ſat vpon. Then ſayd the kyng: wyll he force the quene alſo before me in the houſe? As ſone as that worde went out of ẏ E kynges mouthe, they couered Hamans face.
And Harbona one of the chamberlaynes that ſtode before the kynge, ſayde: Beholde, there ſtandeth a galowes in Hamans houſe fyftie cubytes hye, whyche he had made for Mardocheus, that ſpake good for the kyng.
The kynge ſayd: hang him theron. So they hanged Haman on the galowes, that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath pacifyed.

The. viii. Chapter.

After the death of Haman is Mardocheus exalted, and then are ther comfortable letters ſent vnto the Jewes.

A The ſame daye dyd kyng Ahaſuerus geue the houſe of Haman the Jewes enemye, vnto quene Eſther.
And Mardocheus came before ẏ king: for Eſther told howe that he belōged vnto her. And the kyng put of his fynger rynge, whych he had takē from Haman, & gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Eſther ſet Mardocheus ouer ẏ houſe of Haman.
And Eſther ſpake yet more before the kyng: & fell downe at his fete wepyng, & beſought hym that he wolde put awaye ẏ wickednes of Haman the Agagite, and hys deuyce that he had ymagined agaynſt the Jewes.
And ẏ kynge *(accordynge to the maner) held * out ẏ golden ſcepter toward Eſther, *(wherby * B was declared a tokē of graciouſnes.) Thē roſe Eſther, and ſtode before the kynge, and ſayde: yf it pleaſe the king, & yf I haue found grace in his ſyght, and yf it be acceptable before the kynge, then let it be written, that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the ſonne of Hamadatha the Agagite, maye be called agayne:
whyche letters he wrote, to deſtroye the Jewes, C which are in al the kynges landes. For how can I ſuffre and ſe the euell, that ſhall happen vnto my people? Or how can I loke vpon the deſtruccion of my kynred?

And ẏ kyng Ahaſuerus ſayd vnto quene Eſther, & to Mardocheus ẏ Jewe: Beholde, I haue geuen Eſter ẏ houſe of Hamā, whom they haue hanged vpō a tre, becauſe he layed hand vpon the Jewes. Write ye alſo for the Jewes, as it lyketh you in ẏ kynges name, & ſeale it with the kynges ryng (for the wrytynges that were wrytten in the kynges name, D and ſealed with the kynges rynge, durſt no man dyſanull.) Then were the kynges ſcribes called at ẏ ſame tyme, euē in ẏ thyrd

*Maye. moneth, that is the moneth *Siuan, on the thre and twentyeth daye.

And it was wrytten (accordynge to all as Mardocheus commaũded) vnto the Jewes, and to the princes, to the Debityes and captaynes in the landes which are frõ India vntill Ethiopia, namely an hundred and ſeuen and twentye landes, vnto euery one accordinge to the writing therof, ⁊ vnto euery
D people after their ſpeche, ⁊ to the Jewes accordynge to theyr wrytynge and language.

And he wrote in ẏ kynge Ahaſuerus name, and ſealed it with the kynges ringe. And by poſtes that rode vpon horſes, and ſwyfte yong Mules, ſent he the wrytinges, wherin the kyng graũted the Jewes (in what cyties ſoeuer they were) to gather them ſelues together, and to ſtande for theyr lyfe, ãd for to rote out, to ſlaye, ⁊ to deſtroye all the power of the people and land that wold trouble thẽ with chyldren and wemẽ, and to ſpoyle their good vpon one daye in all the lãdes of kinge Ahaſuerus, namely vpõ the thyrtenth daye of the twelueth moneth, whyche is the moneth *Adar. *February.

The ſome of the wrytynge was, howe there ſhulde be a commaundemẽt geuẽ in all landes and publiſhed amõge all people, and that the Jewes ſhuld be ready agaynſt that daye, and to auenge them ſelues on their enemyes. And ſo the poſtes that rode vpon the ſwift horſes and Mules, made haſt wyth al ſpede, to execute ẏ kinges worde: ⁊ ẏ comaũdement was deuiſed in Suſan ẏ chefe cytie.

And Mardocheus went out ○⁋ (from the palace and) from the kynge, in royall appatell of yelow and whyte, and with a great crowne of golde, beyng arayed with a garmẽt of ſylke and purple, and the cytie of Suſan reioyſed and was glad: and vnto the Jewes there was come ○⁋ (a new) lyght and gladneſſe, ioye and worſhippe. In all landes ⁊ cyties, into what places ſoeuer the kynges worde ãd cõmaũdemẽt reached, there was ioye ⁊ myrth, proſperite ⁊ good dayes among the Jewes: in ſomoch, ẏ many of the people in the lande became of the Jewes beleſe, and the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundement of the kynge, the Jewes put theyr aduerſaries to deeth. The ſonnes of Haman are hanged. The Jewes kepe a feaſt daye in remembraũce of theyr delyueraunce.

A IN the twelueth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the thyrtenth daye of the ſame, whan the kynges worde and commaundement ſhulde be done, euen vpon the ſame daye that the enemyes ſhulde haue deſtroyed the Jewes to haue oppreſſed them, it turned contrary wyſe, euen that the Jewes ſhulde ſubdue theyr enemyes. For then gathered ẏ Jewes togither in their cities within all the landes of kynge Ahaſuerus, to lay hand on ſuche as wolde do them euyl, and no man coulde withſtande them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes, and princes and debites and officers of the kyng, promoted ẏ Jewes for the feare of Mardocheus came vpon thẽ. For Mardocheus was great in the kynges houſe, and the reporte of him was noyſed in all landes, howe he encreaſed and grewe.

Thus ẏ Jewes ſmote all their enemies wt a ſore ſlaughter, and ſlewe and deſtroyed, ⁊ B dyd after their will vnto ſuche as were their aduerſaries. And at Suſan the chefe cytie ſlewe the Jewes, and deſtroyed fyue hũdred men: and ſlewe Pharſandatha, Dalphon, Aſphatha, Phoratha, Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmaſtha, Ariſai, Aridai, and Vaizatha the ten ſonnes of Haman the ſonne of Hamadata the enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layde no hãdes. At ẏ ſame tyme was the kynge certified of the nõbre of thoſe that were ſlayne in the citie of Suſan. And the kynge ſayd vnto quene Eſther. The Jewes haue ſlayne and deſtroyed fyue hundred C men in the cytie of Suſan, and the ten ſonnes of Hamã. What haue they done thinkeſt ẏ in the other landes of the kyng? And what is thy petition, that it may be gyuen the? or what requireſt thou more to be done? Eſther anſwered: Yf it pleaſe the kynge, let him ſuffre the Jewes to morowe alſo to do according vnto this dayes commaundement, that they maye hange Hamans ten ſonnes vpon ẏ tre. And the kynge charged to do ſo, and the commaundement was deuyſed at Suſan, ⁊ they hanged Hamans ten ſonnes. For the Jewes that were in Suſan gathered them ſelues togyther, vpon the fourtenth daye of the moneth of Adar, and ſlew thre hundred men at Suſan, but on their goodes they layd no hãdes. As for the other Jewes that were in ẏ kynges landes, they came togither, ⁊ ſtode for their lyues, that they myght haue reſt frõ their enemies: ⁊ ſlewe of their enemyes fyue and ſeuentye thouſand, how beit, they layde no handes on their goodes. Thys they dyd D on the thirtenth daye of the moneth Adar, ⁊ on the fourtenth daye of the ſame moneth reſted they, which day they helde with feaſting and gladneſſe. But the Jewes that were at Suſan, came togither both on the thirtenth daye and on the fourtenth, ⁊ on the fyftenth daye of the ſame they reſted, and helde that daye with feaſtinge and gladnes. And therfore the Jewes that dwelt in the villages ⁊ vnwalled townes, helde the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, with gladnes and feaſtinge, and kept holy daye, ⁊ euery one ſent gyftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote theſe actes, and ſent the wꝛitynges vnto all the Jewes that were in all the landes of kynge Ahaſuerus, both nye & farre that they ſhuld make a law amonge them ſelues & holde the fourtenth & fiftẽth daye of the moneth Adar, as yͤ dayes wherin the Jewes came to reſt frõ their ene-E myes, and as a moneth wherin theyꝛ payne was turned to ioye, & their ſoꝛowe into a holy daye, & that in thoſe dayes they ſhuld make feaſtes and gladnes, & one to ſende gyftes vnto another, & to diſtribute vnto yͤ pooꝛe.

And the Jewes were cõtent with it yͭ they had begonne to do, and that Mardocheus, wꝛote vnto them: how that Hamã the ſonne of Hamadatha all the Jewes enemye, had deuyſed agaynſt the Jewes, howe he myght deſtroye them and cauſed to caſt Phur (that is a Lot) foꝛ to put them in feare, & to bꝛyng them to naught: and howe Heſter went, and ſpake to the kynge, that thoꝛowe letters his wycked deuyce (which he ymagined againſt the Jewes) myght be turned vpon his awne head, and howe he & his ſonnes were hanged on the tree. Foꝛ the whiche cauſe they called thys daye Phurim, becauſe of the name of the lot, and becauſe of all the woꝛdes of this wꝛytynge: and what they them ſelues had ſene, and what had happened vnto them.

And the Jewes ſet it vp, and toke it vpon F them and their ſede, ãd vpon al ſoche as ioyned them ſelues vnto them, that they wolde not miſſe but obſerue theſe two dayes yerely, accoꝛdynge as they were wꝛitten and ap-poynted, how that theſe dayes are not to be foꝛgotten, but to be kepte of childers childꝛẽ amonge all kynredes in al lãdes and cyties.
They are the dayes of Phurim, whyche are not to be ouerſlipte among the Jewes, & the memoꝛiall of them ought not to periſſhe frõ theyꝛ ſede.

And quene Eſther the daughter of Abihail and Mardocheus the Jewe wꝛote wͭ al auctoꝛite (to confirme this ſecond wꝛytinge of Phurim) and ſent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundꝛeth & ſeuen and twentye landes of the empyꝛe of Ahaſuerus, wͭ frendly and faythfull woꝛdes, to confyꝛme theſe dayes of Phurim, in their tyme appoynted, accoꝛdyng as Mardocheus the Jewe & Eſther the quene had appointed them. And they bound their ſoule and their ſede to faſting, & prayer. And Eſther ſtablyſſhed the woꝛdes of theſe lettes, as it is wꝛyttten in the boke.

And the kynge Ahaſuerus layed trybute
G vpon the lande, and vpon the Iles of the ſee.
And all that he dyd by his power and auctorite, & the great woꝛſhyppe of Mardocheus which the kyng gaue hym, be they not wꝛit-ten in the Chronycles of the kynges of Media and Perſia? Foꝛ Mardocheus the Jewe was the ſeconde next vnto kyng Ahaſuerus and great amonge the Jewes, and accepted amõg the multitude of hys bꝛethꝛẽ, as one yͭ ſeketh the welth of hys people, and ſpeaketh the beſt foꝛ all his ſede.

Job ys plaged wych ſore byles, ⁊ afterward ys mocked of hys wyfe. Hys frendes vyſyte hym and haue compaſſyon of hym.

A And the chyldren of God came ād ſtode before the Lorde and Satan came alſo amonge them, and ſtode before the Lorde. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Satā: From whence commeſt thou? Satan anſwered yͤ Lorde, and ſayde: I haue gone about yͤ land and walcked thorowe it.

¶Elihu ſheweth wherin Job offended, with God may we not ſtryue, nor curiouſly ſearche out hys workes.

WHerfore, heare my wordes A (O Job) and herken vnto me all that I will ſaye. Beholde, I haue nowe opened my mouth, my tonge hath ſpoken in my throte. My hert doth ordre my wordes a ryght,

a ryght, and my lyppes talke of pure wyſdome. The ſprete of God hath made me, ād *Gene.ii.b *the breth of the almyghtye hath geuen me my lyfe. Yf thou canſt, then geue me anſwere: prepare thy ſelfe to ſtande before me face to face. Beholde, before God am I euen as thou, for I am faſhyoned and made euen of the ſame moulde. Therfore, thou nedeſt not to be afrayed of me, nether nedeſt thou B to feare, that my auctoryte ſhalbe to heuye for the. Nowe haſt thou ſpoken in myne eares, and I haue herde the voyce of thy wordes: I am cleane wythoute any faute, I am innocent, and there is no wyckednes in me.
But lo, he hath picked a quarel agaynſt me, *Iob.xiii.d and taketh me for hys enemye: *he hath put my fote in the ſtockes, and loketh narowlye vnto all my pathes. Beholde, in thys haſt thou not done ryght. I wyll make anſwere vnto the, that God is more then man. And why doeſt thou then ſtryue againſt hym: for he ſhall not geue the accomptes of all hys wordes. For whē God doth once cōmaunde C a thynge, there ſhulde no man be curyous, to *Gene.xx.a ſearche whether it be ryght. *In dreames xxviii.c xxxi.d and viſyons of the nyght (when ſlombrynge Dan.ii.b commeth vpon men, that they fall a ſlepe in Matth.ii.b their beddes) he roundeth them in the eares, he infourmeth thē, and ſheweth them playnly, that it is he whyche wythdraweth man from euyll, delyuereth hym from pryde, kepeth hym from the graue, and hys lyfe from the ſwearde. He chaſteneth hym wyth ſyckneſſe, and bryngeth hym to his bed: he layeth ſore punyſhement vpon hys bones, ſo that hys lyfe maye awaye wyth no bred, and his ſoule abhorreth to eat any daintie meat: In ſo moch that hys body is cleane conſumed awaye, and his bones appeare nomore. Hys lyfe draweth vnto the graue, and his lyfe to D death. Now, yf there be a meſſenger (one amonge a thouſande) ſent for to ſpeake vnto man, and to ſhewe him the ryght waye: then the Lorde is mercyful vnto hym, ād ſayeth:
He ſhalbe delyuered, that he fall not downe to the graue, for I am ſufficiently reconcyled. Than ſhall hys fleſh be as well lykyng as it was afore, and ſhalbe as it was in hys youth. For yf he ſubmytte hym ſelfe vnto God, he ſhalbe gracious vnto hym, & ſhewe him his countenaunce ioyfully, & rewardeth man for his ryghteouſnes. Soch a reſpecte hath he vnto men. Therfore, let a man confeſſe (and ſaye:) I haue offended, I dyd vnryghteouſly, and it hath done me no good.
Yee, he hath delyuered my ſoule from deſtruccyon, and my lyfe ſhall ſe the lyght. Lo, thus worketh God alwaye with man, that he kepeth hys ſoule from peryſhing, and letteth hym enioye the lyghte of the lyuynge.
Marcke well (O Iob) and heare me: holde the ſtyll, and I wyll ſpeake. But yf ỹ haſt any thynge to ſaye, then anſwere me, and ſpeake, for thy anſwere pleaſeth me. If ỹ haſt nothynge, then heare me, and holde thy tonge, ſo ſhall I teach the wyſdome.

¶Elihu prayſeth the iuſtyce of God, whych iudgeth the worlde, and gouerneth all.

Elihu proceadynge forth in hys A anſwere, ſayd: Heare my wordes (O ye wyſe men) herken vnto me, ye that haue vnderſtādynge. For the eare proueth and dyſcerneth the wordes, *and the mouth taſteth the meates: As *Iob.xii.b.
for iudgement, let vs ſeke it out amōge oure ſelues, ỹ we may knowe what is good.
And why? Iob hath ſayde: I am ryghteous but God doth me wronge. I muſt neades be a lyer, though my cauſe me ryght, and violently I am plaged where as I made no ☞ drincketh vp ſcornefulnes lyke water? ☞ whych goeth in ỹ cōpany of wycked doers, and walketh wͭ vngodly men? For he hath ſayed: Though a man be good, yet is he naught before God. Therfore herken vnto me, ye that haue vnderſtandynge.

Farre be it from God that he ſhuld medle B wyth wyckedneſſe: and farre be it from the Almyghtye, that he ſhulde medle wyth vnryghteous dealynge: *For he ſhall reward *Mat.xvi.d. Roma.ii.b. the worckes of man, and cauſe euery man to fynde accordynge to hys wayes. For ſure it is, that *God condēneth no man wrongefully, & the iudgement of the Almyghtye *Rom.iii.a. is not vnryghteous. Who ruleth the earth in hys ſteade? Or, whom hath he ſet to gouerne the whole worlde? Tho whom hath he geuen hys herte, for to drawe hys ſprete and breth vnto him? All fleſh ſhall come together vnto naught, and all men ſhall turne agayne vnto *duſt. If thou now haue *Gene.iii.d. Pſal.cxlvi.a. vnderſtandyng, heare what I ſaye, and herken to the voyce of my wordes?

Maye he be a ruler, that loueth no ryght?
Or maye he that is a very innocēt man, do vngodly? Is it reaſon, ỹ thou ſhuldeſt ſaye to the kynge: Tou art wycked, or, thou art vngodly, and that before the prynces? *He *ii.Par.xix.d Roma.ii.b. Ephe.vi.b. Coloſſ.iii.d. Eccle.xxxv.b. hath no reſpecte vnto the perſonnes, of the lordly, & regardeth not the rych more then the poore. For they be all the worcke of hys C handes. In the twyncklynge of an eye ſhall they dye: and at mydnyght, when ỹ people and ỹ tyrāūtes rage, then ſhall they periſh, and be taken awaye wythout handes. And why? *his eyes loke vpon ỹ wayes of man, *Iob.xxxi.a. Prouer.v.d. and he ſeyth all hys goynges. There is no darcknes no ſhadowe of death, ỹ can hyde the wycked doers from hym. For no man ſhalbe ſuffred to go into iudgemēt wͭ God.

M Many

Many one: yee innumerable doth he punyſhe, and ſetteth other in theyr ſteades. Therfore ſhall he declare theyr worckes, he ſhall turne the nyght, and they ſhall be deſtroyed. They yͭ were in yͤ ſteade of Sears, dealt lyke vngodly men: and therfore he punyſhed them, becauſe they turned back frō hym, and wolde not cōſyder all hys wayes. In ſo moch that they haue cauſed yͤ voyce of the poore to come vnto hym, and now he heareth the cōplaynte of ſoch as are in trouble. D If he graunte pardon, who wyll condemne? And yf he hyde awaye hys countenaunce, who ſhalbe able to ſe it? whether it be to the people or to any man, thus wyll he do. For the vngodlyneſſe of yͤ people, doth God make an ypocrite to reygne, ouer thē. For ſo moch then as I haue begonne to talke of God, I wyll not hyndre the. If I haue gone a myſſe, enfourme thou me: yf I haue done wronge, I wyll leaue of. Can he do nothynge wythout the? For thou haſt reproued his iudgemēt. Thou alſo haſt thyne awne mynde & not I. But ſpeake on what thou knoweſt. Let men of vnderſtandyng tell me, & let a wyſe man herken vnto me. As for Job, he hath nether ſpoken to yͤ purpoſe nor wyſely. O father, let Job be well tryed, becauſe he hath anſwered for wicked men: yee, aboue his ſynne he doth wyckedly: triumpheth amonge vs, and multyplyeth hys wordes agaynſt God.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

Nether doth godlyneſſe profet, or vngodlynes hurt to God but to man.

A ELihu ſpake moreouer, & ſayde: Thynkeſt thou it ryght, that thou ſayeſt: I am ryghtuous before God? For thou ſayeſt: What aduauntage wyll it be vnto the, and what profyt ſhalt thou haue of my ſynne. Therfore wyll I geue anſwere vnto the & to thy cōpanyons with the: loke vnto the heauen, and beholde it: cōſydre the cloudes, whych are hyer then thou. If thou haſt ſynned, what haſt thou done agaynſt hym? If thyne offences be many, what haſt B thou done vnto hym? If thou be ryghtuous what geueſt yͧ hym? Or what wyll he receaue of thy hād? Of ſoche an vngodly perſonne as thou, and of the ſonne of man that is ryghtuous as thou pretendeſt to be: there is a great cry & complaynte made by them that are oppreſſed wyth violence, yee, euery man cōplayneth vpon yͤ crueltye of tyraūtes. For ſoche a one neuer ſayeth: Where is God that made me? and yͭ geueth vs occaſyon C to prayſe hym in yͤ nyght? Whych geueth vs more vnderſtandyng then he doth the beaſtes of the earth, & teacheth vs more then he doth the foules of heauen.

If any ſoch complayne no man geueth anſwere, and that becauſe of the wyckednes of proude tyraūtes. But yf a man call vpō God, doth not he heare hym? Doth not the D almyghtye accepte hys crye? Whan thou ſpeakeſt then, ſhulde not he pardon the, yf thou open thy ſelfe before hym, and put thy truſt in hym? Then vſeth he no vyolence in hys wrath, nether hath he pleaſure in curyous and depe inquyſycyons. Therfore doth Job open hys mouth but in vayne, and foolyſhly doth he make ſo many wordes.

The. xxxvi. Chapter.

Elihu ſheweth wherfore God punyſheth & correcteth.

ELihu proceaded forth in hys A talkyng, and ſayd: Holde the ſtyll a lytle, & I ſhall ſhewe yͤ, what I haue yet to ſpeake on Goddes behalfe. I wyll open vnto yͤ yet more of myne vnderſtādynge, and proue my matter ryghteous. And truly, my wordes ſhall not be vayne, ſeynge he is with the that is perfect in knowlege: behold: yͤ greate God caſteth awaye no man, for he hym ſelfe is mygtye in power and wyſdome.

As for the vngodly, he ſhall not preſerue hym, but ſhall helpe the poore to their ryght He ſhall turne hys eyes awaye frō the ryghteous, but as kynges ſhall they be in theyr trone, he ſhall ſtablyſh them for euer, & they ſhalbe exalted. But yf they be layed in preſon and cheynes, or bounde with the bondes of trouble, then wyll he ſhewe them theyr worcke, and the ſynnes wherwith they haue vſed cruel vyolence.

He wyth punyſchynge and nurtrynge of B them, roundeth them in the eares, warneth them to leaue of from theyr wyckedneſſe, ād to amende. *Yf they nowe wyll take hede & *Eſai. i.e ſerue him they ſhall were out theyr dayes in proſperite, and theyr yeares in pleaſure and ioye. But yf they wyll not herken, they ſhal go thorowe the ſwearde, and peryſhe or euer they be aware. As for ſoch as be fayned ypocrites, they ſhall heape vp wrath for them ſelues: for they call not vpon hym, though they be his preſoners. Thus ſhal theyr ſoule peryſche in folyſhneſſe, and theyr lyfe ſhalbe condēned amōg the fornicatours. The poore ſhall he delyuer out of his affliction, & roūde them in the eare whā they be in trouble. Euē ſo ſhall he kepe the (yf thou wylt be content) from the bottomleſſe pyt that is beneth: and yf thou wylt holde yͤ quyete, he ſhall fyll thy table wyth plenteouſneſſe.

Neuertheleſſe, thou haſt condemned the C iudgement of the vngodly, yee, euen ſoche a iudgement and ſentence ſhalt thou ſuffre.

For then ſhall not thy cauſe be ſtylled with crueltye, nor pacyfyed wyth many gyftes. Thynkeſt thou, that he wyll regarde thy ryches? he ſhall not care for golde, ner for all them that excell in ſtrengty. Prolonge not thou the tyme, tyll ther come a nyght for ye, to ſet other people in thy ſteade. But beware that thou turne not a ſyde to wyckedneſſe and ſynne, whych hyther to thou haſt choſen more them mekeneſſe. Beholo, God is of a myghtye hye power: Where is there ſoche a gyde and lawe geuer as he? Who wyll reproue hym of his waye? who wyll ſaye vnto him: thou haſt done wrong?

D O conſydre how greate & excellent hys worckes be, whom all men loue and prayſe: yee, wondre at hym, and yet they ſe hym but afarre of. Beholde, ſo greate is God, that he paſſeth oure knowledge, nether are we able to come to the experience of his yeares. * He turneth the water to ſmall droppes, he dryueth hys cloudes together for to rayne, ſo that they poure downe and drop vpon men. He can ſprede out the cloudes (a couerynge of hys tabernacle) and cauſe hys lyght to ſhyne vpon them, and to couer the botome of the ſee. By theſe thynges gouerneth he his people, & geueth them aboundaunce of meate. Wyth the cloudes he hydeth the lyght, and at his commaundement it commeth agayne. The ryſyng vp therof ſheweth he to hys frendes & to the catell.

*Deut.xi.b. and.xxviii.b.

The.xxxvii. Chapter.

Elihu proueth that the wyſdome of God is vnſearcheable.

A AT this, my hert is aſtonied, and moueth out of hys place. Heare then ye ſounde of hys voyce, and the noyſe that goeth out of his mouth. He gouerneth euery thyng vnder the heauen, and hys lyght reacheth vnto the ende of the worlde. A roaryng voyce foloweth hym: for hys gloryus maieſty geueth ſoche a thondre clappe, that (though a man heare it) yet maye he not perceaue it afterwarde. It geueth an horryble ſownde, when God ſendeth oute hys voyce: greate thynges doth he, whych we can not comprehende. * When he commaundeth the ſnowe, it falleth vpon the erth: As ſoone as he geueth the rayne a charge, immediatly the ſhowers haue theyr ſtrength, and fall downe. He ſendeth feare vpon euery man, that they myght knowe theyr awne worckes. The beeſtes crepe into their dennes, and take their reſt. Out of the ſouth commeth the tempeſt, and colde out of the north.

B At the breth of God, the froſt commeth, and the waters are ſhed abrode. He maketh the cloudes to do theyr labour in geuynge moyſtneſſe, and agayne wyth hys lyght he dryueth awaye the cloude. He diſtrybuteth alſo on euery ſyde, accordinge as it pleaſeth hym to deale out hys worcks, that they maye do whatſoeuer he commaundeth them thorow the whole worlde: whether it be to punyſh any lande, or to doo good vnto them, that ſeke hym.

Herken vnto thys (O Job) ſtande ſtyll, and conſydre ye wondrous worckes of God. Art thou of councell wyth God, when he doth theſe thynges? When he cauſeth the lyght to come forth of hys cloudes? Art thou of hys councell when he ſpredeth out the cloudes? Haſt thou the perfecte knowledge of hys wonders? and how thy clothes are warme, when the lande is ſtyll thorow the South wynde? Haſt thou helped hym to ſpreade out the heauen, whych is to loke vpon, as it were caſt of cleare metall? Teache vs what we ſhall ſaye vnto him, for we are vnmete becauſe of darcknes. Shall it be tolde hym what I ſaye? Shuld a man ſpeake, or ſhulde he kepe it backe? For euery man ſeyth not the lyght, that he kepeth cleare in ye cloudes whych he clenſeth whan he maketh the wynde to blowe. Golde is brought out of the North, but the prayſe and honoure of Gods feare commeth from God hym ſelfe. It is not we that can fynde out the almyghtye: for in power, equite, and ryghteouſneſſe, he is hyer than can be expreſſed. Let men therfore feare hym, for there ſhall no man ſe hym yt is wyſe in hys awne conceate. E F

Al thynges vnder heauẽ are myne: I feare him not whether he threatẽ or him out of his clothes, or who taketh him by the byt of his brydle? Who openeth ỹ dore of his face? for he hath horrible teth rounde about.

Hys bodye is couered wyth ſcales as it were with ſhyldes, lockte in, kepte and well compacte together: One is ſo ioyned to another, ỹ no ayre can come in: Yee, one hangeth B ſo vpõ another, ād ſtycketh ſo together, that they cannot be ſundered. His neſyng is lyke a glyſteryng fyre, and his eyes lyke the mornynge ſhine. Out of his mouth go torches, ⁊ out of his noſtrels ther goeth a ſmoke, lyke as out of an hote ſethyng pot. His breth maketh the coales burne, and the flamme goeth out of hys mouth. In hys necke remayneth C ſtrength, and nothynge is to laboryous for
hym. The mẽbres of hys body are ioyned ſo ſtrayte one to another, and cleaue ſo faſt together, that he cannot be moued.

Hys hert is as herd as a ſtone, and as faſt as the ſtythye that the ſmyth ſmyteth vpõ. When he goeth: the myghtye are afrayed, & feare troubleth them. Yf any man draw out a ſwearde at him, it ſhal not hurt him: there maye nether ſpeare, iauelyng ner breſt plate abyde hym. He ſetteth as moch by a ſtrawe as by yron, and as moche by a rotten ſtocke D as by braſſe. He ſtarteth not awaye for hym that bendeth the bowe: and as for ſlynge ſtones, he careth as moch for ſtubble as for thẽ. He counteth the dartes no better then a ſtrawe, he laugheth hym to ſcorne that ſhaketh the ſpeare. He treadeth the gold in the myre lyke the ſharpe potſherdes. He maketh the depe to boyle lyke a pot & ſtereth the ſee together lyke an oyntment. He maketh the path to be ſene after hym, the depe in hys walkynge place. Vpon earth is there no power lyke vnto hys, for he is ſo made that he feareth not. Yf a man wyll conſydre all hye thynges, thys ſame is a kynge ouer all the chyldren of pryde.

VOCE MEA AD DOMINVM.

To the Chaunter, for Jeduthun a Pſalme of Aſaph.

A Pſal.cxlii.a I Wyll crye vnto God wt my voyce, euen vnto God wyll I crye with my voyce, and he ſhall herken vnto me.

In the tyme of my trouble I ſought the Lorde: my ſore ranne and ceaſſed not in the nyght ceaſon: my ſoule refuſed comforte.

When I am in heuyneſſe, I wyll thyncke vpon God: when my herte is vexed, I wyll complayne. Sela. Thou holdeſt myne eyes wakynge, I am ſo feble, that I can not ſpeake. I haue conſydred the dayes of olde, and the yeares that are paſte. I call to remembraunce B my ſonge: & in the nyght I commune with myne awne herte, and ſearch out my ſpretes. Wyll the Lord abſent hym ſelfe for euer? And wyll he be no more intreated?

Is his mercy clene gone for euer? And is his promyſe come vtterly to an ende for euer more? Hath God forgotten to be gracious?

And wyll he ſhut vp his louyng kyndneſſe in diſpleaſure? Sela. And I ſayde: It is C myne awne infirmite: But I will remembre the yeares of the ryght hande of the mooſt hyeſt. I wyll remembre the workes of the Lorde, and *call to mynde thy wonders of *Pſal.xliii.b olde tyme. I wyll thyncke alſo of all thy workes, and my talkynge ſhalbe of thy doynges. ☞ Thy waye, O God, is holy: who ☞ is ſo great a God as *(our) God? Thou art *o the God that doth wonders, and haſte declared thy power amonge people. Thou haſt D myghtely delyuered thy people, euen the ſonnes of Jacob and Joſeph. Sela. ATTENDITE POPVLE MEVS.

An inſtruccion of Aſaph.

A HEare my lawe, O my people, enclyne youre eares vnto the wordes of my mouth. *I wyll open my mouth in *Mat.xiii.c a parable, I wyll declare harde ſentences of olde. Which we haue hearde and knowen, and *ſoche as our fathers haue tolde vs. Deut.iiii.b. vi.b.&.xi.c Ephe.vi.a

That we ſhulde not hyde them from the chyldren of the generacions to come, but to ſhewe the honour of the Lorde, his myght, & wonderfull workes that he hath done.

He made a couenaunt with Jacob, & gaue Iſraell a lawe, *whiche he commaunded our *Exo.xii.d Joſua.iiii.d. forefathers to teache theyr chyldren.

That theyr poſterite myght knowe it, and the chyldren which were yet vnborne.

To thintent that when they came vp, they myght ſhewe theyr chyldren the ſame.

That they myght put theyr truſt in God, and not to forget the workes of God, but to kepe his cōmaundementes. And not to be *as theyr forefathers ‡a faythleſſe & ſtubburne *Ezech.xx.c. ‡Deu.xxxii.a generacion, a generacion that ſet not theyr herte a ryght, and whoſe ſprete cleued B not ſtedfaſtly vnto God. Lyke as ☞ the ☞ chyldren of Ephraim, which beynge harneſſed and caryenge bowes, turned them ſelues backe in the daye of battayll. They kept not the couenaunte of God, and wolde not walke in his lawe. But forgat what he had done, and the wonderfull workes that he had ſhewed for them. Maruelous thynges dyd he in the ſyght of oure fathers in the lande of Egypte, euen in the felde of zoan.

*Exo.xiiii.d *He deuyded the ſee, and let them go thorow:
he made ẏ waters to ſtande on a heape.
‡Exo.xiiii.c. ‡In the dayetyme alſo he led them with a Nume.xx.b cloude, and all ẏ nyght thorowe with a lyght *Exo.xvii.b of fyre. He cloaue the *harde rockes in the wyldernesse, and gaue them drynke therof, as it had bene out of the greate deapth.
*i.Cor.x.a He brought waters out of ẏ *ſtony rocke, ſo that it guſhed oute lyke the ryuers.
Yet for all this, they ſynned more agaynſt hym, and prouoked the moſte hyeſt in ẏ wyldernes.
C They tempted God in theyr hertes and requyred meate for theyr luſt.
They ſpake agaynſte God alſo, ſayenge:
*Exo.xvi.b. Shall God prepare a *table in the wyldernesse?
Nume.xi.b He ſmote the ſtony rocke in dede, that the water guſhed out, and the ſtreames flowed withall: but can he geue breade alſo? or prouyde fleſh for his people? When ẏ Lord hearde this, he was wrothe: ſo the fyre was kyndled in Jacob, & ther came vp heuye diſpleaſure agaynſt Iſraell. Becauſe they beleued not in God, and put not theyr truſte in his helpe. So he commaunded the cloudes aboue, and opened the dores of heauen.
He rayned downe Manna alſo vpō them,
*Exo.xvi.b. for to eate, & gaue them *fode frō heauen.
Deut.viii.a So man dyd eate ☞ angels fode, for he Sapien.xvi.d
John.vi.d ſent them meate ynough. He cauſed ẏ Eaſt ☞ wynde to blowe vnder the heauen, and thorowe his power he brought in the ſouthweſt *Exo.xvi.b. wynde. *He rayned fleſhe vpon them, as Nume.xi.g thycke as duſte, and fethered foules lyke as the ſand of the ſee. He let it fall amōg theyr tentes, euen round aboute theyr habitacion.
So they dyd eate, and were well fylled, for he gaue them theyr awne deſyre. They were not diſapoynted of theyr luſt. *But
*Nume.xi.g whyle the meate was yet in theyr mouthes: D the heuy wrath of God came vpon them and ſlewe the welthyeſt of them, yee, and ſmote downe, the choſen men that were in Iſraell.
*Nu.xiiii.a. *But for all this, they ſynned yet more, & beleued not his wonderous workes.
Therfore, theyr dayes dyd he conſume in vanite, and theyr yeares in trouble.
*Nume.xi.g *When he ſlewe them, they ſought hym, i.Cor.x.a and turned them earlye, and enquered after God. And they remembred that God was theyr ſtrength, and that the hye God was theyr redemer. Neuertheleſſe, they dyd but flatter hym with theyr mouthe, and diſſembled with hym in theyr tonge. For theyr herte was not whole with hym, neither contynued they ſtedfaſt in his couenaunt.
But he was ſo mercyfull, that he forgaue theyr myſdedes, and deſtroyed them not.
Yee, many a tyme turned he his wrathe awaye, and wolde not ſuffre his whole diſpleaſure to aryſe. *For he conſydered that *Pſal.ciii.c they were but fleſh: and that they were, euen a wynde that paſſeth awaye, and commeth not agayne. Manye a tyme dyd they prouoke F him in the wyldernesse, and greued him in the deſerte. They turned backe, and temted God, and moued the holy one in Iſraell.
They thought not of his hande, and of the daye when he delyuered them from the hande of the enemye. Howe he had wrought his myracles in Egypte, and his wondres in the felde of zoan. *He turned theyr waters *Exo.vii.d into bloude, ſo that they myght not drynke of the ryuers. *He ſent lyce amonge them, *Exo.viii.d and deuoured them vp, ‡and frogges to deſtroye ‡Exo.viii.b. them. He gaue theyr frutes vnto the *catyrpyller, and theyr laboure vnto the *Exo.viii.c. greſhopper. ‡He deſtroyed theyr vynes with ‡Exo.ix.c. hayle ſtones, and theyr mulbery trees with the froſt. *He ſmote theyr catell alſo with *Exo.ix.c hayleſtones, & theyr flockes with hote thonder boltes. He caſt vpon them the furiouſneſſe of his wrath, anger, diſpleaſure, and trouble, and ſent euell angels amonge them.
*He made a waye to his indignacion, and *Exo.ix.a. ſpared not theyr ſoule from death, but gaue theyr lyfe ouer to the peſtilence. *And *Exod.xii.e. ſmote all the fyrſte borne in Egypt, the moſt Pſal.cv.e of Ham. But as for his owne people, F he lead them forth lyke ſhepe, and caryed them in the wyldernesse lyke a flocke. He brought them out ſafely, that they ſhuld not feare, & ouer whelmed theyr ennemyes with the ſee. And brought them within the borders of his Sanctuary: ☞ euen to this moūtayne, ☞ whiche he purchaſed with his ryght them, cauſed theyr land to be deuided among Joſu.vi.x.xi them for an heritage, and made the trybes of Iſraell to dwell in theyr tentes. So they tempted and diſpleaſed the moſte hye God, & kepte not his teſtimonyes. But turned theyr backes, and fell awaye lyke theyr forfathers, ſtartinge aſyde lyke a broken bowe.

For they greued hym with theyr hyll aulters, and prouoked hym to diſpleaſure with theyr ymages. When God hearde this, he was wrothe, and toke ſore diſpleaſure at Iſraell.
So that he forſoke the Tabernacle in Silo, euen the tent that he had pytched among men. He deliuered theyr power into captiuite, and theyr bewtie into the enemyes hande. He gaue his people ouer alſo into the ſwerde, and was wroth with the inheritaunce.
The fyre conſumed theyr younge men, and theyr maydens were not geuen to mariage. Theyr preſtes were ſlayne with the ſwerde, and there were no wyddowes to make lamentacion. So the Lorde awaked as one out of ſlepe, and lyke a gyaunte refreſhed with wyne. *i.Reg.v.b *He ſmote his ennemyes in the hinder partes, and put them to a perpetuall ſhame. ☞ He refuſed the tabernacle of Joſeph, and choſe not the trybe of Ephraim. *Pſal.lxxvii.a *But choſe the trybe of Juda, euen the hyll of Sion whiche he loued.

And there he buylded his temple on hye, and layed ẏ foundaciō of it lyke the grounde, which he hath made cōtinually. *i.Re.xvi.c. *He choſe Dauid alſo his ſeruaunt, & toke hym awaye from the ſhepe foldes. As he was folowynge the ewes greate with younge ones, he toke hym, that he myght fede Jacob his people, and Iſraell his enheritaunce. So he fed them with a faythfull and true herte, and ruled them prudently with all his power.

A prayer of Moſes the man of God.

A LOrde, thou haſt bene oure refuge from one generacyon to another.
Before the mountaynes were euerlaſtyng and worlde without ende.

Thou turneſt man to deſtruccion. Agayne, thou ſayeſt: come agayne ye chyldren of men. * For a thouſande yeares in thy ſyght are but as yeſterdaye, ſeynge that is paſt as a watch in the nyght. As ſone as thou ſcatreſt them, they are euen as a ſlepe, and fade awaye ſodenly lyke the graſſe, B In the mornyng it is grene and groweth awaye in thy diſpleaſure, & are afrayed at thy wrathfull indignacyō. Thou haſt ſet oure mysdedes before the, and oure ſecrete ſynnes in the lyght of thy countenaūce.

For when thou art angrye, all oure dayes are gone: we brynge our yeares to an ende, as it were a tale that is tolde.

The dayes of oure age are thre ſcore yeares and ten: and though men be ſo ſtronge that they come to foure ſcore yeares, yet is theyr ſtrength then but laboure ād ſorowe:
ſo ſoone paſſeth it awaye, and we are gone.
C But who regardeth the power of thy wrath, for euen therafter as a man feareth, ſo is thy diſpleaſure. * O teach vs, to nōbre oure dayes, that we maye applye oure hertes vnto wyſdome. Turne the agayne (O Lorde) at the laſte, and be gracious vnto thy ſeruauntes. O ſatiſfye vs with thy mercy, and that ſoone: ſo ſhall we reioyſe and be glad all the dayes of oure lyfe.

Comforte vs agayne, now after the tyme that thou haſt plaged vs, and for the yeares wherin we haue ſuffred aduerſyte.

Shewe thy ſeruauntes thy worke, and theyr chyldren thy glory. And the glorious maieſty of the Lorde oure God be vpon vs:

I made haſte, and prolonged not the tyme, to kepe thy commaundementes.

The congregacions of the vngodly haue robbed me, but I haue not forgottẽ thy law.

At mydnyght wyll I ryſe, to gyue thankes vnto the, bycauſe of thy ryghtuous iudgementes. I am a companion of all them that feare the and kepe thy commaundementes. *Pſa.xxxiii.a * The earth, O Lorde, is full of thy mercy. O teache me thy ſtatutes.

I O Lord, thou haſt dealt graciouſly with thy ſeruaunt, accordynge vnto thy worde.

O learne me true vnderſtandynge, and knowledge, for I haue beleued thy cõmaundemẽtes. Before I was troubled, I went wronge, but nowe haue I kept thy worde:

Math.xix.c * Thou art good and gracious, O teach me thy ſtatutes. The proude haue ymagined a lye agaynſt me, but I wyll kepe thy commaundementes wyth my whole herte.

Theyr herte is as fat as brawne, but my delyte hath bene in thy lawe: It is good for me that I haue bene in trouble, ẏ I maye learne thy ſtatutes. The lawe of thy mouth is dearer vnto me, thẽ thouſandes of K golde and ſyluer. *Jere.i.b Job.x.a * Thy hãdes haue made me and faſhioned me, O geue me vnderſtandynge, that I maye learne thy commaundementes: They that feare the, wyll be glad whẽ they ſe me, becauſe I haue put my truſt in thy worde. I knowe, O Lorde, that thy iudgementes are ryght, ⁊ that thou of very faythfulneſſe haſte cauſed me to be troubled. O Let thy mercyfull kyndneſſe be my comforte, accordyng to thy worde vnto thy ſeruaunte. O let thy louynge mercyes come vnto me, that I may lyue, for thy lawe is my delyte. Let the proude be confounded, for they go wyckedly aboute to deſtroye me: but I wyll be occupyed in thy cõmaundementes. Let ſoch as feare the, and haue knowen thy teſtimonies, be turned vnto me. O let myne herte be ſounde in thy ſtatutes, that I be not aſhamed. My ſoule hath longed for thy ſaluacion: and I haue a L good hope becauſe of thy worde.

Myne eyes longe ſore for thy worde, ſayenge. O whan wylte thou comforte me.

For I am become lyke a bottell in the ſmoke, yet do not I forget thy ſtatutes.

How many are the dayes of thy ſeruaũt? when wylt thou be auẽged of them that perſecute me? The proude haue dygged pyttes for me, whych are not after thy lawe.

All thy commaũdementes are true, they perſecute me falſly, O be thou my helpe.

They had almoſt made an ende of me vpõ earth, but I forſoke not thy cõmaũdemẽtes.

Better it is to haue a lytle thynge with ryghteouſnes, then greate rentes wrongfullye gottẽ. *A man deuyſeth a waye in his herte, but it is the Lorde that ordreth his goynges. ☞ When the prophecye is in the lyppes of the kynge, his mouthe ſhall not go wronge in iudgement. *A true meaſure and a true balaunce are the Lordes iudgement, he maketh all weyghtes. It is a greate abhominacion, when kynges are wycked, for a kynges ſeate ſholde be holden vp with ryghteouſneſſe. Ryghteous lyppes are pleaſaunt vnto kynges: and he that ſpeaketh the trueth, ſhalbe beloued. The kinges diſpleaſure is a meſſaunger of death, but a wyſe man wyll pacifye hym. The cherefull countenaunce of the kynge, is lyfe, and his louynge fauoure, is as the euenynge dewe. *To haue wyſdome in poſſeſſiõ, is better then to haue golde: and to get vnderſtandyng, is rather to be choſen then to haue ſyluer. The path of the ryghteous is to eſchue euell, & who ſo loketh well to his wayes kepeth his awne ſoule. Preſumpteouſnes goeth before deſtruction, and after a proude ſtomake there foloweth a fall. Better is it to be of humble mynde with the lowly, then to deuyde the ſpoyles with the proude. He that handleth a matter wyſelye, obteyneth good: & *bleſſed is he, that putteth his truſte in the Lorde. Who ſo hath a wyſe vnderſtandynge, ſhalbe called to counſell: and he that can ſpeake fayre, ſhall haue ẏ more learnynge. Underſtandynge is a well of lyfe vnto hym that hath it: as for the chaſtenyng of fooles, it is but foolyſheneſſe. A wyſe herte ordreth his mouth wyſelye, and amendeth the doctryne in his lyppes. Fayre wordes are an hony combe, a refreſhynge of the mynde, and health of the bones. *There is a waye that men thynke to be ryght, but the ende therof leadeth vnto death. A troublous ſoule dyſquyeteth her ſelfe, for her awne mouthe hath brought her therto. An vngodlye perſonne ſtereth vp euell, and in his lyppes he is as an whote burnynge fyre.

A frowarde bodye cauſeth ſtryfe, & he that is a blabbe of his tonge, maketh deuyſion amonge prynces. A wycked man begyleth his neyghbour, and leadeth hym into ẏ waye that is not good. The vngodly that loketh haſtely with his eyes, ymagineth myſchefe, and he moueth his lyppes, he wyll do ſome harme. Age is a crowne of worſhyppe, yf it be founde in the waye of ryghteouſnes.

A pacient man is better then one ſtronge: and he that can rule hymſelfe, is more worth then he that wynneth a cytie. The lottes are caſt into the lappe, but the ordrynge therof ſtandeth all in the Lorde.

grene and frutefull trees withall, I bought ſeruauntes and maydens, and had a greate houſholde. As for catell and ſhepe, I had more ſubſtaunce of them, then all they that were before me in Ieruſalē. I gathered ſyluer and golde together, euen a treaſure of kynges and landes.
I prouyded my ſyngers & wemen, which coulde playe of inſtrumentes, to make men myrth and paſtyme. I gat me pſalteryes & ſonges of muſicke. And I was greater and in more worſhyppe, thē all my predeceſſours in Ieruſalem. For wiſdome remained with me: & loke whatſoeuer myne eyes deſyred, I let thē haue it: and wherin ſoeuer my hert delyted, or had eny pleaſure, I wyth helde it not frō it. Thus my herte reioyſed in all that I dyd, and this was my porcyon of all my trauayle. But when I conſidred all the workes that my handes had wrought, and all ẏ laboure that I had taken therin: lo, all was but vanite and vexacyō of mynde, and nothyng of eny value vnder ẏ Sunne. Thē turned I me to conſydre wyſdome, erroure, and folyſhneſſe (for what is he amonge men that myght be compared to me the kynge in ſoch worckes?) and I ſawe: that wyſdome excelleth folyſhneſſe, as farre as lyght doth darckeneſſe. For a wyſe man hath hys eyes in his head, but the foole goeth in the darkeneſſe: C I perceaued alſo, ẏ they both had one ende. Thē thought I in my minde, If it happen vnto the foole as it doth vnto me, what nedeth me then to labour eny more for wiſdome?
So I confeſſed within my hert, that this alſo was but vanyte. For the wyſe are euer as lytle in remembraūce as the folyſh, for ẏ dayes ſhal come whē all ſhal be forgotten, yee ẏ wiſe man dieth as well as ẏ foole.
Thus beganne I to be weery of my lyfe, in ſo moch that I coulde awaye with nothing that is done vnder the Sunne, for all was but vanite & vexacion of mynde: Yee I was werye

weery of all my labour, whych I had taken vnder the Sunne, becauſe I ſhulde be fayne to leaue them vnto another man that commeth after me: And who knoweth, whether he ſhalbe a wyſe mā or a foole? And yet ſhal he be Lord of all my labours, which I with ſoch wiſdome haue taken vnder the Sunne Thys is alſo a vayne thynge.

D So I turned me to refrayne my mynde from all ſoch trauayle, as I toke vnder the Sunne: for ſo moch as a man ſhulde weery hym ſelfe wyth wyſdome, wyth vnderſtanding and oportunite, & yet be fayne to leaue his labours vnto another that neuer ſwett for thē. This is alſo a vayne thyng & greate miſery. For what getteth a mā of all the laboure and trauayle of hys mynde, that he taketh vnder the Sunne, but heuyneſſe, ſorowe and deſquyetnes all the dayes of hys lyfe? In ſo moch that hys herte cānot reſt in the nyght, this is alſo a vayne thynge? *Eccle.v.d. *Is it not better then for a man to eate & drycke, & hys ſoule to be mery in his labour? Yee I ſawe that thys alſo was a gyfte of God: For who will eat or go more luſtely to hys worcke then I? And why? God gyueth to the man that is good before him, wyſdome, vnderſtandyng, & gladneſſe. But vnto the ſynner he geueth weerynes, (and ſuperfluous care) that he maye gather and heape together the thynge, that afterwarde ſhalbe geuen vnto hym, whom it pleaſeth God. This is now a vayne thynge, yee a very diſquyetneſſe and vexacyon of mynde.

The.iii.Chapter.

All thynges come in theyr tyme, and paſſe awaye in theyr tyme.

A Euery thynge hath a tyme, yee all ŷ is vnder the heauen, hath hys cōuenient ſeaſon. There is a tyme to be borne, and a tyme to dye.

There is a tyme to plante and a tyme to plucke vp the thyng, that is planted.
A time to ſlaye, and a tyme to make whole.
A tyme to breake downe, & a tyme to builde vp. A tyme to wepe, and a tyme to laugh:
A tyme to mourne, and a tyme to daunſe.
A tyme to caſt awaye ſtones, and a tyme to gather ſtones together. A tyme to embrace, and a tyme to refrayne from embracynge.
A tyme to wynne, and a tyme to leſe. A tyme to ſpare, and a tyme to ſpēde. A tyme to B cut in peces, and a tyme to ſowe together.
*Eccle.xx.a. xxxi.d.xxxii.a *A tyme to kepe ſylence, & a tyme to ſpeake. A tyme to loue, and a tyme to hate.
A tyme of warre, and a tyme of peace.

What hath a man els (ŷ doth any thing) but weeryneſſe & labour? For as touchynge the trauayle and carefulneſſe, whyche God hath geuen vnto men, I ſe ŷ he hath geuen it them, to be exerciſed in it. All thys hath he ordened marueluous goodly, to euery thīg hys due tyme. He hath planted ignoraunce alſo in the hertes of mē, that they ſhulde not comprehende the grounde of hys worckes, which he doth from the begynnynge to ŷ ende. C So I perceaued, ŷ in theſe thinges there is nothyng better for a man, then to be mery and to do well ſo longe as he lyueth. For all that a mā eateth & drynketh, yee what ſoeuer a mā enioyeth of all hys labour, that ſame is a gyfte of God. I conſydered alſo ŷ whatſoeuer God doth, it cōtinueth for euer and that nothing can be put vnto it, nor taken from it, and that God doth it to the intent, that mē ſhuld feare hym. *Eccleſ.i.b. *The thynge that hath bene, is nowe: and the thynge that is for to come, hath bene afore time, for God reſtoreth agayne the thynge that was paſt Moreouer, I ſawe vnder the Sūne vngodlyneſſe in the ſteade of iudgement, and iniquyte in ſteade of ryghteouſneſſe. Then thought I in my minde: God ſhall ſeparate the ryghteous from the vngodly, and then ſhalbe the tyme and iudgement of all councels and worckes. I commened wyth myne awne herte alſo concernynge the chyldren of mē: howe God hath choſen them, & yet letteth them apeare: D as though they were beaſtes: for it happeneth vnto men as it doth vnto beaſtes, and as the one dyeth, ſo dyeth the other: yee they haue both one maner of breth: ſo ŷ (in thys) a man hath no preemynence aboue a beaſt, but all are ſubdued vnto vanytie. They go all vnto one place, for as they be all of duſt, ſo ſhall they all turne vnto duſt agayne. *Sapi.ii.a. *Who knoweth the ſprete of mā that goeth vpwarde, and the breth of the beaſt that goeth downe into ŷ earth? Wherfore I perceaue, that there is nothing better for a man, thē to be ioyfull in hys laboure, for that is hys porcyon. But who wyll brynge hym to ſe the thynge that ſhal come after hym?

The.iiii.Chapter.

The miſeries of ŷ innocent. The ſuperfluous labours of men. The chylde that is poore, and wyſe, &c.

A So I turned me, & *conſidred all ŷ violent wrong that is done vnder the ſunne, & beholde, the teares of ſoche as were oppreſſed, and there was no man to cōforte thē, or ŷ wolde delyuer & defende them frō the violence of theyr oppreſſours. *Abacuc.i.a Eccleſ.v.b Wherfore I iudged thoſe that are deed, to be more happye then ſoche as be alyue: yee, him that is yet vnborne to be better at eaſe then they both, becauſe he ſeyth not the myſerable worckes that are done vnder the Sunne.

B Agayne, I ſawe that all trauayle, & diligēce of labour, ŷ euery man taketh in hāde, was done of enuy agaynst his neyghboure.

Thys

This is alſo a vaine thinge, and a vexacion of mynde. The foole foldeth hys handes together, and eateth vp hys awne fleſhe. One hãde full (ſayeth he) is better with reſt, then both the handes full with laboure & trauayle of minde. Moreouer, I turned me, & beholde yet another vanyte vnder the Sunne.

There is one man, no mo but hym ſelfe alone, hauynge nether chylde ner brother: yet is there no ende of his carefull trauayle, his eyes cannot be ſatyſfyed with ryches, C (yet doth he not remembre hym ſelfe, and ſaye.) For whom do I take ſoch trauayle? For whoſe pleaſure do I thus conſume awaye my lyfe? This is alſo a vayne & miſerable thynge? Therfore, two are better then one: for they maye well enioye the profyt of theyr laboure.

For If one of them fall, his cõpanion helpeth him vp agayne: But wo is him that is alone, for yf he fall, he hath not another to helpe hym vp. Agayne, when two ſlepe together, they are warme: but how can a body be warme alone? One maye be ouercome, but two maye make reſiſtaũce: A thre folde cable is not lyghtly broken. A poore chylde beynge wyſe, is better then an olde kyng, ẏ D doteth, and cannot beware in tyme to come. *Some one commeth oute of preſon, and is made a kynge: and another whych is borne in the kyngedome, commeth vnto pouerte. And I perceaued, that all men lyuynge vnder the ſunne, go with ẏ ſeconde chylde, that ſhall ſtonde vp in the ſteade of the other.

The. v. Chapter.

A monicyon to beware of raſhe communicacyõn, we ought not to meruell at ẏ oppreſſion of the poore: The couetous is not ſatiſfyed w th his ryches.

A BE not haſtye with thy mouth, and let not thyne hert ſpeake eny thing raſhly before God. For God is in heauen, and ẏ vpon earth, therfore let thy wordes be fewe. For where moch carefulneſſe is, there are many dreames: and where many wordes are, there men maye heare fooles. *If thou make a vowe vnto God, be not ſlacke to perfourme it. As for folyſh vowes, he hath no pleaſure in thẽ: If thou promyſe eny thinge, paye it: for better it is that thou make no vowe, thẽ that thou ſhuldeſt promyſe, and not paye. ☞ ☞ Suffre not thy mouth to cauſe thy fleſhe for to ſynne, nether ſaye thou before the angell, ẏ it is thy ignoraũce. For then God wylbe angrie at thy voyce, ãd deſtroye all the worckes of thyne handes. And why? Where as are many dreames and many wordes, there are alſo diuerſe vanytes: but loke that thou feare B God. *If thou ſeyſt the poore to be oppreſſed and wrongefully dealt withall, ſo that equyte & the ryght of the lawe is wraſted in the lãde: maruell not thou at ſoch a thynge, for one greate man kepeth touch wyth another, & ẏ myghtie men are in auctorite ouer the poore. The encreaſe of ẏ erth vpholdeth all thinge, yea the kyng hym ſelfe is mayntened by huſbãdrye. He that loueth money, wyll neuer be ſatiſfyed wͭ money: ãd who ſo deliteth in riches, ſhal haue no profit therof. This is alſo a vayne thynge. Where as moche ryches is, there are many alſo that ſpende them awaye. And what pleaſure more hath he that poſſeſſeth thẽ, ſauynge that he C maye loke vpon them with hys eyes? A labourynge mã ſlepeth ſwetely, whether it be lytle or moch that he eateth: but the aboundaũce of the ryche will not ſuffre hym to ſlepe. Yet is there a ſore plage, whych I haue ſene vnder the ſunne (namely) ryches kepte to the hurte of hym that hath thẽ in poſſeſſyon. For oft tymes they peryſhe with hys greate myſery & trouble: & yf he haue a chylde, it getteth nothynge. *Lyke as he came naked out of hys mothers wombe, ſo goeth he thither agayne, & carieth nothing awaye with hym of all his laboure. This is a miſerable plage, that he ſhall go awaye euen as he came. What helpeth it hym then, that he D hath laboured in the wynde? All the dayes of hys lyfe alſo he dyd eate in ẏ darcke, with greate carefulnes, ſyckeneſſe and ſorowe. *Therfore me thyncke it a better & a fayrer thyng, a man to eate and dryncke, and to be refreſhed af all hys laboure, ẏ he taketh vnder the Sunne all ẏ dayes of hys lyfe which God geueth hym, for thys is hys porcyon.

The. vi. Chapter.

The myſerye of the ryche and couetous. The difference of a foole and a wyſe man.

A THere is yet a plage vnder the ſunne, & it is a generall thing amonge men: when God geueth a man ryches, goodes and honoure, ſo that he wanteth nothynge of all that hys herte cã deſyre: and yet God geueth him not leaue to enioye ẏ ſame, but another man ſpendeth them. This is a vayne thyng & a miſerable B plage. If a mā begett an hūdred chyldren, & in nombre, and yet cannot enioye hys good, nether be buryed: as for hym I ſaye, ẏ an vntymely to naught, & ſpedeth hys tyme in darcknes, & his name is forgotten. Moreouer, he ſeeth not ẏ ſonne, & knoweth not of it: & yet hath he more reſt thē the other. Yee, though C he lyued two thouſande yeares, yet hath he no good lyfe. Come not all to one place? All the labour ẏ a man taketh, is for hym ſelfe, & yet his deſire is neuer fylled after his minde.

For what hath ẏ wyſe more thē ẏ foole?
What helpeth it the poore, ẏ he knoweth to walke wͭ fooles before the lyuing? The cleare ſyght of the eyes is better, thē ẏ the ſoule ſhulde walke after deſyres of ẏ luſte. Howbeit, this is alſo a vayne thinge & a dyſquietneſſe of mynde. The thing ẏ hath bene: is named

The wyſe man hateth wronge delynge: & abhorreth the harte ẏ couetith rewardes.
Better it is to cōſydre, the ende of a thynge then the begynninge. The pacient of ſprete is better thē the hye mynded. Be not haſtely angrye in thy mynde, for wrath reſteth in the boſome of fooles. Saye not ẏ: What is B the cauſe, ẏ the dayes of the olde tyme were better, thē they ẏ be nowe? for ẏ were no wyſe queſtiō. Wyſdome wͭ enheritaūce is good yet better is it wͭ them ẏ without care maye beholde the ſonne. For wyſdome defendeth as well as moneye, & the excellent knowledge & wyſdome geueth lyfe vnto hym ẏ hath it in poſſeſſion. Conſidre the worcke of God how ẏ no man can make the thing ſtraught which he maketh croked. Vſe well the tyme of proſperite, ẏ remēbre the tyme of myſfortune: C for God maketh the one by the other, ſo ẏ a man cā fynde nothing els. All thinges haue I conſidred in the tyme of my vanyte:
ẏ the iuſt mā periſheth for his ryghteouſnes ſake, & the vngodly lyueth in hys wyckedneſſe.
Therfore * be ẏ nether to ryghteous *Rom.xii.c. ner ouer wyſe, ẏ thou peryſhe not: be nether to vnryghteous alſo ner to folyſh, leſt thou dye before thy tyme. It is good for the to take holde of thys, & not to let that go oute of thy hande. For he that feareth God, cometh forth with them all.

Wyſdome geueth more corage vnto the wyſe, thē ten myghtie men of the cytie: * for *iii.re.viii.e there is not one iuſt vpō earth, ẏ doth good, ii.Para.vi.e and ſynneth not. Take not hede vnto euery Prove.xx.b worde that is ſpokē, leſt thou heare thy ſeruaūt curſe ẏ: for thyne awne hert knoweth that ẏ thy ſelfe alſo haſt oft tymes ſpoken euell by other mē. All theſe thynges haue I proued in wyſdome: for I thought to be wyſe

* but ſhe wēt farther fro me then ſhe was *Iob.xxviii.c before, yee & ſo depe that I myght not reach vnto her. I applyed my mynde alſo vnto D knowledge, & to ſeke & ſearche oute ſcience, wyſdome & vnderſtandyng, to knowe ẏ foolyſhneſſe of the vngodly, & the errour of dotinge fooles. And I founde, ẏ * a woman is *Prou.vii.d bytterer thē death: for ſhe hath caſt abrode, her herte as a nett that men fyſhe with, and her handes are cheynes. Who ſo pleaſeth God, ſhall eſcape from her: but the ſynner wyll be taken with her.

Beholde (ſayeth the preacher) thys haue I diligently ſearched out and proued. One thing muſt be conſidred with another, that a man maye come by knowledge: whiche as yet I ſeke, & fynde it not. Amōg a thouſande mē I haue foūde one, but not one woman amonge all. Lo, thys onely haue I founde, ẏ * God made man iuſte and ryghte, but they *Gene.i.d ſought many inuencyons.

¶The.viii.Chapter.

Who is wyſe? Who hath knowledge A to make anſwere? A mans wyſdome
* maketh hys face to ſhyne: but vnſhamefaſtnes *Pro.xvii.d Iob.ix.d. putteth it oute of fauoure. I muſt kepe the kynges commaūdement, and the oth that I haue made vnto God. Be not haſtye to go oute of hys ſyghte, and ſe thou contynue in no euell thynge: for whatſoeuer it pleaſeth hym, that doeth he. Lyke as when a kynge geueth a charge, hys commaundement is myghtye: Euen ſo * who *Iob.ix.d.

‡ Leu.xviii.a mape ſaye vnto hym: what doeſt ẏ? ‡ Who ſo kepeth the commaundement: ſhall fele no harme: but a wyſe mans herte diſcerneth ẏ tyme ⁊ iudgemēt. For euery thinge will haue oportunite ⁊ iudgement, and thys is the thynge that maketh men full of carefulnes and ſorowe. And why? a man knoweth not what is for to come: for who wyll tell hym? Nether is there eny man ẏ hath power ouer the ſprete, to kepe ſtyll ẏ ſprete, ner to haue eny power in the tyme of death: is it not he alſo that can make an ende of the battayle. nether maye vngodlynes delyuer them that medle withall.

All theſe thynges haue I conſidered, and applied my mynde vnto euery worcke that is vnder the ſonne: howe one mā hath lordſhyppe vpō another to hys awne harme. For * ps.xxxvii.c * I haue ſene often the vngodly brought to there graues: and yet they haue retorned in to the cytie agayne, and came from the place of holy men, whych in the cytie were growen out of memory as were thoſe alſo that C lyued well. Thys is alſo a vayne thynge. Becauſe nowe that euell worckes are not haſtely punyſhed, the herte of man geueth hym ſelfe ouer vnto wyckedneſſe. But though an euell perſone offende an hundred tymes, ⁊ God dyffer gyuinge hym lōge lyfe: yet am I ſure, ẏ it ſhal go well wͭ them that feare God, becauſe they haue hī before their eyes. Agayne, as for ẏ vngodly, it ſhall not be well wͭ hym, nether ſhall he prolonge hys dayes: but euen as a ſhadowe, ſo ſhall he be that feareth not God.

Yet is there a vanyte vpon earth. There be iuſte men, vnto whom it happeneth, as though they had the worckes of the vngodly. Agayne, there be vngodly, wyth whom it goeth as though they had the worckes of the ryghteous. Thys haue I called alſo a vayne thynge. Therfore I commende gladneſſe, becauſe a mā hath no better thing vnder the Sunne, then to eate and dryncke, ād to be mery: for ẏ ſhall he haue of hys labour all the dayes of his lyfe, whych God geueth D hym vnder the ſunne. And ſo I applyed my mynde to learne wyſdome, ⁊ to knowe the trauayle that is in the worlde (and ẏ of ſoch a faſſyon, ẏ I ſuffred not myne eyes to ſlepe nether daye ner nyght) I vnderſtode of all the worckes of God, but it is not poſſible for a mā, to attayne vnto the worckes ẏ are done vnder the Sūne: and though he beſtowe his laboure to ſeke them out, yet can he not reache vnto them: yee though a wyſe man wolde vndertake to knowe them, yet ſhall he not fynde them.

The.ix. Chapter.

A mā wotteth not, by ẏ ryghtweſnes of hys awne workes, whether he be worthye of loue or hate. A mā ought to lyue merely with hys wyfe. A prayſe of wyſdome.

For all theſe thīges, purpoſed I in my mynde to ſeke out. The ryghteous and wyſe, yee and theyr ſeruaūtes alſo, are in ẏ hāde of God: A and ☞ there is no man ẏ knoweth ether loue or hate, but all thynges are before thē. It happeneth vnto one as vnto another: it goeth wyth the ryghteous as wyth the vngodly: * wyth the good and cleane as wyth * Iob.ix.c the vncleane: wyth hym that offereth as with him that offereth not: lyke as it goeth with the vertuous, ſo goeth it alſo with the ſynner: As it happeneth vnto the periured, ſo happeneth it alſo vnto hym that is afrayed to be forſworne. Amonge all thynges that come to paſſe vnder the Sunne, thys is a miſery ẏ it happeneth vnto all a lyke. This is the cauſe alſo that the hertes of men are full of wyckedneſſe, ⁊ mad foolyſhneſſe is in their hertes as longe as they lyue, vntyll they dye.

And why? As lōge as a mā lyueth, he hath a hope: for a quyck dogge (ſaye they) is better thē a deed liō: for they ẏ be lyuig, knowe B ẏ they ſhall dye: but they ẏ be deed: knowe nothing, nether deſerue they eny more. For their memoriall is forgottē, ſo that they be nether loued, hated ner enuyed: nether haue they enymore parte in the world, in all that is done vnder ẏ Sunne. Go thou thy waye then, eate thy bred wyth ioye, and drycke thy wyne with a glad hart, for thy worckes pleaſe God. Let thy garmentes be allwaye whyte, ⁊ * let thy head lack none oyntmēt. * Math.vi.d ‡ Vſe thy ſelf to liue ioyfully with thy wife ‡ Prouer.v.c whom thou loueſt, all the dayes of thy lyfe whych is but vayne, ẏ God geueth the vnder the Sunne, all the dayes of thy vanyte: for that is thy porcyon in this lyfe, of all thy C laboure and trauayle that thou takeſt vnder the Sunne. Whatſoeuer thou takeſt in hande to do, that do with all thy power, for in the graue that ẏ goeſt vnto, there is nether worcke, councell, knowledge ner wyſdome.

So I turned me vnto other thinges vnder the Sunne, ⁊ I ſawe, that in runnynge, it helpeth not to be ſwyft: in batayle, it helpeth not to be ſtronge: to fedynge, it helpeth not to be wyſe, to ryches, it helpeth not to be ſuttel: to be had in fauoure, it helpeth not to be cōnyng: but that all lyeth in tyme ⁊ fortune. For * a man knoweth not hys tyme, * Luke.xxi.d but lyke as the fyſhe are taken with the angle, and as the byrdes are catched wyth the D ſnare: Euen ſo are men taken in the perlous tyme, when it cōmeth ſodenly vpon them.

Thys wyſdome haue I ſene alſo vnder the Sunne, ⁊ me thought it a great thinge. There was a lytle cytie, ⁊ a fewe mē within it: ſo there came a greate kynge and beſeged it, and made greate bulwarkes agaynſt it.

And in ẏ cytie there was founde a poore mā, (but he was wyſe) whych with hys wyſdome delyuered the citye: yet was there no body, that had eny reſpect vnto ſoche a ſimple man. Then ſayde I: wyſdome is better thē ſtrength. Neuertheles, a ſymple mans wyſdome is deſpyſed, ⁊ hys wordes are not herde.
A wyſe mans councell that is folowed in ſylence, is farre aboue the cryenge of a captayne *Sapi.vi.a amōge fooles. * For wyſdome is better thē harneſſe: but one vnthryft alone deſtroyeth moch good.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

¶ The difference betwyxt a foole and a wyſe man. Fortunate and happye is that realme which hath a wyſe prince.

A A Deed flye doth corrupt ſwete oyntment ſo oft tymes he ẏ is made of for wyſdome and honour, is abhorred ☞ becauſe of a lytle foolyſhnes. ☜ A wyſe mans herte is vpon ẏ ryght hāde, but a fooles herte vpon ẏ left. A foole will ſhewe him

Another plage is there, which I haue ſene vnder the ſonne: namely, ẏ ignoraunce ẏ is cōmenly amonge princes: in that a foole ſytteth in greate dignyte, ⁊ the ryche are ſet

C A babler of hys tōge is no better, thē a ſerpent that ſtyngeth wythout hyſſynge.
The wordes oute of a wyſe mās mouth, are gracyous, but the lyppes of a foole wyll deſtroye him ſelfe. The beginnyng of hys talkynge is foolyſhnes: ⁊ the laſt worde of hys mouth is ſtarke madneſſe. A foole is full of wordes, ⁊ a man cannot tell what ſhall come to paſſe: who wyll then warne hym of it that ſhall folow after hym? The laboure of the foliſh is greuous vnto them, whyle they knowe not howe to go into the citye.

D Wo be vnto the (O thou lande) whoſe

Wiſh ẏ kyng no euell in thy thought ⁊ ſpeake no hurte of the ryche in thy preuy whych is the worckemaſter of all.

Ceaſe not thou therfore with thy handes to ſowe thy ſede, whether it be in the morninge C or in the euenynge: for thou knoweſt not whether this or that ſhall proſpere, and yf they both take, it is ẏ better. The lyghte is ſwete, and a pleaſaunt thinge is it for the eyes to loke vpon the Sūne. If a man lyue many yeares, and be glad in thē all, let hym remembre the dayes of darckeneſſe, whyche ſhalbe many: and that foloweth, all thinges ſhal the duſt be turned agayne vnto ẏ earth from whence it came, and the ſprete ſhall returne *Eccle.i.a. turne vnto God, which gaue it. * All is but vanite (ſayth ẏ Preacher) all is but playne vanyte. The Preacher was yet more wyſe, and taught the people knowledge: he gaue good hede, ſought out the groūde, and ſet forth many parables. His diligence was D to fynde out acceptable wordes, right ſcripture, *Hebr.iiii.c , and the wordes of trueth. For * the wordes of ẏ wyſe are lyke pryckes and nayles, that goo thorow, wher with ẏ ſtuffe gathered ſhepherde onely. Therfore beware (my ſonne) of that doctrine that is beſyde thys: for to make many bokes it is an endles worke:

and to loude cryinge weryeth the bodye.

Let vs heare the concluſyon of all thynges:
Feare God, and kepe hys commaundementes:
For that toucheth all men. For God ſhal iudge all workes and ſecrete thynges, whether they be good or euell.

Thy lippes, O my ſpouſe, dꝛoppe as yͤ hony cōbe, yee mylke ⁊ hony is vnder thy tonge, and yͤ ſmell of thy garmētes is lyke yͤ ſmell of Libanus. A garden well locked is my ſyſter, my ſpouſe, a garden well locked, and a ſealed well. The frutes yͭ are planted in the,
are lyke a very Paradyſe of pomgranates with ſwete frutes: as Camphere, Nardus, and Saffrō, Calamus, ⁊ Synamome with all ſwete ſmellyng trees: Myꝛre. Aloes and all the beſt ſpyces: a well of gardēs, a wel of lyuinge waters, which renne downe frō Libanus.
Vp thou noꝛth wynde, come thou ſouth wynde, and blowe vpon my garden, yͭ the ſmell therof may be caried on euery ſide:
yee yͭ my beloued maye come into my gardē.

and eate of the ſwete frutes that growe therin.

¶The.v.Chapter.

A I Am come into my garden, O my ſyſter, my ſpouſe: I haue gathered my Myrre with my ſpyce. I haue eaten hony with my hony cõbe, I haue drõke my wyne wyth my mylke. Eate, O ye frendes, dryncke and be mery, O ye beloued.
As I am aſlepe, ⁊ my hert is wakyng I heare yͤ voyce of my beloued, when he knocketh.
Open to me, O my ſyſter, my loue, my doue, my derlynge: for my heade is full of dewe, and yͤ lockes of my hearre are full of yͤ nyght droppes. I haue put of my cote, how can I do it on agayne? I haue waſhed my fete, how ſhall I fyle them agayne?
B My loue put in hys hand at the hole, and my herte was moued whythin me. I ſtode vp to open vnto my beloued, and my hãdes dropped wͭ Myrre, ⁊ the Myrre rãne downe my fyngers vpon yͤ locke, I opened vnto my beloued, but he was departed and gone hys waye. Now when he ſpake, my hert was gone: I ſought hym, but I coulde not fynde him: I cryed vpon him, neuertheleſſe, he gaue me no anſwere. So yͤ watchmen that wẽte about the cytie, founde me, ſmote me, and wounded me: Yee, they yͭ kepte the walles, toke awaye my kercheaſe fro me.
I charge you therfore, O ye daughters of Ieruſalem, yf ye fynde my beloued, that ye tell hym, how that I am ſyck for loue.
C What maner of man is thy loue aboue other louers? O yͤ fayreſt amonge wemen?
Or what can thy loue do, more then other louers, that thou chargeſt vs ſo ſtraytely?
As for my loue, he is whyte and redde coloured,
a goodlye perſonne amõge ten thouſande:
hys heade is as the moſt fyne golde, the lockes of hys hearre are buſſhed, and black as a crowe. His eyes are as yͤ eyes of doues by the water brokes, as though they were waſſhed wyth mylk, and are ſet lyke perles in golde. Hys chekes are lyke a garden bed, where in yͤ Apotecaries plãte all maner of ſwete thynges: Hys lyppes
D are lyke roſes that droppe ſwete ſmellyng Myrre. Hys handes are lyke golde rynges hauinge encloſed yͤ precious ſtone of Tharſis.
His body is as the pure yuery, decte ouer with Saphires: His legges are as the pyllers of Marbell, ſet vpõ ſokettes of golde.
His face is as Libanus, and as yͤ bewty of yͤ Cedre trees. The wordes of hys mouthe are ſwete, yee, he is altogether louely.
Soche one is my loue. O ye daughters of Ieruſalem, ſoch one is my loue.

¶The.vi.Chapter.

A Whither is thy loue gone then (O thou fayreſt amonge wemen) whyther is thy loue departed? we wyll ſeke hym with the: My loue is gone downe into his garden, vnto the ſwete ſmellyng beddes, that he may refreſh hym ſelf in the garden, ⁊ gather roſes. My loue is myne and I am hys, which fedeth amonge the roſes.
Thou art beautyfull, o my loue, as is the Place of Thirza, thou art fayre as Ieruſalem, fearfull as an armye of men, wͭ theyr banners. Turne awaye thyne eyes fro me, for they haue ſet me on fyre. *Thy hearrye *Canti.ii.c lockes are lyke a flocke of goates, ſhorne B vpon the mount of Gilead. Thy teth are lyke a flocke of ſhorne ſhepe, whych go out of the waſhyng place: where euery one beareth twyns, and not one vnfrutefull among them. Thy chekes are lyke a pece of a põgranate, wyth in thy volupers. There are *lx. Quenes.lxxx. wyues, and dameſelles *iii.Re.xi.a wythout nõbre. One is my doue, one is my derlynge. She is the onely beloued of her C mother, ⁊ deare vnto her yͭ bare her. When the daughters ſawe her, they ſayde, ſhe was bleſſed. Yee the Quenes ⁊ wyues prayſed her. What is ſhe thys, that loketh forth as the mornynge? fayre as the moone, cleare as the ſunne, and fearfull as an armye of men with theyr baners. I wente downe into yͤ nut garden, to ſe what grewe by yͤ brokes, ⁊ to loke yf the vyneyarde floriſh, or yf the põgranates were ſhot forth. I knewe D not that my ſoule had made me yͤ charyote of yͤ people that be vnder tribute. Turne agayne, turne agayne. O thou perfecte one turne agayne, turne agayne, and we wyll loke vpon the. What wyll ye ſe in yͤ Sulamyte?
She is lyke men of warre ſyngynge in a companye.

¶The.vii.Chapter.

O How pleaſaunt are thy treadynges A wyth the ſhoes, thou prynces daughter? Thy thighes are lyke a fayre iewell, whych is wrought by a connyng worcke maſter. Thy nauell is lyke a rounde goblet, whych is neuer wythout dryncke. Thy wõbe is lyke a hepe of wheat that is ſet aboute with roſes.
*Thy two breſtes are lyke two twyns of *Canti.iiii.a yonge roes. Thy neck is as it were a tower of yuery: thyne eyes alſo are lyke the water B poles that are in Heſebon, beſyde the porte of Bathrabbim: thy noſe is lyke the tower of Libanus, whych loketh toward Damaſcus.
That head that ſtandeth vpon the,
is lyke Carmel ⁊ the hearre of thy heade is lyke purple and lyke a kynge goynge forth with his garde aboute hym. O how fayre and louely art thou my dearlynge, in pleaſures?
Thy ſtature is lyke a Palme tree and thy breſtes lyke the grapes. I ſayde I C wyll clyme vp into the Palme tree, and take holde of hys hye braũches. Thy breſtes alſo ſhalbe as the wyne cluſtres the ſmell of thy noſtrels lyke as the ſmel of apples, and thy iawes lyke yͤ beſte wyne. Whiche goeth ſtrayte vnto my beloued & bꝛuſteth foꝛth by the lyppes of yͤ Auncyent eldꝛes. There wyll I turne me vnto my loue & he ſhall B turne hym vnto me. O come on my loue, we wyll go foꝛth into the felde, & take oure lodgynge in the villages. In yͤ moꝛnynge wyll we go ſe yͤ vynearde: we wyll ſe yf the vyne be ſpꝛõge foꝛth, yf yͤ grapes be growne, & yf the pomgranates be ſhot out. There wyll I geue the my bꝛeſtes: the Mandꝛagoꝛas geue theyꝛ ſweate ſmell: and beſyde oure doꝛes are all maner of pleaſaunt frutes:

both newe, and olde: whych I haue kepte foꝛ the, o my beloued.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

A O That I myght fynde the wythout, and kyſſe the, whõ I loue as my bꝛother whych ſuckte my mothers bꝛeſtes: and that yͭ ſhalt not be deſpyſed I wyll leade the, and bꝛynge the into my mothers houſe: that thou myghteſt teach me, & that I myght geue the dꝛyncke of ſpiced wyne, and of the ſwete ſappe of my pomgranates.
*Canti.ii.a. * hys left hande ſhalbe vnder my head, and hys ryght hande ſhall embꝛace me.

I charge you, O ye daughters of Jeruſalem, that ye wake not vp my loue, ner touch her, tyll ſhe be content her ſelfe. What is ſhe this, that commeth vp from the wyldernes, and leaneth vpon her loue? I waked B the vp amonge the apple trees, where thy mother conceyued the, where thy mother (I ſaye) bꝛought the into the woꝛlde. O ſet me as a ſeale vpon thyne herte, & as a ſeale vpon thyne arme: foꝛ loue is myghtye as the death, & gelouſy as the hel. Her coales are of fyꝛe, & a very flamme of the Loꝛde: ſo that many waters are not able to quenche loue, nether maye the ſtreames dꝛoune it.
Yee, yf a man wolde geue all the good of his houſe foꝛ loue, he ſhuld counte it nothyng.
Our ſyſter is but yonge, & hath no bꝛeſtes: C what ſhall we do foꝛ our ſyſter, whan ſhe ſhall be ſpoken foꝛ? Yf ſhe be a wal, ſhe ſhall buylde a ſyluer bolwerke ther vpon: yf ſhe be an open doꝛe, we ſhall faſten her wͭ boꝛders of Cedꝛe tree. I am a wall, & my bꝛeſtes lyke towꝛes, then was I as one that hath founde fauoure in hys ſyght. Salomon hath a vyneyarde at Baal Hamõ, and thys vyneyarde delyuered he vnto the kepers:
that euery one foꝛ yͤ frute therof ſhulde geue hym a thouſande peces of ſyluer. D My vyneyard is in my ſyght: thou (O Salomon) muſt haue a thouſande, and the kepers two hundꝛed wyth the frute. Thou that dwelleſt in the gardens, O let me heare thy voyce, that my companyons maye herken to the ſame. O get the awaye, my loue, & be as a roo oꝛ a yong hert vpon the ſwete ſmellynge mountaynes.

¶ The ende of the Ballet of Ballettes of Salomon: called in Latyn: Canticum Canticoꝛum.

¶ The booke of the Prophete Eſay.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ Eſay propheceyeth that the anger of God ſhall come vpon Jeruſalem becauſe of theyr ſynnes.

A The viſion of Eſay yͤ ſōne of Amos which he ſawe vpon Juda and Jeruſalem: in the dayes of Vzia & Joathan, Ahaz & Jehezikiah kynges of Juda. Heare, O heauen, and herken o earth: For yͤ Lorde hath ſpoken: I haue noriſhed & promoted chyldren, but they haue done wyckedly agaynſt me.
The oxe hath knowne hys owner & the aſſe his maſters cribb: but Iſrael hath receaued no knowledge, my people hath no vnderſtādyng.
B Alas for this ſynfull nacyon, a people of great iniquitie: a ſeed of vngracyous people corruptynge ther wayes. They haue forſaken the Lorde, they haue prouoked the holy one of Iſrael vnto anger, and are gone backward. Wherby ſhulde ye be plaged any more for ye are euer fallynge awaye.
The whole head is ſyck, and yͤ hert is heuy.
From the ſole of the fote vnto yͤ head, there is no whole parte in all your body: but all are woundes, botches, ſores, and ſtryppes, which can nether be helped, bounde vp, molifyed, ner eaſed wͭ any oyntmēt. Your land lyeth waſte, your cyties are brent vp, your enemyes deuoure youre lande, and ye muſt be fayne to ſtāde, & loke vpon it: & it is deſolate, C as they were ſubuerted yͭ were alienate from yͤ Lorde. Moreouer, the daughter of Syon ys left alone lyke a cotage in a vineyard, lyke a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, lyke a waſted cytie. And excepte the Lorde of Hoſtes had left vs a fewe alyue:
we ſhuld haue bene as Sodoma, & lyke vnto Gomorra. Heare yͤ worde of the Lorde ye Lordes of Sodoma: & herken vnto yͤ lawe of our God, thou people of Gomorra. Why offre ye ſo many ſacrifyces vnto me ſayth yͤ Lorde? I am full of the brentofferynges of wethers, & of yͤ fatneſſe of fedbeaſtes. I haue no pleaſure in yͤ bloud of bullokes, lambes and goates. When ye come to apeare before me, who requireth thys of you to treade wythin my porches? Therfore offre me no mo oblacyons, for it is but loſt laboure. Incenſe D is an abhominable thynge vnto me.
I maye not awaye wͭ youre newe moones, your Sabbathes & gatheringe togyther at the ſolēpne dayes. I hate your newe mone dayes & ſolempne feaſtes, euen fro my very hert. I can not awaye wͭ ſuche vanytie and holdynge in of yͤ people. They lye vpon me as a burthen, and I am wery of beringe thē.
Whan ye holde out your hādes, I wyll turne myne eyes frō you. And though ye make many prayers, yet wyll I heare nothynge at all, ſeyng your hādes are full of bloude.
Waſh you therfore, & make you cleane, put awaye your euell entētes out of my ſyght, ceaſe frō doynge of euell. Lerne to do ryght, E applye your ſelues to equite, delyuer yͤ oppreſſed, helpe the fatherles to hys ryght, let the wydowes complainte come before you.
Come I praye ye (ſayeth the Lorde) let vs reaſon oure matter together. Though youre ſynnes be as reed as ſcarlet, they ſhalbe as whyte as ſnowe. And though they were lyke purple, they ſhalbe as whyte as wolle.
If ye be louynge & obedyēt, ye ſhall enioye yͤ beſt thyng yͭ groweth ī yͤ lād. But yf ye be obſtinate & rebellyous, ye ſhalbe deuoured wͭ yͤ ſwerde: for thus yͤ Lorde hath promiſed wͭ his awne mouth. How happeneth it then Jerusalem that the ryghteous cytie (which was full of equite) is become vnfaythfull as an whore? ryghteouſnes dwelt in it, but now murtherers.
Thy ſyluer is turned to droſſe, and F thy wyne myxte wͭ water. Thy princes are wycked & companyōs of theues. They loue gyftes altogether, & gape for rewardes. As for the fatherles, they helpe hym not to hys ryght, nether wyll they let yͤ wydowes cauſes come before thē. Therfore, ſayeth yͤ Lorde God of Hoſtes, the myghty gouerner of Iſrael, Oute vpō ye, I wyll eaſe me of myne enemyes, & I wyll auēge me of myne aduerſaryes, I ſhall laye my hād vpō the, and burne out thy droſſe from yͤ fyneſt & pureſt, and put out all thy tynne, & ſet thy iudges agayne as they were ſomtyme & thy Senatours as they were from the begynnynge.
Then ſhalt yͧ be called the ryghteous cytie, the faythfull cytie. Sion ſhalbe redemed wͭ equite, and they ſhal turne agayne vnto her G in ryghteouſneſſe. For yͤ trāſgreſſours and vngodly, & ſoch as are become vnfaythfull vnto the Lord, muſt altogether be vtterly deſtroyed. For they ſhall be aſhamed of the goddes yͭ you lōged for. And ye ſhall be put to ſhame for yͤ Idols grouegardēs yͭ ye haue choſen: ye ſhalbe as a tree whoſe leaues are fallen awaye, and as a garden yͭ hath no moyſtneſſe. And as for the glorye ☞ of your ☞ grauen Images, it ſhalbe turned to drye ſtrawe, & he yͭ made them to a ſparke. And they ſhall both burne together, ſo that no man ſhalbe able to quench them.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

¶ Of the commyng and deeth of Chriſt, and of the callynge of the Heathen.

Thys is yͤ worde yͭ was opened vnto A Eſay yͤ ſonne of Amoz, vpō Juda & Jeruſalē. It wylbe alſo ☞ in ☞ yͤ laſt dayes yͭ yͤ hyll where yͤ houſe of yͤ lorde is buylded, ſhall be yͤ chefe amōge hylles, & exalted aboue all lytle hylles. And all nacyōs ſhall preace vnto hym, & the multytude of people ſhal go ſpeakyng thus one Pſal.xxxii. a. Mich.iiii.a. to another: vp, let vs go to the hyll of the Lord, & to ẏ houſe of ẏ God of Jacob: that he maye ſhewe vs his wayes, ād ẏ we maye walcke in hys pathes. For ẏ lawe ſhall come out of Sion, & the word of ẏ Lorde from Jeruſalē, & ſhall geue ſentēce amōge ẏ Heathen, & ſhall reforme ẏ multytude of people:

They ſhall breake theyr ſwerdes alſo into
B mattockes, & theyr ſpeares to make ſythes.
And one people ſhall not lyft vp a weapen agaynſt another, nether ſhall they learne to fyght frō thens forth. Come ye (O houſe of Jacob) let vs walcke in ẏ lyght of ẏ Lorde.
But yͧ haſt forſaken thy people ẏ houſe of Jacob, becauſe they go farre beyonde the eaſt cōtreys in Sorceryes (whō they haue ☞ as the Philyſtines had) and ☞ in ſtraunge chyldren they thynke them ſelues to haue ynough. Theyr land is full of ſyluer & gold, nether is there any ende of theyr treaſure:
Their lād is alſo full of horſes, & no ende is there of theyr charets. Theyr lande is alſo full of vayne goddes, & before ẏ worcke of their awne hādes haue they bowed them ſelues, yee, euen before ẏ thynge yͭ theyr awne fyngers haue made. There kneleth ẏ man, there falleth ẏ man downe before thē, but yͧ (o Lorde) wylt not leaue them vnpuniſhed.

And therfore get the into ſome rock, and C hyde the in the grounde for feare of ẏ Lord, and for the glory of hys mageſtye: Whych caſteth downe the hygh lookes of preſumptuous perſonnes, & bryngeth lowe ẏ pryde of man, and the Lorde only ſhall be exalted in that daye. For the daye of ẏ Lord of Hoſtes ſhall go ouer all pryde & preſumption, vpon all them that exalte them ſelues, and ſhall brynge thē all downe: vpon all ẏ hygh and ſtoute Cedre trees of Libanus, and vpō all ẏ okes of Baſan, vpon all hygh hylles, and vpon all ſtoute mountaynes, vpon all coſtly towres, and vpon all ſtrōge walles, vpon all ſhyppes of Tharſis, & vpon euery thyng that is glorious & pleaſaunt to loke D vpon. And it ſhall brynge downe the pryde of man, and laye mans preſumptuouſneſſe full lowe, and ẏ Lorde ſhall only haue ẏ vyctory in that daye. But the Idols ſhall vtterly be roted out. Men ſhall crepe into holes of ſtones, and into caues of the earth, for feare of the Lorde, and for the glory of hys mageſty: what tyme as he ſhall aryſe vp to condemne the earth. Then ſhall man caſt awaye his goddes of ſyluer, and his goddes of gold (whych he neuertheles had made to honour them) vnto Molles and Backes:
And they ſhall crepe into ẏ caues & rockes, ād into the clyftes of hard ſtones, for feare of God, and for the glory of hys mageſtye, whan he ryſeth to condēne the earth. Feare not ye then any man, whoſe breth is in hys noſtrels. For what is he of reputacyon?

¶ The.iii.Chapter.

¶ He prophecyeth that at the commyng of Chriſt all ſtrength and powre ſhall be put forth of Jurye.

FOr lo, the Lorde God of Hoſtes A doth take awaye from Jeruſalem and Juda, all poſſeſſions & power all meat & dryncke, the captayne and ẏ ſoudyar, the iudge and prophete, the wyſe and the aged man, the prynce of fyftye yeare olde, and the honorable: the Senatours, and men of vnderſtandynge: the maſter of craftes and oratours. And I ſhall geue them chyldren to be theyr prynces, and babes ſhall haue the rule of you. The people alſo ſhalbe pylled and polled, and one ſhall euer be doynge violēce and wronge to another. The boye ſhall preſume agaynſt the elder, and the vyle perſone agaynſt the honorable. Yee, one ſhall take a frende of hys awne kynred by the boſome, and ſaye:
thou haſt clothynge, thou ſhalt be our head for thou mayeſt kepe vs from thys fall and parell. Then ſhall he ſweare and ſaye: I cānot helpe you. Moreouer, there is nether meate ner clothyng in my houſe, make me B no ruler of the people. For Jeruſalem is ouerthrowne & Juda muſt fall to ẏ grownde, becauſe that both theyr wordes & councels are agaynſt the Lorde, to prouoke the preſence of hys mageſty vnto anger. The chaungynge of theyr countenaunce bewrayeth them, yee, they declare theyr awne ſynnes them ſelues, as ẏ Sodomites, and hyde them not. Wo be vnto theyr ſoules for they haue retourned euyll vnto thē ſelues.
Byd the ryghteous do well, for they ſhall enioye the frutes of theyr ſtudies. But wo be to the vngodly & vnryghteous, for they ſhalbe rewarded after theyr worckes. Chyldren are extorcioners of my people, and women haue rule of them.

O my people, thoſe that call the bleſſed deceaue the, and depraue the waye of thy foteſteppes.
The Lorde is ryſen vp to commen C of the matter, and ſtādeth vp (Iſaye) to geue iudgement of the people. The Lorde ſhall come forth to reaſon wyth the Senatours and prynces of hys people. It is ye that haue burnt vp my vynearde, the extorcyon done to the poore is in your houſes.
Wherfore do ye oppreſſe my people, and marre ẏ faces of ẏ poore? ſayeth the Lorde God of Hoſtes. Moreouer, thus ſayth the Lord: Seing ẏ daughters of Sion are become ſo proude, & come in wͭ ſtretched out neckes & with vayne wātō eyes: ſeynge they come in tryppyng ſo nycely with their fete: Therfore ſhall the Lorde ſhaue the heades of ẏ daughters of Sion, and ſhall dyſcouer D theyr

their ſhame. In that daye ſhall the Lord take awaye the gorgyouſnes of theyr apparell, and ſpanges, cheynes, partelettes, and colarres, bracelettes ⁊ hooues, the goodly floured, wyde and brodered rayment, brooches and headbandes, rynges and garlandes, holy daye clothes and vales, kerchefes and pinnes, glaſſes and cypreſſes, bonettes and taches.

And in ſteade of good ſmell, there ſhalbe ſtynck amōge them. And for theyr gyrdles there ſhalbe lowſe bandes. And for well ſet heare there ſhalbe baldeneſſe. In ſteade of a ſtomacher, a ſack cloth, and for their bewty wytherdneſſe, and ſonne burnyng. Youre houſbandes and myghtye men ſhall peryſh wyth the ſwerde in batayle.

☞ At that tyme ſhall ☞ their gates mourne and complayne, and they ſhall ſyt as deſolate folck vpon the earth.

The .iiii. Chapter.

For want of men, ſeuen wemen deſyre to haue one man.

A Then ſhall ſeuen wyues take holde of one man, and ſaye: we wyll laye all our meate and clothynge together in comen, only yͭ we may be called thy wyues, and that thys ſhamefull reproſe maye be taken from vs. After that tyme ſhall the braunche of yͤ Lorde be bewtyfull ⁊ myghtye, and the frute of the earth ſhalbe fayre and pleaſaunt for thoſe Iſraelytes yͭ ſhall ſpryng therof. Then ſhall the remnaunt in Sion, and the remnaunt at Jeruſalem be called holy: Namely all ſoch as are wrytten amonge yͤ lyuynge at Jeruſalem: what tyme as the Lorde ſhall waſh awaye the

B fylthynes of yͤ daughters of Sion, ⁊ pourge the bloude out from Jeruſalem with the wynde of hys iudgemente and wyth fyre. Moreouer, vpon all the dwellynges of the hyll of Sion and vpon theyr whole congregacyon, ſhall yͤ Lorde prouyde a cloude and ſmoke by daye, and the ſhynynge of a flammynge fyre by nyght: for all theyr glory ſhalbe preſerued. And Jeruſalem ſhall be a tabernacle for a ſhadowne becauſe of hete in the daye tyme a place and refuge where a man maye kepe hym frō wether ⁊ rayne.

The .v. Chapter.

Of Chriſt and hys vyneyarde, wyth an execracyon of couetouſnes and dronckenes.

A Now wyll I ſyng my beloued frende a ſonge of my frendes, becauſe of hys vyneyarde. My beloued frende hath a vyneyarde in a very frutefull plenteous grounde.

Thys he hedged, thys he walled rounde aboute, and planted it with goodly grapes. In yͤ myddeſt of it buylded he a towre, and made a wyne preſſe therin. And afterwarde when he loked yͭ it ſhulde brynge hym grapes, it brought forth thornes. Now therfore (O ye Cytyſens of Jeruſalem and whole Juda:) Judge I praye you betwixte me, ād my vyneyard. What more could haue bene done for it that I haue not done? Wherfore then hath it geuen thornes, where I loked to haue had grapes of it?

B Well, now I ſhall tell you how I wyll do wyth my vyneyarde: I wyll take yͤ hedge from it, that it maye peryſh, and breake downe the wall, that it maye be troden vnder fote. I wyll laye it waſte, that it ſhall nether be dygged nor cut, but beare thornes and brears. I wyll alſo forbyd the cloudes that they ſhall not rayne vpō it. As for the vyneyarde of the Lord of hoſtes it is yͤ houſe of Iſrael, and whole Juda hys fayre plātyng. Of theſe he loked for equite, but ſe there is wrong: for ryghteouſneſſe, lo, It is but myſery.

C Woo vnto them that ioyne one houſe to another, and bryng one lande ſo nygh vnto another, that yͤ poore can get no more groūde, and yͭ ye maye dwell vpon yͤ earth alone. Theſe thynges are in yͤ eares of the Lorde of Hoſtes: ſhall not many greater and more gorgyous houſes be ſo waſte, that no man ſhall dwell in thē? And ten akers of vynes ſhall geue but a Quarte, and .xxx. buſhels of ſede ſhall geue but an ☞ Epha. ☞

Wo be vnto them, that ryſe vp early to folowe dronckennes, and to them that continue ſo, vntyll nyght, ⁊ tyll they be ſet on fyre with wyne. In thoſe cōpanyes are harpes and lutes, tabrettes ⁊ pipes, and wyne. But they regarde not the worke of yͤ Lord, and conſydre not the operacyon of his handes. Therfore commeth my folck alſo into

D captyuite, becauſe they haue no vnderſtandynge. Theyr glory is fameſhed wyth hunger, and theyr pryde is marred for thyrſte. Therfore gapeth hell, ⁊ openeth her mouth maruelous wyde: that theyr pryde, boaſtynge and welth, wyth ſoch as reioyſe therin, maye deſcende into it.

Thus hath man a fall, ⁊ is brought lowe and the hygh loke of the proude ſhalbe layde downe. But the Lord of Hoſtes is exalted in iudgement, and God that is holy, is prayſed in ryghteouſnes. Then ſhall yͤ ſhepe eate in ordre, and the rych mens landes that were layde wayſt, ſhall ſtraungers deuoure. Wo be vnto them, that drawe wyckednes vnto them wyth coardes of vanyte and ſynne, as it were wyth a cart rope.

Whych vſe to ſpeake on thys maner: let hym make haſte nowe, ⁊ go forth wyth hys worcke, that we maye ſe it. Let the coūcell

E of the holy one of Iſrael come, ⁊ drawe nye, that we maye knowe it.

Wo be vnto them yͭ call euell good, and good euell, whych make darckneſſe lyght, and lyght darckneſſe, yͤ make ſowre ſwete, & ſwete ſowre. Wo be vnto them that are wyſe in their awne ſyght, and thynke them ſelues to haue vnderſtãdynge. Wo be vnto them, that are ſtrõg to ſuppe out wyne and experte men to ſet vp dronckeneſſe.

Theſe geue ſentence wyth the vngodly for rewardes, but condemne the iuſt cauſe of the ryghteous.

Therfore, lyke as fyre lycketh vp the ſtrawe, and as the flame conſumeth yͤ ſtubble: Euen ſo theyr rote ſhalbe as corrupciõ: and theyr bloſſome ſhall vanyſh awaye lyke duſt: for they haue caſt awaye the lawe of the Lord of Hoſtes, and blaſphemed the word of the holy maker of Iſrael.

F Therfore is the wrath of the Lord kyndled alſo agaynſt hys people, and he ſhaketh hys hande at them: yee, he hath ſmyten, ſo that the hylles dyd tremble. And theyr karcaſes dyd lye in yͤ open ſtreates, lyke myre. And in all thys, the wrath of God hath not ceaſſed, but hys hande is ſtretched out ſtyll. And he ſhall gyue a token vnto a ſtraunge people: and call vnto them in a farre countre: & beholde, they ſhall tome haſtely wyth ſpede. There ſhall not be one faynt nor feble amonge them, no not a ſlogyſh nor ſlepery perſone. There ſhall not one of them put of the gyrdle from hys loynes, ner lowſe their latchet of his ſhooe. His arowes are ſharpe and all hys bowes bent. Hys horſe hoofes are lyke flynt, & hys cart wheles lyke a ſtormy wynde. Hys crye is as it were of a lyon, and he roareth lyke lyons whelpes. They ſhall roare, and hantch vp the praye, and no man ſhall recouer it, or get it frõ them. In that daye they ſhalbe ſo fearce vpon them, as the ſee. And yf we looke vnto the lande, beholde, it ſhalbe all darckneſſe & ſorowe. If we loke toward heauen: beholde, it ſhalbe darcke.

The. vi. Chapter.

Eſay ſawe the glory of the Lorde, and was ſent to prophecye the deſolacyon of Iurye.

A ☞ IN the ſame yeare yͤ kynge Oziah dyed, I ſawe ☞ the Lorde ſyttynge vpon an hyghe glorious ſeate, and hys trayne fylled the temple. And aboute hym ſtode Seraphins, wherof euery one had ſyxe wynges. Wyth twayne eche couered hys face, wyth twayne hys fete, and with twayne dyd he flye. They cryed alſo eche one to another i thys maner: holy, holy, holy, is yͤ Lord of Hoſtes. The whole worlde is full of hys glory. Yee, the geaſtes and dorecheckes moued at hys cryeng, & the houſe was full of ſmoke. Then I ſayde, O wo is me For I am loſt in aſmoch as I am
B a man of vncleane lyppes, and dwell amonge people that hath vncleane lyppes alſo: for myne eyes haue ſene the kynge & Lorde of Hooſtes.

Then flewe one of the Seraphins vnto me, hauynge a hote cole in his hande, which he had taken from the aulter wyth the tonges, and touched my mouth, and ſayde, lo: thys hath touched thy lyppes, & thyne vnryghteouſnes is taken awaye, & thy ſynne forgeuen. Alſo, I herd the voyce of the Lord ſayẽge on thys maner: Whom ſhall I ſend, & who wylbe oure meſſaunger? Then I ſayde: here am I, ſende me. C And he ſayde, go, and tell thys people: * ye ſhall heare in dede, but ye ſhall not vnderſtande: ye ſhall playnely ſe, and not perceaue. Harden the harte of this people, ſtoppe their eares, and ſhut theyr eyes, that they ſe not with theyr eyes, heare not with their eares, and vnderſtande not with theyr hertes, and conuerte, and be healed.

Then ſpake I: Lorde, how longe? he anſwered: vntyll the cyties be vtterly waſted without inhabitours, & the houſes without men, tyll the lande be alſo deſolate, and lye vnbuylded. For the Lorde ſhall take yͤ men farre awaye, ſo that the lãde ſhall lye waſte a lõge ſeaſon, yet in it ſhall ſucceade. x. kynges, and the lande ſhall retorne and be layde waſte. The. vii. Chapter.

The Syryans moue batayle agaynſt Ieruſalem
A virgyn ſhall beare a chylde.

A IT happened in the tyme of Ahaz the ſonne of Iotham, which was yͤ ſonne of Uziah kynge of Iuda: yͤ * Razin the kynge of Syria, and Pechah the ſonne of Remeliah kynge of Iſrael: went vp toward Ieruſalẽ to beſege it, but Razin was not able to wynne yt. Now when the houſe of Dauid (that is Ahaz) herde worde therof that Syria & Ephraym were confederate together: his herte quaked (yee & the hertes alſo of hys people) lyke as whã a tree in the felde is moued wyth the wynde.

* iiii. Re. xvi. a.
ii. Para. xxviii. a,

Then ſayde God vnto Eſay: go mete Ahaz (thou and thy ſonne Sear Iaſub) at the head of the ouerpole, in the fote path by the fullers grounde, & ſaye vnto hym, take hede to thy ſelfe and be ſtyll, but feare not, nether be faynt harted, for theſe two tayles: that is: for theſe two ſmokyng fyre brãdes, the wrath and furiouſnes of Razin the Syrian and Romelies ſonne: becauſe that B the kynge of Syria Ephraim and Romelies ſonne haue wickedly cõſpyred agaynſt the ſaying: We will goo vp agaynſt Iuda, vexe them, and brynge them vnder vs, and ſet a kynge there, euen the ſonne of Tabeel

For thus ſayeth the Lorde God therto, It ſhall net ſo goo forth, nether come ſo to paſſe: ☞ for ☞ the head cytie of yͤ Syriās is Damaſcus, but the head of Damaſcus is Rapzin.
And after fyue & threſcore yeare, ſhall Ephraim be no more a people. And yͤ chefe cytie of Ephraim is Samaria, but the head of Samaria is Romelies ſonne. Yf ye beleue not: it commeth of thys: that ye are vnfaythfull to God. Moreouer, God ſpake once agayne vnto Ahaz, ſayinge, requyre a token of the Lorde thy God, whether it be toward the depth beneth, or towarde the heygth aboue. Then ſayd Ahaz: I wyll requyre none, nether wyll I tempte yͤ Lorde The Lorde anſwered: Then heare to, ye of yͤ houſe of Dauid: Is it not ynough for you yͭ ye be greuous vnto men, but ye muſt greue my God alſo. And therfore yͤ Lord ſhall geue you a token: Behold, a virgyn ſhall cōceaue
C and beare a ſonne, and (thou hys mother) ☞ ſhalt cal his name ☞ Emanuel. Butter & hony ſhall he eate, yͭ he maye knowe to refuſe the euell, and choſe the good. For or euer the chyld come to knowledge, to eſchue yͤ euell and choſe the good. The lande (that thou ſo Abhorreſt) ſhalbe deſolate of both her kynges. The Lorde alſo ſhall ſende a tyme vpon the, vpon thy people, and vpon thy fathers houſe (ſoch as neuer came ſence yͤ tyme that Ephraim departed from Iuda) thorowe the kynge of the Aſſyrians.
For at the ſame tyme ſhall yͤ Lord whyſtle for the flyes that are aboute the water of Egypt, and for yͤ Bees in yͤ Aſſyriās lande.
These ſhall come, and ſhall lyght all in the deſolate valeyes, in yͤ holes of ſtones, vpon all thornye and buſhye places.

D At the ſame tyme ſhall the Lord ☞ ſhane ☞ the heare of the head and the fete and the beerd cleane of, wyth yͤ raſoure that he ſhall hyer beyonde the water: namely, wyth the kynge of the Aſſyrians. At the ſame tyme ſhall a man lyue with a kowe, & two ſhepe.
Then, becauſe of the aboūdaunce of mylck, he ſhall make butter & eate it. So that euery one whych remayneth in the lande, ſhall eate butter and hony. At the ſame tyme all vyneyardes (though there be a thouſande vynes in one, and were ſolde for a thouſande ſyluerlynges) ſhalbe turned to brears and thornes. Lyke as they ſhall come into the lande wyth arowes and bowes, ſo ſhall all the lande become brears and thornes.
And as for all hylles yͭ are hewen downe, ther ſhall nbt come vpon them anye feare E of brears and thornes. But the catell ſhall be dryuen thyther, and the ſhepe ſhall fede there.

¶ The .viii. Chapter.

¶ The delyueraūce of the lande by Emanuel.
The ſtone of offence, at which many ſhall ſtomble.

MOre ouer, the Lord ſayth vnto A me: Take yͤ a greate leafe, and ☞ wryte in it, as men do with ☞ a penne, make haſtye ſpede to robbe, and haſte to the ſpoyle.
And I called vnto me faythfull wytneſſes to recorde. Vryah the preſt, & zachariah the ſonne of Barachiah. After that wēt I vnto the Prophetiſſe, that had cōceaued & borne a ſonne. Then ſayde the Lorde to me: geue hym thys name: a ſpedie robber: an haſtye ſpoyler. For why, or euer yͤ chylde ſhall haue knowledge to crye father & mother: ſhall the ryches of Damaſcus and the ſubſtaunce of Samaria be taken awaye by yͤ ſpoyler, before the kyng of the Aſſyrians.

The Lorde ſpake alſo vnto me, ſayinge: B for ſo moch as this people refuſeth the ſtyll rennynge water of Sylo, and put theyr delyte in Razin & Romelies ſonne: Behold, the Lorde ſhall brynge myghtie and greate floudes of water vpon them: namely, the kynge of the Aſſyrians with all his power:
Which ſhall clyme vp vpō all hys floudes, and renne ouer all their banckes. And ſhall breake in vpon Iuda, flowinge & increaſing in power, tyll he get him by yͤ neck. He ſhall fyll alſo the wydeneſſe of thy lāde ☞ wyth ☞ hys brode wynges, O Emanuel. Breake downe (o ye people of Aſſur) and ye ſhall be, broken downe: herken to all ye of farre coūtrees.
Muſter you, and you ſhalbe broken downe, prepare you to batell and you ſhall be torne in peces: take your councell together, yet muſt your coūcell come to naught:
go in hande wythall, yet ſhall it not proſpere:
for God is wyth vs. For the Lord ſpake C thus to me in the powre of hys hande, and warned me, ſayinge vnto me: that I ſhulde not walcke in the waye of thys people.

He ſayde moreouer: rounde wyth none of them, whoſoeuer ſaye: yōder people are boūde together: fere thē not, nether be afrayed of them, but ſanctifye the Lord of Hoſtes, let hym be youre feare & drede. For he ſhall be the holy place to flye to, & ſtone to ſtomble at: the rock to fall vpon: a ſnare and net to both the houſes of Iſrael, and the inhabitours of Ieruſalem. And many ſhall ſtōble, fall, and be broken vpon him: yee, they ſhalbe ſnared and taken.

Now laye the wytneſſes together & ſeale D yͤ lawe wͭ my diſciples. Thus wyll I wayte vpon the Lorde yͭ hath turned his face from the houſe of Iacob, & I wyll loke for hym.
But lo, as for me, and yͤ chyldren which the Lord hath geuē me: we are a token & a wondre in Iſrael, for the Lord of Hoſtes ſake, whych dwelleth vpon the hyll of Sion.

And yf they ſaye vnto you: aſke councell at the ſotheſayers, wytches, charmers and coniurers, then make them thys anſwere.

Is there a people eny where, ẏ aſketh not councell at hys God? *Shulde men renne vnto the dead for the lyuynge? If eny man want lyght leet hym loke vpon the lawe, and the teſtimony, whether they ſpeake not after thys meanyng. If he do not thys, he ſtombleth and ſuffreth hunger. And yf he ſuffre hunger he is cut of pacience, and blaſphemeth hys kyng and hys God. Then loketh he vp warde, and downewarde to the earth, and beholde, there is trouble and darckneſſe, vexacyon is roũde aboute hym, and the cloude of erroure. And out of ſoch aduerſite, ſhall he not eſcape. Euen lyke as in tyme paſt, it hath bene well ſene, that the lande of zabulon and the lande of Nephtaly (where thorow ẏ ſee waye goeth ouer Jordane into the lãde of Galilee) was at ẏ fyrſt in lytle trouble: but afterwarde ſore vexed.

*Lu.xxiiii.a.

The.ix Chapter.

He propheceyeth of Chriſtes natyuyte and dominyon.

A The people that walke in darckenes haue ſene a greate lyght. As for thẽ that dwell in the lande of the Shadowe of death, vpon them hath the lyght ſhyned. Thou haſt multiplyed the people, and not increaſed theyr ioye. *They reioyſe before the, euẽ as men make mery in haruest, and as men that haue gotten the victory, when they deale ẏ ſpoyle. For thou haſt broken the yocke of ẏ peoples burthen: the ſtaff of hys ſhoulder, and the rod of hys oppreſſoure, as in the dayes of Madian.

B And trulie euery batayll that the warryoure acompliſſheth, is done with cõfuſed noyſe and defylynge ther garmentes wyth bloude: But this bataylle ſhall be with burnynge & conſumynge of fyre. For vnto vs a chylde is borne, and vnto vs a ſonne is geuen. Upon his ſhoulder doth the kyngdome lye, and he is called wyth hys awne name: Wõderfull. The geuer of councell, ẏ myghtye God, the euerlaſtyng father, the prynce of peace, he ſhall make no ende to encreaſe the kyngdome and peace, and ſhall ſyt vpõ the ſeate of Dauid, and in hys kyngdome, to ſet vp ẏ ſame, and to ſtablyſh it wt equyte and ryghteouſneſſe, from hence forth for euermore. Thys ſhall the gelouſy of ẏ Lorde of Hoſtes brynge to paſſe.

C The Lorde ſent a worde into Jacob, the ſame is come into Iſrael. And all [illegible] people of Ephraim ſhall knowe, and [illegible] at dwell in Samaria, that ſaye wy[illegible] and hye ſtomackes, on thys maner. The tyle worcke is fallẽ downe, but we wyll buylde it wyth ſquared ſtones. The Molbery tymbre is broken, but we ſhall ſet it vp agayne wyth Cedre. Neuertheles, the Lord ſhall prepare Razin the enemye agaynſt them, and ſo ordre theyr aduerſaryes, that the Syriãs ſhall laye holde vpon them before, and ẏ Philyſtines behynde, and ſo deuoure Iſrael wyth open mouth.

After all thys is not the wrath of ẏ Lorde ceaſſed, but yet hys hande ſtretched oute ſtyll. For the people turneth not vnto hym that chaſtyſeth them, nether do they ſeke ẏ Lorde of Hoſtes. Therfore hath the Lorde roted oute of Iſrael both head and tayle, braunche and twygge in one daye.

By the head, is vnderſtande the Senatoure and honorable man, and by the tayle the Prophet ẏ preached lyes. For all they whych enfourme the people that they be in a ryght caſe, ſoch be dyſceauers. Soch as men thyncke alſo to be perfecte among theſe, are but caſt awayes.

D Therfore ſhall the Lorde haue no pleaſure in their yonge men, nether fauoure theyr fatherleſſe and wydowes. For they are all together ypocrytes, and wycked, & all their mouthes ſpeake foly. After all thys is not the Lordes wrath ceaſſed, but yet hys hande is ſtretched out ſtyll. For vngodlyneſſe burneth, as a fyre in ẏ bryers and thornes. And as it were out of a fyre in a wood or a rede buſh, ſo aſcendeth the ſmoke of theyr pryde.

For cauſe of the wrath of the Lorde of Hoſtes, is the lande full of darckneſſe, and the people be conſumed, as it were wyth fyre, no mã doth ſpare hys brother, but he robbyth on ẏ ryght hand: and doth famyſhe, he eateth on ẏ lefte hande, and he ſhall not haue ynough. Euery man ſhall eate ẏ fleſh of hys awne arme. Manaſſes ſhall eate Ephraim, and Ephraim Manaſſes, & they both ſhall eate Juda. After all thys is not the Lordes wrath ceaſſed, but yet is his hãde ſtretched out ſtyll. E

The.x.Chapter.

He threatneth the oppreſſours of the poore, and propheceyeth agaynſt Sennaherib.

A Wo be vnto them that make vnryghteous lawes, & deuyſe thynges, whych be to harde for to kepe: wherthorow the poore are oppreſſed, on euery ſyde, and the innocentes of my people robbed of iudgement: that wydowes maye be theyr praye, and that they maye robbe the fatherleſſe. What wyll ye do in tyme of the vyſytacyon, and whan deſtruccyon ſhall come from farre? To whom wyll ye ronne for helpe? and to whom wyll ye geue youre honoure, that he maye kepe it? that when I wyth drawe my hãde ye come not amonge the preſoners, or lye amonge ẏ deed? After all thys doth not ẏ wrath of the Lord ceaſſe, but yet is hys hãde ſtretched out ſtyll. B

Wo be alſo vnto Aſſur, which is a ſtaf of my wrath, in whoſe hande is the rodd of my punyſhement. I ſhal ſende him amõge thoſe ypocritiſh people amonge the people yͭ haue deſerued my dyſfauoures ſhall I ſende him: that he maye vtterly robbe thẽ, ſpoyle them and treade them downe lyke the myre in the ſtrete. Howbeit his meaning is not ſo nether thynketh hys herte of this faſhyon. But he ymagineth onely how he maye rote out and C destroye moche people, for he ſayeth are not ☞ my Prynces all kynges? Is not ☞ Calno as eaſye to wynne, as Charchamis? Is it ☞ harder to cõquere ☞ Hamath thẽ Arphad? Or is it lyghter to ouercome Damaſcus thẽ Samaria? As who ſay: I were able to wynne the kyngdome of the Idolaters and their goddes: but not Jeruſalem and Samaria. Shall I not do vnto Jeruſalem and theyr ymages, as I dyd vnto Samaria and their ydoles?

Wherfore yͤ Lord ſayeth: Aſſone as I haue perfourmed my whole worcke vpon the hyll of Syon and Jeruſalem, then wyll I ☞ ☞ vpſet the noble & ſtout hart of the kyng of Aſſyria, with his proude lookes. For he ſtandeth thus in his awne conceate: This do I thorowe the power of myne awne hand, & thorow my wiſdome: For I am wyſe, I am he that remoue the landes of the people: I D robbe theyr treaſures: and (lyke one of the worthyes) I dryue them frõ their hye ſeates My hande hath found out the ſtrẽgth of the people, as it were a neſt. And lyke as egges, that were layde here and there, are gathered together: So do I gather al countrees. And there is no man, that darre be ſo bolde, as to touch a fether, that darre open his mouth or once whyſper.

Shall the axe boaſt it ſelfe, agaynſt hym that heweth therwith? or doth yͤ ſawe make eny braggynge agaynſt hym that ruleth it? That were euẽ lyke, as yf the rod dyd exalte it ſelfe agaynſt hym that beareth it: or as though the ſtaff ſhulde magnifye it ſelfe, as E who ſaye: it were no wood. Therfore ſhall the Lorde of hoſtes ſend him amonge his fatlynges leanes, and burne vp hys glory, as it were with a fyre. But the lyght of Iſrael ſhalbe that fyre, and hys Sanctuary ſhalbe the flamme and it ſhal kyndle, and burne vp ☞ hys thornes ãd breers in one daye, yee ☞ al the glory of his woddes and feldes ſhalbe cõſumed with body and ſoule: And they ſhalbe as an hooſte of men, whoſe ſtanderd bearer fayleth. The trees alſo of his felde, which remayne, ſhalbe of ſoch a nombre, that a chyld maye tell them.

After that daye ſhall the remnaunt of Iſrael, and ſoch as are eſcaped out of the houſe of Jacob, ſeke nomore comforte at him that ſmote thẽ, but wyth faythfulneſſe ãd trueth ſhal they truſt vnto the Lorde, the holy one of Iſrael. The remnaunt, euen the Poſteryte of Jacob, ſhall conuerte vnto God the F myghty one. For though thy people (O Iſrael) be as the ſande of the ſee, yet ſhall the remnaunt of thẽ conuerte in hym. Perfecte is the iudgemẽt of him that floweth in righteouſneſſe, and therfore the Lorde of hooſtes ſhall perfectly fulfyll the thynge, yͭ he hath determyned in the myddeſt of the whole worlde. Therfore thus ſayeth yͤ Lorde God of hooſtes: Thou my people, yͭ dwelleſt in Syon, be not afrayed, for the kynge of the Aſſirians: He ſhall ſmyte the with a rod, ãd ſhal wagge hys ſtaff at the, as yͤ Egypcyãs dyd ſome tyme: But ſoone after, ſhall my wrath and myne indignacion be fulfylled in the deſtruccion of them.

G Moreouer, the Lorde of Hoſtes ſhall prepare a ſcourge for hym, lyke as was the ſlaughter of Madian vpon the rocke of Oreb. And he ſhal lyft vp hys rod ouer the ſee, as he dyd ſomtyme ouer the Egypcians. Then ſhall hys burthen be taken from thy ſhoulders, and his yock from thy necke, yee, the ſame yock ſhall be corrupte for very fatneſſe. He ſhal come to Aiath, and go thorowe towarde Mygron: at Mychmas ſhall he laye vp his harneſſe, and go ouer the foorde. Gybea ſhal be their reſtyng place, Rhamah ſhalbe afrayed, Gybea Saull ſhall flye awaye. The voyce of the noyes of thy horſes (O daughter Gallim) ſhalbe herde vnto Lays and to Anathoth, which alſo ſhalbe in trouble. Madmena ſhall tremble for feare, but the cyteſyns of Gabin are manlye, yet ſhall he remayne at Nob that daye. After yͭ, ſhal he lyft vp hys hand agaynſt the mount of the daughter Syon, the hyll of Jeruſalẽ. But ſe, the Lorde God of hooſtes ſhall take awaye the proude from thence, wyth feare. He ſhall hewe downe the proude, and fel the hye mynded. The buſſhes alſo of the wood ſhal he rote out with yron, ãd Lybanus ſhal haue a myghtye fall.

¶The .xi. Chapter.

¶ He prophecieth of the natiuite of Chriſt and of hys people: of the remnaunt of Iſrael, and of the fayth of the Heathen or gentyles.

A AND there ſhall come a rod forthe of the kynred of Iſai, and a bloſſome ſhall floryſh out of hys rote. The ſprete of the Lord ſhal lyght vpon hym: the ſprete of wyſdome, and vnderſtandynge: yͤ ſprete of councel, & ſtrength the ſprete of knowledge, and of the feare of the Lorde: and ſhal make hym feruent in the feare of God.

For he ſhall not geue ſentence, after the thyng that ſhall be brought before his eyes, nether reproue a matter at yͤ fyrſt hearyng: but wyth ryghteouſneſſe ſhal he iudge yͤ poore:

and with holynes ſhall he refourme the ſimple of the worlde.

He ſhall ſmyte the worlde wyth the rod of hys mouth, ⁊ wyth the breath of hys mouth ſhall he ſlaye the vngodly. Ryghteouſneſſe ſhalbe the gyrdle of his loynes, ⁊ trueth ād faythfulnes, the gyrdyng vp of hys raynes. The wolfe ſhall dwell with the lambe, and ẏ Leoparde ſhall lye downe by ẏ goate. Bullockes, Lyons and catell ſhal kepe company together, ſo ẏ a lytle chylde ſhall rule them. B The kowe and the Beer ſhall fede together, and their yonge ones ſhal lye together. The Lyon ſhall eate ſtrawe lyke the oxe, or the kowe. The child whyle he ſucketh, ſhal haue a deſyre to the ſerpentes neſt, and when he is weaned, he ſhal put hys hād into the Cockatryce denne. No man ſhal do euel to another, no man ſhal deſtroye another, in all the hyll of my holynes. For the earth ſhalbe full of ẏ knowledge of the Lorde, euen as the ſee floweth ouer with water.

And in ẏ daye ſhal the gentyles enquere after the rote of Ieſſe which ſhalbe ſet vp for a token vnto the people, and hys dwellynge ſhalbe glorious. C At ẏ ſame time ſhal ẏ Lord take in hande agayne, to conquere the remnaunt of his people (which ſhalbe left aliue) From the Aſſyriās, Egypcians, Arabians, Moriās, Elamites, Caldeyes, Antiochiās, and from the Ilandes of the ſee. And he ſhall ſet vp a token amonge the Gentyles, ād gather together the diſperſed of Iſrael, yee ād the out caſtes of Iuda frō the foure corners of the worlde, The hatred of Ephraim alſo ānd enemies of Iuda ſhalbe cleane roted out Ephraim ſhall beare no euel wyll to Iuda, and Iuda ſhal not hate Ephraim: but they both together ſhall flye vpon the ſhoulders of the Philiſtines toward the weſt, ⁊ ſpoyle thē together that dwell towarde the Eaſt. D The Idumytes and the Moabites ſhall let theyr handes fall, and the Ammonites ſhalbe obedient vnto them.

The Lorde alſo ſhal cleaue the tunges of the Egypcians ſee, ⁊ with a mightie wyndē ſhal he lyft vp his hāde ouer Nilus, and ſhal ſmyte his ſeuen ſtreames, and make men go ouer drye ſhod. And thus ſhal there be a way for his people, that remayneth from the Aſſitians, lyke as it happened to the Iſraelites, what tyme they departed out of the lande of Egypte.

The .xii. Chapter.

The ſonge of the churche for the optaynyng of the victorie and ouercomynge of the worlde.

A SO that then thou ſhalt ſaye: O Lord I wyll thanke the, for thou waſt diſpleaſed at me, but refrayne thou frō thy wrath, and comfort me. Behold, God is my ſaluacion in whom I wyll truſt, ād not be afrayde. For the Lord God is my ſtrēgth and my ſonge, he alſo is become my ſaluacion. Therfore wyth ioye ſhall ye drawe water oute of the welles of the Sauioure, and ☞ then ſhall ye ſaye: geue thanckes vnto ☞ the Lorde, call vpon hys name, declare hys B councels amonge the people, kepe them in remembraunce, for his name is excellent. O ſynge prayſes vnto the Lord for he hath done greate thynges, as it is knowne in all the worlde. The .xiii. Chapter.

He prophecieth the deſtruction of Babylon, the captiuite, and commynge agayne of the people.

THis is ☞ the heuy burthen of Babylon, which Eſay the ſonne of Amos dydſe. A ☞ Lyfte vp the banner vpon the hye hyll, call vnto them, holde vp your hand ẏ the Princes maye go in at the dore. I haue ſet for my debytes and my gyauntes (ſayeth the Lorde) whyche ſhall execute wrath, I wyll call for ſoch as triumphe in my glory.

There is a noyſe of a multitude in ẏ moūtaynes, like as of a great people, a ruſſhyng as though the kyngdomes of the nacions cā together. (And the Lord of hoſtes, muſtreth hys armye to battayle.) They come out of afarre countree, from the ende of heauen: Euen the Lorde him ſelfe with the miniſters of hys wrathe, to deſtroye the whole lande. Mourne ye, for the daye of the Lorde is at hande, and ſhal come as a deſtroyer from the almyghtie. Therfore ſhal al handes be lettē downe, ⁊ al mens hertes ſhall melte awaye, they ſhal ſtande in feare, carefulneſſe and ſorowe ſhal come vpon thē, and they ſhal haue payne, as a woman that trauayleth wyth chylde. ☞ One ſhal be abaſſhed of another, ☞ and theyr faces ſhall burne lyke the flamme B of fyre.

Beholde, the daye of the Lorde ſhal come, terryble, ful of indignaciō, furoure ⁊ wrath, to make the lande waſte, ⁊ to roote oute the ſynners therof. For the ſtarres ād planetes of heauen ſhal not geue theyr lyght, the ſunne ſhalbe darkened in the ryſynge, and the moone ſhall not ſhyne wyth hys lyght. And I wyll punyſſh the wyckedneſſe of the world and the ſynnes of the vngodlye, ſayeth the Lorde. The hye ſtomackes of the proude wyll I take awaye, and wyll laye downe the boaſtynge of tyrauntes. I wyll make a man dearer then fyne golde, and a mā to be more worth then a golden wedge of Ophir. C Therfore, I wyll ſhake the heauen, and the earth ſhall remoue oute of her place: in the wrath of the Lord of hoſtes, and in the daye of hys fearfull indignacyon. And Babylon ſhalbe as an hunted or chaced doo, and as a turne to his awne people, and flye eche one into his awne lande. Who ſo is founde alone, ſhalbe ſhot thorow: And who ſo gather together,

*Pſalm. cxxxvii. b ſhalbe deſtroed wyth the ſwearde. *
Theyr chyldren ſhalbe ſlayne before theyr D eyes, theyr houſes ſpoyled, and theyr wyues rauyſhed. For lo, I ſhall brynge vp the Medes agaynſt them, whyche ſhall not regarde ſyluer, nor be deſirous of gold. With bowes ſhall they deſtroye the yong children, & haue no pytie vpon wemen wyth chylde, ãd theyr faces ſhall not ſpare the chyldren. And Babylon (that glory of kyngdomes and bewty of the Caldees honour) ſhalbe deſtroyed euẽ
*Gene. xix. e as God deſtroyed * Sodome and Gomorre.
It ſhal not endure for euer, nether ſhal there be any more dwellynge there, from generacyon to generacyon.

☞ ☞ The Arabians ſhall pytche no tentes there, nether ſhall ẏ ſhepehardes make their foldes there any more: but fearful wyld beaſtes ſhal lye there, & the houſes ſhalbe full of great Owles. Eſtriches ſhal dwel there, and Apes ſhal daũſe there, wyld cattes ſhal crye in the palaces, and Dragõs ſhalbe in ẏ pleaſaunt houſes. And as for Babylons tyme it is at hãde, & her dayes ſhall not be prolõged.

¶ The. xiiii. Chapter.

¶ The retourne of the people from captiuytye. The proſperitye of the people of God, and afflyccyon of theyr enemyes. The pryde of Babylon.

A BUt the Lord wylbe mercyfull vnto Jacob, and wil yet choſe Iſrael agayne, & ſet them in theyr awne them, and get them to the houſe of Jacob.

The people ſhal take them, & cary thẽ home to their awne lãd. And make thẽ to enherite the houſe of Iſrael in ẏ land of ẏ Lorde that they maye be ſeruauntes and handmaydens B of the Lord. They ſhal take thoſe priſoners whoſe captyues they had bene afore: ãd rule thoſe that had oppreſſed thẽ. Whẽ the Lorde nowe ſhal bryng the to reſt, frõ the trauayle hath broken the ceptre of the vngodly and ẏ rod of the lordly. Whiche when he is wrothe ſmyteth the people with continuall ſtrokes, and tyrannouſely reygneth ouer the hethen whom he perſecuted wythout compaſſyon.

And therfore the whole world is now at reſt and quyetnes and men ſynge for ioye.

C Yee, euẽ ẏ Fyrre trees & Cedres of libanus reioyſe at thy fall ſayeng: Nowe ẏ thou art layde downe, there come no mo vp to hewe downe vs. Hell alſo beneth trẽbleth to mete

How art thou fallen from heauen (O Lucyfer) thou fayre mornyng chyld? how haſt which let not hys preſoners go out?

The kynges of the nacions lye euerye one ☞ in his awne houſe with worſhyp, & thou ☞

Thys deuyce hath God taken thorowe the out ouer all people. For yf the Lorde of hoſtes determyn a thyng, who is able to dyſanulle it? And yf he ſtretch forth his hande, who maye holde it in agayne?

The ſame yeare that kynge Ahaz dyed, G God threatened on this maner. Reioyſe not ſtablyſhed Syon, and the poore of hys people that be therin, do put theyr truſt in hym.

¶ The.xv.Chapter.

¶ A prophecye agaynſt Moab.

A This is the heuy burthē vpō Moab:
Ar of Moab was deſtroyed & ouerthrowen in yͤ nyght ſeaſon: Kir alſo in Moab was deſtroyed & peryſhed in the nyght. They wente vp to the ydoles houſe, euē to Dibō to the hye places, to wepe for Nebo, & Moab dyd mourne for Medba: ☞ ☞ All theyr heades were balde & all theyr about with ſack cloth. In al the toppes of their houſes & ſtretes ſhalbe nothyng but mournynge and wepyng. Heſebon & Eleale ſhal crye, that theyr voyce ſhalbe hearde vnto Iahaz. The worthyes alſo of Moab ſhal bleare out and crye for very ſorowe of theyr myndes: Wo ſhall my herte be for Moabs C ſake. They ſhall flye vnto the cytie of zoar, whiche is lyke a fayre yoūge bullock of thre yeare olde, for they ſhall all go vp to Luith, wepynge. Euen ſo by the waye toward Horonaim they ſhall make lamētacion for ther vtter deſtructiō, For the waters of Nimrim ſhalbe dried vp, by reaſon wherof the graſſe is wythred, the herbes deſtroyed, & the grene D thynges gone. For the reſidue yͤ he hath done, they are ſory. As for theyr ſubſtaūce, the enemyes haue caryed thē to the broke of the

¶ The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ The deſtruccyon of Moab.

A ☞ S☞Ende the Lord of the world a lambe, frō the rocke yͤ lyeth towarde the let my perſecuted people dwell amonge you ☞ Moab, be thou their refuge agaynſt the ☜

the ſeate be prepared, and he ſhall ſyt vpō it in the trueth, in the tabernacle of Dauid iudgyng and ſekyng iudgemēt, & makinge haſt vnto ryghteouſnes. We haue hearde of the pryde of Moab, he is very proude, preſumpteous, arrogant, and full of indignacion, & vayne are hys lyes. Therfore ſhall Moab make lamentacion becauſe of the Moabites (that ſhalbe ſlayne) yet they ſhall wayle all together. Becauſe of the ☞ foundacions of ☜ Hyr goodlye braunches were throwen downe, as they went ouer the ſee. Therfore wyll I mourne for Iazer, & for the vyne of Sibma. I wyl poure my teares vpon the O Heſbon and Eleale, for the crye of thyne

C euermore, and ſo forth to lye waſte. And no man ſhall go thorowe it for euer. But pelli-canes, ſtorckes, great oules and rauẽs ſhall haue it in poſſeſſion, and dwell therin.

For God ſhall ſpreede out the lyne of de-ſolation vpon it, ⁊ weye it with the ſtones of emptines. When kynges are called vpõ, there ſhalbe none, ⁊ al prices ſhalbe awaye.
Thornes ſhall growe in their palaces, net-tels and thiſtles in theyr ſtrongholdes, that the dragõs may haue theyr pleaſure therin, ãd that they maye be a court for eſtryches.
There ſhall ſtraunge viſures and monſtru-ous beſtes mete one another, and the wylde kepe company together. There ſhall the la-mia lye, ⁊ haue her lodging. There ſhal the oule make her neſt, buylde, be there at home and bring forth his yonge ones. There ſhal D ẏ kytes come together, echeone to his lyke.

Seke thorowe the ſcripture of the Lord and reade it. There ſhall none of theſe thin-ges be lefte out, there ſhall not one ner ſoche

¶The ende of the boke of the Pꝛophete Eſay

¶The boke of the prophete Jeremye.

The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ The ſtock of Jeremye, and in what tyme he propheſyed. He excuſeth hym ſelfe ⁊ wolde refuſe the offyce of a prophete, becauſe he is yonge and vnexpert. He is taught of the Lorde, ⁊ becometh bolde. God openeth vnto hym, that the deſtruccyon of the Jewes, by the Babylonyans, is at hande. Jeremye is commaunded to ſpeake the worde of God vnto the Jewes, wythout feare.

A These are the Sermons of Jeremye
*Jere.xi.a. the ſonne of Helkiah the Preſte, one of them that dwelt at * Anathoth in the hande of Ben Jamin: when the Lorde had fyrſt ſpoken wyth hym, in the tyme of Joſiah the ſonne of Amon kynge of Juda, in the .xiii. yeare of hys reygne: and ſo
*iiii. re.xxv. a. duringe vnto the tyme of Jehoakim the ſonne Jere.xxxix.a. of Joſiah kynge of Juda, * and vntyll the xi. yeare of zedekyah yͤ ſonne of Joſiah kynge
*Esa.xliiii a xlvi.a. of Juda were ended: whē Jeruſalem was taken, euen in the fyfth Moneth, Psal.lxx.a. The worde of the Lorde ſpake thus vnto me: * Before
B I faſhyoned the in thy mothers wombe, I dyd knowe the. And or euer thou waſt borne,
*Exo.iiii.c. I ſanctified the and ordeyned the to be a prophete Actes.ix.b. vnto the people. Then ſayde I: * Oh Lorde God, I canne not ſpeake, for I am yet but younge. And the Lorde anſwered me thus: Saye not ſo, I am to younge: * For *Mat.x.c. thou ſhalt goo to all that I ſhall ſende the i.Cor.iii.a. vnto, ⁊ and what ſoeuer I commaunde the, that ſhalt yͧ ſpeake. Be not afrayed of their faces, I am wyth the, to delyuer the, ſayeth the Lorde.

*Psal.vi.a * And wyth that, the Lorde ſtretched oute Jere.xviii.a. his hande, and touched my mouth, ⁊ the ſame
C lorde ſayde vnto me, Beholde, I put my wordes in thy mouth, and beholde thys daye do I ſet the ouer the people ⁊ kyngdomes: that thou mayeſt rote out, breake of, deſtroye, and make waſte: and yͭ thou mayeſt buylde vp ⁊ plante. After thys, the Lorde ſpake vnto me ſayinge: Jeremy, what ſeyſt yͧ? And I ſayde: I ſe a rodde of an almond tree. Then ſayde yͤ Lorde vnto me: thou haſt ſene ryght, for I wyll make haſte ſpedelye vpon my worde, to performe it.

It happened after warde, that the Lorde ſpake to me agayne, and ſayde: What ſeeſt
*Job.xli.b. thou? And I ſayde: I do ſe a ſeethynge * pot lokynge from out of the north

Then ſayde the Lorde vnto me: Out of the north ſhall come a plage vpō all yͤ dwellers *Jere.xliiii b & xxv.b. of the lande. For lo * I wyll call all the Abac.i.b. kynredes of yͤ kyngdomes of yͤ north (ſayeth the Lorde.) And they ſhall come, ⁊ euery one ſhall ſett his ſeate in the gates of Jeruſalem, D ⁊ in all theyr walles rounde aboute ⁊ in all yͤ cyties of Juda. And thorowe thē ſhall I declare my iudgemēt, vpō all the wyckedneſſe of thoſe mē that haue forſaken me: that haue burnt incenſe vnto ſtraunge goddes, ⁊ worſhypped the workes of their awne handes. *Eze.iii.a.
* And therfore girde vp thy loynes, aryſe, and tell thē all, that I geue the in cōmaundement. *Jere.xv.d.
Feare them not, leſt I deſtroye the before thē. * For beholde, thys daye do I make the a ſtrōge fenſed towne, an yron pyler, and a braſen wall agaynſt the whole lande, agaynſt the kynges and myghtye men of Juda, agaynſt the preſtes and people of the lande. They ſhall fyght agaynſt the: but they ſhall not be able to ouercomme the, for I am wyth the, to delyuer the, ſayeth the Lorde.

¶The .ii. Chapter.

¶ God rehearceth his benefytes done vnto the Jewes. Agaynſt Preſtes ⁊ Prophetes or preachers yͭ contemne ⁊ deſpyſe God. The Jewes are deſtroyed becauſe they forſoke God, ⁊ becauſe they ranne a whore huntynge after Idols.

Moreouer, yͤ worde of the Lorde came A vnto me ſayinge: Go thy waye, crye in the eares of Jeruſalē, ⁊ ſaye: Thus ſayeth the Lord: I remēbre yͤ, for the kyndeneſſe of thy youth, and becauſe of thy ſtedfaſt loue: at the tyme of thy deſpouſynge, in that thou folowdeſt me thorowe the wylderueſſe, in an vntylled lande. Iſrael was an halowed thynge vnto the Lorde, and ſo was hys fyrſt frutes. * All they that deuoure Iſrael *Jere.x.d. zacha.ii.d. ſhall offende: myſfortune ſhall fall vpon thē, ſayeth the Lorde. Heare therfore the worde of the Lorde, O thou houſe of Jacob, and all the generacyōs of the houſe of Iſrael. Thus ſayeth the Lorde.

What vnfaythfulneſſe founde youre fa- B thers in me, that they wente ſo farre awaye fro me, fallynge to lyghtneſſe, and beynge ſo vayne? They thought not in theyr hertes. Where haue we left the Lorde, that brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte * that led vs Exo.xiiii.c. thorowe the wilderneſſe, thorowe a deſerte ⁊ rough lande, thorowe a drye and a deedly lāde, yee a lāde that no man had gone thorowe, and wheryn no man had dwelt. * And when *Deu.vi.b
I had brought you into a pleaſunt welbuylded lande, that ye myght enioye the frutes ⁊ all the cōmodyties of the ſame: ye went forth and defyled my lande, ⁊ brought myne herytage to abhominacyon.

C At the ſame tyme (ſayeth the Lorde) the herte of the kynge and of the princes ſhall be gone, the preaſtes ſhalbe aſtoniſhed, and the prophetes ſhalbe ſore afrayed. I behelde the mountaynes, and lo they trembled, and all the hylles were in a feare. I loked aboute me, and there was no body, and all the byrdes, of the ayre were awaye. I marked well, and the plowed felde was become waſte: yee all theyr cyties were broken downe at the preſence of the Lorde, and indignacyon of hys wrath.

G For thus hath ẏ Lord ſayde: The whole lāde ſhalbe deſolate, yet wyll I not then haue done. And ☞ therfore, ſhall ẏ earth mourne & the heauē be ſory aboue: for the thynge ẏ I haue ſpoken (to the prophetes) and taken vpon me to do, ſhall not repente me, and I wyll not go frō it. The whole lande ſhall fle, for the noyſe of the horſmen and bowemen: they ſhall runne into dennes, into woddes, & clyme vp the ſtony rockes. All ẏ cyties ſhalbe voyde, and no man dwellynge therin.

¶ The deſtruccyon of the Jewes is prefigured, and theyr ſparcynge abroade why Iſrael was receaued to be the people of God, and why they were forſaken.

A Thus ſayth the Lord vnto me: go thy waye, ⁊ get me a lynnen breche, and gyrde it aboute thy loynes, and let it not be wet. Then I got me a breche, accordynge to yͤ cõmaundemẽte of the Lorde, ⁊ put it aboute my loynes. After thys the ſeconde tyme, the Lorde ſpake vnto me agayne. Take the breche that thou haſt prepared and put about the, and get the vp, and go vnto Euphrates ⁊ hyde it in a hole of the rocke. So went I, ⁊ hydde it at Euphrates, as the Lord cõmaũded me. And it happened longe after this that the Lord ſpake vnto me. Up, ⁊ get the to Euphrates, ⁊ fet the brech from thẽce, which I cõmaunded the to hyde there. ¶ The falſe prophecye of Hananiah the prophete. Jeremy ſheweth that the prophecye of Hananiah is falſe, by example of the other prophetes. He beynge inſpyred of the Lorde, reproueth Hananiah, prophecyinge hys death.

A But in the .iiij. yeare of the raygne of zedekiah kynge of Iuda, in the v, moneth, it happened yͤ Hananiah the ſonne of Aſſur yͤ prophet of Gibeō, ſpake to me in the houſe of the Lorde, in the preſence of the preſtes, & of all the people, and ſayde: Thus ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes the God of Iſraell: I haue *Ier.xxvij.c broken the yock of the king of Babilon, * & after two yeare will I brynge agayne into this place: all the ornamentes of the Lordes houſe, that Nabuchodonoſor king of Babylon caried awaye from this place vnto Babilon. Yee, I wyll bringe agayne Iechoniah the ſonne of Iehoakim yͤ kinge of Iuda him ſelfe, with al the preſoners of Iuda (that are caryed vnto Babilon) euen into thys place, ſayth the Lorde: for I wyll breake the yock of the kynge of Babylou.

Then the prophet Ieremy gaue anſwere B vnto the prophet Hananiah, before the preſtes and before all the people that were preſent in the houſe of the Lord. *And the prophete *Mich.iii.c. Ieremy ſayde: Amen, the Lorde do yͤ, and graunte the thyng which thou haſt prophecyed: that he maye brynge agayne all the ornamentes of the Lordes houſe, and reſtore all the preſoners from Babylon into thys place. Neuertheleſſe, herken thou alſo, what I wyll ſaye, that thou and all the people maye heare. The prophetes that were before vs in tyme paſt, which prophecyed of warre or trouble, or peſtylence, ether of peace, vpon many nacyons and great kyngdomes, were proued by this (yf God had ſente thē in very *Deu.xviii.d. Nume.xvi.a. dede) *whē the thynge came to paſſe, which that prophete tolde before.

And Hananiah the prophet toke yͤ chayne C from the prophete Ieremyes necke, & brake it, and with that ſayde Hananiah, that all the people might heare. Thus hath the Lord ſpoken: Euen ſo wyll I breake the yock of Nabuchodonoſor kyng of Babylon, from yͤ neck of al nacions: yee, and that within this two yeare. And ſo the prophet Ieremye wēt his waye. Nowe after that Hananiah the prophete had taken the chayne from the prophete Ieremyes necke, and broken it. The worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete D Ieremy, ſaying: Go, & tel Hananiah theſe wordes. Thus ſayth the Lorde. Thou haſte broken the chayne of wod: but in ſteade of wod thou ſhalt make cheynes of yron. For thus ſayth the Lord of hoſtes the God of Iſrael: I wyll put a yock of yron vpō the neck of all this people, that they maye ſerue Nabuchodonoſor the king of Babilon: yee, and ſo ſhall they do. And I wyll geue hym the beaſtes in the felde. Then ſayde the prophet *Iere.xxix.c Ieremy vnto the prophet Hananiah: *heare me Hananiah: The Lorde hath not ſent yͤ but thou bringeſt this people into a falſe belefe. And therfore thus ſayth the Lorde: beholde, I wyll ſende the out of the lande, and within a yeare thou ſhalt dye, becauſe thou haſt falſely ſpoken agaynſt the Lorde. So Hananiah the prophete dyed the ſame yeare in the ſeuenth moneth.

¶ The piſtle of Ieremy, ſent vnto them that were in captiuite in Babylon. He prophecyeth theyr returne frō yͤ captiuite after .lxx. yeares. He prophecyeth the deſtruccyon of the kynge and of the people that remayned in Ieruſalem. He threatneth two prophetes that ſeduced the people. The death of Semeiah the Nehelamite is prophecyed.

These are the wordes of the boke, A that Ieremy the prophete ſent frō Ieruſalem vnto the preſoners, the ſenatours, preſtes, prophetes, & all yͤ people, whom Nabuchonoſor had led frō Ieruſalē vnto Babilō: after yͤ time yͤ kĩg Iechoniah and hys quene, hys chamberlaynes, the princes of Iuda and Ieruſalem, the worckemaſters of Ieruſalem were departed thyther. Whyche boke Elaſah the ſonne of Saphan, and Gamariah the ſonne of Helkiah dyd beare, whome zedekiah the kynge of Iuda ſent vnto Babylon to Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babilon: theſe were the wordes of Ieremyes boke.

Thus hath the Lorde of hooſtes the God B of Iſrael ſpokē vnto all the preſoners, that were led from Ieruſalem vnto Babylon: * *Ie.xxxv.d. buylde you houſes to dwell therin: plāte you gardēs, that ye maye enioye the frutes therof: *take you wyues, to beare you ſonnes & *Gene.i.d and.ix.a. daughters, prouyde wyues for your ſonnes and huſbādes for your daughters that they maye get ſonnes and daughters, and that ye maye multiplye there. Labour not to be few but ſeke after peace and proſperite of yͤ citie, wheri ye be preſoners, *& praye vnto yͤ Lord *Baruch.i.c i.Tim.ii.a for it. For in yͤ peace therof, ſhall your peace C be. For thus ſayth the Lorde of hoſtes the God of Iſraell. *Let not theſe prophetes & Iere.xxiii.c. and.xxvii.b. ſothſayers that be amōge you diſceaue you: & beleue not your awne dreames. For why? *they preache you lyes in my name, and I *Iere.xiiij.b haue not ſent them, ſayth the Lorde.

But thus ſayth the Lorde: *Whē ye haue fulfylled .lxx. yeares at Babylon, I wyll *i.pa.xxxvi.d. Iere.xxv.b. i.Eſd.i.a. brynge you home, & of myne awne goodnes I wyll carye you hyther agayne into thys place. For I know what I haue deuiſed for you, ſayth the Lorde. My thoughtes are to geue you peace, and not trouble (whiche I geue you all ready, and that ye myghte haue hope agayne. *Ye ſhall crye vnto me, ye ſhal *Deut.iiii.c. and.xxx.a. go and call vpon me, and I ſhall heare you. *Ioh.vii.d *Ye ſhall ſeke me and fynde me. Yee, yf ſo be that ye ſeke me with your whole hert, I wil be founde of you, ſayth the Lorde, and wyll delyuer you oute of preſon, and gather you together agayne out of all places, wherin I haue ſcatered you, ſayeth the Lorde, and wyll brynge you agayne to the ſame place, frō whence I cauſed you to be caried awaye captiue. But where as ye ſaye, ẏ God hath rayſed you vp prophetes at Babilon. Thus hath the Lorde ſpoken to the kynge that ſytteth in the throne of Dauid, and to all the people that dwell in thys cytie, youre brethren

* iiii.regum. xxiiii.d. * that are not gone with you into captiuitie.
Thus (I ſaye) ſpeaketh the Lord of hoſtes:
* Jer.xxiiii.b Beholde, * I wyll ſende a ſwearde, honger and peſtilence vpon them, and wyll make them lyke vntimely fygges, that maye not be eaten for bitternes. And I wyll perſecute them wyth ſwearde, with honger, and peſtilence.

I wyll delyuer them vp to be vexed of all kingdomes, to be curſed, abhorred, laughed to ſcorne, and put to confuſion of all the people, amonge whom I haue ſcatered thē: and that becauſe they haue not bene obedient vnto my commaundementes, ſayth the Lorde, which I ſente vnto them by my ſeruauntes
* Je.xxv.a and.xliiii.a the prophetes. * I ſtode vp early, and ſent vnto them: but they wolde not heare, ſayeth E the Lorde. Heare therfore the worde of the Lorde, all ye preſoners, whom I ſente from Jeruſalem vnto Babilon. Thus hath the Lorde of hoſtes the God of Iſraell ſpoken of Ahab the ſonne of Colaiah, and of zedekiah the ſonne of Maaſiah, which prophecye lyes vnto you in my name. Beholde, I wyl deliuer them into the hande of Nabuchodonoſor the kyng of Babilon, that he maye ſlaye them before youre eyes. And all the preſoners of Juda, that are in Babilon ſhall take vpon thys terme of curſinge, and ſaye: Now God do vnto the, as he dyd vnto zedekiah and Ahab, whom the kynge of Babilon roſted in the fyer, becauſe they ſynned ſhamefully in Iſraell.

For they haue not onely defiled their neyghbours wyues, but alſo preached lyinge wordes in my name, which I haue not commaūded them. Thys I teſtifye, and aſſure, ſayth F the Lord. But as for Semeiah the Nehelamite thou ſhalt ſpeake vnto hym. Thus ſayth the Lorde of hoſtes the God of Iſrael: Becauſe thou haſt ſealed letters vnder thy name vnto all the people that is at Jeruſalē, and to Sophoniah the ſonne of Maaſiah the preſte: yee, and ſent them to all the preſtes: wherein thou wryteſt thus vnto hym: The Lorde hath ordeyned the to be preſte in the
* iiii.Reg.xi a ii.par.xxiii.a. ſtead of * Jehoiada the preſte: that thou ſhuldeſt be the chefe in the houſe of ẏ Lord aboue all prophetes, and preachers, and that thou myghteſt ſet them vpon the pillery, or in the ſtockes. How happeneth it then, that ẏ haſt not reproued Jeremy of Anathoth, whiche neuer leaueth of his prophecienge. And beſyde
* Jere.xxix.c all thys, he hath ſent vs worde * vnto Babilon, and tolde vs playnely, that oure captiuite ſhall longe endure: that we ſhulde buylde vs houſes to dwell therin: ⁊ to plāte vs gardens that we maye enioye the frutes therof. Which lettre Sophoniah the preaſte G rede, and let Jeremy the prophete heare it.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremy, ſayinge: Sende worde to all them that be in captiuite, on thys maner: Thus hath the Lorde ſpoken concerning Semeiah the Nehelamite: * Becauſe that Semeiah * Je.xxviii.c. hath prophecyed vnto you without my commiſſion, ⁊ brought you into a fals hope, therfore thus the Lorde doth certifye you: Beholde, I will viſet Semeiah the Nehelamite, and his ſeede: ſo that none of hys ſhall remayne amonge thys people, and none of thē ſhall ſe the good, that I will do for thys people, ſayeth the Lorde. For he hath preached falſely of the Lorde.

¶ The.xxx.Chapter.

¶ The retourne of the people from Babilon. God by hys chaſtening ſheweth that the people is ſynful. The deſtruccyon of the enemyes of Iſrael.

These are the wordes, that the Lorde A ſheweth vnto Jeremye, ſayinge: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſraell:
* Wryte vp diligently all the wordes, * Jere.xxx.c. that I haue ſpoken vnto the, in a boke. For lo, the tyme commeth, ſayth the Lorde, that I wyll brynge agayne the preſoners of my people of Iſraell and Juda, ſayeth ẏ Lorde.
For I wyll reſtore them vnto the lande, ẏ
I gaue to theyr fathers, and they ſhall haue it in poſſeſſion.

Agayne, theſe wordes ſpake the Lorde, concerning Iſrael and Juda: Thus ſaieth ẏ Lorde: We haue hearde a terrible crye, feare and diſquietnes. For what elles do thys ſignifye, that I ſe? Namely, that all ſtronge men ſmyte, euery man hys hande vpon hys loynes, * as a womā in the payne of her trauayle. * Jere.xiii.b.
Who euer ſawe a man trauayle wyth chylde? Enquyre therafter, and ſe. Yee, all their faces are marnelous pale.

Alas for this daye, whiche is ſo dredefull B that none maye be lykened vnto it: and alas for the tyme of Jacobs trouble, frō ẏ whiche he ſhal yet be delyuered. For in ẏ daye, ſayth the Lord, of hoſtes I will take hys yocke frō of thy neck, ⁊ breake thy bondes: And ſtraūgers ſhall nomore ſerue hym: but they ſhall do ſeruice vnto God theyr Lorde, and to
* Dauid theyr kynge, whome I wyll rayſe * eze.xxxiiii.d vp vnto them. ‡ And as for the, O my ſeruaunt Jacob, feare not, ſayth the Lorde, and ‡ Jere.xlvi.g be not afrayed, O Iſrael. For lo, I wyll helpe the alſo from farre, and thy ſeed from the lande of their captiuytie.

And Jacob ſhall turne agayne, he ſhalbe in reſt, and haue a proſperous lyfe, ⁊ no man ſhall make him afrayed. For I am wyth the to helpe the, ſayth the Lorde. * And though * Amos.ix.b I ſhall

I ſhall deſtroie all the people, amõge whom
I haue ſcattered the, yet wyl I not deſtroye
*Iere.x.d the, but correcte the, *and that wyth diſcretion.
*Ex.xxxiiii.a For I knowe that thou art in no wyſe Nahum.i.a *without faute. Therfore thus ſayth the C Lorde: Thy broſinges are peryllous, & thy woundes ready to caſt ẏ in to ſicknes. Ther is no man to medle with thy cauſe, or to lay plaſter vpon the, or to bynde vp thy woundes:
there maye no man helpe the.

All thy louers haue forgottẽ the, and care nothynge for the. For I haue geuen the a cruell ſtroke, and chaſtened the roughly: and that for the multitude of thy myſdedes: for thy ſynnes haue had the ouer hande. Why makeſt thou mone for thy harme? in dede, *Ier.xiii.d. thou art ſore wounded & in ieopardye: * but for the multitude of thy myſdedes and ſynnes, I haue done thys vnto the.

*Ier.xii.a and.x.d. * And therfore, all they that deuoure the,
ſhalbe deuoured: and all thyne enemies ſhalbe led into captiuite. All they that make the waſt, ſhalbe waſted them ſelues, & all thoſe that robbe the, wyll I make alſo to be robbed.
For I wyll geue the thy health agayne and make thy woundes whole, ſayeth the Lorde: becauſe they reupled the, as one caſte awaye and deſpiſed. Syon (ſayde they) is ſhe whom no man regardeth.

D For thus ſayth the Lorde: Beholde, * I *Nu.xxiiii.a will bring agayne the captiuytie of Iacobs tentes, and defende hys dwelling place. The cytie ſhalbe buylded in her olde eſtate, and ẏ houſes ſhall haue their ryght foundacion.
And out of them ſhal go thãkeſgeuing, and the voyce of ioye.

I will multiplye them, and they ſhal not be fewe. I ſhall endue them with honoure, & no man ſhall ſubdue them. Theyr chyldren ſhalbe as a fore tyme, and their cõgregacion ſhall cõtinue in my ſyght. And all thoſe that vexe them, wyll I vpſet.

*A captayne alſo ſhall come of them: and *Mich.v.a. a prynce ſhall ſpringe out from the myddeſt of them: hym will I chalẽge to my ſelfe, and he ſhall come vnto me. * For what is he, ẏ
*John.vi.e. geueth ouer his hert to come vnto me? ſayth *Iere.xiii.b. the Lorde: * Ye ſhalbe my people alſo, and and ſhall fall vpon the heades of the vngodly.

The terrible diſpleaſure of the Lorde ſhall not leaue of, vntyll he haue done, & performed *Iere.xxiii.e the intent of hys herte, * whiche in the latter dayes ye ſhall vnderſtande. At ẏ ſame tyme, ſayth the Lorde, ſhall I be the God of all the generaciõs of Iſrael, and they ſhalbe my people.

¶ The.xxxi. Chapter.

¶ He prophecyeth that the people of Iſraell ſhalbe reſtored agayne vnto theyr proſperitie. To be turned from ſynne is the gyfte of God. The byrth of Chriſt is prophecied. All the wycked ſhall dye in theyr wyckednes. The new teſtamẽt and couenaunt is prophecyed. The chryſtian are taught and inſtructe of the Lorde. Oure ſynnes ſhall ſo be remytted, that they not ones be thought on. God promyſeth, that he wil caſt of the Iewes. The buyldynge agayne of Ieruſalem.

Thus ſayeth the Lorde: * The people A of Iſrael, which eſcaped in the *Nu.xiiii.c.

grace to come into theyr reſt Euen ſo ſhall the Lord now alſo apeare vnto me from farre, and ſaye: * I loue the with *John.vi.b. an euerlaſting loue, therfore, by my mercye I haue drawen the to me. I wil repayre the agayne, O thou daughter of Iſrael, ẏ thou tabrettes agayne, and go forth with them, that leade the daunce.

Thou ſhalt plante vynes agayne vpon ẏ hylles of Samaria, and the grape gatherers ſhall plante, and commenly eate of it.

For the dayes ſhall come when the watchemen vpon the mounte of Ephraim ſhall crye: * aryſe, let vs go vp vnto Sion to our *Eſa.ii.a.

with gladnes becauſe of Iacob, crie vnto ẏ head of the Gentils: ſpeake out, ſyng, & ſaye: O Lorde ſaue thy people, the remnaunt of Iſrael, and make them whole. Beholde, I wyll brynge them agayne frome out of the north lãde, and gather them from the endes of the worlde, with the blynde and lame ẏ

I wyll leade them to the ryuers of water in

* For I am Iſraels father, & ‡Ephraim *deu.xxxiii.a ſaye: he that hath ſcatered Iſraell, ſhall gather hym together agayne, & ſhall kepe hym as a ſhepherde doth his flocke. For the Lord hath redemed Iacob, and ryd hym frome the hande of the violent. And they ſhall come, & reioyce vpon the hyll of Siõ, and ſhall haue plenteouſnes of goodes, whiche the Lorde ſhall geue thẽ. Namely, wheate, wyne, oyle as a well watred garden, for they ſhall no more be hongrye.

Then ſhall the mayde reioyce in the daũce, C yee, both yonge and olde folkes. For I wyll turne their ſorowe into gladneſſe, and wyll conforte them from theyr ſorowes and make them ioyfull. I wyll powre plẽteouſneſſe vpon the hertes of the preſtes, and my

☞ Thus ſayth the Lorde: ☞ *The voyce

Moreouer, I heard Ephraim, that was
*Eze.xx.e. led awaye captiue, cōplayne on this maner: ☞ *O Lorde, thou haſt correct me, ⁊ thy cha-ſmyte vpon my thyghe. For verely I haue commytted ſhamefull thinges. For I haue borne the reprofe and cōfuſion of my youth.

D Upon this complaynte, I thought thus *Ge.xlviii.d by my ſelfe: *is not Ephraim my deare ſon-ne? Is he not the childe, with whome I haue of thyne. Howe longe wilt thou go aſtraye, O thou ſhrinkyng daughter? For the Lorde wyll worke a newe thing vpō earth. A wo-

Beholde, ſayth the Lorde, the dayes come, that I wyll ſowe the houſe of Iſraell, ⁊ the houſe of Iuda, with men and wyth ca-

Lorde. * Then ſhall it nomore be ſayde: *Eze.xviii.a

¶ The.xxxij. Chapter.

¶ Ieremy is caſt into preſon, becauſe he propheceyed that the citye ſhulde be taken of the kynge of Babylon. By the felde that Ieremy bought at the cōmaundement of the Lorde, is ſignifyed, that the people ſhuld come agayne to theyr awne poſſeſſyon. The people of God are hys ſeruauntes, and he is theyr Lorde. To feare God, is Goddes gyfte, to the entēt that ſynnes maye be eſchued.

A TH/ weſeordes ſpake the Lorde vnto Ieremy, in the .x. yeare of zedekiah king of Iuda: which was the xviij. yeare of Nabuchodonoſor, what tyme as the kyng of Babylons hooſt layed ſeage vnto Ieruſalem. But Ieremy the prophet laye bounde in the courte of the preſon, whiche was in the kynge of Iudas houſe: where zedekiah the kynge of Iuda cauſed hym to be layed, becauſe he had prophecyed of this maner: Thus ſayeth the Lorde: *Beholde, I wyll delyuer this cytie into the hādes of the kyng of Babilō, which ſhall take it. As for zedekiah the kynge of Iuda: he ſhall not be able to eſcape the Chaldees: but ſurely he ſhall come into the handes of the kyng of Babylon: which ſhall ſpeake wͭ him mouth to mouth: and one of thē ſhall loke another in yͤ face. And zedekiah ſhalbe caryed vnto Babylon, and there ſhall he be, vntyll the tyme that I viſet hym, ſayth the Lorde. But yf yͧ takeſt in hande to fyght agaynſt yͤ Chaldees, thou ſhalt not proſpere.

*Ie.xxxiii.a xxxviii.a.and xxxix.

B And Ieremy ſayde: thus hath the Lorde ſpoken vnto me: Beholde, Hananeel the ſonne of Selum thyne vncles ſonne, ſhall come vnto the, and requyre the to redeme the lāde that lyeth in Anathoth vnto thy ſelfe: * for by reaſon of kynred it is thy right to redeme it, and to bye it out.

*Leui.xxv.d. Nu.xxiiii.a. and.xxxvi.a Ruth.iiii.a.

And Hananeel myne vncles ſonne came to me in the court of the preſon, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, and ſayde vnto me: Bye my lande, I praye the, that lieth in Anathoth in the contrey of Beniamin: for by heritage thou haſte righte to looſe it oute for thy ſelfe, therfore redeme it. Then I perceaued that thys was the commaundement of the Lorde, and ſo I boughte the lāde from Hananeel of Anathoth, myne vncles ſonne, and weied hym there the moneye: euen ſeuen ſyckles and ten ſyluer pence.

C I cauſed hym alſo to make me a writing and to ſeale it: and called recorde therby, and weyed hym there the money vpon the wayghtes. So I toke the euidence with the copye, when it was orderlye ſealed and redde ouer, and I gaue the euidence vnto Baruch the ſonne of Neriah, the ſonne of Maaſiah in the ſyght of Hananeel my coſyne, and in the preſence of the witneſſes, that be named in the euidence: and before all the Iewes that were therby in the courte of the preſon:

I charged Baruch alſo before them ſayinge. The Lord of hoſtes the God of Iſraell commaundeth the, to take thys ſealed euydence with the copie: and to laye it in an earthen veſſell, that it maye longe contynue:

For the Lorde of hooſtes the God of Iſraell hath determyned that houſes, feldes, & vyneyardes ſhalbe poſſeſſed agayne in thys lande.

Now when I had deliuered the euidence vnto Baruch yͤ ſonne of Neriah, I beſought the Lorde, ſaying: O Lord God, *it is thou that haſte made heauen and earth with thy greate power and hie arme, and there is nothyng hyd from the. * Thou ſheweſt mercy vpon thouſandes, thou recōpenceſt the wickednes of the fathers, into the boſome of the children that come after them.

*Gen.i.a. Iere.x.b.

*Ex.xxxiiii.a

Thou art the greate and myghtye God, whoſe name is the Lorde of hooſtes: greate in counſell, and excellent in worke. Thyne eyes loke vpon all the wayes of mens chyldren, * to reward euery one after his waye: & according to the frutes of hys inuencions.

* Roma.ii.a.

* Thou haſte done greate tokens and wonders in the lande of Egypte, as we ſe thys daye, vpō the people of Iſrael and vpō thoſe men: to make thy name greate, as it is come to paſſe thys daye. Thou haſt brought thy people of Iſrael oute of yͤ land of Egipt, with tokens, with wonders, with a myghtye hande, with a ſterched oute arme and wͭ greate terriblenes: and haſt geuen them this lande, lyke as thou haddeſt promyſed vnto their fathers. Namely, that thou woldeſt geue them a lande, that floweth with mylke & honye.

*Exo.vij. vnto the.xv. chapter.

*Nowe when they came therin, and poſſeſſed it, they folowed not thy voyce, & walked not in thy lawe, *but all that thou commaundedeſt them to do, that haue they not done, and therfore come al theſe plages vpō them.

*Iudic.ii.iii iiii.vi.viii.

*Deu.v.b.

Beholde, there are bulworckes made now agaynſt the cytie, to take it: and it ſhall be wōne of the Chaldees that beſege it, with ſwearde, with honger and death, and looke what thou haſt ſpokē, that ſame ſhall come vpon them.

E For lo, all thynges are preſent vnto the. Yet (ſayſt thou vnto me, O Lorde God) and commaundeſt me, that I ſhall looſe a pece of lande vnto my ſelfe, and take wytneſſes therto: and yet in the meane ſeaſon the cytie is deliuered into the power of the Chaldees.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, ſayinge: Beholde, I am the Lorde God of all fleſhe, is there any thynge then to hard for me? Therfore thus ſaith the Lorde: * beholde, I ſhall delyuer thys cytie into the power of the Chaldees, and into the power of Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babylon, they ſhall take it. For the Chaldees ſhall come, and wynne this cytie, and ſet fyer vpō it, and burne it: wyth the gorgeouſe houſes in whoſe parlers they haue made ſacrifyce vnto Baal, and powred drynckofferynges vnto ſtraunge Goddes, to prouoke me vnto wrath.

*Iere.xxv.b. xxxix.b.

For ſeyng the chyldren of Iſrael, and the children of Iuda haue wrought wickednes before me euer frō their youth vp, what haue they els done, but prouoked me wᵗ yͤ workes of their awne handes, ſayth the Lorde.

Or what hath this cytie bene elles but a prouokinge of my wrath, euer ☞ ſence the ☞ daye that they buylded it, vnto thys houre wherin I caſte it out of my ſight, becauſe of the great blaſphemyes of the children of Iſrael & Juda, whiche they haue done to prouoke me: yee, they, their kynges, their prynces, their preſtes, their prophetes, the men of Juda, and the cyteſyns of Jeruſalem.

*Jere.C.d. *When I ſtode vp early, and taught thē F and inſtructed them, they turned their backes to me, and not their faces. They wolde not heare, to be refourmed and correct: ‡Jer.vij.d. ‡ but ſet their ydols in the houſe, that is halowed vnto my name, to defyle it. They haue bulded hye places for Baal in the valley of the chyldren of Hennom, to vowe theyr ſonnes and daughters vnto Moloch: which I neuer commaūded them: nether came it euer in my thoughte, to make Juda ſynne with ſoch abhominacion.

And nowe therfore, thus hath the Lorde God of Iſrael ſpoken, concernynge thys cytie, which (as ye your ſelues confeſſe) ſhalbe delyuered into the hande of the kynge of Babylon, when it is wonne with the ſwearde, *Deu.xxx.a with hōger and with peſtilence. *Beholde, I will gather them together from all lādes, wherin I haue ſcatered them in my wrath in my fearfull and great diſpleaſure: and wyll bring them agayne vnto thys place, where they ſhall dwell ſafely. And they ſhalbe my people, and I wilbe their God.

G *Pſ.cxix.c. *And I wyll geue thē one hert and one waye, that they maye feare me all the dayes of their lyfe, that they and their chyldren after them maye proſpere. *Eze.xxxvi.c. * And I wyll ſet vp an euerlaſtyng couenaunt with thē. Namelye, that I wyll neuer ceaſſe to do them good, and that I wyll put my feare in their hertes, ſo that they ſhall not runne awaye from me. *deu.xxxix.b Jere.xxxi.c *Yee, I wyll haue a luſt and pleaſure to do thē good, and faythfully to plante them in this lande with my whole herte and with all my ſoule.

For thus ſayth the Lorde: lyke as I haue brought all this great plage vpon this people, euen ſo wyll I alſo bring vpon them all the good, that I haue promiſed thē. And mē ſhall haue their poſſeſſiōs in this lāde, wherof ye ſaye nowe, that it ſhall nether be inhabited of people nor of catell: but be deliuered into the handes of the Chaldees. Yee, lande ſhalbe bought for money, & euidences made therupon, and ſealed before witneſſes in the countrey of Beniamin, and rounde aboute Jeruſalem, in the cities of Juda, in the cities that are vpon the moūtaynes, and in them that lye beneth: yee, and in yͤ cities that are in the ſouth. For I wyll brynge their preſoners hither agayne, ſayth the Lorde.

¶ The prophete is monyſhed of the Lorde, to praye for the delyueraunce of the people, which the Lord promyſeth. God forgeueth ſynnes, and doth graciouſly to the people, for hys awne renowne. Of the byrth of Chriſt. The kyngdom of Chriſt in yͤ church ſhall neuer be ended.

Moreouer, yͤ worde of the Lorde A came vnto Jeremy on this maner, *when he was yet boūd in *Jer.xx.a and.xxxii.a the court of yͤ preſō. Thus ſaith the Lord, which fulfilleth yͤ thīg yͭ he ſpeaketh: the Lorde which perfourmeth the thing yͭ he taketh in hand: euen he, whoſe name is the Lorde: *crye vnto me, & I wyll *Exo.xiiii.d 1.Reg.vij.b. anſwere, and ſhewe the great and hye thinges, which were vnknowen vnto the.

Thus (I ſaye) ſpake the Lorde God of Iſrael, concerninge the houſes of thys cytie, and the houſes of the kinges of Juda, yͭ they are broken thorowe the ordinaunce and the ſweard. Becauſe the enhabitours of this citie haue come to fight againſt the Chaldees: and they are filled with the deed karcaſes of men, whom I haue ſlayne in my wrath and diſpleaſure: when I turned my face frō thys citye, becauſe of all her wickedues. Behold, ſayth the Lord, I wyll repayre & heale their woundes, and make thē whole: I will open them the large treaſure of peace and trueth.

And I will returne the captiuytie of Juda and Iſrael: and wyll ſet them vp agayne as they were afore. * From all myſdedes, *Eſa.xliii.d wherin they haue offended againſt me, I wil clenſe thē. And all their blaſphemyes which they haue done agaynſt me, whē they regarded me not, I will forgeue them.

And thys ſhall get me a name, a prayſe, B & honoure among all the people of the earth, which ſhall heare all the good, that I wyll ſhewe vnto them: yee, they ſhall be afrayed and aſtonyed at all the good dedes and benefytes that I will do for them. Moreouer, thus ſayth the Lorde: *In this place, wher- *Jer.vii.d. of ye ſaye that it ſhalbe a wyldernes, wherin nether people nor catell ſhall dwel: in like maner in the cyties of Juda & without Jeruſalem (whiche alſo ſhalbe ſo voyde, that nether people nor catell ſhall dwell there) ſhall the voyce of gladnes be hearde agayne, the voyce of the brydegrome & of the bryde, the voyce of them that ſhall ſinge: *Prayſe the *Pſ.cxvii.a i.Mach.iiii.d Lorde of hooſtes, for he is louynge and hys mercy endureth for euer: and the voyce of them that ſhal offer vp gyftes in the houſe of the Lorde. For I wyll reſtore the captiuitie of thys lande, as it was afore, ſayeth the Lorde: Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes It ſhall come yet therto, that in thys lande, whiche is voyde from men and catell, and in all the cityes of the lande, there ſhalbe ſet vp ſhepherdes cotages: in the cytyes vpon the mountay-

moūtaynes: and in the cyties that lye vpon the playne, and in the cyties of the ſouth.

In the lande of Ben Iamin, in the feldes of Ieruſalem, and in the cyties of Iuda ſhall the ſhepe be nombred agayne, vnder yͤ hāde
C of hym, that telleth them, ſayeth the Lorde:
*Ier.xxiii.a *Beholde, the tyme cōmeth, ſayeth yͤ Lord, that I wyll perfourme that good thynge, which I haue promyſed vnto the houſe of Iſrael and to the houſe of Iuda. In thoſe dayes and at yͤ ſame tyme, I wyl brynge forth vnto Dauid, yͤ braunche of ryghteouſnes, ⁊ he ſhal do equitie ⁊ ryghteouſneſſe in the lande.
*Eſa.xxxii.c In thoſe dayes ſhal Iuda be helped *and Ieruſalem ſhall dwell ſafe, and he that ſhal cal her is euē God our ryghteouſneſſe. For thus *ii.re.vii.c the Lorde promyſeth. * Dauid ſhall neuer want one, to ſyt vpon the throne of yͤ houſe of Iſrael: *nether ſhall the preſtes and Leuites
*i.reg.ii.g want one to offre alway before me burnt offerynges, to kyndle the meatofferynges, ⁊ to prepare the ſacrifices.

And the worde of the Lord came vnto Ieremy
D after thys maner. Thus ſayeth yͤ Lord May yͤ couenaūt *which I haue made with *Gen.viii.d. daye ⁊ nyght be broken, that there ſhuld not be daye and nyght in due ſeaſon? Then maye my couenaūt alſo be broken, whych I made with Dauid my ſeruaūt, ⁊ ſo he not to haue ‡I.Pet.ii.a a ſonne to raygne in hys throne, ‡ſo ſhal alſo the preſtes ⁊ Leuites neuer fayle, but ſerue *Gene.xv.b. me. *For lyke as the ſtarres of heauen may and.xxii.c not be nombred, neyther the ſande of the ſee meaſured: ſo wyl I multiplye the ſede of Dauid my ſeruaūt, ⁊ the Leuites my miniſters.

Moreouer, the worde of the Lord came to Ieremy, ſayeng: Cōſidreſt thou not what this people ſpeaketh? Two kynredes (ſaye they) had the Lorde choſen, ⁊ thoſe ſame two hath he caſt awaye. For ſo they haue deſpyſed my people ⁊ they reputed thē as thoughe they were no people. Therfore, thus ſayeth yͤ Lord: Yf I haue made no couenaūt wͭ day ⁊ nyghte, ⁊ geuen no ſtatute vnto heauē and earth: thē wyll I alſo caſt awaye the ſede of Iacob ⁊ Dauid my ſeruaūt. ſo yͭ I wyl take no prince out of hys ſede, to rule yͤ poſteritie of Abrahā, Iſaac ⁊ Iacob. But yet I wyll turne agayne theyr captiuite, ⁊ be mercyfull vnto them.

¶The.xxxiiii.Chapter.

¶He threateneth that the cytie, and the kynge zedekiah alſo, ſhalbe geuen into the handes of the kynge of Babylon.
He rebuketh thē that brought ſuch of theyr brethrē into captiuite, as were pardoned to go at theyr lybertie.

A These are the wordes whych the Lord
*Ier.xxxix.a ſpake vnto Ieremye * what tyme as Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babilon, and all hys hooſtes (out of all the kyngdomes that were vnder hys power) and all hys people, fought agaynſt Ieruſalem and all the cyties therof. Thus ſayeth the Lorde God of Iſraell: Goo, and ſpeake to zedekiah the kynge of Iuda, and tell hym. The Lorde ſendeth the thys worde: Beholde, * I wyll *iiii.Reg.xxv.a delyuer thys cytie into the hande of yͤ kynge Iere.xxxii.a of Babylon, he ſhall burne it, and thou ſhalt and.xxxix.a not eſcape hys hādes, but ſhalt be led awaye preſoner, ⁊ delyuered into his power. Thou ſhalte loke the kynge of Babilon in the face, and he ſhal ſpeake with the, mouth to mouth and thē ſhalt thou go to Babylon. Yet heare the worde of yͤ Lord, O zedekiah thou kinge of Iuda: Thus ſayeth the Lorde vnto the.
Thou ſhalt not be ſlayne with the ſwearde, but ſhalt dye in peace. *Lyke as thy forefathers *i.Re.xxxi.e the kynges, thy progenitours, were brent: ſo ſhalt thou be brente alſo, and in thy mournynge they ſhall ſaye: Oh Lorde. For thus haue I determined, ſayeth the Lorde:

Then ſpake Ieremy the prophete al theſe wordes vnto zedekiah kynge of Iuda in Ieruſalem: what tyme as the kynge of Babylons hooſt beſeged Ieruſalem, and the remnaunt of the cyties. Namely, Lachis ⁊ Azecach, whych yet remayned of the *ſtronge defenſed *ii.Par.xi.a cyties of Iuda.

Theſe are the wordes that yͤ Lorde ſpake vnto Ieremy yͤ prophet, whē zedekiah was agreed wyth all the people at Ieruſalē, that there ſhulde be proclaymed * a lybertie. ſo yͭ *Exod.xxi.a euery man ſhulde let hys ſeruaunt and hand Leui.xxv.f, mayde go fre, Hebrue, and Hebrueſſe, and no Deute.xv.b Iewe to holde hys brother as a bondeman.
Nowe as they had conſented, all the princes and all the people whych had gathered vnto thys agremēt that euery mā ſhulde ſet at lybertie his bōde ſeruaunt and bonde woman and no longer to holde them bonde, euen ſo they were obedient, ⁊ let them go fre. But afterwarde they repented, and toke agayne yͤ ſeruauntes and hande maydens, whom they had let go fre, ⁊ ſo made them bonde agayne

For the which cauſe yͤ word of the Lord C came vnto Ieremy frō the Lorde hym ſelfe, ſayeng: Thus ſayeth yͤ Lorde God of Iſrael
*I made a couenaunt wyth your fathers, *Deu.xv.a whē I brought thē out of Egipt, (that they Exod.xxi.a ſhulde nomore be bondmen) ſayenge: When ſeuen yeares are out, euery man ſhall let hys bought ſeruaūt an Hebrue go fre, yf he haue ſerued hym ſyxe yeares. But youre fathers obeyed me not ⁊ herkened not vnto me. As for you, ye were now turned, ⁊ dyd ryght before me, in that ye proclamed, euery man to let his neyghbour go fre, ⁊ in that ye made a couenaūt before me, in the tēple that beareth my name. But yet ye haue turned youre ſelues agayne, and blaſphemed my name. In thys, yͭ euery man hath requyred his ſeruaūt ⁊ hādmaydē agayn, whō ye had let go quyte and fre, ⁊ compelled thē to ſerue you agayne, and to be your bondmen, and bondwemen.
And therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde: ye haue not obeyed me, euery man to proclame fredome vnto hys brother ⁊ neyghboure: wherfore, ☞ ☞ I wyll cal you vnto a fredome, sayeth the Lorde: euen vnto the swearde, to the pestilence, ⁊ to hõger, ⁊ wyll make you to be plaged in all the kyngdomes of the earth.

Yee, those men ỹ haue broken my couenaunt,
⁊ not kept the wordes of the appoyntement, ☞ which they made before me: *☞ when they Gene.xv.b hewed the calfe in two, ⁊ when there wente thorowe the two halues therof: The princes of Juda, the princes of Jerusalẽ, the gelded men, the Prestes and al the people of ỹ lande, whych wente thorowe the two sydes of the calfe. Those men wyll I gyue into the power of theyr enemyes, and into the hãdes of them that folowe vpon theyr lyues.

*Psa.lxxix.a Jere.vii.d * And theyr deed bodyes shalbe meate for the foules of the ayre, ⁊ beastes of the felde.
As for zedekiah the kynge of Juda and hys Princes, I wyll delyuer thẽ into the power of theyr enemyes, and of them that desyre to slaye them, and into the hande of the kynge *Je.xxxvii.c of Babylons hoost *☞ whych nowe is departed ☞ from you: But thorow my commaũdement (sayeth the Lorde) they shall come agayne before thys cytie, they shall fyghte agaynst it, wynne it, and burne it: Moreouer, I wyll laye the cyties of Juda so wast, that no man shall dwell therin.

¶ The.xxxv.Chapter.

¶ He propoundeth the obediẽce of the Rechabites, and therby confoundeth the pryde of the Jewes. The commaundement of Jonadab, the father of the Rechabites. He threateneth punyshment vnto the rebellious Jewes He promiseth prosperite vnto the Rechabites, for theyr obedience vnto theyr father.

A The wordes whych the Lord spake vnto Jeremy, in the raigne of Jehoakim the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda are *iiii.reg.x.c. these: Go vnto the house of * the Rechabites and call them out, and brynge thẽ to ỹ house of the Lorde into some commodious place, and geue them wyne to drynke. Then toke I Jazaniah the sonne of Jeremy the sonne of Habaziniah, and hys brethren, and al his sõnes, and the whole housholde of the Rechabites:
and broughte them to the house of the Lorde into the closet of the chyldren of Hanan the sonne of Jegedaliah the man of God whych was by the closet of the Princes that is aboue the closet of Maasiah the sonne of B Selum, which is the treasurer. And before ỹ sonnes of the kinred of the Rechabites, I set pottes ful of wyne, and cuppes, and said vnto them: Drynke wyne. But they sayd: we wyll drynke no wyne for Jonadab the sõne of Rechab our father commaunded vs, sayenge:
ye and your sõnes shall neyther drynke *Jere.xxix.b wyne * buylde no houses, sowe no sede, plãte no vynes, yee, ye shall haue no vyneyardes:
but for all your tyme ye shal dwel in tentes, that ye maye lyue longe in the lande wherin ye be straungers.

Thus haue we obeyed the cõmaũdement of Jonadab the sonne of Rechab our father in al that he hath charged vs, ⁊ so we drinke no wyne all our lyfe longe: we, nor our wyues, our sonnes and our daughters. Neyther buyld we any house to dwel therin, we haue also amonge vs neyther vyneyardes, nor cornelande to sowe: but we dwell in tentes, we obeye, and do accordynge vnto all, that Jonadab our father commaunded vs.

But now that Nabuchodonosor the king of Babilon came vp into the lande, we said, come, let vs go to Jerusalem, that we maye escape the hoost of the Caldees and the Assyrians:
C and so we dwell nowe at Jerusalem.
Thẽ came the worde of ỹ Lorde vnto Jeremy sayeng. Thus sayeth ỹ Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: Go and tell ỹ mẽ of Juda and ỹ inhabitours of Jerusalẽ: Wyl ye not be refourmed, to obey my wordes sayth ỹ Lorde:
The wordes whych Jonadab the sõne of Rechab cõmaunded his sonnes, ỹ they shuld drynke no wyne, are fast and surely kept: for vnto thys daye they drynke no wyne, but obeye theyr fathers commaundemẽt. But as *Jer.xviii.a and.xxv.a for me, * I haue stande vp early, I haue spoken vnto you, ⁊ geuẽ you earnest warnyng: ⁊ yet haue ye not ben obedient vnto me. Yee,
I haue sent my seruauntes, all the prophetes vnto you, I rose vp early, ⁊ sent you worde, sayeng: O turne you, nowe euery mã frõ his wycked waye: amende youre lyues, and go not after straũge goddes to worshyp them:
that ye maye continue in the lande, whych I haue geuen vnto you ⁊ youre fathers, but ye wolde neyther heare me, nor folowe me.

D The chyldren of Jonadab Rechabs sõne haue sted fastly kepte theyr fathers commaũdement, ỹ he gaue thẽ, but thys people is not obedient vnto me. And therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: Beholde, I wyll brynge vpõ Juda ⁊ vpõ euery one that dwelleth in Jerusalem, al ỹ trouble *Pro.i.e Esay.lxv.b *Jere.vii.b. ỹ I haue deuysed agaynst thẽ. * For I haue spokẽ vnto them, but they wold not folow.
I haue called vnto them, neuerthelesse they wolde geue me no answere. Jeremy also spake vnto ỹ housholde of the Rechabites: Thus sayeth the Lord of Hostes the God of Israel. For so muche as ye haue obeyed the commaundement of Jonadab youre father, and kepte all hys preceptes, and done accordyng vnto all that he hath byddẽ you. Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of Hostes, ỹ God
*Je.xxxiij.c of Israel: * Jonadab the sonne of Rechab shal not fayle, but haue one out of hys stocke to stande alwaye before me.

¶ The.xxxvi.Chapter.

¶ Baruch wryteth (as Jeremy endyteth) the boke of the curses agaynst Juda and Israel. He is sente wyth the boke vnto the people, and readeth it before them al. He is called before the rulers, and readeth it before them also. The rulers shewe vnto the kynge the wordes of the boke Jehuda taketh the boke, and readeth a lytel of it, and casteth it in the fyre. There is another wrytten, at the commaundement of the Lorde.

A In the fourth yeare of Jehoakim the ſonne of Joſiah kynge of Juda, came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremy *Jere.xxx.a. ſayenge: *Take a boke, and wryte therin al the wordes, that I haue ſpoken to yͤ, againſt Iſrael, agaynſt Juda, and againſt al the people, from the tyme that I began for to ſpeak vnto the (in the raygne of Joſiah) vnto this daye. That whan the houſe of Juda heareth of the plage, whych I haue deuyſed for them
*Jer.xviij.a they maye peraduenture *turne, euery man frō hys wycked waye, that I maye forgeue theyr offences and ſynnes:

Then dyd Jeremy cal Baruch the ſonne
*Jere.xlv.a. of Neriah, *and Baruch wrote in the boke at the mouth of Jeremy, all the wordes of yͤ Lorde whych he had ſpoken vnto hym. And Jeremy cōmaunded Baruch, ſayenge: I am in preſone, ſo that I maye not come into the houſe of the Lorde: therfore go thou thyther, and reade the boke, that thou haſt wryttē at my mouth: Namely, the wordes of yͤ Lorde B and reade them in the Lordes houſe vpon yͤ faſtynge daye, that the people, whole Juda, and al they that come out of the cyties, may heare. Peraduenture, they wyll praye mekely before the face of the Lorde, & turne euery one from hys wycked waye. For greate is the wrath and diſpleaſure, that yͤ Lord hath taken agaynſt thys people.

So Baruch the ſonne of Neriah dyd, accordynge vnto al that Jeremy the Prophet cōmaunded hym, readynge the wordes of yͤ Lorde out of the boke in the Lordes houſe.
And this was done in yͤ fyft yeare of Jehoakim the ſonne of Joſiah kynge of Juda, in yͤ
ix. moneth *when it was commaūded, that *Jone.iii.a all the people of Jeruſalem ſhulde faſt before the Lord, and they alſo that were come from the cyties of Juda vnto Jeruſalem.

C Then red Baruch the wordes of Jeremy out of the boke within the houſe of the Lord out of the treaſury of Gamariah the ſonne of Saphā the ſcribe, whyche is beſyde the hyer
*Jere.xxvi.a lofte of the *newe dore of the Lordes houſe: that all the people myght heare. Nowe whē Micheah the ſonne of Gamariah the ſōne of Saphan had herde al the wordes of yͤ Lorde out of the boke, he wente downe to the kynges palace into the Scribes chambres, for there all the Prynces were ſet. Elyſama the Scribe, Dalaiah the ſonne of Semei, Elnathan the ſonne of Achbor, Gamariah yͤ ſōne of Saphā, zedekiah the ſonne of Hananiah, wyth all the prynces. And Micheach tolde them all the wordes, that he hearde Baruch reade out of the boke before the people.

D Then all the princes ſent Jehudi the ſōne of Nathaniah, the ſonne of Selamiah, the ſonne of Chuli, vnto Baruch, ſayeng: Take in thyne hande the boke, whereout thou haſt red before all the people, and come. So Baruch the ſonne of Neriah toke the boke in his

¶ The.xliiii.Chapter.

¶ He reproueth the people for theyr ydolatrye they that ſet lyght by the threatynge of the Lord are chaſtened. The deſtruccyon of Egypte and the Jewes therin is propheſyed.

A This is the worde yͭ was ſhewed to Jeremy, cōcernynge all the Jewes: whych dwelt in Egypte: at Migdol, at Taphnis at Noph & in yͤ lāde of Patures. Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes, the God of Iſrael: Ye haue ſene all yͤ myſery, yͭ I haue brought vpō Jeruſalem, & vpon the cyties of Juda: ſo that thys daye they are deſolate, and no man dwellynge therin: and that becauſe of the greate blaſphemyes whych they cōmpted, to prouoke me vnto anger. In that they went backe to do ſacrifyce and worſhyp vnto ſtraunge goddes: whō nether ye, ner your fathers haue knowen. Howebeit, I ſent vnto them my ſeruauntes all the prophetes. * I roſe vp early, I ſent vnto them, and gaue them warnynge. O do no ſoche abhominable thynges, & thinges that I hate. But they wolde not folowe ner herkē, to turne from theyr wyckednes and to do nomore ſacrifyces vnto ſtraunge goddes.

* Jere.xxv.a and.xxix.c.

B Wherfore myne indignacyon and wrath was kyndled, and it brente vp the cyties of Juda, the feldes wyth the ſtretes of Jeruſalem, ſo that they were made waſte and deſolate, as it is come to paſſe thys daye. Nowe therfore, thus ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes, the God of Iſrael: howe happeneth it, that ye do ſo greate euyll vnto your awne ſoules: thus to deſtroye the men and wemen, chyldrē and babes of Juda: ſo that none of you is lefte, becauſe ye prouoke me vnto wrathe wyth the workes of youre awne hādes: when ye offer vnto ſtraunge goddes in the lande of Egypt, where as ye be gone to dwell. That ye myght vtterly peryſhe, & that ye myght be reuyled and ſhamefully intreated of all naciōs. Or haue ye nowe forgotten the wyckednes of your forefathers, the wyckednes of the kynges of Juda and theyr wyues, the wyckednes that ye youre ſelues & your wyues haue done in the lande of Juda, and in yͤ ſtretes of Jeruſalem.

C Yet are ye not ſory vnto this daye, ye feare not, nether walke ye in my lawe ād in my commaundementes, that I haue geuen vnto you and youre forefathers.

Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes, the God of Iſrael: I am ſtedfaſtly aduiſed and determined to punyſhe you, & to rote out all Juda. As for the remnaunt of Juda, that purpoſly wente into Egypt, ther to dwell, I wyll take them, * and they ſhall all be deſtroyed. In the lande of Egypt ſhall they peryſhe, beynge conſumed wyth the ſwearde and with honger. For from the leeſt vnto the mooſt, they ſhall peryſhe with the ſwearde and wyth honger. Moreouer, they ſhalbe reuyled, abhorred, ſhamed, and confounded. For I wyll viſet them that dwell in Egypte, * as I haue viſyted Jeruſalem, with the ſwearde, with honger and with peſtilence. So that none of the remnaūt of Juda, which are gone to dwell in Egipte, ſhall be left to come agayne into the lande of Juda all though they thinke to come thyther agayne, and to dwell there. For none ſhall come agayne, but ſoch as are fledd awaye.

D Then all the mē which knewe that theyr wyues had offred vnto ſtraūge goddes, and a greate ſorte of wyues that ſtode there, yee, and all the people that dwelt there in Egipt in the citie of Patures, anſwerede Jeremye, and ſayde. For then had we plenteouſnes of vitayles, then were we in proſperyte, and no myſfortune came vpon vs.

* Jere.vii.d.

E * But ſens we left to burne incenſe, & to do ſacrifyce vnto the quene of heauen, we haue had ſcarceneſſe of all thynges, and peryſhe wyth the ſwearde and honger. A pyteous cry ſhalbe hearde from Babylon and a greate myſery from the lãde of the Caldees, when the Lorde deſtroyeth them, and when he dryueth out the hye ſtomacke & proude boaſtinge, wherwith they haue bene as furious as yͤ waues of greate water floudes, and made great crakes with their wordes. For the deſtroyers ſhall come vpon her (euen vpõ Babylon) which ſhall take theyr worthyes, and breake their bowes: for God is diſpoſed to auenge hym ſelfe vpon them, and ſufficiently to recompence them. Thys is the charge yͭ Jeremy gaue vnto Sariah the ſonne of Neriah, the ſonne of Maaſiah, when he went towarde Babylon with zedekiah the kyng of Juda, in yͤ fourth yeare of hys raygne. Nowe thys Saraiah was a peaceable prince. Jeremy wrote in a booke all the miſery that ſhulde come vpon Babylon, yee, and all theſe ſermons that be wrytten agaynſt Babylon, and gaue Saraiah this charge. When thou commeſt vnto Babylon, ſe that thou reade all theſe wordes, and ſaye. O Lord, thou art determined to rote out thys place, ſo that nether people ner catell ſhall dwell there eny more, but to lye waſte for euer: and when thou haſt redde out the booke, bynde a ſtone to it, and caſt it in the myddeſt of Euphrates, and ſaye, Euē thus ſhall Babylon ſyncke, and be thruſt downe with the burthen of trouble, that I wyll brynge vpon her: ſo that ſhe ſhall neuer come vp agayne. Thus farre are the preachynges of Jeremy.

¶ The.lij.Chapter.

¶ He repeteth the takynge of zedekiah. Jeruſalem is taken of the Chaldees, zedekias ſonnes are kylled before hys face, and hys eyes put oute. The cytie is burned. The tēple is ſpoyled and robbed. They that were lefte in Jeruſalem are caryed to Babylon. kynge Jeoachyn is brought forth of preſon, & fed lyke a kynge.

*iiij.Regū. xxiiij.d. ij.pa.xxxvi.d.

A ZEdekiah was * one and.xx. yeare olde, whē he was made kynge, and he raygned eleuen yeare in Jeruſalem. Hys mothers name was Hamutall, Jeremyes daughter of lybna. He lyued wyckedly before the Lorde euen as Jehoachin dyd. For yͤ Lorde was angry at Jeruſalem and Juda, ſo longe tyll he had caſt them out of hys preſence. And zedekiah fell frō the kynge of Babylō. * But in yͤ nynth yeare of hys raygne, In the tenth moneth, yͤ tenth daye of the moneth it happened, that Nabuchodonoſor the kyng of Babylō with all hys hooſte came before Jeruſalem, and beſeged it, and made them bulworckes roūde aboute it. And thys beſegynge of the cytie endured vnto the eleuenth yeare of kyng zedekiah.

*iiii.Regū xxv.a Jere.xxxviii. b.xxxix.a.

B * And in the fourth moneth, the.ix. daye of the moneth, there was ſo great honger in the cytie: that there were no more vytayles for the people of the lande. So all the ſoudiers brake awaye, and fled oute of the cytie by nyght thorow the waye of the porte betwene the two walles by the kynges gardē. Nowe the Caldees had compaſſed the cytie rounde aboute, yet went theſe men theyr waye towarde the wyldernes.

And ſo the Caldees folowed vpon them, and toke zedekiah the kynge in the felde of Jericho, whē hys hooſt was runne frō hym: So they caryed the kyng awaye priſoner to Reblath, vnto the kynge of Babylon in the lande of Hemath, * where he gaue iudgemēt vpon hym.

*Jer.xxxix.b

The kynge of Babylon alſo cauſed zedekiahs ſonnes to be ſlayne before his face, yee C and put all the prynces of Juda to death at Reblath. Moreouer, he put out the eyes of zedekiah, cauſed him to be boūde wyth two cheynes, to be caryed vnto Babylon: and let hym lye in preſon, tyll he dyed.

Nowe the tenth daye of the fyfth moneth in yͤ nynth yeare of Nabuchodonoſor kynge of Babylō, Nabuſaradan the chefe captayne and the kynge of Babylons ſeruauntes came vnto Jeruſalem, and brent vp yͤ houſe of the Lorde. He brent vp alſo the kynges palace, all the houſes and all the gorgeous buyldynges in Jeruſalem. And the whole hooſt of the Caldees that were with yͤ chefe captayne, brake downe all the walles of Jeruſalem rounde aboute.

D As for the poore people and ſoche folke as yet was lefte in yͤ cytie: which alſo were fallen to the kynge of Babylon, yee, and what people as yet remayned: Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne caryed thē awaye preſoners. But the poore people of the cōutre, dyd Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne leaue in the lande, to occuppye the vyneardes and feldes: The Chaldees alſo brake the braſen pyllers that were in the houſe of the Lorde, yee, the ſeate and the braſen lauer that was in the houſe of the Lorde: and caryed all the metall of them vnto Babylon. They toke awaye alſo the Cauldrons, ſhouels, fleſhehokes, ſprynklers, ſpones, and all the braſen veſſell that was occupied in the ſeruyce: wyth the baſens, colepannes, ſprynklers, pottes, candelſtyckes, ſpones, and cuppes: wherof ſome were of golde, and ſome of ſyluer.

E The chefe captayne toke alſo the two pillers, the lauer, the twelue braſen bullockes that ſtode vnder the ſeate * which kyng Salomon made in the houſe of the Lord: and all the veſſell conteyned ſo moche metall, that it myght not be weyed. For euery piller was eyghtene cubytes hye: and yͤ rope that went aboute it, was twelue cubytes, & foure fyngers thycke and rounde. Nowe vpō the rope were braſen knoppes, & euery knoppe was fyue cubytes hye: and vpon the knoppes were whopes, and pomgranates rounde about of cleane braſſe.

*iii.Re.vii.b

F After thys maner were both the pylers faſhyoned wᵗ the pōgranates, wherof there were an hundred and.xcvj. whych hanged vpon the whoopes rounde about. The chefe captayne alſo toke Sariah yͤ hye preſte, and Sophoniah that was chefe nexte hym, and the thre kepers of the treaſury. He toke oute of the cytie a chamberlayne whych was a captayne of the ſoudyers, and ſeuen men yͤ were the kynges ſeruauntes, whych were founde in the cytie: and Sepher a captayne that vſed to muſter the men of warre, wyth threſcore men of the countre that were taken in the cytie. Theſe, Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne toke, and caried them to the kynge of Babylon vnto Reblath: and the kyng of Babylon cauſed them to be put to death at Reblath in the lande of Hemath. And thus Juda was ledde awaye captyue, oute of his awne lande This is yͤ ſumme of the people, whō Nabuchodonoſor ledde awaye captiue

G In the ſeuenth yeare of his raygne, he caried awaye of yͤ Jewes, thre thouſande and thre and twenty. In the.xviij. yeare Nabuchodonoſor caryed awaye from Jeruſalem eyght hundreth thyrthy and two perſonnes In the .xxiij. yeare of Nabuchodonoſor Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne, toke awaye ſeuen hundreth fourty and fyue Jewes preſoners. The whole ſumme of all the preſoners, is foure thouſande and ſyxe hundreth.

In the .xxxvij. yeare after that Jeoachim the kynge of Juda was caryed awaye in the .xxv. daye of the .xij. moneth, Euilmerodach kynge of Babylon (the ſame yere that he reygned) gaue Jeoachim the kinge of Juda hys pardon, and let hym out of preſon, and ſpake louyngly to hym. And ſet hys trone aboue the trones of the other kynges yͤ were with him in Babylon. He chaunged alſo the clothes of hys preſon, yee, and he dyd eate wͭ hym all his lyfe longe. And he had a continuall lyuynge geuē him of the kynge of Babylon, euery daye a certayne thynge alowed him all the dayes of hys lyfe, untyll he dyed.

¶ The booke of the Prophete Ezechiel.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ The tyme wheryn Ezechiel prophecyed and in what place. Hys offſprynge and offyce. The viſyon of the foure beaſtes. The viſyon of the wheles. The viſyon of the throne. and of the ymage aboue the throne.

A IT chaunſed in yͤ .xxx. yeare, the fyfte daye of the fourth moneth, that I was amõge the preſoners by the ryuer of ☞ Cobar: ☞ where the heauens opened, and I ſawe a viſyon of God. Nowe the fyfth daye of the moneth made out the fyfth yeare of kynge Joachins captyuite. At the ſame tyme came the worde of the Lorde vnto Ezechiel the ſonne of Buzi the preſte, in the lande of the Chaldees by the water of Cobar, *Eze.x.a. *where ◦+ the hande of the Lorde ◦+ came vpon hym.

And I loked, and beholde a ſtormy wynde B came out of the North with a greate cloude full of fyre, whych wᵗ hys glyſtre lyghtened all rounde aboute. And in the middeſt of the fyre it was all cleare lyke yͤ face of an aungell, and as it were the lykenes of foure beaſtes, and thys was there lykeneſſe. They were faſhyoned lyke a man: ſauynge, that euery one had foure faces & foure wynges.

Theyr legges were ſtreyght, but theyr fete were lyke bullockes fete, and they glyſtered, as it had bene fayre ſcoured metall. Under theyr wynges, vpon all the foure corners they had mens handes. Theyr faces and theyr wynges were towarde the foure corners: yet were the wynges ſo, that one ◦+ euer touched another. When they went, they turned them not aboute: but eche one went ſtreyght forwarde.

Furthermore thys was the ſymilitude C of theyr faces. *Eze.x.d. *Upõ the ryght ſyde of theſe foure, their faces were lyke the face of a mã, and the face of a lyon. But vpon yͤ lefte ſyde, they had the face of an oxe, and the face of an Aegle. Theyr faces alſo and theyr wynges were ſpred out aboue: ſo that two wynges of one touched euer two wynges of another and wyth the other they couered their body. Euery one when it wente, it wente ſtreght forwarde. Where as the ſprete led thẽ, thyther they wente, *Eze.x.c. *and turned not aboute in theyr goynge.

The faſhyon and countenaunce of the D beaſtes was lyke hoate coales of fyre, euen as though burnynge creſſettes had bene amonge the beaſtes: ☞ (thys was the viſyon) and ☞ the fyre gaue a glyſtre, and out of the fyre there went lyghtenynge. When the beaſtes wente forwarde & backwarde, one wolde haue thought it had lyghtened. Nowe when I had well conſydered the beaſtes, I ſawe a worcke of wheles vpõ the earth with foure faces alſo nye vnto the beaſtes.

The faſhyon and worke of the wheles was lyke yͤ ſee. The foure wheles were ioyned and made (to loke vpon) as it had bene one whele in another. When one wente forwarde, they wente all foure, and turned thẽ not about ĩ their goynges. They were large greate and horrible to loke vpõ. Their backes were full of eyes roũde aboute them all foure. E When the beaſtes wente, the wheles wente alſo with them. And whẽ the beaſtes lyfte them ſelues vp frõ the earth, the wheles were lyft vp alſo. Whitherſoeuer yͤ ſprete wente, thyther went they alſo, & the wheles were lyfte vp, and folowed thẽ: for the ſprete of lyfe was in the wheles. When the beaſtes wente forth, ſtode ſtyll, or lyft them ſelues from the earth, then the wheles alſo wente, ſtode ſtyll, and were lyfte vp, for the breth of lyfe was in the wheles.

Aboue, ouer yͤ heades of the beaſtes there was a fyꝛmament, whych was faſhyoned as it had bene of the moſt pure Criſtall, and that was ſpꝛede oute aboue vpon their heades: vnder the ſame fyꝛmament were theyꝛ wynges layed abꝛode, one towarde another F and two wynges couered the body of euery beaſte. And when they wēte foꝛth, I hearde the noyſe of their wynges, lyke the noyſe of greate waters, as it had bene the voyce of the greate God, and a ruſſhynge together as it were of an hooſt of men. And whē they ſtode ſtyll, they let downe theyꝛ wynges.
Nowe when they ſtode ſtyll, and had letten doune their wynges, it thondꝛed in the fyꝛmamēt that was aboue their heades. Aboue the fyꝛmament that was ouer their heades, there was yͤ faſhyō of a ſeate, as it had bene G made of Saphyꝛ. Upon the ſeate there ſatt *Eze.viij.a one lyke a man. *I behelde hym, and he was lyke an aungell, as it had bene all of fyꝛe wͭ in from his loynes vpwarde.

And beneth, when I loked vpō him vnder yͤ loynes, me thought he was lyke a ſhynynge fyꝛe, that geueth lyght on euery ſyde.
Yee, the ſhyne and glyſtre that lyghtened roūde aboute, was lyke a raynbowe, which in a raynye daye appeareth in the cloudes.
Euen ſo was the ſimplitude, wheryn yͤ gloꝛye of the Loꝛde appeared. When I ſawe it, I fell vpon my face, and herkened vnto the voyce of hym that ſpake.

A O Thou ſonne of man, take the thẽ a ſharpe knyfe, namely, a raſoure. Take that, and ſhaue the heare of thy head & beerd: Then take the ſkales & the wayght, & deuyde the hearre a ſunder. And after thou haſt accõpliſhed yͤ dayes of the ſyege: burne yͤ thyrde parte therof in the fyre in the myddeſt of yͤ cytie, & cut the other thyrde parte in peces wyth a *Jere.viii.d. knyfe. * As for yͤ thyrde parte yͤ remayneth, caſt it in the wynde and I wyll drawe out yͤ ſwerde after them.

Yet afterwarde, take a lytle of the ſame, and bynde it in thy cote lappe. Then take a curtely of it, and caſte in the myddeſte of the fyre: & burne it in the fyre. Out of the ſame fyre ſhall there goo a flamme, vpon yͤ whole B houſe of Iſrael. Moreouer, thus ſayth the Lorde God: This ſame is Jeruſalem. I ſet her in the myddeſt of the Heathen & nacyons that are rounde aboute her, but ſhe hath deſpyſed my iudgementes more then the Gẽtiles them ſelues, and brokẽ my commaundementes more then yͤ nacyons, that lye rõude aboute her: For they haue caſt out myne ordinaunces, and not walked in my lawes.

*Leu.xxviii.d Therfore, thus ſayeth the Lord God: * For ſomoch as ye haue bene more augmented in nombre of people then the Heathen, yͤ dwell rõude aboute you: and ye haue not walcked in my lawes, nether haue ye kepte myne ordinaunces, and ye haue not lyued ſo ryghtwyſlye as the Hethen that are rounde about you: Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: C I wyll alſo come vpon the, I my ſelfe I ſaye, for in the myddeſte of the wyll I ſyt in iudgemẽt, in the ſyght of the Heathen, & wyl handle the of ſuch a faſhyon, as I neuer dyd before, and as I neuer wyll do from that tyme forth, and that becauſe of all thyne abhominacyons. For in the, fathers * ſhalbe fayne *Deu.xxviij.c Threm.iiii.b. iiij.re.xvi.f to eate theyr awne ſonnes, and the ſonnes their awne fathers. Such a courte wyl I kepe in the, and the whole remnaũt of the wyll I ſcatre into all the wyndes.

Wherfore, as trulye as I lyue (ſayeth the Lord God) ſeyng thou haſt defyled my Sãctuary, with all maner of abhomynacions & wͭ all thy ſhamefull offences: For thys cauſe wyll I alſo deſtroye the. Myne eye ſhall not ouerſe the, nether wyll I ſpare the.

Thus I wyll perfourme my indignació, D & ſet my wrath agaynſt them, and eaſe my ſelfe. So that whẽ I haue fulfylled myne anger agaynſt them, they ſhall knowe that I am the Lorde, whych wyth a feruent gelouſy haue ſpoken it. Moreouer, I wyll make the waſte and abhorred, before all the Heathẽ that dwell about the, & in the ſyghte of all them, that go by the: ſo that whẽ I punyſh the in my wrath, in myne anger, & with yͤ plage of my whole diſpleaſure: thou ſhalt be a very abhomynacion, ſhame, a gaſpyng & wondrynge ſtocke, amonge the Heathẽ that lye about the. Euẽ I the Lorde haue ſpoken it, and it ſhall come to paſſe, when I ſhote amonge them the perlous dartes of honger, which ſhalbe but death: Yee, therfore ſhall I ſhute them, becauſe I wyll deſtroye you: *Eze.iiii.c. * I wyll encreaſe hũger, and mynyſh al the prouiſion of bread amonge you.

Plages & miſery wyll I ſende you, yee, & wylde beaſtes alſo to deſtroye you. Peſtilẽce and blouddſhedynge ſhall come vpõ you, & the ſwearde wyll I brynge ouer you. Euen I the Lorde, haue ſayde it.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ He ſheweth that yͤ people ſhalbe plaged for the ſynne of Idolatry. He propheceyeth the repentaunce of the remnaunt of the people, and their deliueraunce. The deſtruccyon of the frowarde is propheceyed.

A AND the worde of the Lord came vnto me, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of man turne thy face to the * mountaynes of Iſrael, *Eze.xxxvi.a that thou mayeſt propheceye vnto them, and ſaye: Heare the worde of the Lord God, O ye mountaynes of Iſrael: Thus hath the Lorde God ſpoken to the mountaynes, hylles, valleys and dales.

Beholde I, I my ſelfe I ſaye: wyll brynge a ſwearde ouer you, and deſtroye youre hye places: I wyll caſt downe youre aulters, and breake downe youre ymages. Youre ſlayne men wyll I laye before youre goddes, and the deed carcaſes of the chyldren of Iſrael wyll I caſte before theyr Idoles, youre bones wyll I deſtroye rounde aboute youre aulters, and dwellyng places.

B The cyties ſhalbe deſolate, yͤ hyll chapels layed waſte: youre aulters deſtroyed, ⁊ broken: youre goddes caſt downe, and taken awaye, your tẽpels layde euẽ with the groũde, youre awne woꝛkes cleane roted oute.

Youre ſlayne men ſhall lye amonge you, that ye maye lerne to knowe, howe that I am the Loꝛde. Thoſe yͭ be amõge you ⁊ haue eſcaped the ſwearde, wyl I leaue amõge the Gentyles, foꝛ I wyll ſcatre you amonge the nacyons. And they that eſcape of you, ſhall thynke vpon me amõge the Heathen, where they ſhalbe in captyuytye.

As foꝛ that whoꝛyſh and vnfaythful herte of theirs, wherwyth they runne a waye fro me. I wyll breake it: yee, ⁊ put oute thoſe eyes of theirs, that commytte foꝛnycacion with their Idols.

C Then ſhall they be aſhamed and dyſpleaſed with their ſelues, foꝛ the wyckedneſſes and abhominacyons, which they haue done: and ſhal learne to knowe, yͭ I am the Loꝛde howe that it is not in vayne, that I yͤ Loꝛde ſpake, to brynge ſuch myſery vpon them.

The Loꝛd ſayde moꝛeouer vnto me: Smyte thyne handes together, and ſtampe wyth thy fete, and ſaye: Wo woꝛth all the abhominacions and wyckedneſſes of the houſe of Iſrael, foꝛ becauſe of them, they ſhall peryſh wͭ the ſwearde, wyth honger and with peſtilẽce. ¶ The deſtruccyon of Idolatres, and the conuerſyon of the ryghtwes. They that ſhalbe ſaued are marked. They that are vnmarked are ſlayne. A complaynte of the Prophet for the deſtruccyon of the people.

A HE cryed alſo wyth a loude voyce in myne eares, ſayinge: Come, here ye rulers of the cytie, euerye man wyth hys weapened hande to the ſlaughter. ¶ Of the man that toke whote burnynge coles oute of the mydle of the wheles & of the Cherubyns, in tokē of the burnynge of Jeruſalem. A reherſall of the viſion of the wheles, of the beaſtes, and of the Cherubyns.

A AND as I loked, beholde, in the firmament that was aboue the Cherubyns there appeared the ſimilitude of a ſtole of Saphyr vpon them: * Then ſayde he *Eze.ix.a that ſat therin, to hym that had the lynē rayment vpon hym: Crepe in betwene the wheles that are vnder the Cherubyns, and take thyne hande full of hoate coles oute from betwene the Cherubyns, and caſt them ouer yͤ cytie. And he crepte in, that I myght ſe.

Now the Cherubyns ſtode vpō the ryght ſyde of the houſe, when the man wente in, & the cloude fylled the inner courte. * But the *ij.par.vij.a glorye of the Lorde remoued from the Cherubyns, and came vpon the threſholde of the houſe: ſo that the temple was full of cloudes, and the courte was full of the ſhyne of the Lordes glory. Yee, and the ſoūde of the Cherubyns wynges was hearde into the fore courte, lyke as it had bene the voyce of the almyghtye God, when he ſpeaketh. Nowe when he had bydden the man that was clothed in lynen, to go and take the hoate coales from the myddeſt of the wheles, whiche were vnder the Cherubyns: he wēte & ſtode beſyde the wheles. Thē the one Cherub reached forth hys hande from vnder the Cherubyns, vnto the fyre that was betwene the Cherubyns, and toke therof, and gaue it vnto hym that had on the lynen rayment in hys hande: which toke it, & went out. B And vnder the wynges of the Cherubyns, there appeared the lykeneſſe of a mans hāde: I ſawe alſo foure wheles beſyde the Cherubyns, ſo yͭ by euery Cherub there ſtode a whele. And yͤ wheles were (to loke vpon) after the faſhion of the precyous ſtone of Tharſys: yee (vnto the ſyght) they were all .iiij. of one faſhyon, as yf one whele had bene in another.

C When they wente forth, they wente all foure together, not turnynge aboute in theyr goinge. But where the fyrſt wente, thyther wente they after alſo, ſo that they turned not aboute in theyr goyng. Their whole bodyes, theyr backes, theyr handes & wynges, yee, and the wheles alſo, were all ful of eyes rounde aboute them all foure. And I hearde hym call the wheles. * Euery one of thē had *Eze.i.b foure faces: ſo that the one face was the face of a Cherub, the ſeconde of a man, the thyrde of a lyon, the fourth of an Aegle, & they were lyfted vp aboue. This is the beaſt, that I ſawe at the water of Cobar. Nowe whē the Cherubyns wente, the wheles wente wyth them, and when the Cherubyns ſhoke theyr wynges to lyft thē ſelues vpwarde, yͤ wheles remayned not behynde, but were wyth them alſo. Shortly, when they ſtode, theſe ſtode alſo. And when they were lyft vp, the wheles were lyft vp alſo with them, for the ſprete of lyfe was in the wheles. D

*Eze.xi.d xliij.a * Then the glory of the Lorde was lyfte vp from the thresholde of the temple, and remayned vpon the Cherubyns. And the Cherubyns flackered wyth their wynges, and lyfte them selues vp from the earth: so that I sawe when they wente, and the wheles with them. And they stode at the east syde of the porte that is in the house of the Lorde. So the glory of the Lorde was vpō them. This is the beast ỹ I sawe vnder the God of Israel, by the water of Chobar. And I perceaued, that it was the Cherubyns. Euery one had foure faces, & euery one foure wynges, and vnder their wynges, as it were mens handes. Now the fygure of their faces was, euen as I had sene them, by the water of Chobar, and so was the countenaunce of thē. Euery one in hys goynge wente straight forwarde.

¶ Of the [illegible] people of Israel. [illegible]

A Moreouer, the sprete of the Lorde lyfte me vp, and brought me vnto the East porte of the Lordes house. And beholde, there were .xxv. men vnder the dore amonge whom I sawe Iaazaniah the sonne of Azur, and Pheltiah the sonne of Banaiah, the rulers of the people. Then sayde the Lord vnto me: Thou sonne of man: these men ymagyne myschefe, and a wycked councell take they in thys cyte, sayinge: Tush, there is no destruccion at hande, let vs buylde houses: this Ierusalem is the caldron, and we be the flesh. Therfore shalt thou prophecye vnto them, yee, prophecye shalt thou vnto them, O sonne of mã. And wyth that fell the sprete of the Lorde vpon me, and sayde vnto me: Speake, thus sayeth the Lorde: On this maner haue ye spoken, O ye house of Israel, & I knowe the ymagynacyons of youre hertes. B Many one haue ye murthured in thys cyte, and fylled the stretes full of the slayne. Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: The slayne men that ye haue layed on the grounde in thys cyte, are the flesh, and this cyte is the caldron: But I wyll brynge you out of it. Ye haue feared the swearde, & I wyll brynge a swearde vpon you, sayeth the Lorde God. I wyll dryue you out of thys cyte and delyuer you into youre enemyes hande, and wyll punysh you. Ye shalbe slayne in all the borders of Israel, I wyll be auenged of you: to knowe, that I am the Lorde. This cyte shall not be youre caldron, nether shall ye be ỹ flesh therin: but in the borders of Israel wyll I punysh you, that ye maye knowe, that I am the Lorde: in whose commaundementes ye haue not walked, nor kepte hys lawes: but haue done after ỹ maners of the heathen, that lye rounde aboute you.

C Now when I preached, Pheltiah the sonne of Banaiah dyed. Then fell I downe vpon my face, & cryed wyth a loude voyce, saying: O Lorde God, wylt thou thē vtterly destroye all the remnaunt in Israel? And so the worde of the Lorde came to me on thys maner: Thou sonne of man thy brethren, thy kynsfolke, & the whole house of Iuda, which dwell at Ierusalem, saye: Withdrawe ye farre from the Lorde, for the lāde is geuē vs in possessyon. Therfore tell thē, thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God: I wyll sende you farre of amonge the Gentyles, and scatre you amonge the nacyons, and I wyll halowe you but a lytle, in the landes where ye shall come. Tell thē also, thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll gather you agayne out of the nacyons, and brynge you from the countrees where ye be scatred, and wyll geue you the lande of Israel agayne. And they shall comme thyther. And they shall take awaye all other Idols & all their abhomynacions from thence.

D ✚ And I wyll geue you one herte, and I wyl plante a newe sprete wythin your bowels. That stony herte wyl I take out of your body, and geue you ☞ a fleshy herte: that ye maye walke in my commaundementes, and kepe myne ordinaunces, and do them: ỹ ye maye be my people, & I youre God. But loke whose hertes are dysposed to folowe their abhomynacyons and wycked lyuynges: those mens dedes wyll I brynge vpon their awne heades, sayeth the Lorde God. After thys dyd the Cherubyns lyft vp their wynges, and the wheles wente wyth them, and the glorye of the Lorde was vpon them. ✚ So the glory of the Lorde wente vp frō the myddest of the cyte & stode vpon the mounte of the cyte towarde the East: ✚ But the wynde toke me vp, and in a vysyon which came by the sprete of God, it brought me agayne into Caldea amonge the presoners. Then the vysyon that I had sene vanyshed awaye fro me. So I spake vnto the presoners all the wordes of the Lorde, which he had shewed me.

A The worde of ỹ Lord came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of mã, ỹ dwellest in the myddest of a frowarde housholde: ✚ which haue eyes to se, & yet se not: eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not. For they are an obstinate housholde. Therfore O thou sonne of man, make thy gere ready to flye, and go forth by fayre daye lyght, that they maye se. Yee, euen in theyr ſyghte ſhalt thou go from thy place to an other place: yf paraduenture they wyll cōſydre, yͭ they be an diſobedient houſholde: Thy gere yͭ thou haſt made redy to flyt with all, ſhalt thou beare out by fayre daye lyght that they maye ſe: and thou thy ſelfe ſhalt go forth alſo at euē in their ſight, as a mā doth when he flytteth. Dygge thorowe the wall, that they maye ſe & beare thorowe it yͤ ſame thyng, that thou tokeſt vp in theyr ſight. In B their ſight ſhalt yͧ beare vpon thy ſhulders, & cary it forthe in the darcke. Hyde thy face yͭ thou ſe not yͤ earth, for I haue made the a ſhewtoken vnto the houſe of Iſrael. Nowe as the Lorde commaunded me, ſo I dyd: the geare yͭ I had made readie brought I out by daye. At euē I brake downe an hole thorow the wal, wyth my hande: and when it was darcke, I toke the gere vpon my ſhoulders, and bare them out in theyr ſyght.

C And in the mornynge, came the word of the Lorde vnto me, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of mā, yf Iſrael that frowarde houſholde aſke the, and ſaye: what doeſt thou there? Then tell thē: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Thys punyſhment toucheth the chefe rulers at Ieruſalem, and all the houſe of Iſrael, that dwell amonge them: Tell them: I am youre ſhewe token: lyke as I haue done, ſo ſhall it happen vnto you: Flyt ſhall ye alſo, and go into captiuitye. * The chefeſt that is amōge you, ſhall lade hys ſhulders in the darcke, &
D get hym awaye. He ſhall breake downe the wal, to carye ſtuffe ther thorowe: He ſhal couer his face, that he ſe not the grounde, wyth his eyes. * My lyne wyll I ſprede oute vpon hym, and catch him in my net, and cary hym to Babylon, in yͤ lāde of the Caldees: which he ſhall not ſe, and yet ſhall he dye there. As for all hys helpers, & all his Hoſtes, that be about hym. I wyll ſcatre them towarde all the wyndes, and drawe out a ſwearde after them. * So when I haue ſcatred them amōge the Heathen, and ſtrowed them in the landes they ſhall knowe, that I am the Lorde. But, I wyll leaue a lytle nōbre of them frō the ſwearde, hunger and peſtilence: to tell all theyr abhominacyons amonge the Heathen, where they come: yͭ they maye knowe, howe that I am the Lorde.

*Eze.xv.b. and.xxv.b.

E Moreouer, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me ſayenge: Thou ſonne of man wyth a fearfull tremblinge ſhalt yͧ eate thy bread, wyth carefulneſſe & ſorowe ſhalt thou drynke thy water. And vnto the people of the lāde, ſpeake thou on this maner: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God, to them that dwell in Ieruſalem, and to the lande of Iſrael: Ye ſhall eate youre bread wyth ſorowe, and dryncke youre water wyth heuyneſſe: Yee, the lande wyth the fulneſſe therof ſhalbe layde waſte, for the wyckedneſſe of them that dwell therin. And the cyties yͭ nowe be well occupyed, ſhall be voyde, and the lāde deſolate: that ye may knowe, howe that I am the Lorde.

Yet came the worde of the Lorde vnto me F agayne, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of man, what maner of byworde is that, whych ye vſe in yͤ lāde of Iſrael, ſayenge: Tuſh, * ſeynge that the dayes are ſo ſlacke in commynge, all the viſyons are of none effecte: Tell them therfore, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: I wyl make that by worde to ceaſſe, ſo that it ſhall nomore be commenly vſed in Iſrael.

*ii.Pe.iii.b.

But ſaye thys vnto them: the dayes are at hāde, that euery thynge whych hath bene G prophecyed, ſhalbe fulfylled. There ſhall no viſyō be in vayne, nether eny prophecye fayle amonge the chyldren of Iſrael: For it is I the Lorde, that ſpeake it: and whatſoeuer I yͤ Lorde ſpeaketh, it ſhal be perfourmed, and not be ſlacke in commynge.

Yee, euen in youre dayes (O ye frowarde houſholde) wyll I deuyſe ſome thynge, and brynge it to paſſe, ſayeth the Lord God. And yͤ worde of the Lorde came vnto me ſaying: Beholde, thou ſonne of man: The houſe of Iſraell ſayeth on thys maner: Tuſh, as for yͤ viſyon that he hath ſene, it wyll be manye a daye or it come to paſſe: It is farre of yet, the thynge that he prophecyeth. Therfore ſaye vnto them: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: All my wordes ſhall no more be ſlacke: Loke what I ſpeake, that ſame ſhall come to paſſe, ſayeth the Lorde.

¶ The worde of the Lord agaynſt falſe prophetes, which teach the people the counſels of theyr awne hertes.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto A me, ſayenge: Thou ſonne of man. vpon thy left hande.
F But thy yongeſt ſyſter that dwelleth on thy ryght hande, is Sodoma and her daughters.
Yet haſt thou not walked after theyr wayes, ner done after theyr abhominacions: but yͧ ſtodeſt a lytell ⁊ very ſmall tyme, and in all thy wayes yͧ haſt bene more corrupte then they. As truly as I lyue, ſayeth ẏ Lorde God: Sodoma thy ſyſter wͭ her daughters, hath not done ſo euell, as yͧ and thy daughters.
*Gene.xiii.c ⁊.xviii.c.⁊ xix.b.c. Beholde, *the ſynnes of thy ſyſter Sodoma were theſe: Pryde, fulneſſe of meate, aboundaunce ⁊ Idilneſſe: theſe thynges had ſhe ⁊ hyr daughters. Beſides ẏ they reached not theyr hande to the poore and nedy, but were proude, and dyd abhomynable thynges

*Jere.iii.c. of thy ſynnes, *yee thou haſt exceaded them in wickedneſſe: In ſo moch that in comparyſon of all ẏ abhominacyōs which yͧ haſt done yͧ haſt made thy ſyſters good wemen. Therfore thou (whych dydeſt condēpne thy ſyſter) beare thyne awne ſhame, for thyne awne offences, that yͧ haſt committed, more abhominable then they dyd, whych in dead are more ryghteous, then yͧ art, be thou (I ſaye) aſhamed, and beare thy ſhamfull rebuke, ſeynge ẏ thou haſt proued thy ſyſters in comparyſon of the ryghtwyſe.

G As for theyr captiuite, namely ẏ captiuite of Sodoma, ⁊ her daughters: ẏ captiuite of Samaria ⁊ her daughters: I will bringe thē agayne, ſo wyll I alſo bringe agayne thy captyuite amonge them: yͭ yͧ mayeſt take thyne awne confuſion vpon ẏ, ⁊ be aſhamed of all yͭ thou haſt done, ⁊ to conforte them. Thus thy ſyſters (namely) Sodoma ⁊ her daughters: Samaria and her daughters, wͭ thy ſelfe, ⁊ thy daughters, ſhalbe brought agayne to youre olde eſtate. When yͧ waſt in thy pryde, ⁊ before thy wickedneſſe came to lyght: thou woldeſt not heare ſpeake of thy ſyſter Sodoma, vntyll the tyme yͭ the Syrians wyth all lye rounde aboute thē, brought the to ſhame ⁊ confuſyon: yͭ yͧ myghteſt beare thyne awne fylthynes ⁊ abhominacyon, ſayeth ẏ Lorde.

For thus ſayeth the Lorde God: I ſhulde (by right) deale wyth the, as thou haſt done.
Thou haſt deſpyſed the oth, and broken the couenaunte. Neuertheleſſe, I wyll remēbre ẏ couenaūt that I made wyth the in thy youth in ſo moch that it ſhalbe an euerlaſtynge couenaunt: ſo that yͧ alſo remēbre thy wayes, ⁊ be aſhamed of them: then ſhalt thou receaue of me thy elder ⁊ yonger ſyſters, whō I wyll make thy daughters, and that beſyde thy couenaūt.
*Jere.xxxi.e. Ebr.viii.b. *And ſo wyll I renue my couenaunt with the, that thou mayeſt knowe that I am the Lorde: that thou mayeſt thyncke vpon it, be aſhamed, and excuſe thyne awne confuſiō nomore: when I haue forgeuen the, all that thou haſt done, ſayeth the Lorde God.

¶ The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ The parable of the two Aegles.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me, A ſayenge: Thou ſonne of mā: put forth *a darcke ſpeakynge and a parable, *Eze.xiiii.a vnto ẏ houſe of Iſrael, ⁊ ſaye: Thus ſayeth ẏ Lorde God: There came a great *Aegle wͭ *Dani.vii.a greate wynges, yee, wyth a myghtye longe bodye, and full of fethers of diuerſe coloures, vpon the mount of Libanus, ⁊ toke the hyeſt braunch frō a Cedre tree, ⁊ brake of the toppe of his twygge, ⁊ caryed it into ẏ lande of Canaā, ⁊ ſet it in a cytie of marchaūtes. He toke alſo of the ſeade of the lande, ⁊ planted it in a frutefull grounde, he brought it vnto greate waters, and ſet it as a wyllowe tree therby.
Then dyd it growe, and was a greate vyne ſtocke. but low: by the grounde whoſe braūches turned in to it ſelfe, ⁊ the rotes of it, were faſtened vnder it, thus there came of it a vyne, and it brought forth bloſſomes, and ſpred out braūches. But there was another Aegle, B a great one, which had greate wynges ⁊ many fethers: ⁊ beholde, the rotes of thys vyne had an hunger after hym, and ſpred out hys braunches towarde hym, yͭ he myght water her with the orcherd that he had planted. Neuertheles, it was planted vpon a good groūd beſyde greate waters: ſo yͭ (by reaſon) it ſhulde haue brought out braunches ⁊ frute, ⁊ haue bene a goodly vyne. Speake yͧ therfore, C thus ſayeth ẏ Lorde God: Shall thys vyne proſpere? ſhall not hys rotes be pluckte oute, hys frute be broken of, hys grene braunches wither ⁊ fade awaye? ye wythout ether ſtrōge arme or many people, ſhall it be plucked vp by ẏ rotes. Beholde, it was planted: ſhall it proſpere therfore? Shall it not be dryed vp ⁊ withered, yee, euen in the ſhutinge out of his bloſſomes, as ſoone as ẏ eaſt wide bloweth?

Moreouer, ẏ worde of the Lord came vnto me ſaynge: Speake to ẏ frowarde houſholde: D knowe ye not, what theſe thynges do ſignifye?
Tell thē: Beholde, *ẏ kynge of Babylon *iiii.Regum xxiiii.c. came to Ieruſalē, ⁊ toke the kynge and his prynces, and ledde them to Babylon.

He toke of the kynges ſede, and made a couenaunt wyth hym, and toke an othe of hym: The prynces of the lande toke he wyth hym alſo, that the lande myght be holden in ſubieccyon, and not to rebelle, but kepe the couenaunt, and fulfyll it. But he fell from him, and ſent his Embaſſytoures into Egipt that he might haue horſes and moche people.
Shulde that proſpere? Shulde he be kepte ſafe, that doth ſoch thynges? Or ſhulde he eſcape, that breaketh hys couenaunt? As E truly as I lyue ſayeth the Lorde God: He ſhall dye at Babylon, in the place where the kynge dwelleth, ẏ made hym kynge: whoſe othe he

othe he hath deſpyſed, and whoſe couenaunt he hath broken. Nether ſhall Pharao wyth his greate hoſt & multitude of people, mayntayne him in the warre: when they caſt vp diches, and ſet vp bulworkes to deſtroye moch people: For ſeynge he hath deſpyſed the othe, and broken the couenaunt (where as he yet gaue hys hande ther vpon) and done all theſe thynges, he ſhall not eſcape.

*Eze.xii.b. and.xxxii.a.

Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God, As truly as I lyue, I wyll brynge myne othe ẏ he hath deſpyſed, and my couenaunt that he hath broken, vpon hys awne head. *I wyll caſt my net aboute hym, and catch him in my yarne. To Babylon wyll I carie hym, there wyll I puniſhe him, because of the greate offence that he made me. As for thoſe that fle from hym out of the hooſt, they ſhalbe ſlayne wyth the ſwearde. The reſydue ſhalbe ſcatred to warde all the wyndes: and ye ſhall knowe, that I the Lorde haue ſpoken it.

G

Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: I wyll alſo take a braunche from an hye Cedre tree, and will ſet it, & take ẏ vppermoſt twygge, ẏ yet is but tendre, and plante it vpon an hye hyll: Namely, vpon the hye hyll of Iſrael wyll I plante it: ẏ it maye brynge forth twygges, & geue frute, and be a greate Cedre tree: ſo that all maner of foules maye bylde in it, & make their neſtes vnder ẏ ſhadow of his brãuches.

And al the trees of the felde ſhall knowe that I the Lorde haue brought downe ẏ hye tree, and ſet the lowe tree vp: ẏ I haue dryed vp the grene tree, and made the drye tree to floriſhe: Euen I the Lorde that ſpake it, haue alſo brought it to paſſe.

The.xix. Chapter.

The captyuyte of Ioahaz & of Iehoachin is ſygnifyed by the lyons whelpes, & by the lyon. He ſetteth out ẏ proſperitye of the cytie of Ieruſalem that is paſt, & the myſerye ther of that is preſent.

A BUt thou ſonne of man mourne thou for the prynces of Iſraell, and ſaye. Wherfore laye thy mother that lyoneſſe amõge the lyons, and noryſhed her yonge ones amonge the lyons whelpes? One of her whelpes ſhe brought vp, and it became a lyon, it learned to ſpoyle, and to deuoure folke. The Heathen herde of him, and toke hym in theyr nettes, and brought hym in chaynes vnto the lande of Egypte.

B Nowe when the damme ſawe, that all her hope and comforte was awaye, ſhe toke another of her whelpes, and made a lyon of hym: which wente amõge the lyons, and became a fearce lyon: learned to ſpoyle and to deuoure folcke: he deſtroyed theyr palaces, and made their cities waſte. In ſo moch that the whole lande & euery thinge therin, were vtterly deſolate, thorowe ẏ very voyce of his roaringe.

Then came the Heathen together on euery ſyde oute of all countrees agaynſt hym, layed theyr nettes for hym, and toke hym in *iiii. Re.xxv a. Iere.xxxix.a. and.lii.a. their pytte. *So they boũde hym with chaynes, and brought hym to the kyng of Babylon: which put hym in preſon, that hys voyce ſhulde nomore be herde vpon the mountaynes of Iſraell. As for thy mother, ſhe is lyke a vyne in thy bloude, planted by the water ſyde: her frutes and braũches are growẽ out of many waters, her ſtalkes were ſo ſtronge, that mẽ myght haue made ſtaues therof for officers: ſhe grewe ſo hye in her ſtalkes.

So whan men ſawe that ſhe exceaded the heygth & multitude of her braũches, ſhe was roted out in dyſpleaſure, and caſt downe to ẏ groũde. The Eaſt wynde dryed vp her frute, her ſtronge ſtalkes were brokẽ of, wythered and brent in the fyre. But now ſhe is planted in the wylderneſſe, in a drye & thurſtye grounde. And there is a fyre gone out of her ſtalckes, whych hath brent vp her braũches and her frute: ſo that ſhe hath no mo ſtronge ſtalckes, to be ſtaues for offycers. Thys is a pyteous and miſerable thinge.

The.xx. Chapter.

The Lorde denyeth that he wyll anſwere them when they praye, for the offence of vnkyndenes whych he here obiecteth. He promyſeth that hys people ſhall returne from captyuytye. By the wood that ſhulde be brent is ſygnyfyed the burnynge of Ieruſalem.

IN the.vii. yeare the.x. daye of the.v moneth, *it happened, ẏ certayne of the elders of Iſraell came vnto me, for to aſke counſell at the Lorde — A *Eze.xiiii.a.

Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: *In the daye when I choſe Iſraell, and lyft vp myne hande vpon the ſede of the houſe of Iacob, & ſhewed my ſelfe vnto them in the lande of Egypte: Yee when I lyfte vp myne hande ouer them, and ſayde: I am the Lorde youre God, euen in the daye that I lyft vp myne hande ouer them, to bringe them out of the lande of Egypte, into a lande that I had prouided for thẽ, which floweth wyth mylcke & hony, and is a pleaſunt lande amonge all other. But they rebelled agaynſt me, and wolde not folowe me: to caſt awaye euery man the abhomynacyons of hys eyes, and to forſake the Idoles of Egypte. Then I made me to poure myne indignacyon ouer them, & to ſatiſfye my wrath vpon them: yee euen in the myddeſt of ẏ lande of Egypte. But I wolde not do it, for my names ſake: that it ſhulde not be vnhalowed before ẏ Heathen, amonge whom they dwelt, & amonge whõ I ſhewed my ſelfe vnto them, ẏ I wolde brynge them out of the lande of Egypt. Nowe whẽ I had caryed them out of the lande of Egypte, and brought them into the wylderneſſe: I gaue them my commaundementes, & ſhewed them my lawes. * whych whoſo kepeth ſhall lyue in them: I gaue them alſo my holy dayes, to be a token betwyxte me & them, & therby to knowe, that I am the Lorde, whych halowe them. And yet the houſe of Iſraell rebelled agaynſt me in ỹ wylderneſſe, they wolde not walcke in my commaundementes, they haue caſt awaye my lawes (whych whoſo kepeth ſhall lyue in them) and my Sabboth dayes haue they greatly vnhalowed.

¶ The.xxi.Chapter.

¶ He threateneth the ſwerde, ẏ is to ſaye, deſtruccyon to the cytie of Ieruſalem. He ſheweth the fall of kynge zedekiah. He is commãded to prophecy the deſtruccyon of the chyldren of Ammon. After ẏ ſlaughter of other, at the laſt the Lord threateneth deeth vnto Nabuchodonoſor hym ſelfe.

A THe worde of ẏ Lorde came to me, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of man, ſet thy face towarde Ieruſalem, ſpeake agaynſt the Sanctuary, and prophecie agaynſt the lande of Iſrael, ſaye to the lande of Iſrael. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: Beholde, I wyll vpon the, & wyll drawe my ſwearde out of the ſheath, and rote out of the both the ryghtuous & the wycked Seynge then ẏ I wyll rote out of ẏ both the rightuous & wicked, therfore ſhal my ſwearde go out of his ſheath agaynſt all fleſh from the north to the ſouth: ẏ all fleſh maye knowe howe ẏ I the Lorde haue drawẽ my ſwearde out of ẏ ſheath: & it ſhall not be put in againe.

B Mourne therfore (O thou ſonne of man) ẏ thy loynes crack wythall, ye mourne bytterly for thẽ i theyr preſẽce. And yf they ſaye, wherfore mourneſt thou? Then tell thẽ: for the tidynges that commeth, at the whych all hertes ſhall melt, all handes ſhalbe letten downe, all ſtomackes ſhal faynte, and all knees ſhall waxe feble. Beholde, it cõmeth & ſhalbe fulfylled, ſayeth the Lorde God.

Agayne, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſayinge: Thou ſonne of man, prophecye, and ſpeake. Thus ſayeth the Lord God: ſpeake. The ſwearde, the ſwearde is ſharpened and well ſcoured. Sharpened is it for the ſlaughter, & ſcoured that it maye be bryght, Shal we thẽ make myrth? Agaynſt ẏ * tribe of my ſonne it is gone forthe deſtroyinge all trees. He hath put hys ſwearde to the dyghtinge, ẏ good holde maye be taken of it. This ſwearde is ſharpened & dyght, that it maye be geuen vnto the hande of the manſlayer.

Crye (O thou ſonne of man, & howle, for this ſwearde ſhall ſmyte my people, & all the rulers in Iſraell) my people ſhalbe feared thorowe thys ſwearde. Smite therfore thou vpõ thy thyghe, for it is gone forthe to make a tryall. And what a tryall ſhall this be, whẽ euẽ my ſcepter ſhall be reproued? Yt ſhall not be ſayeth the Lorde God. Prophecy ẏ ſonne D of man, & ſmyte thyne hãdes together: make ẏ ſwearde two edged, yee make it thre edged, that manſlayers ſwearde, that ſwearde of the greate ſlaughter, whych ſhall ſmyte thẽ, euen in theyr preuychambres: to make them abaſhed & faynt at ẏ hertes, and in all gates to make ſome of them fall. I haue geuen that fearfull ſwerde. O howe bryght and ſharpe is it, howe well dight and mete for ẏ ſlaughter. Get the ſome place alone, ether vpon the ryght hande or on the lefte, whyther ſo euer thy face turneth. I wyll ſmyte my handes together alſo & ſatyſfie my wrathfull indignacyon: Euen I the Lorde haue ſayde it.

The worde of the Lorde came yet vnto me agayne ſayinge: Thou ſonne of man, make the two ſtretes, ẏ the ſwearde of the kynge of Babylon maye come. E Both theſe ſtretes ſhall go out of one kynges lande. And choſe ẏ a place, at the heade of the ſtrete choſe out a corner. Make ẏ a ſtrete, ẏ the ſwearde maye come towarde Rabath of the Ammonytes, & to the ſtronge cytie of Ieruſalẽ. For the kynge of Babylon ſhall ſtande in the turnynge of the waye, at the head of the two ſtretes: * to aſke counſell at the ſotheſayers, caſtinge the lottes wᵗ hys arowes, to aſke counſell at the Idole, and to loke in the lyuer. But the ſotheſayinge ſhall poynte to ẏ ryght ſyde vpon Ieruſalem, that he maye ſet men of warre, to ſmyte it wᵗ a greate noyſe, to crye out Alarũ, to ſet battell rammes agaynſt the gates, to graue vp diches, and to make bulworckes.

And eſteame thẽ as thoſe to whome they haue often ſworne, Not withſtandinge he ſhall remembre theyr wyckedneſſe, ſo that by ryght they muſt be taken and wonne. Therfore ſayeth the Lord God. For ſo moch as ye youre ſelues ſhewe your offence, and haue opened youre wickedneſſe, ſo that in all youre workes men maye F ſe your ſynnes: therfore are ye come to remẽbraũce, and ye ſhalbe taken by violence.

¶The.xxiij.Chapter.

¶Of the fornycacyon, that is to ſaye, of the Idolatrye of Samaria and Jeruſalem, vnder the names of Oholath & Oholibah. In comparyſon of Samaria he ſheweth yͭ yͤ fornicacion of Jeruſalem is yͤ filthyer. The deſtruccyon of Jeruſalem is prophecied. The aduoutrye of both the whores is founde oute. Theyr deſtruccyon.

A The worde of the Lord came vnto me ſayeng: Thou ſōne of mā, ther were two wemen, yͭ had one mother. Theſe (whē they were yōge) beganne to playe the harlottes * in Egypt. There were theyr breſtes broſed, and the pappes of theyr maydenhead dyd the Egyptiaus deſtroye. The eldeſt of them was called Oholah & her yongeſt ſyſter Oholibah: Theſe two were my wyues, & bare ſonnes & daughters. Theyr names were Samaria, & yͭ was Oholah: & Jeruſalē, yͭ was Oholibah. As for Oholah ſhe begāne to go a whoring, whē I had takē her to me: * She was ſet on fyre vpon her louers yͤ Aſſiriās as her neyghbours which had to do wͭ her: euen the princes & lordes yͭ were deckte ī coſtly araye fayre yonge men, luſty ryders of horſes.

* iiii.re.xv.d

B Thus thorow her whoredome, ſhe cleued vnto all the yonge men of Aſſiria. Yee, ſhe was mad vpon thē, & defyled her ſelfe wͭ all theyr Idols. Nether ceaſſed ſhe frō yͤ fornicacion, that ſhe vſed wͭ the Egipcyans: for in her youth they laye wͭ her, they broſed yͤ breſtes of her maydēhead, & poured theyr whoredome vpō her. Wherfore, * I delyuered her into the handes of her louers, euen the Aſſirians, whom ſhe ſo loued. Theſe diſcouered her ſhame, toke her ſonnes & daughters, and ſlewe her wͭ the ſwearde: An euell name gat ſhe of all people, and they puniſhed her.

*iiii.re.xvii.c

* Her ſiſter Oholibah ſawe this, and deſtroyed her ſelfe with inordinate loue, more then ſhe, and exceded her ſiſter in whoredome * ſhe loued the Aſſirians (which alſo laye wͭ her) namely, yͤ prīces & great lordes, yͭ were clothed withal maner of gorgious apparell all luſty horſmen & fayre yonge perſonnes.

*Jere.iii.b.

Eze.xxi.c.

C Then I ſawe, that they both were defyled a lyke. But ſhe increaſed ſtyl in whoredome, for when ſhe ſawe men paynted vpō the wall, yͤ ymages of the Chaldees ſet forth wͭ freſh coulours, wͭ fayre gyrdles about them & goodly bonettes vpō theyr heades, loking all lyke prynces (after the maner of the Babyloniās and Chaldees in theyr awne lande where they be borne) immediatly, as ſoone as ſhe ſawe thē, ſhe brent in loue vpon them, and ſent meſſaungers for them into yͤ lande of the Chaldees.

Nowe when the Babylonians came to her, they laye with her and defyled her with theyr whoredome, and ſo was ſhe polluted with them. And when her luſt was abated from them, * her whoredome and ſhame was diſcouered and ſene: then my herte forſoke her, lyke as my herte was gone from her ſyſter alſo. Neuertheleſſe, ſhe vſed her whoredome euer the longer the more, and remembred the dayes of her youth, wherin ſhe had played the harlot in the lande of Egipt: * ſhe brent in luſt vpon them, whoſe fleſhe was lyke the fleſh of Aſſes, and theyr ſede lyke yͤ ſede of horſes. Thus thou haſt renued the fylthyneſſe of thy youth, when thy louers broſed thy pappes, and marred thy breſtes in Egypte.

*Eze.xvi.c.

D Therfore (O Oholibah) thus ſaieth the Lord God. I will rayſe vp thy louers (with whom thou haſt ſatiſfyed thy luſt) agaynſt the, and gather them together rōude aboute the: namely the Babylonyans, and all the Chaldees, rulers, mightye men & tyrauntes, wͭ all the Aſſirians: all yonge & fayre louers: prynces and lordes, knyghtes and gentelmen, whiche be all good horſmē. Theſe ſhall come vpon the with horſes, charrettes, and a greate multytude of people: which ſhalbe harneſſed aboute the on euery ſyde, wͭ breſtplates, ſhyldes & helmettes. I wyll punyſhe the before them, yee, they them ſelues ſhall punyſh the, accordyng to theyr awne iudgement. I wyll put my gelouſy vpon the, ſo that they ſhall deale cruelly with the. They ſhall cut of thy noſe and thyne eares, and the remnaunt ſhall fall thorow the ſwearde. They ſhall cary awaye thy ſonnes and daughters, and the reſydue ſhalbe brente in the fyre. They ſhall ſtryppe the oute of thy clothes, & cary thy coſtly Jewels awaye wyth them.

E Thus wyll I make an ende of thy fylthyneſſe and whoredome, whyche thou haſte brought oute of the lande of Egypte: ſo that thou ſhalt turne thyne eyes nomore after thē and caſte thy mynde nomore vpon Egypte. For thus ſayeth the Lorde, beholde I wyll delyuer the into the handes of them, whome thou hateſt, yee, euen into the handes of them, wyth whome thou haſt fulfylled thy luſt, whyche ſhall deale cruelly wyth the.

All thy laboure ſhall they take wyth them, and leaue the naked and bare, and thus the ſhame of thy fylthye whoredome ſhall come to lyght. All theſe thynges ſhall happen vnto the, becauſe of thy whoredome whiche thou haſt vſed amonge the Gentyls with whoſe Idols thou haſt defyled thy ſelf. Thou haſte walked in the waye of thy ſiſter therfore wyll I geue the her cuppe in thy hande.

Thus ſayeth the Lord God: Thou ſhalt ſuppe it out euen to the dregges, yee, thou ſhalt eat vp the broken peces of it, & ſo teare thyne awne breſtes: For euen I haue ſpokē it ſayeth the Lorde God.

Therfore, thus ſayeth yͤ Lorde God: For F ſomoch as thou haſt forgotten me, and caſte ſayde moreouer vnto me: Thou ſonne of mā wilt yͧ not reproue Oholah and Oholibah?

Shewe them theyr abhominacions: namely that they haue broken theyr wedlocke, and ſtayned theyr handes wͭ bloude: yee, euen wͭ theyr ydols haue they committed aduoutry *iiii.re.xxi.a Eze.xvi.c *and offred them by the fyre their awne children (to be deuoured) whom they had borne vnto me. Yee, & thys haue they done vnto me alſo: they haue defyled my Sanctuary in that ſame daye, & haue vnhalowed my Sabboth.
For when they had ſlayne their childrē for theyr Idols, they came the ſame daye into my Sanctuary to defyle it.

Lo, thys haue they done in my houſe: Beſyde

G Then was there great chere with her to many men came, yet were ther alſo brought men of Saba frome the wyldernesse: whiche gaue thē bracelettes vpon theyr handes, and ſet glorious crownes vpon theyr heades: & I ſayde vnto her: that ſeinge ſhe was ſtrykē in age in her whordōmes: now ſhall her fornications come to an ende wͭ her. And they wente into her as vnto a comen harlot. Euē ſo wēt they, (I ſay) to Oholah & Oholibah thoſe fylthy wemen. O all ye that loue vertue & ryghteouſnes, iudge thē, puniſhe them:

*Leui.xx.b. Eze.xvi.d. *as aduoutrers & murtherers oughte to be iudged & puniſhed. For they are breakers of Wherfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God I wil bringe a greate multitude of people vpō thē, & make thē be ſcatred and ſpoyled: theſe ſhall ſtone thē, & gore thē wͭ their ſweardes: They ſhall ſlaye theyr ſonnes & daughters, & burn vp theyr houſes with fyre.

Thus wyll I deſtroye all ſoch fylthynes out of the land: that al wemen maye learne, not to do after your vnclennes.

And ſo they ſhall laye your fylthynes vpō

A The worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſayeng: Thou ſonne of mā, ſet thy face agaynſt the * Ammonytes, prophecye vpon them, and ſaye vnto the Ammonytes: heare the worde of the Lorde God. Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: For ſo moche as thou ſpeakeſt ouer my ſanctuary. A, ha, I trowe it be nowe ſuſpended: and ouer the lande of Iſraell, I trowe it be nowe deſolat, yee, and ouer the houſe of Iuda, I trowe they be now led awaye preſonners: Behold, I will delyuer the to the people of the eaſt, yͭ they maye haue yͤ in poſſeſſion: theſe ſhall ſet theyr caſtels and houſes in the. They ſhall eate thy frute, & drincke vp thy mylke: As for Rabath, I will make of it a ſtal for camels, and of Ammon a ſhepefolde: and ye ſhall knowe that I am the Lorde.

* Eze.xxi.d. Iere.xlix.a.

For thus ſayeth yͤ Lord God: In ſo moche as thou haſt clapped with thyne handes, & B ſtāped with thy fete, yee, reioyſed in thyne herte ouer the lande of Iſrael with deſpyte: beholde: I will ſtretch out myne hande ouer the alſo, and delyuer the, to be ſpoyled of the Heathen, and rote the out from amonge the people, and cauſe the to be deſtroyed oute of all landes, yee, I wyll make the to be layed waſte, that thou mayeſt knowe, that I am the Lorde.

Thus ſayeth the Lord God: For ſo moch as * Moab & Seir do ſaye: As for the houſe of Iuda, it is but lyke as all other Gentyles be: Therfore beholde, I wyl open the ſyde of Moab, & take awaye theyr ſtrēgth, their cyties & chefe coaſtes of their lande, which are yͤ pleaſures of yͤ coūtre. As namely. Bethieſimoth, Baalmeon and Cariathaim: theſe will I open vnto thē of the eaſt, yͭ they maye fall vpō yͤ Ammonites: & will geue them in poſſeſſion: ſo yͭ the Ammonites ſhall nomore be had in remembraunce amonge yͤ Heathen C Euen thus wyll I punyſh Moab alſo, that they maye know, how that I am the Lord.

* Eſa.xv.xvi and.xlviij.a.g Sopho.ij.c.

Moreouer, thus ſayeth yͤ Lord God: Becauſe that * Edom hath auenged and eaſed hym ſelfe vpon the houſe of Iuda, and hath done great offēce & auēged hym ſelfe vpō thē: therfore, thus ſayeth the Lord: I will reache out myne hande vpon Edom, & take awaye man & beaſt out of it. From Theman vnto Dedā wyll I make it deſolate, they ſhall be ſlayne wᵗ the ſwerde. * Thorowe my people of Iſrael wyll I auēge me agayne vpō Edō they ſhall hādle him, according to my wrath and indignacion, ſo that they ſhall know my vengeaunce, ſayeth the Lorde God.

* Eſ.xxxiiii.a Iere.xlix.b. Eze.xxii.k & xxxv.a. pſa.cxxxvij.b Gene.xxv.d.

* ii.Mac.v.a

D Thus ſayeth the Lord God: For ſo moch as the * Philiſtines haue done thys: namely taken vengeaunce with deſpitefull ſtomackes, and of an olde euell will ſet them ſelues to deſtroye: Therfore, thus ſayeth yͤ Lorde God: Behold, I will ſtretch out myne hāde ouer yͤ Philiſtines, & deſtroye the deſtroyer, and cauſe all the remnaunt of the ſee coaſt, to peryſh. A great vengeaūce wyll I take vpō them, and punyſh them cruelly: yͭ they maye know, how that I am the Lord, which haue auenged me of them.

¶ The.xxvj. Chapter.

¶ He prophecyeth that Tyrus ſhalbe ouer thorowē becauſe it reioyced at the deſtruccyon of Ieruſalem. The wonderyng and aſtoniſhement of the marchaūtes, for the deſolacyon of Tyrus.

IT happened, that in the eleuenth A yeare, the fyrſte daye of yͤ moneth the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſayenge: Thou ſonne of man,

* Eſa.xxiii.a Iere.xlvii.b. Eze.xxvii.b. and.xxviii.

*becauſe that Tyre hath ſpokẽ vpon Ieruſalem: A, ha, now I trowe the portes of the people be broken, and ſhe turned vnto me, for now yͭ ſhe is deſtroyed I ſhall be fylled. Yee, therfore, ſayeth yͤ Lorde God: Beholde O Tyre, I wyll vpõ yͤ, I wil bringe a great multitude of people agaynſt yͤ lyke as when the ſee aryſeth with hys waues: Theſe ſhall breake the walles of Tyre, and caſt downe her towres: I will ſcrape the grounde from her, and make her a bare ſtone: yee, as the dryenge place, where the fyſhers hange vp theyr nettes by yͤ ſee ſyde. Euẽ I haue ſpokẽ it, ſayeth the Lorde God. The Gẽtyls ſhall ſpoyle her: her daughters vpon yͤ felde ſhall peryſh wͭ the ſwearde, that they maye know how that I am the Lorde.

B For thus ſayeth the Lord God: Behold, I will bring hyther Nabuchonoſor (whiche is the kynge of Babylon, and a kynge of kynges) from yͤ North vpõ Tyre: wͭ horſes, charettes, horſmen, and with a greate multitude of people. Thy daughters that are in the lande, ſhal he ſlaye with the ſweard: but agaynſte the, he ſhall make bulworckes and graue vp dyches aboute the, and lyft vp his ſhylde agaynſt the. Hys ſlynges and batellrammes ſhall he prepare for thy walles, and with his weapẽs breake downe thy towres. The duſt of hys horſes ſhall couer the, they ſhalbe ſo many: thy walles ſhall ſhake at yͤ noyſe of the horſmen, charettes and wheles when he commeth to thy portes, as men do into an open cytie. With yͤ hoffes of his horſe fete, ſhall he treade downe all thy ſtretes.

He ſhal ſlaye the people with the ſweard, C and breake downe the pylers of thy ſtrẽgth: They ſhal waſte awaye thy ryches, & ſpoyle thy marchaundyſe. Thy walles ſhall they breake downe, & deſtroye thy houſes of pleaſure. Thy ſtones, thy tymbre and foũdaciõs ſhall they caſt in the water.

* Iere.vii.b.

* Thus will I bring yͤ melody of thy ſonges, and the voyce of thy mynſtrelſy to an ende, ſo that they ſhall nomore be herde. I wyll make a bare ſtone of the, yee, a dryinge place for nettes, & yͧ ſhalt neuer be buylded agayne: For euen I the Lord haue ſpokẽ it, ſayeth the Lorde God: thus hath the Lorde God ſpoken concernynge Tyre. The Iles ſhall be moued at the noyſe of thy fall, & at the crye of the ſlayne, yͭ ſhall be murthered in the. All kynges of the ſee ſhall come downe from theyr ſeates regall: they ſhal laye a way theyr roabes, and put of their coſtly clothĩg. Yee, with tremblynge ſhall they be clothed, D they ſhall ſyt vpon the grounde: they ſhalbe afrayed at thy ſoden fall, and be abaſſhed at the.

* Treno i.a. Apo.xviii.c.

They ſhall mourne for the, and ſaye vnto the. * O thou noble cytie, that haſt bene ſo greatly occupyed of olde, thou that haſte bene the ſtrongeſt vpon the ſee wyth thyne inhabitours, of whom all men ſtode in feare. How arte thou nowe ſo vtterly deſtroyed? Now at yͤ tyme of thy fal the inhabitours of the Iles, yee, and the Iles them ſelues, ſhall ſtande in feare at thy ende. For thus ſayeth the Lorde God: when I make the a deſolate cytie (as other cyties be, that no man dwell in) and when I bringe the depe vpon yͤ that greate waters maye couer the. Then will I caſt the downe vnto them, that deſcende into the pitte: vnto a people that hath bene longe deed, and ſet the in a lande that is beneth, lyke the olde wildernes, with them whiche go downe to theyr graues, ſo that no man ſhall dwell more in the. And I will make the to be nomore in honoure, in the lande of the lyuynge. I will make an ende of the, and thou ſhalt be gone. Though thou be ſoughte for, yet ſhalte thou not be founde for euermore, ſayeth the Lorde God.

The.xxvij.Chapter.

The prophete is moued to bewayle the deſolacyon of Tyrus. He ſetteth out the peaple of Tyrus for the hauntynge of marchauntes therto.

* Eze.xxi.a. xxviii.

A The worde of the Lord came vnto me ſayeng: O yͧ ſonne of mã, make a lamẽtable cõplainte vpõ * Tyre & ſaye vpõ Tyre, thou which art a porte of yͤ ſee, yͭ occupieth wͭ moche people, & many Iles: thus ſpeaketh yͤ Lorde God: O Tyre, yͧ haſt ſayd: what, I am a noble cytye thy borders are in the middeſt of the ſee, and thy buylders haue made yͤ maruelous goodly. All thy tables haue they made of cypres trees of yͤ mount Sanyr. Frõ Libanus haue they taken Cedre trees, to make the maſtes: and the Okes of Baſan to make yͤ rowers.

Thy boordes haue they made of yuery, B & of coſtely wood out of the Ile of Cethim. Thy ſayle was of dyuers colours, ſmall nedle worke out of the lande of Egypt, to hãge vpon thy maſt: & thy hãginges of yelow ſylke purple, out of the Iles of Eliſah. They of Sydon & Arnad were thy marynERS, and yͤ wyſeſt in Tyre were thy ſhypmaſters. The eldeſt and wyſeſt at ☞ Gebal were they, yͭ mended & ſtopped thy ſhyppes. All ſhyppes of the ſee with theyr ſhypmẽ occupyed theyr marchaundies in yͤ. The Perſes, Lydians & Phutens were in thyne hoſte, & helped the to fyghte: theſe hanged vp theyr ſhyldes & helmettes with the, theſe ſet forth thy bewty.

They of Arnad were wyth thyne hooſte C rounde aboute thy walles, & yͤ Pigmenians were thy watchmen vpon thy towres, theſe hanged vp theyr quiuers rounde about thy walles, and made the maruelous goodly. Tharſis occupyed wyth the in all maner of wares, in ſyluer, yron, tynne and lead, and made thy market greate. Iauan, Tubal and Meſech were thy marchauntes, whiche brought the men, and ornamentes of metall for thy occupiēg. They of the houſe of Thogarma brought vnto the at the tyme of thy marte, horſe, horſmen and mules. They of *Dedan were thy marchauntes: and many other Iles that occupyed with the, broughte the weathers, Elephant bones & Peacockes for a preſent. The Sirians occupied wyth yͤ because of thy diuerſe worckes, and increaſed thy marchaundies, with Smaragdes, with ſcarlet, with nedle worke, wyth whyte lynen cloth, wyth ſylke, and wyth criſtall.

D Iuda and the lande of Iſrael occupied wͭ the & broughte vnto thy markettes, wheat, of Minnith and pānag, balme, hony, oyle, & tryacle. Damaſcus alſo vſed marchaūdyes wͭ the, in the beſt wyne of Helbon & wͭ woll: because thy occupieng was ſo great, and thy wares ſo many, Dan, Iauan & Meuſall haue brought vnto thy marckettes, yron redy made, with Caſſia & Calamus, according to thyne occupienge. Dedan occupied with the in fayre tapeſtrye worke and cuſſhyns. Arabia & all the princes of Cedar haue occupyed with the, in ſhepe, wethers and goates,

The marchauntes of Seba and Rema haue occupyed alſo with the, in all coſtly ſpyces, in all precyous ſtones and golde, which they brought vnto thy marckettes. Haram, Chene and Eden, the marchauntes of Saba, Aſſiria, and Chelmad, were all doers wͭ the, and occupyed with the. In coſtly rayment, of yelow ſylcke and nedle worcke (very precious, and therfore packte and bounde E together with roapes.) Yee, and in Cedre woode, at the tyme of thy marckettes. The ſhyppes of Tharſis were the chefe of thy occupyenge.

Thus thou art full, and in greate worſhip, euen in the myddeſt of the ſee. Thy robbers ſhall brynge the into great waters, the eaſte wynde ſhall ouerbeare the into the middeſt of the ſee: ſo that thy wares, thy marchaundies, thy ryches, thy maryners, thy ſhypmaſters, thy buylders of thy broken places, thy occupyers (that brought yͤ thynges neceſſary) the men of warre that are in the: yee, and all thy comens ſhall peryſhe in the myddeſt of the ſee: in the daye of thy fall. The ſuburbes ſhall ſhake at the loude crye of thy ſhypmen. Al whyrry mē, & al maryners vpon the ſee, ſhal leape out of theyr boates, & ſet them ſelues vpon the lande. They ſhall lyft vp theyr voyce because of the and make a lamentable cry. They ſhall caſt duſt vpon theyr heades, and lye downe in the aſſhes. They ſhall ſhaue them ſelues; and put ſacke cloth vpon them for thy ſake.

They ſhall mourne for the with hertfull ſorow, and heuy lamentacyon, yee, they alſo ſhall wepe for the. Alas, what cytie hath ſo bene deſtroyed in yͤ ſee, as Tyre is? When G thy wares and marchaundies came from the ſees, yͤ gaueſt al people ynough. The kinges of the earth haſt thou made ryche, thorow yͤ multitude of thy watres & occupienge. But thou art now caſt downe into the depe of the ſee, all thy reſorte of people is peryſhed with the. All they that dwell in the Iles are abaſſhed at the, & all theyr kynges are afrayed, yee, theyr faces haue chaūged couloure. The marchauntes of the nacions wondre at the. In that thou art ſo clenē brought to naught and commeſt nomore vp.

B Therfore, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: For ſo moch as thou haſt lyft vp thyne hert as though thou were God: Beholde, I wyll brynge ennemyes vpon the, euen the tyrauntes of the Heathē: theſe ſhall drawe out their ſweardes vpon thy bewty and wyſdome, & ſhal defyle thy glory. They ſhal caſt yͤ down to the pitte, ſo that thou ſhalt dye in the middeſt of the ſee, as they that be ſlayne. Yee, the lande of Egipte ſhalbe deſolate ⁊ waſte, and they ſhall knowe, ẏ I am ẏ Lorde. Becauſe he ſayde: the water is myne I my ſelfe haue made it. Beholde therfore, I wyll vpon the, and vpon thy waters: I wyll make the lande of Egipt waſte and deſolate ⁊ in abaſhment, from ẏ tower of Syenes vnto the borders of the Morians lande: C ſo that in fourtye yeares there ſhall no fote of man walke there, nether fote of catell go there, nether ſhal it be inhabited. I will make the lande of Egipte to be deſolat, amonge other waſte countrees, and her cytyes to lye voyde fourtye yeares, amonge other voyde cyties. And I will ſcatre the Egypcyans amonge the Heathē and nacions, and ſtrawe them in the landes about.

Agayne, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Jere.xlvi.e. * When the.xl. yeares are expyred, I wyll gather the Egipcians together agayne, out of the nacions, among whom they were ſcatred, and wyll bryng ẏ preſoners of Egypte agayne into ẏ land of Pathures theyr awne natyue countre, that they maye be there a lowly ſmall kyngdome: yee, they ſhalbe the ſmalleſt amonge other kingdomes, leſt they exalte them ſelues aboue the Heathen: for I wyll ſo mynyſh them that they ſhall nomore rule the Heathen. They ſhall nomore be an hope vnto ẏ houſe of Iſraell, nether prouoke them any more to wyckednes, to cauſe thē turne backe, and to folowe them: and they ſhall knowe that I am the Lorde God:

D In the.xxvij.yeare, the fyrſte daye of the fyrſt moneth, came the worde of ẏ Lord vnto me ſaieng: Thou ſonne of mã, Nabuchodonoſor the kyng of Babylõ hath made his hooſt, with great trauayle & labour to come before Tyre: that euery head maye be balde and euery ſhoulder bare. Yet hath Tyre geuen nether hym nor hys hooſt any rewarde, for the greate trauayll that he hath taken there. Therfore, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: beholde, I will geue the lãde of Egipt vnto Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babylon, that he maye take awaye al her ſubſtaunce, robbe her robberyes, & ſpoyle her ſpoyles, to paye hys hooſte theyr wagyes withall. ¶The.xxx.Chapter.

¶The deſtruccyon of Egypt and of hys cityes, is bewayled.

A The worde of ẏ Lorde came more ouer vnto me, ſayenge: thou ſonne of man, prophecye and ſpeake: thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Mourne, wo worth this daye, for the daye is here, the daye of the Lorde is come ☞ the darke daye of the Heathen, the houre is at hande, the ſwearde cõmeth vpon Egypte. When the wounded mẽ fal downe in Egypte, when her people are taken a way and when her foundacyons are deſtroyed, ẏ Moryans lande ſhall be afrayed, yee, ẏ Moryans lande, Libia and Lidia, all theyr comen people, and Chub, and all that be confederat vnto them, ſhall fall with them thorow the ſwearde.

B Thus ſayeth the Lorde: The maynteyners of the lande of Egypte ſhall fall, the pryde of her power ſhall come downe euen vnto ẏ tower of Syenes ſhal they be ſlayne downe with the ſwearde, ſayeth the Lorde God: amonge other deſolate coũtrees they ſhalbe made deſolate, & amonge other waſte cyties they ſhalbe waſted. And they ſhall knowe, that I am the Lord, when I kyndle a fyre in Egypte, and when all her helpers are deſtroyed. At that tyme, ſhal theyr meſſaungers go forth frõ me in ſhyppes, to make the careleſſe Moriãs afrayed, and ſorow ſhall come vpon them accordinge to the day C of Egypte, for doubtles it ſhall come.

Thus ſayeth the Lord God: I wil make an ende of the people of Egypt thorowe the hande of Nabuchodonoſor the kyng of Babylon. He and hys people with hym: yee, and the cruell tyrauntes of the Heathen ſhalbe brought to deſtroye the lande; They ſhall drawe out theyr ſweardes vpon Egypte, & fyll the lande full of ſlayne men. I will drye vp theyr floudes of water, and ſell the lande into the handes of wicked people. The lande & all ẏ is therin, will I deſtroye thorow the enemyes. Euen I the Lorde haue ſayde it.

And thus ſayeth the Lord God: *I will deſtroye the Idols, and brynge the ymages of ☞ Noph to an ende. There ſhall no more be a prynce of Egypte, and a fearfulnes wil I ſende into the Egipciãs lãde. As for Pathures, I wyll make it deſolate, & kyndle a fyre in zoan the citie. No I punyſh, & poure my wrathfull indignaciõ vpon Sin, which is the ſtrength of Egipt. All the ſubſtaunce of Alexandria wyll I deſtroye, and kyndle a fyre in Egypte.

Sin ſhalbe in greate heuyneſſe, Alexandria ſhalbe roted oute, and Noph ſhall haue E daylye ſorow. The beſt men of Helyopolys and Bubaſto ſhalbe ſlayne with ẏ ſwearde, and caryed awaye captyue. At Caphnis the daye ſhalbe darcke, when I breake there the ſcepter of the lande of Egypt, and when the põpe of her power ſhall haue an ende. ☞ A cloude ſhall couer her, & her daughters ſhall be led awaye into captiuite. Thus wil I punyſh Egypt, ẏ they maye knowe how that I am the Lorde.

It happened in the eleuenth yeare, vpon the ſeuenth daye of the fyrſt moneth, that ẏ Lordes worde came vnto me, ſayenge: Beholde, thou ſonne of man, I will breake the arme of Pharao kynge of Egypte: and lo, it ſhall not be bounde vp to be healed, nother F ſhall any playſtre be layed vpõ it, for to eaſe it, or to make it ſo ſtronge, as to holde a ſwearde. Therfore, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Beholde, I will vpon Pharao ẏ kyng of Egypt, and bruſe his ſtronge arme (yet is it but a broken one) & wyll ſmyte ẏ ſwearde out of hys handes.

As for the Egypcians. I will ſcatre thẽ amonge the Heathen, and ſtrowe them in the landes aboute. Agayne I wyll ſtrength the arme of the kyng of Babylon, & geue hym a ſweard in his hande: but I will breake Pharaos arme ſo that he ſhal holde it before him pyteouſly, lyke a wounded man.

G Yee, I wyll ſtablyſh the kynge of Babilons arme, & the armes of Pharao ſhall fall downe: that it maye be knowne, ẏ I am the Lord, which geue the kyng of Babylon my ſwearde in his hande, that he maye drawe it out vpon the lande of Egypte, & that when I ſcatre the Egypcians amonge the Gẽtils and ſtrowe them in the landes aboute, they maye knowe, that I am the Lorde.

*Esa.xiiii.e. Ezech.xxxi.c.

D In the.xii.yeare, the.xv.daye of the moneth, came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, ſayenge: Thou ſonne of man. Take vp a lamentacion vpon the people of Egypt, & caſt thẽ downe, yee, them I ſaye, & the myghtye people of yͤ heathẽ alſo, euen wyth thẽ * that dwell beneth: and with them that go downe into the graue. ¶ The.xxxiii.Chapter.

¶ He ſetteth out the offyce of a curate that preacheth the Goſpell. He ſtrengtheneth them that dyſpayre, and boldeneth them wyth the promes of mercye. The worde of the Lorde agaynſt the remnaunt of the people. Agaynſte the mockers of the wordes of the prophete.

AGayne, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſayenge: Thou ſonne of man: Speake to yͤ chyldren of thy people, and tel them: Whan I ſende a ſwearde vpon a lande, yf the people of the lande take a man of theyr coũtre, & ſet him to be theyr * watchman, the ſame man (when he ſeyth yͤ ſwerde come vpon the lande) ſhall blowe the trõpet and warne the people. A Yf a man nowe heare the noyſe of the trõpet & wyll not be warned, and the ſwearde come: and take hym awaye: hys bloude ſhall be vpon hys owne heade: for he herde yͤ ſoũd of the trompet, & wolde not take hede, therfore his bloude be vpon hym. But yf he wyl receaue warnynge, he ſhall ſaue his lyfe.

B Agayne, yf the watch man ſe yͤ ſwearde come, and ſhewe it not with the trompet, ſo yͭ the people is not warned: yf yͤ ſwearde come then, & take any man from amonge them: yͤ ſame ſhalbe takẽ a waye in hys owne ſynne, but hys bloude wyll I requyꝛe of the watch mans hande.

*Ezech. iii. c *And nowe (O thou ſõne of mã) I haue made the a watchman vnto the houſe of Iſrael: that where as thou heareſt any thynge out of my mouth, thou mayeſt warne them on my behalfe. Yf I ſaye vnto the wycked thou wycked, thou ſhalte ſurelye dye & thou geueſt hym not warnynge, that he maye beware of hys vngodlye waye: then ſhall the wicked dye in his owne ſynne, but his bloud wyll I requyꝛe of thy hande. Neuertheles, yf thou warne the wycked of hys waye, to turne frõ it, where as he yet wyll not be turned from it, then ſhal he dye becauſe of his ſynne but thou haſt delyuered thy ſoule.

C Therfoꝛe (O thou ſonne of man) ſpeake vnto yͤ houſe of Iſrael. Ye, ſaye thus: Our offences and ſynnes lye vpon vs, and we be coꝛrupte in them, howe ſhulde we then be reſtored vnto lyfe? *Eze. xviii. c Tell them: *As truely as I lyue ſayeth the Loꝛde God, I haue no pleaſure in yͤ death of the wycked, but muche rather that the wycked turne frõ hys waye, & lyue. Turne you, turne you from youre vngodly wayes, O ye of the houſe of Iſrael. Oh wherfoꝛe wyll ye dye?

*Eze. xviii. d Thou ſonne of man, tell the chyldꝛen of thy people: *The ryghteouſnes of the ryghteous ſhal not ſaue him, whanſoeuer he turneth a waye vnfaythfully. Agayne, the wyckednes of the wycked ſhall not hurte hym, whan ſo euer he conuerteth from his vngodlyneſſe.

And the ryghteouſneſſe of the ryghteous ſhall not ſaue hys lyfe, whanſoeuer he ſynneth. Yf I ſaye vnto the ryghteous, that he ſhall ſurely lyue, and ſo he truſt to hys owne ryghteouſneſſe, and do ſynne, then ſhall hys ryghteouſnes be nomoꝛe thought vpon, but D in the wyckedneſſe that he hath done he ſhal dye. *Eſay. lv. b Iere. xviii. a *Agayne, yf I ſaye vnto the wycked: thou ſhalte ſurelye dye: and ſo he turne from hys ſynnes, and do yͤ thynge that is lawfull and ryght: In ſo much that the ſame wicked man geueth yͤ pledge agayne, reſtoꝛeth that he had taken a waye by robbery, walketh in the commaundementes of lyfe, and doth no wꝛonge. Then ſhall he ſurely lyue, & not dye Yee, the ſynnes that he hath done, ſhall neuer be thought vpon. Foꝛ in ſo much as he doth nowe the thynge that is lawfull and ryght, he ſhall lyue. And yet the chyldꝛen of thy people ſaye: Tuſh, the waye of the Loꝛde is not ryghte, but they lye, where as theyꝛ owne waye is rather vnryght.

When yͤ ryghteous turneth frõ hys ryghteouſnes and doth yͤ thynge that is wycked he ſhall dye therfoꝛe. But yf yͤ wycked turne from hys wyckedneſſe, doynge the thynge yͭ is lawfull and ryght, he ſhall lyue therfoꝛe. *Eze. xviii. f ‡Roma. ii. a Yet ye ſaye: *the waye of the Loꝛde is not equall: O ye houſe of Iſrael ‡I wyll iudge euery one of you after hys wayes.

E In the. xii. yeare, the. v. day of yͤ tenth moneth of oure captiuite, it happened, that one whych was fled out of Jeruſalẽ, came vnto me, and ſayd: the cytie is deſtroyed. Now the hande of the Loꝛd had bene vpon me the euenynge afoꝛe thys man (which was eſcaped) came vnto me, & had ☞ opened my mouth, ☞ vntyl the moꝛninge that he came to me: yee, he opened my mouth, ſo that I was nomoꝛe domme. Then came the woꝛde of the Loꝛde vnto me, & ſayd: Thou ſoune of man, theſe yͭ dwell in the waſted lande of Iſrael, ſaye: Abꝛaham was but one man, and he had yͤ lãde in poſſeſſion: nowe are we many & the lande is geuen vs to poſſeſſe alſo. And therfoꝛe tell thẽ. F Thus ſayeth yͤ Loꝛde God: *Levi. xvii. d ‡Deute. iii. c. *In yͤ bloud haue ye eaten, your eyes haue ye lyfte vp to Idoles, ‡and haue ſhed bloude: ſhall ye then haue the lande in poſſeſſion?

Ye leane vpon your ſweardes, ye woꝛke abhominacions, euery one defyleth his neghbours wyfe: & ſhal ye then poſſeſſe the lande? Saye thou theſe woꝛdes vnto them. Thus ſayeth the Loꝛde God. As truly as I lyue al ye that dwel in this wyldernes, ſhalbe ſlaine wyth the ſwearde: what ſo euer is vpon the felde, wyll I geue vnto the beaſtes to be deuoured: thoſe that be in ſtronge holdes & dennes, ſhall dye of the peſtilenee. Foꝛ I wyll make the lande ſo deſolate and waſte, and yͤ pompe of her ſtrength ſhall come to an ende. The mountaynes in Iſraell ſhalbe ſo waſte that no man ſhall trauayle therby.

G *Ezec. xxv. c. *Then ſhall they lerne to knowe, that I am the Loꝛde, when I make the lande waſt and deſolate, becauſe of all theyꝛ abhominacions, that they haue wꝛought. And thou ſonne of man, the chyldꝛen of thy people that talke of the, by the walles and in the doꝛes of theyꝛ houſes, ſayenge one to another: Come, let vs hear, what woꝛd is gone foꝛth frõ the Loꝛde. These come yͤ vnto the, after maner of a great people: yee, as who ſayeth they were my people, they ſyt downe befoꝛe the, and heare thy woꝛdes, but they do not therafter *foꝛ in their mouthes they make a ieſte of them, & theyꝛ herte goeth after theyꝛ owne couetous lucre: *Eſa. xxix. c. Math. xv. a. And as a balet that hath a ſwete tune, and is pleaſaũt to ſynge, ſo ſhalt thou be vnto them: thy woꝛdes ſhall they heare, but they wyll not do therafter. Whan thys commeth to paſſe (foꝛ lo: it commeth in dede) then ſhall they knowe, yͭ there hath bene a pꝛophete amonge them.

¶ The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

¶He promyſeth the delyueraunce of the Gentyls vnto Iſrael. The benefytes done vnto the Iewes are to be aſcribed to the mercye of God, not vnto theyr deſeruynges. God renueth our hertes that we may walke in his commaundementes.

THou ſonne of man, prophecye vpõ the A mountaynes of Iſraell, and ſpeake:
*Heare the worde of the Lorde, O ye *Ezech.vi.a moũtaynes of Iſrael. Thus ſayeth the Lord God. Becauſe your enemye hath ſayd vpon you: ☞ A, ha, the hye euerlaſtynge places are nowe become ours, prophecy therfore, & ☜ ſpeake: thus ſayeth the Lorde God. Seyng ye be waſted and trodẽ downe on euery ſyde and become a poſſeſſion vnto the reſydue of the Gentyls: whych haue brought you into mens mouthes and vnto an euell name amonge the people. Therfore, heare the word of the Lorde God, O ye mountaynes of Iſraell.
Thus ſayeth the Lorde God vnto the mountaynes and hylles, valleys and dales, to the voyde wyldernesse & deſolate cyties, whych are ſpoyled, & had in deriſion on euery ſyde, amonge the reſydue of the Heathen.
Yee, euẽ thus ſayeth the Lorde God. In the fyre of my gelouſye haue I takẽ a deuyce, agaynſt B the reſydue of the Gentyls, & againſt all *Edom: whych haue takẽ in my lande vnto *Eze.xxxv.a them ſelues for a poſſeſſion: which alſo reioyced frõ theyr whole herte with a deſpytefull ſtomacke, to waſt it, and to ſpoyle it.

Prophecye therfore vpon the lande of Iſrael, ſpeake vnto the mountaines & hylles to valleys and dales, thus ſayeth yͤ Lorde God Beholde, thys haue I deuyſed in my gelouſye and terrible wrath. For ſo muche as ye haue ſuffred reprofe of the Heathen, therfore thus ſayeth yͤ Lord God. ☞ I haue ſworne that the Gentyls whych lye about you, ſhal ☜ beare theyr confuſion them ſelues. And for you (O mountaynes of Iſrael) ye ſhal ſhote out your braunches, and brynge forth youre frute to my people of Iſrael, for it is hard by that it wyl come. Behold, I come vnto you, and vnto you wyll I turne me, that ye may C be tylled and ſowen.

☞ I wyll ſende you much people, which ſhalbe all of the houſe of Iſraell, the cyties ☜ ſhalbe inhabyted, & the decayed places ſhall be repayred agayne, I wyll prouyde you wt much people and catell, whych ſhall increaſe and brynge frute, I wyll reſtore you alſo to youre olde eſtate & ſhewe you more kyndnes thẽ euer ye had before: wherby ye ſhal know that I am the Lorde. Yee, people wyll I ſẽde vnto you (O my folke of Iſrael) whych ſhal haue the in poſſeſſion, and thou ſhalt be their enheritaunce, ſo that thou ſhalte nomore be wythout them. Agayne thus ſayeth yͤ Lord God. For ſo muche as they ſaye vnto you, thou arte an eater vp of men, and a waſter of thy people: therfore thou ſhalte eate no mo men, neyther deſtroye thy people any more, ſayeth the Lorde God. And I wyl not ſuffre the, for to beare thyne owne confuſion amonge the Gentyls frõ hence forth. Thou ſhalt not beare the reprofe of the naciõs, nor caſt out thyne owne people any more, ſayeth the Lorde God.

Moreouer the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſaynge. O thou ſonne of man, whē the house of Iſrael dwelt vpon theyr owne groũde, they defyled them ſelues wyth theyr owne wayes and ymaginacions: ſo yͭ in my ſyght theyr waye was lyke the vnclenneſſe of a menſtruous womã. Wherfore, I poured my wrothful diſpleaſure vpon them, ☞ because of the bloude that they had ſhed in the lande, & because of theyr Idols, wherwyth they had defyled thē ſelues. I ſcatred thē alſo amonge the heathen, ſo yͭ they were ſtrawed about in yͤ lãdes. Accordyng to theyr wayes & after theyr owne inuencions, ſo dyd I punyſh them.

E *Nowe when they were gone vnto the Heathen, & come in amonge thē, they diſhonoured my holy name: ſo that it was ſayde of them. Are theſe the people of God, & muſt go out of theyr owne lãde? Thē ſpared I my holy name, which yͤ house of Iſrael had diſhonoured amonge the Gentyls, to whom they came. Therfore tell the house of Iſrael: Thus ſayeth yͤ Lord God: I do not this for your ſakes (O house of Iſrael) but for my holy names ſake, whych ye dyſhonoured amõg the Heathen, when ye came to them. Therfore, I wyll hallowe my great name againe whych amonge the Gentyls is euell ſpoken of: for ye youre ſelues haue dyſhonoured it amonge them. And the Gentyls ſhal knowe that I am the Lorde, whan I am honoured in you before theyr eyes, ſayeth the Lorde God.

*Eſay.lii.b Roma.ii.c

As for you, I wyl take you from amõge the heathen, and gather you together out of all countrees, and bryng you agayne into your owne lande. *Thē wyll I poure cleare water vpon you, and ye ſhalbe clene: yee, from all youre vnclenneſſe and from al your Idols ſhall I clenſe you. A newe herte alſo wyl I geue you, and a new ſprete wyl I put into you. As for that ſtony herte, I wil take it out of your body, & gyue you a fleſhly hert F I wyll geue my ſprete amonge you * & cauſe you to walke in my commaundementes to kepe my lawes, and to fulfyll them.

*Eſa.xliiii.a Iere.xvii.c

*Deu.viii.d

And ſo ye ſhall dwell in the lande, that I gaue to youre forefathers, and ye ſhalbe my people, and I wyl be your God. I wyl helpe you out of all your vnclennes. I wyl call for the corne, and wyl encreaſe it, & let you haue no honger. I wyl multiplye the frutes of the trees and the increaſe of the felde for you, ſo that ye ſhal beare nomore reprofe of honger, amonge the Heathen. Then ſhall ye remember your owne wycked wayes, & your ymaginacions, whych were not good: ſo that ye ſhall thynke that ye were worthye to be deſtroyed: for your ſynnes and abhominacions

G But I wyll not do thys for youre ſakes (ſayeth the Lord God) be ye ſure of it. Therfore, O ye house of Iſraell, be aſhamed of your ſynnes. Moreouer, thus ſayeth yͤ Lord God: what tyme as I ſhall clenſe you from all youre offences, then wyll I make the cyties to be occupyed agayne, and wyl repayre the places that be decayed. The deſolate lãd ſhalbe buylded agayne, whyche afore tyme laye waſt in the ſyght of all them that went by. Then ſhall it be ſayde: thys waſte lande is become lyke a garden of pleaſure, and the voyde, deſolate and brokē downe cyties are nowe ſtronge, & defenſed agayne. Then the reſydue of the Heathen that lye roũde aboute you, ſhal knowe that I am yͤ Lorde, whyche repayre that yͭ was brokē downe, and plãte agayne, that yͭ was made waſte. Euen I the Lorde haue ſpoken it, and wyl do it in dede.

Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: I wyl yet once be founde againe of the house of Iſrael, and do thys for them: *I ſhal increaſe them as a flocke of mē. Like as the holy flocke and the flocke of Ieruſalē are in yͤ hye ſolempne feaſtes: ſo ſhall alſo the wylde waſted cyties be fylled wyth flockes of men: and they ſhall knowe that I am the Lorde.

¶He prophecyeth the bryngynge agayne of the people beynge in captiuite. He ſheweth the vnion of the ten tribes wyth the two.

A The hande of the Lorde came vnto me and caryed me out in the ſprete of the Lorde, and let me downe in a playne felde, that laye full of bones, and he led me rounde aboute by them: and beholde the bones that laye vpon the felde, were very many, and marueilous drye alſo. Then ſayde he vnto me. Thou ſonne of man: thynkeſt thou theſe bones maye lyue agayne? I anſwered O Lorde God, thou knoweſt. And he ſayde vnto me. Prophecy thou vpon theſe bones, and ſpeake vnto them. Ye drye bones, heare the word of yͤ Lorde. Thus ſayeth the Lorde God vnto theſe bones. B Beholde, I wyll put breth vnto you, that ye maye lyue: I wyll gyue you ſynowes, and make fleſhe growe vpon you, and couer you ouer wyth ſkynne: and ſo geue you *breth, that ye maye lyue, & knowe that I am the Lorde.

So I prophecyed, as he had commaũded me. And as I was prophecyeng, there came a noyſe & a great mocyon, ſo that the bones rãne euery one to another. Nowe whē I had loked, beholde, they had ſynowes, and fleſh grewe vpon them: and aboue they were couered wyth ſkynne, but there was no breth in them. Then ſayde he vnto me. Thou ſõne of man prophecye thou towarde the wynde: prophecye: and ſpeake to the wynde. Thus sayeth the Loꝛde God. Come (O thou ayꝛe) ☞ from the foure windes, and ☞ blowe vpon C these slaine that they may be restoꝛed to lyfe So I pꝛophecyed as he had commaũded me: then came the bꝛeth into them, and they receiued lyfe, and stode vp vpon theyꝛ fete, a maruelous great soꝛte.

Moꝛeouer, he said vnto me: Thou sonne of mã, these bones are the whole house of Israel. Beholde, they saye: Oure bones dꝛyed vp, oure hope is gone, we are clene cut of.

D Therfoꝛe pꝛophecye thou, and speake vnto them. thus sayeth the Loꝛde God. Beholde, I wyll open youre graues (O my people) & take you out of your sepulchres, and bꝛynge you into the lande of Israel againe. So shal ye knowe that I am the Loꝛd, when I open your graues, and bꝛynge you out of them. My spꝛete also wyll I put in you, & ye shall lyue: I wyll set you agayne in youre owne lande, and ye shal knowe, that I am yͤ Loꝛd whych haue sayd it, and fulfylled it in dede.

The woꝛde of the Loꝛde came vnto me, sayenge: thou sonne of man, take a stycke & wꝛyte vpon it. Unto Juda and to the chldꝛẽ of Israel hys companions. Then take another stycke, and wꝛyte vpon it: Unto Joseph the stocke of Ephꝛaim, and to all the householde of Israel hys companions. E And then, take both these together in thyne hande, so shall there be one stycke therof. Nowe yf the chyldꝛen of thy people saye vnto the: wylte thou not shewe vs, what thou meanest by these? Then geue them thys answere: *Osee.i.b thus sayeth the Loꝛde God: beholde, *I wyl take the stock of Joseph, which is in the hande of Ephꝛaim and of the tribes of Israell hys felowes, and wyl put them to the stocke of Juda, and make them one stocke, and they shall be one in my hãde. And yͤ two styckes where vpon thou wꝛytest, shalt thou haue in thyne hande, that they maye se, and shalt saye vnto them.

Thus sayeth the Loꝛde God: beholde, I F wyl take awaye the chyldꝛen of Israel from amonge the Heathen, vnto whome they be gone, and wyll gather them together on euery syde, and bꝛynge them agayne into theyꝛ owne lande: yee, I wyll make one people of them in the lande, vpon the mountaynes of Israel, and they al shal haue but one kynge. They shall no moꝛe be two peoples frõ hẽce foꝛth, neyther be deuyded into two kyngdomes: they shall also defyle thẽ selues no moꝛe wyth theyꝛ abhominacions, Idoles, and all theyꝛ wycked doynges. I wyll helpe thẽ out of all theyꝛ dwellynge places, wherin they haue synned: and wyll so clense them, that they shalbe my people, and I theyꝛ God.

G David my seruaũt shalbe theyꝛ kynge, & they all shall haue one sheperde onely. They shall walke in my lawes, & my commaundementes shal they both kepe and fulfyl. They shall dwel in the lãde, that I gaue vnto Jacob my seruaunt, where as your fathers also haue dwelte: Yee, euen in the same lande shall they, theyꝛ chyldꝛen, & theyꝛ chylders chyldꝛen dwel foꝛ euermoꝛe, and my seruaũt David shalbe theyꝛ euerlastynge pꝛince. Moꝛeouer, I wyl make ☞ a bõde of peace ☞ with them, which shalbe vnto them an euerlastynge couenaunt. I wyll setle them also, and multyplye them, my Sanctuary wyl I set amonge them foꝛ euermoꝛe: * My dwellynge shalbe wyth them: *Leui.xxvi.b yee, I wyl be theyꝛ God, and they shalbe my people. Thus the Heathen also shall knowe, that I the Loꝛde am the holy maker of Israel: when my sanctuary shalbe amonge them foꝛ euermoꝛe.

¶ He pꝛophecyeth that Gog & Magog shall come with an appoynted hoost into the lande of pꝛomes. Theyꝛ entent. He rehersceth that the commynge of Gog was befoꝛe pꝛophecyed of the pꝛophetes. The destruccio̅ of him

ANd the woꝛde of the Loꝛde came A vnto me, sayenge: Thou sonne of man, turne thy face ☞ towarde ☞ Gog the lande of Magog whych is the chefe pꝛince at Mesech and Tuball: pꝛophecye agaynst hym, and saye. Thus sayeth the Loꝛd God: *O Gog thou *Eze.xxxix.b Apoca.xx.c chefe pꝛince of Mesech and Tubal: beholde, I wyll vpon the, and wyll turne the aboute and put a bytt in thy chawes: I wyl bꝛynge the foꝛth and all thyne hoost, both hoꝛse and hoꝛsemen, whyche be al weapened of the best fassion: a greate people, that handle altogether speares, shyldes, and swerdes: the Perses, Moꝛians and wyth them the Libians, whyche all beare shyldes and helmettes: Gomer and al hys hoostes: the house of Thogoꝛma out of the noꝛth quarters, and al his hoostes, yee, and much people wyth the.

Therfoꝛe pꝛepare the, set thy selfe in araye wyth al thy people, that are come vnto the by heapes. & be thou theyꝛ defence. After many dayes thou shalte be vysited, and in yͤ latter yeares thou shalt come into the lande that hath bene destroyed wyth the swearde, & nowe is replenyshed agayne wyth diuerse people vpõ yͤ mountaynes of Israel, whych haue longe lyen waste. Yee, they be bꝛought out of the nacions, and dwell all safe. Thou shalt come vp lyke a stoꝛmy wether, to couer the lãde, and as it were a darcke cloude, thou with al thyne hostes, and a great multitude of people wyth the.

Moꝛeouer, thus sayeth the Loꝛde God: At the same tyme shal many thynges come into thy mynde, so that thou shalt ymagyn myschefe, and saye: I wyll vp to yonder playne lande, seynge they syt at ease, & dwell so safely (foꝛ

Therfore, O thou ſonne of mã, thou ſhalt prophecie, and ſaye vnto Gog. Thus ſayeth the Lorde God. In ẏ daye thou ſhalt knowe that my people of Iſrael dwelleth ſafe: and ſhalte come from thy place out of the northe partes: thou & much people with the, whych ryde vpon horſes, where of there is a greate multitude & an innumerable ſorte. Yee, thou ſhalte come vpon my people of Iſraell, as a cloude to couer the lande. Thys ſhall come to paſſe in the latter dayes: I wyll brynge the vp into my lande, that ẏ heathẽ may knowe me, whã I get me honour vpõ the (O Gog) before theyr eyes.

F Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Thou arte he of whom I haue ſpokẽ afore tyme by my ſeruauntes the prophetes of Iſraell, whyche prophecied in thoſe dayes and yeares, that I ſhulde brynge the vpon them. At the ſame tyme, when God commeth vp into the lãde of Iſrael (ſayeth the Lord God) ſhall my indignacion go forth in my wrath. For in my gelouſy and hote diſpleaſure I haue deuiſed* ẏ there ſhalbe a great trouble in the lãde of Iſrael at that tyme. The very fyſhes in the ſee the foules of the ayre, the beaſtes of the feld, and all the men that are vpon the earth, ſhal tremble for feare of me.

G The hylles alſo ſhalbe turned vp ſyde downe, the ſtayers of ſtone ſhall fall, and all walles ſhall ſynke to the grounde. I wyl cal for a ſwearde vpon them in all my moũtaynes ſayeth the Lorde God: ſo that euery mãs ſwearde ſhalbe vpon an other. Wyth peſtilence wyll I cauſe to rayne vpon hym and all hys that they may be ſure, howe that I am the Lorde.

¶The.xxxix.Chapter.

¶He ſheweth the deſtrucciõ of Gog and Magog. The graue of Gog and of hys hooſt. He prophecyeth that Gog and hys company ſhalbe deuoured of byrdes and beaſtes, wherfore the houſe of Iſrael is waſted. Theyr bryugynge agayne from captiuite is promyſed.

A Therfore, O thou ſonne of mã, prophecye agaynſt Gog, and ſpeake. Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Beholde * O Gog: thou chefe prince at Meſech and Tuball,
I wyll vpon the, and ☞ punyſhe the wͭ wyl I geue the vnto foules and wylde beaſtes of the felde, to be deuoured: there muſte thou lye vpon the felde: for euen I the Lord haue ſpoken it, ſayeth the Lorde God.

*eze.xxxviii.c

B Into Magog, and amonge thoſe that ſyt ſo careleſſe in the Iles: wyl I ſende a fyre, & they ſhal knowe, that I am the Lord, I wyl make alſo ẏ name of my holyneſſe to be knowen amõge my people of Iſrael: and I wyl not let my holy name be euell ſpoken of any more: but the very Heathen alſo ſhal know, thot I am the Lorde, the holy one of Iſraell.
Beholde, it commeth, and ſhalbe fulfylled in dede, ſayeth the Lorde God. Thys is the daye wherof I haue ſpokẽ. They that dwel in the cyties of Iſraell, ſhall go forth and ſet fyre vpon the weapens, and burne thẽ: ſhyldes and ſpeares, bowes and arowes, bylles & clubbes: ſeuẽ yeares ſhal they be burnynge therof, ſo ẏ they ſhall els brynge no ſtyckes frõ ẏ felde, nether haue nede to hewe downe any out of the wodde. For they ſhall haue weapens ynough to burne. They ſhal robbe C thoſe that robbed them, & ſpoyle thoſe ẏ ſpoyled them ſayeth the Lorde God. At the ſame tyme wil I geue vnto Gog, a place to be buryed in, in Iſrael, euẽ the valley, where thorowe men go from the eaſt to the ſee warde.
Thoſe that trauaile therby, ſhal ſtoppe their noſes for ſtence. There ſhall Gog and al hys people be buryed: and it ſhalbe called the valley of the people of Gog. Seuen monethes longe ſhal the houſe of Iſrael be buryeng of them that they maye clenſe the lande. Yee, al the people of the lande ſhall burye them. O, it ſhall be a glorious daye, when I get me ẏ honoure, ſayeth the Lorde God. They ſhall D ordeyne men alſo to be deed buryers, euer goynge thorowe the lande, and appoynte them certayne places to burye thoſe in, whych remayne vpon the felde, that the lande may be clenſed. From ende to ende ſhall they ſeke, & that ſeuen monethes longe. Now thoſe ẏ go thorow ẏ lande, where they ſe a mans bone, they ſhal ſet vp a token by it, tyl the deed buryers haue buryed it alſo, in the valley of the people of Gog. And ẏ name of the cytie ſhall be called, hamonah (ẏ is a multitude) Thus ſhall they make the lande clene.

And thou ſonne of man: thus ſayeth the Lorde God. Speake vnto all the foules and euery byrde, yee, and to al the wylde beaſtes of the feld, heape you together and come, gather you rounde aboute vpon my ſlaughter, yͤ I haue ſlayne for you: euen a great ſlaughter vpon the moũtaynes of Iſrael, eate fleſh Apoca.xix.d and drynke bloude. Ye ſhall * eate the fleſhe of the worthyes, and drynke the bloude of yͤ princes of the lande: of the wethers, of the lãbes, of the goates, and of the oxen that be all ſlayne at Baſan. Eate the fat your belly ful, and drynke bloude, tyll ye be dronken of the ſlaughter, whych I haue ſlayne vnto you.

Fyll you at my table wyth horſes & ſtronge horſemen, wyth captaynes and mẽ of warre ſayeth the Lorde God.

F I wyl brynge my glory alſo amonge the Gentyls, that all the heathen may ſe my iudgement, that I haue kept, & my hãde whych I haue layed vpõ them: that the houſe of Iſrael maye knowe, howe that I am the Lord theyr God frõ that daye forth. And the heathen ſhall knowe, that where as the houſe of Iſraell were ledde into captiuite: it was for theyr wyckednes ſake, becauſe they offended me.

For the whych cauſe I hyd my face from them and delyuered them into the handes of theyr enemyes. that they myght al be ſlayne wyth the ſwearde. Accordyng to theyr vnclẽneſſe & vnfaythfull dealynges, ſo haue I entreated them, and hyd my face from them.

G Therfore thus ſayeth the Lorde God: Now wyl I brynge agayne yͤ captaynes of Iacob & haue mercy vpon the whole houſe of Iſrael, and be gelous for my holy names ſake.
Al theyr cõfuſion and offence that they haue done agaynſt me ſhalbe taken a waye: and ſo ſafely ſhall they dwel in theyr lande, that no man ſhall make them afrayed. And when I haue brought them agayne frõ amonge the people, whẽ I haue gathered them together out of theyr enemyes lãdes, and am prayſed in them before many heathen: Thẽ ſhal they knowe, that I am yͤ Lord theyr God whych ſuffered thẽ to be led into captiuitie amonge the Heathẽ, but nowe haue I brought them agayne into theyr owne lande, and not lefte one of them yonder.

After that, wyll I hyde my face nomore
*eze.xxxvi.d frõ them * but wyl poure out my ſprete vpõ the houſe of Iſrael, ſayeth the Lorde God.

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

¶ The reſtorynge of the cyties and of the temple that was to come is ſhewed vnto the prophete.

A IN the.xxv. yeare of oure captiuite, in the begynnyng of the yeare, the tenth daye of the moneth: that is the.xiiii. yeare, after that yͤ cytie was ſmyttẽ downe:
the ſame daye came the hande of the Lorde vpon me, and caryed me forth: euen into the lande of Iſrael brought he me in the vyſiõs of God: and ſet me downe vpon a maruelous hye mountayne, where vpon ther was a buyldyng (as it had ben of a cytte) toward the north.

Thyther he caryed me, and beholde, there was a mã, whoſe ſimilitude was lyke braſſe which had a threde of flaxe in his hande, and a meterode alſo. He ſtode in the dore, & ſayde vnto me: thou ſonne of man marcke well wͭ thyne eyes, herken to wyth thyne eares, & faſten it in thyne herte, whatſoeuer I ſhall ſhewe the, for to yͤ intent that they myghte be ſhewed the, therfore arte thou brought hyther.
And whatſoeuer thou ſeyſt, thou ſhalte certify the houſe of Iſrael therof.

Beholde, there was a wall on yͤ outſyde B rounde about the houſe: the meterodde that he had in hys hande, was ſyxe cubites lõge & a ſpanne. So he meaſured the bredth of the buyldyng, which was a meterodde, and the heygth alſo a meterode. Then came he vnto the eaſt dore, & wente vp the ſteares, & meaſured the poſtes of yͤ dore, wherof euery one was a meterodde thicke. Euery chãber was a meterodde lõge & brode: betwene the chambers were fyue cubytes. The poſt of yͤ dore within the porche, was one meterodde. He meaſured alſo the porche of yͤ ynnermer dore whych conteyned a meterodde. Then meaſured he the entrye of the dore, that conteyned eyght cubytes, & hys pylers two cubytes: & thys entrye ſtode inwarde.

The chãbers of the dore eaſtwarde, were C thre on euery ſyde: a lyke brode and longe.
The pylers alſo that ſtode of both the ſydes were of one meaſure. After thys, he meaſured the wydeneſſe of the dore, whych was.x. cubytes, & the heygth of the dore.xiii.cubytes.
The edge before the chambers was one cubyte brode vpon both the ſydes, and the chãbers ſyxe cubytes wyde of eyther ſyde.
He meaſured the dore from the rydge of one chamber to another, whoſe wydneſſe was xxv.cubytes, & one dore ſtode agaynſt another.
He made pylers alſo.lx.cubytes hye, roũde aboute the courte dore. Before the inwarde parte vnto the fore entry of the ynnermer dore, were L.cubytes. The chambers & theyr pylers wythin, rounde about vnto the dore, had ſyde wyndowes. So had the fore entryes alſo, whoſe wyndowes went roũde aboute wythin. And vpon the pylers there ſtode date trees.

Then brought he me into the fore courte where as were chambers & paued workes, made in the fore courte rounde aboute.xxx. chambers vpõ one paued worke. Nowe the paued worke was a longe beſyde the dores & yͤ was the lower paued worke. After this he meaſured the bredth from the lower dore, vnto the ynnermer courte of the outſyde, D which had an.C. cubytes vpon the eaſt & the north parte. And the dore in the vttermoſte court towarde the north, measured he after the lēgth and bredth: hys thre chambres alſo on ether ſyde wͭ hys pillers and forentryes: whych had euē the measure of the fyrſt dore. His heygth was.l.cubytes, the bredth.xxv. cubytes, hys wyndowes ⁊ porches with his date trees, had euen lyke measure as the dore towarde the eaſt: there were.vii.ſteppes to go vp vpon, and their porche before them. Nowe the dore of the ynnermer court ſtode ſtreyght ouer agaynſt the dore, yͭ was towarde the northeaſt. Frō one dore to another he measured.C.cubytes.

After that, he brought me to the ſouthſyde, where there ſtode a dore towarde the ſouth: whoſe pyllers and porches he measured, theſe had the fyrſt measure, and wyth their porches they had wyndowes roūde about, like the fyrſt wyndowes. The heygth was.l.cubytes, the bredth.xxv. wyth ſteppes to go vp vpon: hys porche ſtode before wyth hys pyllers and date trees on ether ſyde. And the dore of the ynnermer courte ſtode towarde the ſouth, and he measured from one dore to another an.C.cubytes. So he brought me into the ynnermer court, thorowe the dore of yͤ ſouthſyde, whych he measured: ⁊ it had the measure aforeſayde. In lyke maner, hys chambres, pyllers and forentreys, had euen the foreſayde measure alſo. And he had wͭ his porches roūde about wyndowes of fifty cubytes heygth, and xxv. cubytes broade. The porches rounde about were.xxv.cubytes longe, and.v.cubytes broad: and his porche reached vnto the vttermoſt court, vpon hys pyllers, there were date trees, and eyght ſteppes to go vp vpon.

E He brought me alſo into the ynmoſt court vpō the eaſt ſyde, and measured the dore, accordyng to the measure aforeſayd, his chambers, pyllers and porches had euen the ſame measure, as the fyrſt had: and with hys porches, he had wyndowes rounde about. The heygth was.l.cubytes, the bredth.xxv.cubytes: hys porches reached vnto the vttermoſt court: his pilliers alſo had date trees on ether ſyde, and.vii.ſteppes to go vp vpon. And he brought me to the north dore ⁊ measured it: which alſo had yͤ forſayde measure. His chābres, pillers ⁊ porches had windowes roūde about: whoſe heyght was.l.cubites, and the bredth.xxv. Hys pyllers ſtode towarde the vtmoſt court, and vpō them both were date trees, and.viii.ſteppes to go vp vpon. Ther ſtode a chambre alſo, whoſe intraunce was at the dore pyllers, and there the burntofferynges were waſſhed.

F In the dore porche, there ſtode on eyther ſyde two tables for the ſlaughtinge: to ſleye the brentofferynges, ſynofferynges and treſpace offeringes therupō. And on the outſide as men go forth to the north dore, there ſtode two tables. Foure tables ſtode on ether ſyde of the dore, that is.viii.tables: wherupon they ſlaughted. Foure tables were of hewē ſtone for the burntoffrynges, of a cubyte and a halfe longe and brode, and one cubyte hye: wherupon were layed the veſſels and ornamentes, whych were vſed to the burnt and ſlayne offeringes: whā they were ſlaughted. And within, there were hokes foure finrges brode, faſtened roūde about to hange fleſhe vpon, and vpō the tables was layed the offring fleſhe. On the out ſyde of the ynnermer dore were the ſyngers chambers in the inwarde court beſyde the north dore ouer agaynſt the ſouth. There ſtode one alſo, beſyde the eaſt dore northwarde.

G And he ſayde vnto me: This chambre on the ſouth ſyde belongeth to the preſtes, that kepe the habytacyon: and thys towarde the north, *is the preſtes that wayte vpon the aulter: which be the ſonnes of ‡Sadoch, that do ſeruyce before the Lorde in ſteade of the chyldren of Leui. So he measured the fore court, which had in lēgth an.C.cubytes, and aſmoch in bredth by the foure corners. Now the aulter ſtode before yͤ houſe. And he brought me to the fore entrye of the houſe, and measured the walles by yͤ entry dore: whych were.v.cubytes longe on eyther ſyde. The thycknes alſo of the dore on eyther ſyde was thre cubytes. The length of the porche was xx.cubytes, the bredth.xi.cubites, and vpon ſteppes went men vp to it: by the walles alſo were pyllers on eyther ſyde one.

¶The diſpoſytion and deuyce of buyldynge agayne the temple, ⁊ of the other thynges thereto belōgynge.

A After thys, he brought me to yͤ tēple, ⁊ measured the poſtes, which were of both ſydes ſyxe cubites thycke, accordynge to the widenes of the tabernacle. The bredth of the dore was.x.cubites, and the walles of the dore on eyther ſyde.v.cubytes. He measured the lēgth therof, whych cōteyned.xl.cubytes, ⁊ the bredth xx. Then went he in ⁊ measured the dore poſtes: which were two cubytes thicke: but the dore it ſelfe was ſyxe cubytes, ād the bredth of the dore was.vii.cubytes. He measured yͤ length and bredth therof, whych were euery one.xx.cubytes, before the temple.

And he ſayde vnto me: this is the holyeſt of all. He measured alſo the wall of the houſe, whych was.vi.cubytes. The chambres yͭ ſtode roūde about the houſe, were euery one iiii.cubites wyde: and one ſtode harde vpon another, wherof ther were.xxxiii. ther ſtode poſtes beneth by the walles roūde about the houſe, to beare thē vp: but in the wall of the houſe, they were not faſtened. The ſyde chābres were, the hyer the wyder, and had ſteppes thorowe them rounde about the houſe.

Thus was it wyder aboue, yͤ frõ the loweſt
B men myght go to the hyeſt by the mydd chãbres.
I ſawe alſo yͤ the houſe was very hye rounde aboute, The foundacyon of the ſyde chãbres was a meterodde, yͤ is. vi. cubytes broade. The thicknes of the ſyde wall without, conteyned. v. cubites, and ſo dyd the out wall of the chambres in the houſe.

Betwene the chambres was the wydenes. xx. cubites rounde about the houſe. The chambre dores ſtode ouer agaynſt the outwall, the one dore was towarde yͤ north, the other towarde the ſouth: and the thyckneſſe of the out wal was. v. cubytes rounde about.
Nowe the buylding that was ſeparated towarde the weſt, was. lxx. cubytes wyde: the wall of the buylding was. v. cubytes thycke rounde about, and the length foure ſcore cubites & ten. So he meaſured the houſe which was an. C. cubytes longe, and the ſeparated buylding with the wall were an. C. cubites longe alſo. The wydenes before the houſe, & of it that was ſeparated towarde the eaſt, was an. C. cubytes.

C And he meaſured the length of the buyldynge before and behynde with the chãbres vpon both the ſydes: and it conteyned an. C. cubytes. The ynnermer temple, the porch of the fore court, the ſyde poſtes, theſe thre had ſyde wyndowes and pyllers rounde about oueragaynſt the poſtes, from the groũde vp to the wyndowes. The wyndowes thẽ ſelues were ſyled ouer wyth bordes: and thus was it aboue yͤ dore vnto the ynmoſt houſe: and wythout alſo. Yee, the whole wall on euery ſyde both within and without was ſyled D ouer wyth great bordes. There were cherubins and date trees made alſo, ſo that one date tree ſtode euer betwixte to cherubyns.
One cherub had two faces, the face of a mã lokyng aſyde towarde the date tree, & a liõs face on the other ſyde. Thus was it made rounde about in all the houſe. Yee, the cherubyns and date trees were made frõ the grounde vp aboue the dore, and ſo ſtode they alſo vpon the wall of the temple,

The by poſtes of the temple were foureſquared, and the faſhyon of the ſanctuarye was *euẽ as it appeared vnto me afore in yͤ viſiõ. ‡The table was of wodde. iii. cubytes hye and. ii. cubytes longe: hys corners, the length & the walles were of wodde. And he ſayde vnto me: Thys is the table, that ſhall ſtande before the Lorde. The temple and the holyeſt of all had eyther of them two dores: and euery dore had. ii. lytle wickettes which were foldẽ in one vpõ another, on euery ſyde two. And vpõ the dores of the temple, there were made cherubins and date trees, like as vpon the walles: and a greate thycke balke of wodde was before on the out ſyde of the porche. Vpon both the ſydes of the walles of the porch, there were made depe wyndowes and date trees, hauyng beames and balkes, lyke as the houſe had.

¶ The. xlii. Chapter.

¶ Of the chambres of the temple for the preſtes, and the holy thynges.

Then caryed he me out into the fore A court towarde the north, and brought me into the chãbre that ſtode oueragaynſt the backbuyldynge north warde, whych had the length of an. C. cubites: whoſe dore turned toward yͤ north.
The wydenes conteyned. l. cubytes: oueragaynſt
the. xx. cubytes of yͤ ynnermer court, and agaynſt the paued worke that was in the court, beſyde al theſe thre, there ſtode pillers, one oueragaynſt another. And before thys chambre there was a walkynge place of. x. cubites wyde, and within was a waye of one cubyte wyde and theyr dores toward the north. Thus the hyeſt chãbres were alwaye narower then the loweſt and myddelmoſt of the buyldynge: for they bare chambre vpon chambre, and ſtode thre together one vpõ another, not hauynge pyllers lyke yͤ fore court: therfore were they ſmaller then thoſe beneth and in the myddeſt to reken frõ the grounde vpwarde.

The wall without that ſtode by the chãbres B towarde the vtmoſt court vpõ the fore ſyde of the chambres, was. l. cubytes longe:
for the length of the vtmoſt chambres in the fore court was. l. cubytes alſo: but the lẽgth therof before the temple was an. C. cubytes.
Theſe chambres had vnder them an intraũce of the eaſt ſyde, wherby a man myght go in to them out of the fore court, thorowe the thicke wall of the fore court towarde yͤ eaſt, ryght oueragaynſt the ſeparated buyldyng.
Before the ſame buyldynge vpõ thys ſyde, there were chãbres alſo whych had a waye vnto them, like as the chambre on the north ſyde of the ſame length and wydeneſſe.

Theyr intraunce, faſhyõ and dores were C alſo of the ſame maner. Yee, euen lyke as the other chambre dores were: ſo were thoſe alſo of the ſouth ſyde. And before the waye towarde the ſyngers ſteppes on the eaſt ſyde, there ſtode a dore to go in at. Then ſayde he vnto me: The chãbers towarde the north & the ſouth whych ſtãde before the backe buyldynge: thoſe be holy habytacyons, wherein the preſtes that do ſeruyce before the Lorde, muſt eate the moſt holy offerynges: & there muſt they laye yͤ moſt holy offeringes, meat offerynges, ſynne offerynges, and treſpace offerynges: for it is an holy place. When the preſtes come therin, they ſhall not go out in to the fore courte: but (ſeynge they be holy) they ſhall leaue the clothes of their miniſtracion, cyon, and put on other garmẽtes, whẽ they haue any thynge to do wyth the people.

D Nowe whẽ he had meaſured all the ynnermer houſe, he brought me forth thorowe the eaſt parte, and meaſured the ſame rounde about. He meaſured the eaſt ſyde with the meterode, which rounde about conteyned. v.C. meterroddes: And the north ſyde meaſured he whych conteyned rounde about euẽ ſo moch. The other two ſydes alſo towarde the ſouth and the weſt, which he meaſured, conteyned ether of them. v.C. meterroddes. So he meaſured all the foure ſydes, where there went a wall rounde aboute. v.C. meterroddes lõge, and as broade alſo which ſeparated the holy from the vnholy.

¶ He ſeeth the glory of God goynge into the temple, from whence it had before departed. He mencyoneth the ydolatrye of the chyldren of Iſrael, for whych they were conſumed and brought to naught. He is cõmaũded to call them agayne to repentaunce.

A SO he brought me to the dore ẏ turneth toward the eaſt. Beholde, then came the glory of ẏ God of Iſrael frõ out of ẏ eaſt, whoſe voyce was lyke a great noyſe of waters, and the earth was lyghtened with his glory. His ſyght to loke vpon was *lyke the fyrſt, that I ſawe whẽ I went in what tyme as the cytie ſhuld haue bene deſtroyed: *and like the viſyon ẏ I ſawe by the water of Cobar. Then fell I vpõ my face: but the glory of the Lord came into the houſe, thorowe the eaſt dore. D This is the deſcripciõ of the houſe. Aboue, vpon the moũt roũde about all the corners, it ſhalbe ẏ holyeſt of all. Beholde, that is the deſcripcyon and faſhyon of the houſe. Thys is the meaſure of the aultar, after the true cubite: whych is a ſpanne longer then another cubyte, his botome in the myddeſt was a cubite longe and wyde, and the ledge that wẽt roũde about it, was a ſpanne broade. Thys is the heygth of the aulter. ¶The.xlvi.Chapter.

The ſacrifyces of the Sabboth and of the newe mones. Thorowe which dores they muſt go in or come out of the temple.&c.

Thus ſaith the Lorde God: ẏ dore A of the innermer court towarde ẏ dayes: but in the ſabboth and in the daye of the newe moone, it ſhalbe opened. Then ſhall ẏ prince come vnder the dore porche, and ſtande ſtill wtout by the dore check. So the preſtes ſhall offre vp his burnt and healthofferinges. And he ſhall worſhyp at the dorepoſte, and go hys waye forth agayne: but the dore ſhall nomore be ſhut tyll the euenynge.

On the ſame maner ſhall the people of the lande alſo do their worſhyp before ẏ Lorde without thys dore vpon the ſabbothes and B newe moones. This is nowe the burntofferyng, yͤ the prince ſhall bryng vnto yͤ Lorde vpon the ſabboth, ſyxe lambes without blemyſh, and a ram without blemiſh, & an ephah for a meatoffering, with the ram. As for the lãbes, he maye geue as many meateofferinges to them as he will: and an hyn of oyle to an ephah. In the daye of the newe moneth, it ſhalbe a yonge bullocke without blemiſh, ſyxe lãbes and a ram alſo Without blemiſh: With the bullocke he ſhall geue an ephah, & with the ram an ephah alſo for a meate offering. but to the lambes, what he maye come by. And euer an hyn of oyle to an ephah.

C When the prince commeth, he ſhall go vnder the dore porche, and euen there departe forth agayne. But when the people of the lande come before the Lord in the hye ſolẽpne feaſte, as many as come in by the north dore to do worſhyp, ſhall go out agayne at the ſouth dore. And they that come in at the ſouth dore, ſhall go forth agayne at yͤ north dore. There ſhall none goo out at the dore, where he came in, but ſhall go ryght forth ouer on the other ſyde, and the prynce ſhall go in and out amonge them.

D Upon the ſolempne and hye feaſte dayes this ſhalbe the meatofferyng. An ephah to a bullocke and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambes, as many as he will: but euer an hyn of oyle to an ephah. Nowe when the prynce bringeth a burntofferyng or an healthofferinge with a fre wyll vnto the Lorde, yͤ eaſt dore ſhalbe opened vnto hym, that he maye do with his burnt and healthofferinges, as he doth vpon the ſabboth: and when he goth forth, the dore ſhalbe ſhut after him agayne. He ſhall dayly bryng vnto the Lorde a lãbe of a yeare olde without blemyſh for a burnt offering: this ſhall he do euery morning.

E And for a meatoffering, he ſhall geue the ſyxte parte of an ephah, and the third part of an hyn of oyle, to myngle with the cakes, euery morning. Yee, this ſhalbe a dayly meatofferinge vnto the Lorde: for an euerlaſtinge ordinaunce: & thus ſhall the lambe the meatoffering and oyle be geuen euery morning, for a daylye burnt offeringe.

Moreouer, thus ſayeth the Lorde God:
If the prynce gyue a gyfte vnto any of hys he wyll geue one of hys ſeruauntes, ſome of theyr poſſeſſion: but to his awne ſonnes ſhall he geue his poſſeſſion, that my people be not ſcatered abroade, but that euery man maye haue hys awne.

And he brought me thorowe the entraũce at the ſyde of the dore to the habitatyõ of the ſanctuary, that belongeth to the preſtes and ſtode towarde the north, and beholde, there was a place vpon the weſt ſyde, then ſayde he vnto me. This is the place where the preſtes G ſhall dyght the treſpace and ſynofferynges, and bake yͤ meatcofferinges, yͤ they nede not beare them into the outwarde court: and ſo to vnhalowe the people. So he brought me into the vtmoſt courte, rounde about all the foure corners. Beholde, in euery corner of the court, there was yet a lytle courte. Yee in all the foure corners of yͤ court, there was made a lytle court of .xl. cubites lõge, & .xxx. cubites broode: theſe foure lytle courtes were of one like meaſure: and there went a ridge wall rounde about them all foure, vnder the which there were harthes made rounde about. Then ſayde he vnto me: Thys is the kechin where the miniſtres of the houſe ſhall dyght the ſlayne offeringes of the people.

The .xlvii. Chapter.

The viſyon of the waters that came out of the temple. The coaſtes of the lande of promes, and yͤ diuiſyon therof by trybes.

After this, he brought me agayne A the water, euẽ to the ancles: ſo he meaſured yet a thouſande, and brought me thorowe the water agayne vnto the knees: yet meaſured he a thouſande, and brought me thorowe the water vnto the loynes. After this he meaſured a thouſande agayne, then was it ſuch a ryuer, that I myght not wade B thorowe it. The water was ſo depe, that it was nedeful to haue ſwimmed, for it might not be waded ouer. And he ſayde vnto me:

haſt thou ſene thys, O thou ſonne of man?
and with that, he brought me to the ryuer banck agayne.

Nowe when I came there, there ſtode many trees vpon ether ſyde of the ryuer bancke. Then ſayde he vnto me: Thys water that floweth oute towarde the eaſt, and runneth downe into the playne felde, commeth into the ſee: and from the ſee it runneth out: & maketh the waters whole. The ende of the prophecye of Ezechiel.

The booke of the prophete Daniel.

The fyrſt Chapter.

The prophete ſheweth ẏ captyuitie of Jehoakim kynge of Juda. Of the ſonnes that were in captyuitie, the kynge commaundeth to choſe which of them ſhulde be taught the learnynge and language of the Chaldees. They are alowed ẏ kynges fedynge. Daniel abſteyneth from the meate of the kynge of babylon,

A IN the thyrde yeare of ẏ raygne of Jehoakim king of Juda, came Nabuchodonoſor kynge of Babylon vnto Jeruſalem, & beſeged it: * and the Lorde delyuered Jehoakim the kynge of Juda into hys hande, with certayne ornamentes of the houſe of God, which he caryed awaye vnto the lande of Sẽnar, to the houſe of his God, and there he brought them into hys goddes treaſury. And the kynge ſpake vnto Aſphanaz the chefe chamberlayne, that he ſhulde brynge hym certayne of the chyldren of Iſrael, that were come of the kynges ſede and of prynces, yonge ſpryngaldes without eny blemyſh, but fayre and wel fauored, inſtruct in all wyſedome, connynge and vnderſtandynge: which were able to ſtande in the kynges palace, to reade and to learne for to ſpeake Chaldeyſh.

B Unto theſe the kynge appoynted a certayne porcyon of his owne meate and of the wyne, which he drancke hym ſelfe, ſo to noryſh them thre yeare: that afterwarde they myght ſtande before the kynge. Amonge theſe nowe were certayne of the chyldren of Juda: namely Daniel, Ananias, Miſael and Azarias. Unto theſe, the chefe chãberlayne gaue other names, and called Daniel, Balthaſar: Ananias, Sidrach, Miſael, Miſach: and Aſarias, Abednago. But Daniel was at a poynt with hym ſelfe, * that he wolde not be defyled thorowe the kynges meate,
C ner the wyne which he dronke. And thys he deſyred of the chefe chãberlayn, leſt he ſhuld defyle hym ſelfe. So God gaue Daniel fauoure and grace before the chefe chãberlayn that he ſayde vnto him: I am afrayde of my Lorde the kyng, which hath appoynted you your meate and drincke: leſt he ſpye your faces to be worſe lykyng then the other ſpringaldes of your age, and ſo ye ſhall make me loſe my head vnto the kynge.

Then Daniel anſwered Melaſſar, whom the chefe chamberlayne had ſet ouer Daniel, Ananias, Miſael and Aſarias, and ſayd: O proue but ten dayes with thy ſeruaũtes, and let vs haue potage to eate, & water to drincke: then loke vpon oure faces, & theyrs that eate of the kinges meate. And as thou ſeyſt, ſo deale with thy ſeruaũtes. So he conſented to them in this mater, & proued them .x. dayes. And after the ten dayes, theyr faces were better lykinge and fatter, then all the yonge ſpringaldes, which dyd eate of ẏ kinges meate.

D Thus Melaſſar toke awaye theyr meate and wyne, and gaue them potage therfore. God gaue nowe theſe foure ſpringaldes cōnynge and lernyng in all ſcripture and wyſdome: but vnto Daniel ſpecialy, he gaue vnderſtandinge of all vyſions and dreames. Nowe whē the tyme was expired, that the kynge had appoynted to bring in theſe yong ſpringaldes vnto hym, the chefe chāberlayne brought thē before Nabuchodonoſor and the kinge communed with them. But amōg them all were founde none ſuche as Daniel, Ananias, Miſael, and Aſarias. Therfore ſtode they before the kinge which in al wyſdome and matters of vnderſtandinge, that he enquyred of them, foūde them ten tymes better, then all the ſothſayers and charmers ẏ were in all his realme. And Daniel abode ſtyll, vnto the firſt yere of kynge Cyrus.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

The dreame of Nabuchodonoſor. He calleth vnto hym ſothſayers & requireth of thē both the dreame & the interpretation therof. They anſwer that they cannot ſhewe it. The kynge commaundeth all the wiſe men of Babilon to be ſlaine. Daniel requireth tyme to ſolute the queſtion. The lorde openethe the myſtery vnto Daniel. Daniel is brought vnto the kynge, & ſheweth hym his dreame and the interprecion therof. Of the euerlaſtinge kingdom of Chriſt

A IN the ſecond yere of the reygne of Nabuchodonoſor, had Nabuchodonoſor a dreame, *wherthrough his ſpirite was vexed, and his ſlepe breake from him. Then the kynge commaūded to call to gether all the ſothſayers, charmers, witches and Chaldes, for to ſhewe ẏ kynge his dreame. So they came, and ſtode before the kynge. And the kynge ſayde vnto them: I haue dreamed a dreame, & my ſprete was ſo troubled therwith, that I haue clene ☞ forgotten, what I dreamed. Upon this the Chaldees anſwered the kynge ☜ in ẏ Syrians ſpeche: O kynge, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. Shewe thy ſeruaũtes thy dreame, and we ſhall ſhewe the, what it meaneth. The kynge gaue ẏ Chaldes theyr anſwere and ſayde: It is gone fro me. Yf ye wyll not make me vnderſtande the dreame with the interpretation therof, ye ſhall dye, and youre houſes ſhalbe pryſed. But yf ye tell me the dreame and the meanynge therof B ye ſhall haue of me gyftes, rewardes and greate honoure: onely ſhewe me the dreame and the ſingnification of it. They anſwered agayne, and ſayd: the kyng muſt ſhewe his ſeruaũtes the dreame, and ſo ſhall we declare what it meaneth. Then the kinge anſwered, ſaying: I perceaue of a truth, that ye do but prolonge the tyme, forſo moche as ye ſe that the thing is gone fro me. Therfore if ye wyl not tell me the dreame, ye ſhall all haue one iudgement. But ye fayne & diſſemble wͭ vayne wordes, which ye ſpake before me, to put of the tyme. Therfore tell me the dreame & ſo ſhal I knowe yf ye can ſhewe me what it meaneth. Upō this, ẏ Chaldees gaue anſwere before the kinge. & ſaid: there is no mā vpon erth, that can tell the thinge, whiche ẏ kynge ſpeaketh of: yee, there is nether kyng prince ne lorde, that euer aſked ſuche thynges at a ſouthſaier, charmer or Caldey: for it is a very harde mater, that the kyng requireth. Nether is there any, that can certifye the kynge therof, excepte the goddes: whoſe dwellyng is not amonge the creatures. For the whiche cauſe the kynge was wroth C with great indignation, and cōmaunded to deſtroye all the wyſe men at Babilon: & the proclamation went forth, and the wyſe mē were ſlayne. They ſought alſo to ſlaye Daniel with his companions. Then Daniel enquyred of Arioch the kinges ſtewarde, of ẏ iudgement & ſentence, that was gone forth al redy to kil ſuch as were wyſe at Babilō. he anſwered and ſayde vnto Arioch beinge then the kinges deputie. Why hath the king proclaymed ſo cruell a ſentence? So Arioch tolde Daniel the mater. Upon this, wente Daniel vp, and deſyred the kynge, that he myght haue leyſure, to ſhewe the kynge ẏ interpretacion, & then came he home againe & ſhewed the thinge vnto Ananias, Miſael & Aſarias his companions: ẏ they ſhuld beſeche the God of heauē for grace in this ſecret, that Daniel & his felowes with other ſuche as were wyſe in Babylō, periſhed not. Thē was ẏ miſtery ſhewed vnto Daniel in a viſyon by nyght. And daniel prayſed the God of heauen. Daniel alſo cried loude, & ſayd: O that the name of God myght be prayſed for euer and euer, for wyſedome & ſtrengthe are his owne: *he chaungeth the tymes & ages:‡ D he putteth downe kinges, he ſetteth vp kinges: *he gyueth wiſdome vnto the wyſe, & vnderſtandynge to thoſe that vnderſtande, he openeth the depe ſecretes: he knoweth the thinge that lyeth in darkenes:‡ for the lyght dwelleth with him. I thāke the, & prayſe ẏ (O thou God of my fathers) ẏ thou haſt lēt me wyſdome & ſtrength, & haſt ſhewed me ẏ thynge, that we deſyred of the for thou haſt opened the kinges mater vnto me.

Upon this went Daniel in vnto Arioch, whom the kyng had ordeined to deſtroy the wyſe at Babilon, he went vnto him, & ſaid: deſtroye not ſuche as be wyſe in Babylon, but bringe me in vnto the kynge, and I ſhal ſhewe the kynge the interpretation. Then Arioch brought Daniel into the kinge in al the haſte, and ſayde vnto hym: I haue foūde

a man amonge the pꝛeſoners of Juda, that ſhall ſhewe the kynge the interpꝛetation. Then aunſwered the kynge and ſayde vnto Daniell, whoſe name was Balthazar. Arte thou he that canſt ſhewe me yͤ dꝛeame, whiche J haue ſene, & the interpꝛetation therof: Daniel aunſwered the kynge to his face, and ſaide: As foꝛ this ſecrete, foꝛ the whiche the kinge maketh inquiſition: it is nether yͤ wiſe the ſoꝛcerer, the charmer ner the deuel coniurer that can certifie the kynge of it. * Mat.xxi.e Luke.xx.b * This thou ſaweſt tyll the tyme, yͤ without eny handes, there was hewen, of a ſtone which ſmote the Jmage vpon the fete, that were both of yꝛon and earth, & bꝛeake them to pouldꝛe: then was the yꝛon, the earth, the copper, the ſyluer and golde bꝛoken al together in peces: and became lyke the chaffe of coꝛne, that the wynde bloweth awaye from the ſomer floures, that they can no moꝛe be founde. But the ſtone that ſmote the image, became a greate moūtaine, which fulfylleth the whole earth: This is the dꝛeame. And nowe wyll we ſhewe befoꝛe the kinge what it meaneth.

F Dani.v.d * O kynge thou arte a kynge of kynges: Foꝛ the God of heauē hath geuē the a kyngdome, ryches, ſtrength and mageſty: & hath delyuered the all thynges, that are amonge the chyldern of men: the beaſtes of the felde & the foules vnder the heauen, and geuen the dominion ouer thē al: Thou art that golden head. After yͤ there ſhall aryſe another kingdome, which ſhall be leſſe then thyne: The thyꝛde kyngdome ſhalbe like copper, & haue domination in all lādes. The fourth kyngdome ſhalbe as ſtronge as yꝛon. Foꝛ like as yꝛon bꝛuſeth and bꝛeaketh all thynges: Yee, euen as yꝛon beateth euery thyng downe, ſo ſhall it beate downe and deſtroye.

Where as thou saweſt the fete and toes, parte of earth and parte of yꝛon: that is a deuided kingedome, whiche neuertheles ſhall haue ſome of the yꝛon grounde mixte with it foꝛ ſo moche as thou haſt ſene the yꝛon mixt with the claye.

The toes of the fete that were parte of yꝛon and parte of claye, ſygnifieth: that it ſhalbe a kyngdome partely ſtronge and partely weake. And where as thou ſaweſt yꝛon myxte wyth claye, they ſhall myngle them ſelues with the ſede of ſymple people, & yet not cōtynue one with another lyke as yꝛon wyll not be ſouldered with a potsherde. Then the kynge Nabuchodonſoꝛ * fell downe vpon his face, & bowed him ſelfe vnto Daniel, and commaūded that they ſhuld offre meatofferinges and ſwete odoures vnto hym. The kyng anſwered Daniel, and ſayde: yee, of a trueth youre God is a God aboue all goddes, a Loꝛde aboue all kynges and an opener of ſecretes: ſeynge thou canſt diſcouer this myſterye. So the kynge made Daniel a greate man, and gaue him many & greate gyftes. * Actu.xiiii.b

* He made him ruler of all the countrees of Babylon, and Loꝛd of al the nobles, that were at Babilon. The.iii.Chapter.

The kynge ſetteth vp a golden Jmage, which he commaundeth to be woꝛſhypped. Sidꝛach, Miſach, & Abednago are accuſed becauſe they diſpiſed the kinges commaundemente. They are bꝛoughte vnto the king & cōmaunded to woꝛſhyp the Jmage they refuſe to do it & are put in to a burning ouen. By beleſe in god they are deliuered from yͤ fyer. Nabuchodonoſoꝛ confeſſeth the power of God after the ſyght of the miracle.

A NAbuchodonoſoꝛ the kyng cauſed a golden Jmage to be made, whiche was .lx. cubytes hye, and ſyxe cubytes thycke. This he made to be ſet vp in the felde of Dura in the land of Babylon & ſent oute to gather together the dukes, Loꝛdes and nobles, the iudges and officers, the debytes and ſhꝛeues: with al the rulers of the lande: that they myght come to yͤ dedicatiō of yͤ Jmage, whiche Nabuchodonoſoꝛ noſor the kynge had ſet vp: So the dukes, Lordes and nobles, the iudges and officers, debites and ſhreues with al the rulers of the lande gathred them together, and came vnto the dedicatinge of the Image, that Nabuchodonoſer the kynge had ſet vp.

B Nowe whē they ſtode before the Image, which Nabuchodonoſor ſet vp, yͤ bedel cried out with al his might: O ye people, kinreddes and tonges, to you be it ſayde: that whē ye here the noyſe of the trompettes, whiche ſhalbe blowen, with the harpes, ſhawmes, Pſalteries, Symphonies and all maner of Muſik: ye fall downe and worſhippe yͤ golden Image, that Nabuchodonoſor yͤ kyng hath ſet vp. Whoſo then falleth not downe ⁊ boweth hym ſelf, ſhal euen the ſame houre be caſt into an hote burnynge ouen. Therfore when all the folke herde the noyſe of yͤ trompetes that were blowen, with the harpes, ſhawmes, Pſalteries, Symphonyes ⁊ all kynde of Melody, then all yͤ people kynreddes and nations fell doune, and bowed them ſelues vnto the goldē Image, that Nabuchodonoſor
the kynge had ſet vp.

C Nowe were there certayne men of yͤ Caldees, that wente euen then and accuſed the Iewes, and ſayd vnto the kynge Nabuchodonoſor:
O king, god ſaue thy lyfe for euer= Thou beinge kynge haſt gyuen a commaūdement, that all men when they here yͤ noyſe of the trompettes, harpes, ſhaumes, ſpalteryes, ſhall fall downe and bowe them ſelues, towarde the golden Image: who ſo then fel not downe ⁊ worſhypped not that, he ſhuld be caſte into an hotte burnyng ouen. Now are there certaine Iewes, * whom thou haſt * Dani.ij.g. namely, Syrach: Miſach and Abednago.

Theſe men (O kyng) regarded not thy commaūdment, yee, they wyl not ſerue thy goddes, ner bowe them ſelues to the golden Image, that thou haſt ſet vp.

Then Nabuchodnoſor in a cruell wrath and diſpleaſure, commaūded, that Sidrach Miſach and Abednago ſhulde be broughte vnto hym. So theſe men were brought before the king. Then Nabuchodonoſor ſpake vnto them, ⁊ ſayde: what? O Sidrach Miſache and Abednago, wyl not you ſerue my goddes? nor bowe your ſelues to the golden it not, ye ſhall be caſt immediatly into an hote burnynge ouen. Let ſe, what god is there, that maye delyuer you oute of my aunſwered the king, and ſayd: O Nabuchodonoſor, we ought not to conſente vnto the vs out of thy handes. And though he wyll not, yet ſhalt thou knowe (O kynge) yͤ we wil not ſerue thy goddes, ner do reuerēce to yͤ Image, whiche thou haſte ſet vp. Then was Nabuchodonoſor ful of indignatiō, ſo that the countenaunce of his face chaunged vpō Sidrach, Miſach, ⁊ Abednago. Therfore he charged and cōmaunded, that the ouen ſhuld be made. vii. tymes hotter then it worthies that were in his hoſte, for to

So theſe men were bounde in their cotes E hoſen ſhues with theyr other garmentes, ⁊ caſt into an hote burnynge ouen: for the kinges commaundement was ſo ſtrayte, and yͤ ouen was excedynge hot. As for the men yͤ put in Sidrach, Miſach ⁊ Abednago, yͤ flame of the fyre diſtroyed them. And theſe thre

⁊ ſtode vp in al haſte: he ſpake vnto his counſel and ſayd, dyd not you caſte theſe

⁊ ſayd vnto the kynge: Yee, O king.
He aunſwered, and ſayd: lo, for all that, yet do I ſe foure mē goinge louſe in the myddeſt

Upon this went Nabuchodonoſor vnto

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

¶ Nabuchodonoſor dreameth agayne. Daniel interpreteth it. Nabuchodonoſor is put out of hys realme, & eateth with beaſtes. He confeſſeth the power of God, & is reſtored into hys kyngdome.

A Danie. vi. e. N * Abuchodonoſor kynge vnto all people, kyneddes and tunges that dwell vpõ yͤ whole earth: peace be multiplied amõge you. I thought it good to ſhewe the tokens and maruelous workes, that the hye God hath wrought vpon me. Psal. xlv. b. Dani. vii. d. Luke. i. c. O, howe great are his tokens, and howe myghtye are hys wonders! * Hys kyngdome is an euerlaſtynge kyngdome, and hys power laſteth for euer and euer.

I Nabuchodonoſor beynge at reſt in myne houſe, and floriſhynge in my palace, ſawe a dreame, which made me afrayed: & yͤ *Dani. ii. a. thoughtes that I had vpon my bed, wyth yͤ viſyons of myne head, troubled me. * Then ſent I out a commiſſyon, that all they which were of wyſdome at Babylon ſhulde be brought before me, to tell me the interpretacyon of the dreame. So there came the ſothſayers, charmers, Caldees and coniurers of deuels: to whõ I tolde yͤ dreame, but what it betokened, they coulde not ſhewe me: tyll at yͤ laſt, there came one Daniel (other wyſe called Balthazar, according to the name of my God) whych hath the ſprete of the holy B goddes in hym, to whõ I tolde the dreame, ſaying: O Balthazar, thou prince of Sothſayers: For ſo moche as I knowe, that thou haſt the ſprete of the holy Goddes and no ſecrete is hyd from the: tell me therfore, what the viſyon of my dreame (that I haue ſene) maye ſignifye. I ſawe a viſyon in my heade vpon my bed: and beholde, there ſtode a tree vpon the grounde, whych was very hye, greate and myghtye: yͤ heygeth reached vnto the heauen, and the bredth extẽded to all the endes of the earth: hys leaues were fayre, he had very moche frute, ſo that euery mã had ynough to eate therin.

The beaſtes of the felde had ſhadowes vnder it, and the foules of the ayre dwelt in the bowes therof. Shortly, all creatures fed of it. I ſawe in my head a viſyon vpon my bed: & beholde, a watcher & a holy one came downe from heauen, & cryed myghtely, ſayinge. Hewe downe yͤ tree, breake of his braunches, ſhake of his leaues, & ſcatre his frute abrode: that all the beaſtes maye get them awaye from vnder him, and the foules from his brãuches. Neuertheles, leaue the groũde of his rote ſtyll in yͤ earth, & bynde him vpon the playne felde, wyth cheynes of yron and ſtele. Wyth the dewe of heauen ſhall he be wet, & he ſhall haue hys parte in the herbes of the grounde with other wylde beaſtes.

C That mans herte of his ſhall be taken frõ hym, and a beaſtes herte ſhall be geuen him, tyll ſeuẽ yeares be come and gone vpõ hym.

Thys erande of the watcher, is a commaundement grounded and ſought out in yͤ counſell of him, that is moſt holy: to learne men for to vnderſtande, that the hyeſt hath power ouer the kyngdomes of mẽ, & geueth them, to whom it lyketh him, and bryngeth the very outcaſtes of men ouer them. Thys is the dreame, that I kynge Nabuchodonoſor haue ſene. Therfore O Balthazar, tel yͤ me what it ſignifyeth: for ſo moche as all the wyſe men of my kyngdome are not able to ſhewe me, what it meaneth. But thou canſt do it, for yͤ ſprete of yͤ holy goddes is in the.

Then Daniel (whoſe name was Balthazar) helde hys peace by the ſpace of on houre and his thoughtes troubled hym. So the king ſpake, and ſayde: O Balthazar, let nether the dreame ner yͤ interpretation therof D feare yͤ. Balthazar anſwered ſaying: O my Lorde, this dreame happẽ to thyne enemies, and the interpretation to thyne aduerſaries. As for the tree that thou ſaweſt which was ſo greate & myghtye, whoſe heygth reached vnto the heuen, and his bredthe in to all the world: whoſe leaues were fayre, and yͤ frute moche vnder the which yͤ beaſtes of the felde had theyr habytacion, & vpon whoſe braunches the foules of the ayre dyd ſyt.

Euen thou (O kyng) arte the tree, great and ſtronge. Thy greatnes increaſeth, & reacheth vnto the heuen, ſo doth thy power to yͤ endes of the earth. But where as the kyng ſawe a watcher euen an holy angell, yͭ came downe from heuẽ, and ſayde: hewe downe the tree, and deſtroye it: yet leaue the ground of the rote of the earth: and bynde hym vpon the playne felde wͭ cheynes of yron & ſtele. He ſhall be wet with the dewe of heauen, & hys parte ſhall be with yͤ beaſtes of the felde tyll vii. yeres be come and gone vpon hym: E Thys (O kynge) is the interpretation, yee, it is the very deuyce of hym, that is hyeſt of all, and it toucheth my lorde the kinge.

Thou ſhalte be caſt out from men, & thy dwellynge ſhalbe with yͤ beaſtes of yͤ felde: with graſſe ſhalt thou be fed lyke an oxe. Thou muſt be wet with the dewe of the heauen: yee, ſeuen yeares ſhall come, & go vpon the, tyll thou knowe, * yͭ the hyeſt hath power vpon the kyngdomes of men, & geueth Danie. iii. a. Iere. xxvii. thẽ to whom he lyſt. Moreouer, where as it was ſayde, that the rote of the tree ſhulde be lefte ſtyl in the grounde: it betokeneth, yͭ thy kingdome ſhal remaine whole vnto the, after thou haſt lerned to knowe, that yͤ power commeth from heauen. Wherfore, O kynge be content with my coũſell, that thou mayſt redeme thy ſynnes with almeſſe * & thyne *Eccl. xix. offences with mercye to poore people: for thys ſhall be an helynge of thyne erroure.

All theſe thynges touche the kynge Nabuchodonoſor.

F So after .xij. monethes, the kynge walked vp and downe in the palace of yͤ kyngdome of Babylon, and ſayde. Thys is the greate cyte of Babylon, whych I my ſelfe (with my power and ſtrength) haue made a kynges courte, for the honour of my maieſtye. Whyle theſe wordes were yet in yͤ kynges mouth, there fell a voyce from heauen, ſayinge: O kynge Nabuchodonoſor, to the be it ſpoken: Thy kyngdome ſhall departe from the, thou ſhalt be caſt out of mẽs company: thy dwellynge ſhalbe with the beaſtes of the felde, ſo that thou ſhalt eate graſſe lyke as an oxe, tyll ſeuen yeares become and gone ouer the: euen vntyll thou knoweſt, that the hyeſt hath power vpon the kyngdomes of men, & that he maye geue them, vnto whom it pleaſeth hym. The very ſame houre was thys matter fulfylled vpon Nabuchodonoſor: ſo that he was caſt out of mens cõpany, and dyd eate graſſe lyke an oxe. Hys body was wet with the dewe of heauen, tyll hys heares were as great as Aegles fethers, and hys nayles lyke byrdes clawes.

G When thys tyme was paſt, I Nabuchodonoſor lyfte vp myne eyes vnto heauẽ, and myne vnderſtandynge was reſtored vnto me agayne. Then gaue I thanckes vnto the hygheſt. I magnifyed and prayſed him that

*Dani.iii.c. lyueth for euermore, *whoſe power ẽdureth alwaye, and hys kyngdome from one generacyon to another: in comparyſon of whom all they that dwell vpon the earth, are to be reputed as nothynge.

*Pſ.cxxxv.a *He handleth accordynge to hys will, amonge the powers of heauen & amonge the inhabytours of the earth: and there is none

*Job.xiij.b. yͭ maye reſyſte his hande, or ſaye: what doeſt thou? *At the ſame tyme was myne vnderſtandynge geuen me agayne, and I was reſtored to yͤ honoure of my kyngdome, to my dignyte, and to myne awne ſhape agayne. My great eſtates and princes ſought vnto me, and I was ſet in my kyngdome agayne, ſo that I had yet greater worſhyppe.

Then dyd I Nabuchodonoſor, loue, magnifye and prayſe the kynge of heauen: for all his workes are true, & his wayes ryght. As for thoſe that go on proudly, he is able to brynge them downe.

¶ The .v. Chapter.

¶ Balthaſar kynge of Babylon, abuſynge the veſſels of the temple, ſeeth an hande wrytinge in the wall. The ſotheſayers, called of the kynge, cannot expounde the wrytynge. Daniel is called, whych readeth it, and interpreteth it alſo. Balthazar beynge ſlayne, Darius ſucceedeth in hys rowme.

A Kynge Baltazar made a great bãcket to hys thouſande Lordes: wᵗ all theſe thouſande he made great chere, and when he was droncken wᵗ wyne he cõmaunded to brynge hym the golden and ſyluer veſſels *whych his father Nabuchodonoſor had taken oute of the temple at Jeruſalem: that the kynge & his Lordes with his quene and concubynes myght dryncke therout. *i.pa.xxxvi.c

So they brought the golden veſſell, that was taken oute of the temple of the Lordes houſe at Jeruſalem. Then the kynge and his Lordes wᵗ his quene and cõcubynes droncke out of them. They droncke wyne, and prayſed theyr Idoles of golde, ſyluer, copper yrõ, wodde and ſtone.

B In the very ſame houre there appeared fyngers, as it had bene of a mans hãde wrytynge, ryght ouer agaynſt the candelſtycke vpon the playne wall in the kynges palace: & the kynge ſawe the palme of the hãde that wrote. *Then chaunged the kynge his coũtenaũce, and his thoughtes troubled him, ſo *Jere.l.a. that the ioyntes of his body ſhoke, and hys knees ſmote one agaynſt the other. *Wherfore the kynge cryed myghtely, yͭ they ſhulde *Danie.ii.a. brynge hym the charmers, Caldees and coniurers of deuels. The kynge ſpake alſo to the wyſe men of Babylon, and ſayde: Who ſo can rede this wrytynge, & ſhewe me yͤ playne meanynge therof: ſhall be clothed with purple, haue a cheyne of golde aboute his necke, and rule the thyrde part of my kyngdome.

Upon this, came all the kinges wyſe men: but they coulde nether reade yͤ wrytinge, ner ſhewe yͤ kynge what it ſignifyed. Thẽ was the kynge ſore afrayed, in ſo moch, yͭ hys coloure chaunged, and hys Lordes were ſore vexed. So by reaſon of this matter, that had

C happened to the kynge & his Lordes, yͤ quene went vp her ſelfe into the bãcket houſe, and ſpake vnto yͤ kynge, ſayinge: O kyng, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. Let not the thoughtes trouble the, and let not thy countenaunce be chaunged. For why? there is a man in thy kyngdome, that hath the ſprete of the holy goddes within him, *as it was ſene in thy *Danie.ii.a. fathers dayes. He hath vnderſtãdynge and wyſdome lyke yͤ goddes. Ye the kynge Nabuchodonoſor thy father made this mã chefe of yͤ ſothſayers, charmers, Caldees and readers of deſtines: becauſe that ſoche an aboũdaunt ſprete, knowledge & wyſdome (to expoũde dreames, to open ſecretes, and to declare harde dowtes) was foũde in hym: yee, euen in Daniel, whõ the kyng named Balthaſar. Let thys ſame Daniel be ſente for, and he ſhall tell what it meaneth.

Then was Daniel brought before the kynge. So yͤ kynge ſpake vnto Daniel, and ſayde. Art thou that Daniel, one of the preſoners of Juda, whom my father the kynge brought out of Jewry? I haue heard ſpeake of the, that thou haſt the ſprete of the holy goddes, experience and vnderſtãdynge, and that there hath bene greate wyſdome foũde in the.

D in the. Nowe haue there bene brought me, wyſe & connynge charmers, to reade thys wrytynge and to ſhewe me the meanynge therof. But they coulde not tell me, what thys matter ſignifyed. Then hearde J ſaye, yͤ thou canſt expounde darcke thynges, and declare harde doutes. Well, than yf thou cāſt reade thys wrytinge, & ſhewe me the meanynge therof thou ſhalt be clothed wͭ purple, haue a cheyne of golde aboute thy necke, and rule the thyrde parte of my kyngdome.

E Daniel anſwered, & ſayde before yͤ kynge: *iiii.Re.v.d. *As for thy rewardes, kepe thē to thy ſelfe, Mat.x.a. or geue thy ryche gyftes to another: yet not the leſſe, J wyll rede the wrytynge vnto the

*Dani.ii.c. *O kynge heare. God the hyeſt gaue vnto Nabuchodonoſor thy father, the dignytie of a kynge with worſhyppe & honour, ſo that all people, kynreddes & tunges ſtode in awe and feare of him, by reaſon of the hye eſtate, that he had lent him. For why, he ſlewe whō he wolde: he ſmote, whom it pleaſed hym.

the hyeſt had power vpō the kyngdomes of men and ſetteth ouer them, whom he lyſt.

And thou his ſonne (O Baltazar) for all this, haſt not ſubmytted thine herte, though thou kneweſt all theſe thynges: but haſt magnifyed thy ſelfe aboue the Lorde of heauen, ſo that yͤ veſſels of hys houſe were brought before the. that thou, and thy Lordes, wͭ thy which nether ſee, heare ner vnderſtande. As *Act.xvii.d. for the God *in whoſe hande conſyſteth thy

Then commaunded Baltazar, to cloth Daniel wyth purple, to hange a cheyne of

¶ The .vj. Chapter.

¶ Daniel is made ruler ouer the Lordes. The Imaginacyō of an acte agaynſt Daniel. The proclamacyon of the acte, wherof Daniel is accuſed vnto the kynge as a trāſgreſſours. He is put into a denne of Lyons by the commaundement of the kynge. He is delyuered by fayth in God. Daniels accuſars are put vnto the Lyōs to be torne in ſonder. Darius by the proclamacyon of a decree, magnifyeth the God of Daniel.

IT pleaſed Darius to ſet ouer his A kyngdome an .C. and .xx. Lordes whiche ſhulde be in all his kyngdome about. Aboue theſe he ſet thre princes (of whō Daniel was one) yͭ the Lordes myght geue accomptes vnto them, and the kynge to be vndiſeaſed.

But Daniel exceaded all theſe princes and Lordes, for the ſprete of God was plenteous in hym: ſo that yͤ kynge was mynded to ſet him ouer the whole realme. Wherfore the princes and Lordes ſought, to pycke out in Daniel ſome quarell agaynſt the kyngdome:
yet coulde they fynde none occaſyon ner faute vpon hym. For why? he was ſo faythfull, yͭ there was no blame ner diſhoneſty founde in hym.

Then ſayde theſe men: we can get no B quarell agaynſt thys Daniel, excepte it be in the lawe of his God. Upon thys, wente the princes & Lordes together vnto the kynge, & ſayde thus vnto him: kynge Darius, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer. All yͤ greate eſtates of the realme: as the Princes, Dukes, Senatours and Judges, are determed to put oute a commaundement of the kynge, & to make a ſure ſtatute: namely, yͭ whoſo deſyreth any peticyon, ether of any God or man (wythin this .xxx. dayes) excepte it be onely of the, O kynge: the ſame perſon maye be caſt into the Lyons denne. Wherfore, O kyng, confyrme to this ſtatute, and make a wrytinge: that yͤ thinge which the Medes and Perſes haue ordeyned be not altered ner broken.

So Darius made the wrytinge, and cōfyrmed C it. Nowe when Daniel vnderſtode yͭ the wrytinge was made, he wente into hys houſe: & yͤ wyndowes of hys wall towarde Jeruſalē ſtode opē. There kneled he downe vpon his knees, thre tymes a daye: there he made hys peticyon, and prayſed hys God, lyke as his maner was to do afore tyme.

Then theſe men made ſearche, and foūde Daniel makynge hys peticyon, & prayinge vnto his God. So they came to the kynge, & ſpake before him concernynge hys cōmaundement, ſayinge: O kyng, haſt thou not ſubſcribed the ſtatute, yͭ within .xxx. dayes who ſo requyreth his peticyō of any God or man but onely of thy ſelfe, O kyng: he ſhalbe caſt into the denne of the Lyons? The kynge anſwered ſwered, and ſayde: yee, it is true. It muſt be as a lawe of the Medes ⁊ Perſes, that maye not be broken.

D Then anſwered they, and ſayde vnto yͤ kynge: Daniel one of the preſoners of Iuda O kynge, regardeth nether the, ner thy ſtatute, yͭ thou haſt made, but maketh his peticyon thre tymes a daye. When the kynge herde theſe wordes, he was ſore greued, and wolde haue excuſed Daniel, to delyuer him, and put of the matter, vntyll the Sūne wēt downe, to the intēt that he myght ſaue him.

These men perceauynge yͤ kynges mynde, ſayde vnto him: knowe this (O kynge) yͭ the lawe of the Medes and Perſes is, that the cōmaundement & ſtatute whych yͤ kynge *Bel. c. maketh, maye not be altered. *Then yͤ king bad them brynge Daniel, and they caſt hym into the Lyons denne.

The kynge alſo ſpake vnto Daniel, and ſayde: thy God, whom thou alwaye ſerueſt, euē he ſhal defēde yͤ. And there was brought a ſtone, and layed vpon the hole of the dēne:
thys the kynge ſealed with hys awne rynge, E and with the ſygnet of hys prynces: that the kynges cōmaundement cōcernynge Daniel, ſhulde not be broken.

So the kynge wente into his palace, and eate no meate yͭ night, nether was there any mynſtrelſy brought in before hym, nether coulde he take any ſlepe. But bytymes in yͤ mornynge at the breake of the daye, yͤ kyng aroſe, and wente in all haſte vnto the denne of the Lyons.

Nowe as he came nye vnto the denne, he cryed wᵗ a piteous voyce vnto Daniel: yee, the kynge ſpake, and ſayde vnto Daniel: O Daniel, thou ſeruaunt of the lyuynge God, is not thy God (whō thou alwaye ſerueſt) able to delyuer the from the lyons? Daniel ſayde vnto yͤ kynge. O kynge, God ſaue thy

Then was the kynge exceadynge glad, & cōmaunded to take Daniel out of the denne, and no maner of hurte was founde vpō him For he put hys truſt in hys God. And as for

¶ The. vij. Chapter.

¶ A viſyon of. iiij. beaſtes is ſhewed vnto Daniel. The viſyon is interpreted of. iiij. kyngdomes of the worlde. Of the power and increaſſe of Antichriſt. Of the euerlaſtynge kyngdome of Chriſt.

IN the fyrſt yeare of Baltazar kynge A of Babylon, ſawe Daniel a dreame, and a viſyon was in hys heade vpon hys bedde. Which dreame he wrote, and the ſumme of the matter is this: Daniel ſpake and ſayde: I ſawe in my viſyon by nyght, and beholde: the foure wyndes of the heauen ſtrone vpō the ſee, and foure greate beaſtes came vp frō the ſee, one vnlyke another.

The fyrſt was as *a lyon, and yet had he *Ier. iiij. a. b

Beholde, the ſeconde beaſt was lyke a B

there was another lyke vnto a leoparde, this had wynges as a foule, *euē foure vpō *Dan. viij. b the backe. Thys beaſt had foure heades, and and. xi. a. there was power geuen hym. After thys I i. Macha. i. a. ſawe in a viſyon by nyght, and beholde, the fourth beaſt was grymme and horrible, and maruelous ſtronge. It had great yron teeth, it deuoured and deſtroyed, and ſtamped the

the other beaſtes that were before it: for it had *ten hornes, wherof I toke good hede. *Apoc. xiij. a

And beholde, there came vp amōge them, and. xvij. c.

As for the power of the other beaſtes alſo it was taken awaye, but their lyues were prolonged for a tyme and ſeaſon. I ſawe in *Mat.xiiij.c. Actes.i.d. Apoc.i.a. a viſion by nyght, and beholde, *there came one in the cloudes of heauen lyke the ſonne of a man, whych wente vnto the olde aged, before whom they brought him. So he tolde me, and made me vnderſtande the interpretaciō of theſe thinges.

E These foure great beaſtes, are foure kynges which ſhal aryſe out of the earth. These ſhall take in the kyngdome of the ſaynctes of the moſt hyeſt, and poſſeſſe it ſtyll more & more for a longe ſeaſon. After thys I requyred diligently to knowe the trueth, concernynge the fourth beaſt, whych was ſo farre vnlyke the other beaſtes, and ſo horrible: whoſe teeth were of yron, and his nayles of braſſe: whych deuoured and deſtroyed, and ſtāped the reſydue vnder his fete. I deſyred, alſo to knowe the trueth, as touchynge the *Apoc.xiii.a and.xvii.c. *ten hornes that he had vpō his heade, and thys other which came vp afterwarde, before whoſe face there fell downe thre, which horne had eyes and a mouth that ſpake preſumptuous thynges, and loked wᵗ a grymmer viſage then his folowes. I behelde, and the ſame horne made battayll agaynſt the F ſaynctes, yee, and gat the victory of thē, vntyll the tyme that the olde aged came, that ẏ iudgement was geuen to ẏ cheſeſt ſaynctes: and tyll the tyme that the ſaynctes had the kyngdome in poſſeſſyon. He gaue me thys anſwere. That fourth beaſte ſhalbe ẏ fourth kyngdome vpon earth: it ſhalbe more then all other kyngdomes, it ſhal deuoure. treade downe, and deſtroye all other landes.

G *The ten hornes, are ten kynges, ẏ ſhall *zacha.i.c. aryſe out of ẏ kyngdome, after whom there ſhall ſtāde vp another, which ſhalbe greater then the firſt. He ſhall ſubdue thre kynges, & ſhal ſpeake wordes agaynſt ẏ hyeſt of all: he ſhall deſtroye the ſaynctes of the moſt hyeſt, *Danie.ii.c *and thyncke, ẏ he maye chaūge tymes and lawes. They ſhalbe geuē vnder hys power, *Apoca.xii.d ‡vntyll a tyme, two tymes, & halfe a tyme.

But the iudgement ſhalbe kepte, ſo that hys power ſhalbe taken frō hym, for he ſhall be deſtroyed, and peryſhe at the laſt. As for the kyngdome, power and all might that is vnder the heauen: it ſhalbe geuen to the holy people of ẏ mooſt hyeſt, *whoſe kyngdome *Luke.i.c. Dan.xiiii.c. is euerlaſtynge: yee, all powers ſhall ſerue & obeye him. Thus farre extende the wordes. Neuertheles, I Daniel was ſo vexed in my thoughtes, that my countenaunce chaunged *but the wordes I kepte ſtyll in my herte. *Luke.ii.c.

¶ The.viij.Chapter.

¶ A viſyon of a ſtryfe betwene a ramme & an he goate. The vnderſtandynge of the viſyon is of the battell betwene the kynge of Perſia and the kynge of the Grecyens. Of the ſhameleſſe kynge Antichriſt.

In the thyrde yeare of ẏ raygne of A kynge Baltazar, there appeared a viſyon vnto me Daniel, after ẏ I had ſene the *fyrſt. I ſawe in a *Dani.vii.a viſyō (and when I ſawe it, I was at Suſis in the chefe cytie, which lyeth in the lande of *Elam) and in the viſyon, me thought I *Iere.xlix.f. Eze.xxxv.d was by the ryuer of Ulai.

Then I loked vp, & ſawe: & beholde there ſtode before the ryuer, a ramme, whych had two hornes: and theſe two hornes were hye but one was hyer then another: & the hyeſt came vp behinde. I ſawe ẏ this rāme puſhed wᵗ his hornes, agaynſt the weſt, agaynſt the north, & agaynſt the ſouth: ſo that no beaſtes myght ſtāde before him, ner defende thē frō hys power: but he dyd as hym lyſted, & waxed greatly. I toke hede vnto thys, and then came there an he goate frō the weſt ouer the B whole earth, and touched not the grounde.

Thys goate had a maruelous wrethen horne betwixte his eyes, and came vnto the ramme, that had the two hornes (whom I had ſene afore by the ryuer ſyde) and ranne fearcely vpon him with hys myght. I ſawe him drawe nye vnto the rāme, beynge very fearce vpon hym: yee, he gaue hym ſoche a ſtroke, that he brake hys two hornes. Nether had the ramme ſo moche ſtrength as to C ſtande before hym: but he caſt hym downe, troade hym vnder his fete: and no man was able to delyuer the rāme out of his power.

The goate waxed exceadynge greate, and whē he was at the ſtrōgeſt, his great, horne was broken alſo. *Then grewe there other foure ſoche lyke in the ſteade, towarde ẏ.iiij. *Dan.vii.a. and.xi.a. i.Macha.i.a. wyndes of the heauen. Yee, out of one of the leeſt of theſe hornes, there came vp yet another horne, which waxed maruelous greate: towarde the ſouth, towarde the eaſt, and towarde the fayre pleaſaunt lande. It grewe vp to the hooſt of heauen, wherof it dyd caſt ſome downe to the grounde, and of the ſtarres alſo, and trode them vnder fete.

Yee, it grewe vp vnto the prince of the hooſt, frō whom the daylye offerynge was taken, and ẏ place of hys Sanctuary caſten downe. And a certayne ſeaſon was geuen vnto it, agaynſt ẏ daylye offerynge (becauſe of wyckedneſſe) that it myght caſt downe ẏ verite to the grounde, and ſo to proſpere in all thynges all thynges, that it went aboute.

D Upõ this I heard one of the ſainctes ſpeakynge, which ſaynte ſayde vnto one that asked this queſtyon. Howe longe ſhall this viſion of the daylye ſacrifyce and of the waſtyng abhomynacion endure: that the Sanctuary and the power ſhall ſo be troden vnder fote? And he anſwered hym: Unto yͤ euenynge ⁊ the mornynge, euen two thouſande and threhundreth dayes: then ſhall the Sanctuary be clenſed agayne.

E Nowe whẽ I Daniel had ſene this vyſiõ, and ſought for the vnderſtandynge of it: beholde, there ſtode before me a thynge lyke vnto a man. And I herde a mans voyce in the riuer of Ulay, whych cryed, and ſayd: O Gabriel, make this man vnderſtande the viſyõ. So he came, and ſtode by me. But I was afrayed at hys commynge, and fell downe vpon my face.

Then ſayde he vnto me: O thou ſonne of man, marcke well, for in the laſte tyme ſhall this viſyõ be fulfylled. Now as he was ſpeakynge vnto me, I waxed faynt, ſo yͭ I ſanke downe to the grounde. But he toke holde vpon me, and ſet me vp agayne, ſayenge: Beholde, I wyll ſhewe the, what ſhall happen in yͤ laſt wrath: for in the tyme appoynted it ſhalbe fulfylled.

The ramme which thou ſaweſt with the two hornes is the kynge of the Medes and Perſes: but the goate is the kynge of Grekelande: the greate horne that ſtode betwyxte hys eyes, that is the pryncipall kynge. But where as it brake, and foure other roſe vp in the ſteade: it ſygnifyeth, that out of this people ſhall ſtande vp *foure kyngdomes, but not ſo myghtye as it. *i.Mach.i.a

F After theſe kyngdomes (whyle vngodlyneſſe is a growynge) there ſhal aryſe a kynge of an vnſhamefaſt face, whych ſhalbe wyſe in darke ſpeakynges.

He ſhalbe myghtye and ſtronge, but not in his owne ſtrength. He ſhal deſtroye aboue meaſure, and all that he goeth aboute ſhall proſpere: he ſhall ſlaye the ſtronge and holy people. And thorowe hys craftynes, falſhed ſhall proſpere in his hande, his herte ſhall be proude, and many one ſhall be put to death in his welthyneſſe. He ſhal ſtãde vp agaynſt the Prynce of Prynces, *but he ſhall be deſtroyed wythout hande. And thys vyſyon that is ſhewed vnto the, is as ſure as yͤ euenynge and the mornynge. *Therfore wryte thou vp thys ſyghte, for it wylbe longe or it come to paſſe. *ii.Mach.ix.c ii.Teſſ.ii.b *Eſa.viii.b

Upon this was I Daniel very faynte, ſo that I laye ſycke certayne dayes: but when I roſe vp, I wente aboute the kynges buſyneſſe, and marueled at the vyſion, neuertheleſſe no man knewe of it.

Then ſhall there come a people with the Prynce, and deſtroye the cytie & the Sanctuary: and hys ende ſhall come as the waterfloude. But the deſolacyon ſhall contynue tyll the ende of the battell.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

¶ There appeareth vnto Daniel a man clothed in lynen, whych ſheweth hym wherfore he is ſent.

IN the thyrde yeare of kynge Cyrus of Perſia, there was ſhewed vnto Daniel (otherwyſe called Balthaſar) a matter, yee, a true matter, but it is yet a longe tyme vnto it. He vnderſtode the matter well, and perceaued what the vyſion was. At the ſame tyme, I Daniel mourned for the ſpace of thre wekes; ſo that I had no luſte to eate bread: as for fleſhe and wyne there came none wythin my mouth: No, I dyd not once anoynte my ſelfe, tyl the whole thre wekes were out. A

Upon the.xxiiij. daye of the fyrſt moneth,
I was by the great floude, called Tygris * *Dan.vii.b. Apo.i.c
I lyft vp myne eyes, and loked: and beholde, a man clothed in lynnen, whoſe loynes were gyrded vp wyth fyne golde of Araby: his body was lyke the Chryſolite ſtone, hys face (to loke vpon) was lyke lyghtenynge, hys eyes as the flame of fyre, hys armes and fete were lyke fayre glyſterynge metall, but the voyce of hys wordes was lyke the voyce of a multitude. B

*I Daniel alone ſawe thys vyſyon † the *Dan.xii.e Act.ix.a. men that were wyth me, ſawe it not: but a greate fearfulneſſe fell vpon them, ſo yͭ they fled awaye, and hyd them ſelues. I was lefte there my ſelfe alone, and ſawe this greate viſyon, ſo longe tyll there remayned nomore ſtrength wythin me: yee, I loſte my coloure clene, I waſted awaye, and my ſtregth was gone. Yet hearde I the voyce of his wordes: and as ſoone as I hearde it, faynteneſſe came vpon me, and I fell downe flat to the grōde vpon my face. And beholde, an hande touched me, whych ſet me vp vpon my knees and vpon the palmes of my handes, ſayinge vnto me. * O Daniel, thou well beloued man: *Dan.ix.d take good hede of the wordes, that I ſhall ſaye vnto the, and ſtande ryght vp, for vnto the am I nowe ſent.

And when he had ſayde theſe wordes, I C ſtode vp trēblynge. Then ſayde he vnto me: feare not Daniel: for, why, ſence yͤ fyrſt daye that thou that thou ſet thyne herte to vnderſtande, and dyddeſt chaſten thy ſelfe before thy God: thy wordes haue bene herde. And I had come vnto the, whan thou beganneſte to ſpeake, had not the prynce ouer the kyngdome of the Perſes wythſtāde me .xxi. dayes. *Jos.v.d. Dan.xii.a. But lo, * Michael one of the chefe prynces, came to helpe me, & I was left to continue ther with the kinges of Perſia, & am come to ſhewe the, what ſhall happen vnto thy people in the latter dayes. For it wylbe longe yet or the vyſyon be fulfylled.

Nowe when he had ſpoken theſe wordes vnto me, I caſt downe my head to þ grounde and helde my tunge. Beholde, there touched my lyppes one very lyke vnto a man. Then opened I my mouth, and ſayde vnto D him, that ſtode before me, O my Lorde, my ioyntes are looſed in the vyſyon, and there is nomore ſtrength within me. Howe maye my Lordes ſeruaunt then talke with my Lorde? ſeynge there is no ſtregth in me, ſo that I can not take my breth? Upon this there touched *Dan.ix.d me agayne, on much lyke a man * and conforted me, ſayinge: O thou man ſo well beloued, feare not: be content, take a good herte vnto the, and be ſtronge. So when he had ſpoken vnto me, I recouered, and ſayde: Speake on my Lord, for thou haſt refreſhed me. Then ſayde he: knoweſt thou wherfore I am come vnto the? nowe wyll I go agayne to fyghte wyth the prynce of the Perſes. As ſoone as I go forth, lo, the prince of Grekelāde ſhall come. Neuertheles, I wyll ſhewe þ that thynge, þ is faſt noted in the ſcripture of trueth. And as for al yonder matters, there is none that helpeth me in thē, but Michael youre prynce.

¶ The .xi. Chapter.

¶ A prophecy of the kynges of Perſia. Of the kyngdō of Grece. Of the kyngdome of Egypt, and of the bōde therof, and of the battel wyth the kyngdome of Syria. Of the Iewes that flye vnto the kinge of Egypte, whō Antiochus the kynge of Syria perſecuteth, whych fygureth vnto vs Antichriſt. The pryde of Antiochus.

A AND in the fyrſt yeare of Darius of Media, I ſtode by hym, to cōforte him, and to ſtrength hym, & now wyl I ſhew the þ trueth. Beholde, there ſhall ſtande vp yet thre kynges in Perſia, but the fourthe ſhall be farre rycher then they all. And when he is in the chefeſte power of hys ryches, he ſhall prouoke euery man agaynſt the realme *Dan.viii.a of Grekelande. * Then ſhall there aryſe yet a myghtie kynge, that ſhall rule wyth great *i. mach.i.a. domynyon, and do what hym lyſte. * And as ſoone as his kingdome cometh vp, it ſhall be deſtroyed, and deuyded towarde the foure windes of the heauen. They that come after him, ſhall not haue ſuche power and domynyon as he: but hys kyngdome ſhalbe ſkatred, yee, euen amonge other then thoſe. And þ kynge of the ſouth ſhalbe myghtyer, then his other prynces. And one ſhalbe ſtrōger then he, & ſhall rule hys domynyon wyth greate power.

And in the ende of yeares, they ſhalbe ioyned together, and the kynges daughter of þ B ſouth ſhall come to the kynge of the North, for to make frēdſhyppe, but ſhe ſhall not optayne the power of that arme, nether ſhall ſhe be able to endure thorowe his might: but ſhe, and ſuch as brought her (yee and he that begat her, and conforted her for hys tyme) ſhalbe delyuered vp. Out of the braunches of her rote, there ſhall one ſtande vp in hys ſteade whych wyth power of armes ſhall go thorowe the kynges lande of the north, and handle hym accordynge to hys ſtrength. As for their Idols & princes, with theyr coſtly Iewels of golde and ſyluer, he ſhall cary thē awaye captyues into Egypte, and he ſhall reygne moore yeares then the kynge of the north. And when he is come into the kynges realme of the ſouth, he ſhalbe fayne to turne agayne into his owne lande. Wherfore hys ſonnes ſhalbe diſpleaſed, & ſhal gather together a myghty greate hooſt of people: and one of them ſhall come, and go thorowe lyke a water floude: then ſhall he returne, and go forth with defyinge and boaſtynge vnto his owne lande. C

Then the kynge of the ſouth ſhall be angry and ſhall come forth to fight againſt the kynge of the north: yee, he ſhall brynge a greate multitude of people together, and a greate heape ſhal be geuē into his hāde: theſe ſhall he cary awaye wyth greate pryde, for ſo much as he hath caſt downe ſo many thouſandes, neuertheles, he ſhall not preuayle. For the kynge of the north ſhall gather (of the new) a greater heape of people thē afore, and come forth (after a certayne tyme and yeares) wyth a myghtye hooſte, and exceadyng greate good.

At the ſame tyme there ſhall many ſtande vp agaynſt the kinge of the ſouth, ſo that the wycked chyldren of thy people alſo ſhall exalte them ſelues (to fulfyl the vyſyon) & then fal. So the kynge of the north ſhall come to laye ſege, and to take the ſtrōg fenſed cyties: And the power of thē of the ſouth ſhall not be able to abyde him, and the beſt men of the people ſhall not be ſo ſtrōg, as to reſyſt hym. Shortely, when he commeth, he ſhall hādle hym as he lyſte, & no man ſhalbe ſo hardy as to ſtande agaynſt him. He ſhall ſtande in the pleaſaunt coūtre, whych thorowe hym ſhall be deſtroyed: He ſhall ſet hys face wyth all hys power to optayne hys kyngdom, and to be lyke it. Yee, that ſhall he do, and geue him vnto the daughters amonge women, to deſtroye hym. But he ſhall fayle, nether ſhall he optayne his purpoſe. After thys ſhall he ſet his face vnto the Iles and take many of them. A prynce ſhall ſtoppe hym, to do hym a ſhame, beſyde the confuſion that els ſhall come D vnto hym. Thus ſhall he tourne agayne to hys owne lande, ſtomble and fall, and be nomore founde: ſo he that came vpon hym & dyd hym vyolence, ſhal ſtande in his place, & haue a pleaſaunt kyngdome: and after fewe dayes he ſhalbe deſtroyed, & that neyther in wrath, nor in battel. In his ſteade there ſhall aryſe a vyle perſon, not holden worthy of a kynges dygnitie: this ſhall come in peaceably, and optayne the kyngdome wyth fayre wordes: he ſhall fyght agaynſt the armes of the myghtie (and deſtroye them) yee, and agaynſt the prynce of the couenaunt.

So after that he hath taken truce wyth him, he ſhall hãdle diſceytfully: that he maye get vp, & ouercome hym wyth a ſmal flocke:
and ſo with craftyneſſe to get hym to the fatteſt place of the lande, & to deale otherwyſe, then ether hys fathers or grauntfathers dyd.
E For he ſhall deſtroye the thynge, that they had robbed and ſpoyled, yee, and all theyr ſubſtaũce, ymagenynge thoughtes agaynſt the ſtronge holdes, and that for a tyme. His power and harte ſhall be ſtered vp wyth a greate armye agaynſt the kynge of the ſouth where thorowe the kynge of the ſouth ſhalbe moued then vnto battel, wyth a greate and myghtie hooſte alſo. Neuertheleſſe he ſhall not be able to ſtande, for they ſhall conſpyre againſt him. Yee, they that eate of his meate ſhall hurte him: ſo that his hooſt ſhall fall, & many be ſlayne downe.

These two kynges ſhalbe mynded to do myſchefe, and talke of diſceyte at one table:
but they ſhall not proſpere, for why? the ende ſhall not come yet, vnto the tyme appointed.
*ii. Mach. v. a * Then ſhall he go home agayne into hys owne lãde wyth great good, and ſet his hert agaynſt the holy couenaunte, he ſhall buſye agaynſt it, & then returne home. At the tyme apoynted he ſhall come agayne, and go towarde the ſouth. So ſhall it happen otherwyſe then at the fyrſt, yet ones agayne. And *nu. xxiiii. b. why? * ye ſhyppes wyth Italians ſhall come vpon him, that he may be ſmytten and turne againe: that he may take indignaciõ againſt the couenaũt of holyneſſe, to medle agaynſte it. Yee, he ſhall turne him, and drawe ſuch vnto him, as leaue the holy couenaunt.

F He ſhall ſet myghtye men to vnhalowe ye Sanctuary of ſtrengthe, to put downe the dayly offerynge, and to ſet vp the abhominable deſolacyon. And ſuch as breake the couenaunt ſhall he flatter wyth fayre wordes.
But the people that wyll knowe theyr God, ſhall haue the ouerhande & proſpere. Those alſo that haue vnderſtandynge amonge the people ſhall enfourme the multitude: and for a longe ſeaſon, they ſhall be perſecuted with ſwearde, wyth fyre, wyth captiuite & wyth the takynge awaye of theyr goodes. Nowe when they fall, they ſhall be ſet vp wyth a litle helpe: but many ſhall cleue vnto them faynedly.

Yee ſome of thoſe whych haue vnderſtandynge ſhal be perſecuted alſo, that they may be tryed, puryfyed and clenſed, tyll the tyme be out: for there is yet another tyme appoynted.
The kynge ſhall do what hym lyſte * he *ii. Teſſ. ii. a ſhall exalte and magnifye himſelfe agaynſte all that is God. Yee, he ſhall ſpeake maruelous thynges agaynſt the God of all goddes wherin he ſhall proſpere, ſo longe tyll the * *Apoc. xv. a wrath be fulfylled, for the concluſion is deuiſed alredy. He ſhall not regarde the God of hys fathers, but his luſt ſhalbe vpon wemẽ.
Yee, he ſhall not care for eny God, for he ſhal magnyfye hymſelfe aboue all. In his place ſhall he worſhyppe the mightie ſtoute God:
and the God whom hys fathers knewe not, ſhall he honoure with golde and ſyluer, with precious ſtones and pleaſaunt Iewels.

Thus ſhall he do, thorowe his ſtrõge fenſed G places, ſettynge vp hys ſtraunge God whom he confeſſith and encreaſynge his glorye.
Suche as wyll receaue hym, & take hym for God, he ſhall geue thẽ greate worſhyppe and power: yee, and make thẽ Lordes of the multitude, and geue them the lande with rewardes.
In the latter tyme ſhall the kynge of the ſouth ſtryue wyth hym: and the kynge of the north in lykemaner ſhall come againſt him with charettes, horſmen and wt a greate nauy of ſhyppes. He ſhall come into the landes, deſtroye and go thorowe: he ſhall entre alſo into the fayre pleaſaunt lãde: Many cyties and countres ſhal decaye * excepte Edõ, *Apoc. xii. c.
Moab, and the beſte of the chyldren of Ammon, whych ſhall eſcape from hys hande. He ſhall ſtretch forth his handes vpon the countrees, & the lande of Egypte ſhall not eſcape him. For thorow his goyng in, he ſhall haue dominyon ouer the treaſures of ſyluer and golde, and ouer all the precious Iewels of Egypte, Libia, and Ethiopia. * Neuertheleſſe, *Apoc. xi. a.
the tydynges oute of the Eaſt and the north ſhall trouble him, for the whiche cauſe he ſhall goo forth to deſtroye and rote oute a greate multitude. The tentes of hys palace ſhall be pytched betwyxte the two ſees, vpõ the hyll of the noble Sanctuary, for he ſhall come to hys deth, * and then ſhall no man *Apo. xix. d, and. xx. c.

The ende of the Prophecye of Daniel.

The booke of the Prophete Oſeas.

The fyrſt Chapter.

The tyme wherin Oſeas propheceyed. Oſeas by takynge an harlot to hys wyfe, ſygnyfieth the Idolatrye of the people. The deſtruccyō of the offſprynge of Iehu, & of the Iſraelytes, is propheceyed.

A THys is the worde of the Lorde, that came vnto Oſeas the ſon-

¶ The booke of Ioel the prophete.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ A prophecye agaynſt the Iewes. He exhorteth the preſtes to prayer and faſtynge for the myſerye that was commynge at hande.

THys is the worde of yͤ Lorde, A that came vnto Ioell the ſonne of Phatuel. Heare, O yee elders: pondre this well, all ye that dwell in the lande:
yf euer there happened
ſuch a thynge in your dayes, or in the dayes of youre fathers. Tell youre chyldren of it, and let them ſhewe it vnto theyr chyldren, and ſo they to certifye theyr poſterytye therof. Loke what the caterpyller hath lefte, that hath the greſhoper eatē vp:
what the greſhoper lefte, that hath the locuſte B eaten vp: and what the locuſte hath left, that hath the blaſtynge cōſumed. Wake vp ye dronckardes, and wepe: mourne all ye wyne ſuppers, becauſe of youre ſwete wyne, for it ſhall be taken awaye frō youre mouth.
Yee, a myghtye and an innumerable people ſhall come vp into my lande: theſe haue teeth lyke the teeth of lyons, and chafbones lyke the lyoneſſes. *They ſhall make my vyneyarde *Oe.xxxii.d. waſte, they ſhall pyll of the barckes of my fyggetrees, ſtryp them bare, caſt them awaye, and make the braunches whyte.
Make thy mone as a vyrgin doth that gyrdeth her ſelfe wyth ſacke, becauſe of her bryde grome. For the meate and drynkoffrynge ſhalbe taken awaye from the houſe of the Lorde, and the preſtes the Lordes mynyſters ſhall mourne. The felde ſhalbe waſted, the lande ſhalbe in a myſerable caſe: for the corne ſhalbe deſtroyed, the ſwete wyne ſhall come to confuſyon, and the oyle vtterly deſolate. C The houſbandmen and the wyne gardeners ſhall loke pyteouſly and make lamētacyon, for the wheate, wyne and barly, and becauſe the harueſt vpon the felde is ſo clene deſtroyed. The grapegatherers ſhall make greate mone, when the vyneyarde and fyggtrees be ſo vtterly waſted. Yee, all the pomgranettes, palmetrees, apletrees, & the other trees of the felde ſhall wyther awaye. Thus the merey cheare of the chyldren of men, ſhall come to confuſyon.

Gyrde you, and make youre mone, O ye preſtes, mourne ye mynyſtres of the aulter: goo your waye in, and ſlepe in ſack cloth, O ye officiers of my God: for the meat & drinkofferynge ſhall be taken awaye frõ the houſe of youre God. Proclayme a faſtinge, call the D congregacyon, gather the elders *and all the *Joel.ii.d. inhabytours of the lande together into the houſe of the Lorde your God, and crye vnto yͤ Lorde: alas, alas for thys daye. And why? the daye of the Lorde is at hande, and cometh as a deſtroyer from the almyghtye. Shall not the meates be taken awaye before oure ☞ eyes, ☞ the myrth alſo and ioye from the houſe of oure God? The ſede ſhall peryſhe in the grounde, the garners ſhall lye waſte, the flores ſhalbe broken downe, for yͤ corne ſhall be deſtroyed. O what a ſyghynge make the kyne? the bullockes are very euell lykynge, becauſe they haue no paſture: and the ſhepe are famyſſhed awaye.

O Lorde, to the wyll I crye: for the fyre hath conſumed the goodly paſtures of the wyldernes, and the flame hath brent vp all the trees of the felde. Yee, the wylde beaſtes crye alſo vnto the: for the water ryuers are dryed vp, and the fyre hath conſumed the paſtures of the wyldernesſe.

The.ii.Chapter.

He propheceyeth the commynge and crueltye of theyr enemyes. An exhortacyon to moue them to conuert.

A BLowe out the trompette in Syon, and crye vpon my holy hyll, that all ſuche all dwell in yͤ lande, maye tremble at it: *for the daye of the *Sopho.i.c. Amos.v.c. Lorde commeth, and is harde at hande: a darcke daye, a gloomynge daye, a cloudy daye, yee, and a ſtormy daye, like as the mornynge ſpredeth out vpõ the hylles. Namely, a greate and myghtye people: ſuch as haue not bene ſence the beginninge, nether ſhall be after them for euermore. Before him ſhall be a conſumynge fyre, and behynde hym a burnynge flame. The lande ſhalbe as a garden of pleaſure before him, but behinde him ſhall it be a very waſte wyldernesſe, and there is no man, that ſhall eſcape hym: They are to loke vpõ lyke barbed horſes, and runne lyke horſmen. They ſkippe vp vpon the hylles as it were the ſounde of charrettes: as the flame of fyre that conſumeth the ſtrawe, and as a myghty people redy to the batayll.

B The folke ſhalbe afrayed of hym, all faces ſhalbe as blacke as a pot: Theſe ſhall rũne lyke gyauntes, and leape ouer the walles lyke men of warre. Euery man in his goinge ſhall kepe hys araye, and not goo out of hys path. There ſhall not one driue another but eche ſhall kepe hys awne waye. They ſhall breake in at the windowes, and not be hurte: They ſhall come into the cytie, & runne vpon the walles. They ſhall clyme vp vpon the C houſes, and ſlyppe in at the wyndowes lyke a theſe. The earth ſhall quake before hym, yee, yͤ heauens ſhalbe moued. *The ſunne & *Joel.iii.c. Mat.xxiiii.c. the moone ſhall be darckened, and the ſtarres ſhall wythdrawe theyr ſhyne. The Lord ſhall ſhewe hys voyce before hys hooſte, for hys hooſt is greate, ſtronge, and myghtye to fulfyll hys commaundement. Thys is that greate & maruelous fearfull daye of the Lorde, ‡And who is able to abyde it? ‡Apoc.vi.c.

*Deu.iiii.c. and.xx.a. Nowe therfore ſayeth the Lorde. *Turne you vnto me wyth all your hertes, wyth faſtinge, weppynge and mournynge, rente your hertes, and not youre clothes. Turne you *ps.lxxxvi.a. vnto yͤ Lorde your God, *for he is gracious and mercyfull, longe ſufferinge and of great cõpaſſyon: and redy to pardone wyckednes. Then (no doute) he alſo ſhall turne, and forgeue, and after hys chaſtenynge, he ſhall let your increaſe remayne, for meat and dryncke-offrynges vnto yͤ Lorde your God? *Blowe *Joel.i.c. D out wyth the trõpette in Syon, proclayme a faſtynge, call the congregacyon, and gather the people together: warne the congregacyõ, gather the elders, brynge the chyldren & sucklynges together. Let the brydegrome go forth of his chambre, and the bride out of her cloſet. Let the preſtes ſerue the Lorde betwyxte yͤ porche and the aulter, wepyng and ſayinge: be fauourable, O Lorde, be fauourable vnto thy people: let not thyne herytage be brought to ſuch confuſyon, leſt yͤ Heathen be lordes therof. *Wherfore ſhulde they ſaye *Psl.lxxix.b. amonge the Heathen: where is nowe theyr God.

E Then ſhall the Lorde be gelous ouer hys lande, and ſpare hys people: yee, the Lorde ſhall anſwere, and ſaye vnto his people: Beholde, I wyll ſende you corne, wyne & oyle, ſo that ye ſhall haue plenty of them: and I wyll nomore geue you ouer to be a reprofe amonge the Heathen. Agayne, as for hym of the north, I ſhall dryue hym farre from you: and ſhute hym out into a drye & waſte lande, his face towarde the eaſt ſee, and hys hynder partes towarde the vtmoſt ſee. The ſtyncke of him ſhall go vp, and hys fylthy corrupcyõ ſhall fall vpõ him ſelfe, becauſe he hath dealt ſo proudly. Feare not (O lande) but be glad and reioyſe, for the Lorde will do great thinges. Be not ye afrayed nether (O ye beaſtes of the felde) for the paſtures ſhalbe grene, and the trees ſhall beare theyr frute: the fyggetrees and vyneyardes ſhall geue theyr increaſe.

F Be glad then (O ye chyldren of Syon) and reioyſe in the Lorde youre God, for he hath geuen you a teacher of ryghteouſneſſe: *Leu.xxvi.a. Deu.xi.b. and.xxviii.b. * & he it is that ſhall ſende you downe ſhouers of rayne, early and late in the fyrſt moneth:

ſo that the garners ſhalbe full of corne, and the preſſes plenteous in wyne and oyle.
And as for the yeares that the greſhoper, locuſte, blaſtynge, and caterpyller (my greate hooſt, whych I ſent amonge you) haue eaten vp, I ſhall reſtore them to you agayne. ſo ẏ ye ſhall haue ynough to eate, & be ſatiſfyed:
and prayſe the name of the Lorde your God, that ſo maruelouſly hath dealte wyth you.

And my people ſhall neuer be confounded any more. Ye ſhall well knowe, that I am in ẏ myddeſt of Iſraell, & that I am ẏ Lorde

¶ The tyme of the prophecy of Amos. The worde of the Lorde agaynſt Azab, agaynſt Tyre, agaynſt Edom, and agaynſt the ſonnes of Ammon.

A These are the ſermons that were ſhewed vnto Amos, (whych was one of the ſhe- * iiii.re.xv.a. pherdes at Thecua) vpō Iſraell, in the tyme of * Oſiah kynge of Iuda, and in the ‡ iiii.re.xiiii.c tyme of ‡ Ieroboam ẏ ſonne ☞ of Ioah kynge of Iſraell, two yeare ☞ * Iere.xxv.d Ioel.iii.c. before the earthquake. And he ſayde: * The Lorde ſhall roare oute of Syon, and ſhewe his voyce from Ieruſalem: ſo that the paſtures of the ſhepherdes ſhalbe in a myſerable caſe, ⁊ the toppe of Charmel dryed vp. Thus ſayeth the Lorde: for thre and foure wyc- * Eſa.xvii.a. Iere.xlix.d. kedneſſes of * Damaſcus, I will not ſpare her: becauſe they haue threſhed Galaad wyth yron ſlaples. But I wil ſende a fyre into the houſe of Hazael, the ſame ſhall conſume the palaces of Benadab. Thus will I breake ẏ B barres of Damaſcus, and rote out the inhabyter from the felde of Auen: And him that holdeth the ſcepter, out of the pleaſaūt houſe: ſo that the people ſhalbe dryuen out of fayre Siria, ſayeth ẏ Lorde. Thus ſayeth ẏ Lord: * Zacha.ix.a. For thre and foure wickedneſſes of * Gaza, I will not ſpare her: becauſe they make the preſoners yet more captyue, and haue dreuen them into the lande of Edom. Therfore will I ſende a fyre into ẏ walles of Gaza, whych ſhall deuoure her houſes. I wyll rote out thē that dwell at Aſdod, and him that holdeth ẏ ſcepter of Aſcalō, and ſtretche out myne hāde ouer Accaron, that the remnaunt of the Philiſtines ſhall peryſhe, ſayeth the Lorde.

C Thus ſayeth the Lorde: For thre ⁊ foure * Ioel.iii.a. wickedneſſes of the citye of * Tyre, I wyll not ſpare her: becauſe they haue increaſed the captiuyte of the Edomites, and haue not re- * iii.Re.v.a. membred the * brotherly couenaunt. Therfore, I will kyndle a fyre in ẏ walles of Rabbath, that ſhall conſume her palaces: wyth a greate crye, in ẏ daye of batail, in tempeſt and in the daye of ſtorme: ſo that theyr kynge ſhall go into captiuyte he ⁊ hys prynces together, ſayeth the Lorde.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Agaynſt Moab, Iuda, and Iſrael.

Thus ſayeth the Lorde: For thre ⁊ A foure wyckedneſſes of * Moab, I * Eſa.xv.a. wyll not ſpare hym: ☞ becauſe Iere.xxv.a. he brent the bones of the kynge of Eze.xlviii.a. Edom to aſhes. ¶ The .iii. Chapter.

¶ He reproueth the houſe of Iſrael of wyckednes.

A HEare, what the Lord ſpeaketh vnto you (O ye chyldrē of Iſrael) namely, vnto all the trybes, whom I brought out of Egypt, and ſayde: *you only haue I accepted frō all ẏ generacyōs of the earth: therfore, will I viſet you in all your wickednes. Maye twayne walke together excepte they be agreed amonge them ſelues? *Doth a lyon roore in B the wodde, except he haue a praye? goyng out. He ſayde more ouer: Euen thus are they (ỹ dwel vpon ỹ whole earth) to loke vpõ. And beholde, there was lyft vp a talent of leade: & lo, a woman ſat in ỹ myddeſt of ỹ meaſure. And he ſayde: thys is vngodlynes.
So he caſt her into the myddeſt of the meaſure, & threwe the lompe of leade into the mouthe of the meaſure.

Then lyft I vp myne eyes, & loked: and D beholde, there came out two wemen, and ỹ wynde was in theyr wynges (for they had wynges lyke the wynges of a ſtorke) & they lyft vp ỹ meaſure betwixte the earth and the heauẽ. Then ſpake I to the angell that talked with me: whyther wyll theſe beare the meaſure? And he ſayde vnto me, into ỹ land of * Synear, to buylde them an houſe, which when it is prepared, the meaſure ſhalbe ſet there in hys place.

¶ The .vi. Chapter.

By the foure charrettes, he deſcrybeth the proſperyte of .iiii. kyngdomes.

MOreouer, I turned me, lyftyng vp A myne eyes, and loked, & behold, there came foure charrettes out from betwixte
.ii. hylles, which hylles were of braſſe.
In the fyrſt charet were * red horſes, in the ſecond charet were blacke horſes, in the charet were horſes of diuerſe coulours, and ſtronge. Then ſpake I, and ſayde vnto the angell that talked with me, o Lorde, what B are theſe. The angell anſwered & ſayd vnto me. * Theſe are ỹ .iiii. wyndes of ỹ heauẽ which be come forth to ſtande before the ruler of al the earth. That with ỹ blacke horſe wente into the lande of yͤ north, & the white folowed them, and the ſpekled horſes wēte forth towarde yͤ ſouth. Theſe horſes were very ſtronge, and wente out: & ſought to go & take theyr iourney ouer the whole earth.

And he ſayde: get you hence, & go thorow the worlde. So they wente thorow out the world. Then cryed he vpon me, and ſpake vnto me, ſayeng: beholde, theſe that go towarde yͤ north, ſhall ſtyll my wrath in the north countre.

C And the worde of yͤ Lord came vnto me, ſayeng. Take of yͤ preſoners that are come from Babylon: namely, Heldai, Tobiath, & Idaia: & come thou yͤ ſame daye, & go into the houſe of Joſiah, the ſonne of Sophony.
Then take golde & ſyluer, & make crownes therof, and ſet them vpon yͤ head of Jeſua, the ſonne of Joſedeh, the hye preſte, & ſpeake vnto hym. Thus ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes.
Behold, the man whoſe name is * the *zacha.iii.b braunche: & he yͭ ſhall ſprynge vp after him, ‡ſhall buylde vp yͤ temple of the Lorde, yee ‡Pſal.cxxvii.a. euen he ſhal buylde vp yͤ tēple of the Lorde.
* He ſhall beare the prayſe, he ſhal ſyt vpon *apo.iiii.b. and.v.b.

D * A preſte ſhall he be alſo vpon his trone, *Pſal.cx.b. Heb.v.vi.vii viii.ix.x.
& a peaceable councel ſhalbe betwixte them both. And the crownes ſhalbe in the temple of the Lorde, for a remembraunce vnto Helem, Tobiah, Idaiah, and Hen the ſonne of Sophony. And ſuch as be farre of, ſhal come & buylde the temple of the Lorde, that ye maye knowe, how that yͤ Lorde of hooſtes hath ſēt me vnto you. And thys ſhall come to paſſe, yf ye wyll herken dilygently vnto the voyce of the Lorde youre God.

¶ The.vii.Chapter.

¶ The eſtimacyon of faſtynge without mercye. The dyſpyſynge of charytie, & the obſtynacye of the people.

A IT happened alſo in the fourth yeare of kynge Darius, that the worde of the Lorde came vnto zachary in the fourth daye of yͤ nynth moneth, which is called, Caſleu: what tyme as Saraſar & Rogomelech
& the men yͭ were wͭ them ſent vnto Bethell for to praye before the Lorde:
and that they ſhulde ſaye vnto the preſtes, which were in the houſe of the Lord of hooſtes, and to the prophetes. Shuld I wepe in the * fyfth moneth, & abſteyne as I haue *iiii.re.xxv.b done nowe certayne yeares? Then came yͤ worde of yͤ Lorde of hooſtes vnto me ſayenge: Speake vnto all the people of the land,
B and to the preſtes, and ſaye: when ye faſted and mourned in yͤ fyfth * & ſeuenth moneth *Jere.xli.a. iiii.Re.xxv.b (now this.lxx.yeares) dyd ye faſt vnto me?
When ye dyd eate alſo and dryncke, dyd ye not eate & drycke for youre awne ſelues?
Are not theſe the wordes, which the Lorde ſpake by his prophetes afore tyme whē Jeruſalem was yet inhabited and welthy, ſhe and the cytyes rounde aboute her: when there dwelt men, both towarde the ſouth and in the playne countrees?

C And the worde of the Lorde came vnto zachary, ſayenge. Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes. * Execute true iudgement: ſhewe *zach.viii.c. Exod.xxii.c Leui.xix.a. Job.xxiiii.a. Jere.vii.a. mercy and louynge kyndneſſe, euery man to hys brother. Do the wyddowe, the fatherles, the ſtraunger, & poore no wrong: & let no man ymagen euel agaynſt hys brother in hys herte. * Neuertheleſſe, they wolde *Jere.vii.c. not take hede, but turned theyr backes, and ſtopped theyr eares, yͭ they ſhulde not heare: yee, they made theyr hertes as an Adamant ſtone, leſt they ſhulde heare the lawe & wordes, * which yͤ Lord of hooſtes ſent in ii.Pet.i.d. hys holy ſprete by yͤ prophetes afore tyme.

D Wherfore the Lord of hooſtes was very wroth at them. And thus is it come to paſſe:
* that lyke as he ſpake and they wolde not Jere.xi.b. heare: euen ſo they cryed, and I wolde not heare (ſayth the Lord of hooſtes) but ſcatered them amonge all Gentyles, whom they knewe not. Thus the lande was made ſo deſolate, that there trauayled no man in it nether to, ner fro, for that pleaſaunt lande was vtterly layed waſte.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ Of the returne of the people vnto Jeruſalem, and of the mercy of God towarde them. Of good workes. The callynge of the Gentyles.

A SO the worde of yͤ Lorde came vnto me, ſayenge. Thus ſayth the Lord of hooſtes. I was in a great gelouſy ouer Sion, yee, I haue bene very gelous ouer her in a great dyſpleaſure thus ſayeth yͤ Lord of hooſtes. I will turne me agayne vnto Syon, & wyll dwell in the myddeſt of Jeruſalem: * ſo that Jeruſalem *Eſa.i.d. ſhalbe called a faythfull & true cytye, yͤ hyl of the Lorde of hooſtes, yee, an holy hyll.

Thus ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes. There ſhall yet olde men & wemen dwel agayne in the ſtretes of Jeruſalem: yee, & ſuch as go wͭ ſtaues in theyr hādes for very age. The ſtretes of yͤ cytye alſo ſhalbe full of yonge boyes and damſelles, playinge vpon the ſtretes.

B Thus ſayeth the Lord of hoſtes: yf the reſidue of thys people thynke it to be vnpoſſible in theſe dayes, * ſhuld it therfore be vnpoſſyble *Mat.xix.d. in my ſyght, ſayth yͤ Lorde of hooſtes?
Thus ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes: Beholde,
I will delyuer my people from yͤ lande of the eaſt and weſt, and wyll brynge thē agayne: that they maye dwell at Jeruſalē.
* They ſhalbe my people, & I wyll be theyr *Jere.iii.c. Apo.xxi.c. Heb.viii.c.
God in treuth and ryghteouſneſſe.

Thus ſayth the Lorde of hoſtes: let your handes be ſtronge, ye that now heare theſe wordes by yͤ mouth of yͤ prophetes, whych be in theſe dayes yͭ the foundacyon is layed

vpon the Lord of hooſtes houſe that the temple *Agge.i.a maye be builded. For why? * before theſe dayes, nether men ner catel coulde wynne eny thinge, nether myght eny man come in and out in reſt, for trouble: but I let euery man go agaynſt his neyghboure.

Neuertheles, I wyll now intreate yͤ reſydue of thys people nomore as afore tyme, *Agge.ii.a ſayth the Lord of hooſtes, * but they ſhalbe a ſede of peace. The vyneyarde ſhal geue her frute, yͤ grounde ſhall geue her increaſe, C and the heauens ſhall geue theyr dewe: and I ſhall cauſe the remnaunt of thys people, to haue all theſe in poſſeſſion. And it ſhall come to paſſe, that lyke as ye were a curſe amonge the Heathen (O ye houſe of Juda, and ye houſe of Iſrael) Euen ſo wil I delyuer you, that ye ſhalbe a bleſſing: feare not,
but let your handes be ſtronge.

For thus ſayth the Lord of hooſtes: lyke as I deuyſed to punyſh you, what tyme as your fathers prouoked me vnto wrath, ſayeth yͤ Lord of hooſtes, & ſpared not. Euen ſo am I determined now in theſe dayes, for to do well vnto the houſe of Juda & Jeruſalem, therfore feare ye not. Nowe yͤ thynges *Ephe.iiii.c that ye ſhall do, are theſe: * Speake euery zacha.vii.b. man the treuth vnto hys neyghboure, execute Mala.ii.b. iudgement truly, and peaceably wythyn your portes, none of you ymagin euel in hys herte agaynſt hys neyghboure, and loue no falſe othes, for all theſe are the thynges that I hate, ſayeth the Lorde. And the worde of the Lord of hooſtes, came vnto me, ſayeng: thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes. The faſt of the fourth moneth, the faſt of the fifth, the faſt of the ſeuenth, and the faſt of the tenth, ſhall be ioye and gladneſſe, and proſperous hye feaſtes vnto the houſe of Juda: Onely, loue the treuth and peace.

D Thus ſayeth the Lord of hooſtes. There ſhall yet come people, and the inhabiters of many cytyes, & they that dwel in one cytie
*Eſa.ii.a ſhal go to another ſayenge. * Up, let vs go, Pſal.cxxii.a & praye before yͤ Lorde, let vs ſeke the Lorde Jere.xxxi.a. of hooſtes, I wyll go wͭ you: yee, moch people & myghtye Heathen ſhal come & ſeke the Lord of hooſtes at Jeruſalem, and to praye before yͤ Lord. Thus ſayeth yͤ Lord of hooſtes: In yͤ tyme ſhall ten men (out of all maner of languages of the Gentyles) take one Jewe by the hemme of hys garment, & ſaye:
we wyll go wͭ you, for we haue herde, that God is amonge you.

¶ The.ix.Chapter.

¶ The conuerſyon of the gentyls. The commyng of Chryſt ſyttynge on an Aſſe.

A THe worde of the Lorde ſhalbe receyued at Adrach, and Damaſcus ſhalbe hys offeryng: for the eyes of all men & of yͤ trybes of Iſrael ſhall loke vp vnto yͤ Lorde. The borders of Hemath ſhall be herde therby, Tirus alſo & Sidon, for they are very wyſe, * Tirus ſhall make her ſelf ſtrõge, *Joel.iiii.a heape vp ſyluer as yͤ ſande, & golde as the claye of the ſtretes. Behold, yͤ Lord ſhal take her in, and haue her in poſſeſſyon: * he ſhal *Exo.xiiii.c ſmyte downe her power in to the ſee, and ſhe ſhalbe conſumed wͭ fyre. This ſhall Aſcalon ſhall Accaron alſo, becauſe her hope is come Amos.i.b. to confuſion. For the kynge of Gaza ſhal B peryſh, & at Aſcalon ſhall no man dwell.

Straungers ſhall dwell at Aſdod, & as for the pryde of the Philyſtynes, I ſhall rote it out. * Theyr bloude wyll I take awaye *Actes.xv.d from theyr mouth, & theyr abhomynacyons i.Cor.viii.a. from among theyr teeth. Thus they ſhalbe and.x.c. left for our God, yee, they ſhalbe as a prince in Juda, and Accaron lyke as a Jebuſy. And ſo wyll I compaſe my houſe rounde about wͭ my men of warre goynge to and fro: that no oppreſſoure come vpon them any more. For that haue I ſene now with myne eyes.

* Reioyce yͤ greatly, O doughter Syon *Eſa.lxii.c be glad, O doughter Jeruſalem. For lo thy Mat.xxi.a kynge cõmeth vnto the, euen the ryghteous John.xii.b. and Sauioure, Lowly & ſymple is he, he rydeth vpon an aſſe, & vpon the foole of an aſſe.
I will rote out the charrettes frõ Ephraim, ſhalbe deſtroyed. He ſhall geue the doctryne of peace vnto the Heathen. * & his dominyon *Pſal.lxxi.b. ſhalbe from the one ſee to yͤ other, & from the to yͤ ſtronge holde, ye yͤ be in preſon, * & lõge *Ro.viii.e ſore to be deliuered. And this daye I bryng yͤ worde, yͤ I wyll rewarde yͤ double agayne; For Juda haue I bent out as a bowe for me, & Ephraim haue I fylled: Thy ſonnes, O Sion, will I rayſe vp agaynſt yͤ Grekes, & make yͤ as a gyauntes ſwearde: the Lorde God ſhalbe ſene aboue them, & hys dartes ſhall go forth as yͤ lyghtenynge. The Lord God ſhall blowe the trompet, and ſhal come forth as a ſtorme out of the ſouth.

The Lord of hooſtes ſhall defende them, D they ſhal cõſume & deuoure, and ſubdue them with * ſlynge ſtones. They ſhall drycke & *zacha.ii.a. rage, as it were thorow wyne. They ſhalbe i.Reg.xvii.f fylled lyke yͤ baſens, & as yͤ hornes of the aulter.
The Lorde their God ſhal delyuer them in the daye, as the flock of his people: For as precyous ſtones of a dyademe they ſhall be ſet vp ouer his lande. O how proſperous and goodly a thynge ſhal that be? The corne ſhall make yͤ yonge men chearefull, and the new wyne the maydens.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

¶ The people is moued to requyre the doctryne of truth of the Lorde. The Lord promyſeth to vyſet and conforte the houſe of Iſrael

C I wyll comforte the houſe of Iuda, and preſerue the houſe of Ioſeph. I wyll turne them alſo, for I petie them: and they ſhal be lyke as they were, when I had not caſt thē wyll cary them into the land of Gilaad and to Libanus and they ſhal wante nothynge.

He ſhall go vpon the ſee of trouble, & ſmyte

¶The.xi.Chapter.

The diſtruction of the temple. The care of the faithfull is committed to Chriſt by the father. A greuous vyſion agaynſt Ieruſalem and Iuda.

A Open thy dores, O Libanus, that ẏ fire may cōſume thy Cedre trees.
Howle ye fyrre trees for ẏ Cedre is fallen: yee, al the proude are waſted awiae. Howle (O ye oke trees of Baaſan) for the mighty ſtrōge wod is cut downe. Mē maye here the ſhepherdes mourne, for their glorye is dyſtroyed. Men maye here the lyons whelpes roore, for the pryde of Iordan is waſted awaye.

Thus ſayth the Lorde my God: Fede the ſhepe of the ſlaughter, whiche ſhalbe ſlayne of thoſe that poſſeſſe them: yet they take it for no ſinne, but they that ſel them, ſay: The Lord be thācked, I am rych: yee, their owne ſhepherdes ſpare them not. Therfore wyl I nomore ſpare thoſe that dwell in the lande, B (ſayth the Lorde) but lo, I will delyuer the people, euery mā in to his neighbours hāde and into the hande of his kynge: that they maye ſmyte the lande, and out of their handes
I wyll not delyuer them.

I my ſelfe fede ẏ ſlaughter ſhepe (a poore flocke verely) and toke vnto me two ſtaues the one is called louing mekeneſſe, the other is called deſtroyer, and ſo kepte the ſhepe.
Thre ſhepherdes I put oute of offyce in one moneth, for I myght not awaye with thē, neyther had they anye delyte in me. Then ſayde I: I wyll fede you nomore *ẏ thynge Apoc.xxii.c that dyeth, let it dye: ād that ẏ wyll peryſh, let it periſh, and let the remnaunt eate, euery alſo my louinge meke ſtaffe, and brake it, ẏ *Oſee.ii.c I might diſanull the couenaunte, whiche I made with al people. And ſo it was broken in that daye.

C Then the poore ſymple ſhepe, that had a reſpect vnto me, knewe therby, that it was the worde of the Lorde. And I ſayde vnto *Mat.xxvii.c them: if ye thinke it good, bringe hyther my pryce: yf no, then leaue. ‡ So they wayed downe.xxx. ſyluer pens, the value ẏ I was it vnto the potter (a goodly pryce for me to be valued at of them) and I toke the.xxx.

D ſyluer pence, and caſt them to the potter in ẏ houſe of the Lorde. Then brake I my other ſtaf alſo (namely deſtroyer) ẏ I might lowſe ẏ brotherhead betwixt Iuda and Iſrael.
And the Lorde ſayde vnto me, Take ẏ alſo the ſtaffe of a foolyſhe ſhepherd, for lo I wil rayſe vp a ſhepheard in ẏ lande, which ſhal not ſeke after the thinges that be loſt ner care for ſuch as go aſtray, he ſhal not heale the wounded, he ſhal not noriſhe the thyng that is whole, but he ſhal eate the fleſh of ſuch as be fat, and teare their clawes in peces.

O Idols ſhepherde, that leaueth the flocke.
The ſwerde ſhall come vpon his arme and vpon hys ryghte eye. His arme ſhalbe cleane dryed vp, and his ryghte eye ſhalbe ſore blynded.

¶The.xii.Chapter.

¶Of the diſtruction And buyldyng agayne of Iheruſalem

The heuy burthē which the Lorde hath deuiſed for Iſrael. Thus ſayeth the *Eſay.x.a. Zach.xvii.c. ‡Gen.ii.b. Lorde * which ſpred the heuens abrode,

The waſtynge of the churche, vnder the fygure of Jeruſalem. Of the kyngdome of the Lorde.

A BEholde, the day of yͤ Lord cõmeth yͭ thou ſhalt be ſpoyled & robbed, for I will gather together al yͤ heathẽ to fyght agaynſt Jeruſalẽ: ſo yͭ yͤ cite ſhalbe wonne, yͤ houſes ſpoled, & yͤ wemẽ defiled. The halfe of yͤ citie ſhal go a way in to captiuite, and the reſidue of the people ſhal not be caried out of the citie. After that ſhall the lord go forth to fight againſt those Heathen, as men vſe to fyght in the daye of battel. Thẽ ſhal his fete ſtand vpon yͤ moũt olyuete, that lyeth vpon yͤ eaſte ſyde of Jeruſalẽ. And yͤ mount olyuete ſhal cleue in two, B eaſtwarde and weſtward, ſo yͭ there ſhalbe a great valey, and the halfe mount ſhall remoue toward the north, & the other toward the ſouth. And ye ſhall fle vnto the valley of my hylles, for the valley of the hylles ſhall reach vnto Aſal. Ye, flee ſhal ye ‡lyke as ye Amos i.a. fled for the earthquake in the daies of Oſiah kynge of Juda. And the Lord my God ſhal come, & al ſayntes wͭ him. In that daye ſhal it not be lyghte, other cleare or dymme.

*mat.xxiiij.c *Thys ſhalbe that ſpeciall daye whyche is knowne vnto yͤ Lord: nether day ner nyght but about the euenynge tyme it ſhalbe light.
*zach.xiij.a *In that tyme ſhall there waters of lyfe Apoc.xxij.a runne out frō Jeruſalem: the halfe parte of them towarde the eaſt ſee, and yͤ other halfe towarde the vttermoſt ſee, & ſhall contynue *Abdi.c.d both ſomer and wynter. *And the Lorde hym ſelfe ſhalbe kynge ouer all the earth.
C At yͤ tyme ſhal there be one Lord onely, & hys name ſhalbe but one. Mē ſhall go about the whole erth, as vpon a felde frō Gibea to Rennō, & frō the ſouth to Jeruſalē. She ſhal be ſet vp, & inhabited in her place: frō Ben Ja myns porte, vnto yͤ place of the fyrſt porte, & vnto the corner porte: & from the tower of *ij.Eſdr.iij.a *Hananeell, vnto the kynges wyne preſſes.
Iere.xxxi.e There ſhal men dwel, & there ſhalbe no more curſynge, but Jeruſalē ſhalbe ſafely inhabited.
Thys ſhalbe the plage, wherwith the Lorde wyll ſmyte all pleople, yͤ haue fought agaynſt Jeruſalē. Namely, theyr fleſh ſhall cōſume awaye, though they ſtāde vpō theyr fete, theyr eyes ſhalbe corrupt in theyr holes and theyr tunge ſhal cōſume in their mouth.

In that daye ſhall yͤ Lorde make a great ſedicyon amōge thē, ſo yͤ one man ſhall take *zacha.xii.a another by the hande, & laye his hādes vpon the handes of hys neyghboure. *Juda ſhall fyght alſo againſt Jeruſalē, & the goodes of all yͤ heathē ſhalbe gathered together round aboute: golde & ſyluer, & a very great multitude of clothes. And ſo ſhall thys plage goo ouer horſes, mules, camels, aſſes, & all the beaſtes yͤ ſhalbe in yͤ hoſt, lyke as yonder plage was. Euery one yͤ remayneth then of all the people, which came agaynſt Jeruſalem, ſhall go vp yerly, to worſhyppe the kynge *Leu.xxiij.f (euen the Lorde of hoſtes) *and to kepe the Nume.xxix.b feaſt of tabernacles. And loke what generacyon iij.Eſdre.v.e vpō the earth goeth not vp to Jeruſalē ij.Macha.i.b for to worſhyp the kynge (euē the Lorde of hoſtes) vpon the ſame ſhall come no rayne.
Yf the kynred of Egypte go not vp, & come not, it ſhall not rayne vpon them nether.
D Thys ſhalbe yͤ plage wherwͭ the Lorde wil ſmyte all yͤ Heathen, yͤ come not vp to kepe yͤ feaſt of tabernacles: yee, thys ſhalbe yͤ ſyn plage of Egipt & the ſinne plage of al people yͤ go not vp to kepe yͤ feaſt of tabernacles.

At that tyme ſhall the rydyng gere of the horſes be holy vnto the Lorde, & the kettels in the Lordes houſe ſhall be lyke the baſens before the aulter: yee, all the kettels in Jeruſalem and Juda, ſhalbe holy vnto the Lorde of hoſtes: and all they that ſlaye offerynges, ſhall come & take of them, & dyght thē therein.
And at that tyme there ſhall be no mo
Cananites in the houſe of the Lord of hoſtes.

To the Reader,

In conſyderacyon that the bokes before are founde in the Hebrue tonge, receaued of all men: & that the other folowyng, which are called Hagiographa (becauſe they were wont to be redde, not openly and in comen, but as it were in ſecret and aparte) are nether foũde in the Hebrue nor in the Calde: in whych tonges they haue not of longe bene written (in leſſe then it were happly the boke of Sapience) wher vpon it were now very harde to repayre & amende them: And that alſo they are not receaued nor taken as legyttimate & leafull, as well of the Hebrues of the whole Churche, as S. Hierome ſheweth: we haue ſeparate them, & ſet them aſyde, that they may the better be knowen: to thyntent that men maye knowe of whyche bokes wytnes ought to be receaued, and of whyche not. For the ſayde S. Hierome ſpeakyng of the boke of Iudith (which is Hagiogryphe) ſayth, yͭ the auctorytie therof is not eſteamed worthy and ſufficient to confyrme and ſtablyſh the thynges that light in diſputaciō. And generally of all yͤ bokes called Hagiogripha, he ſayth, that men maye reade them to the edifying of the people: but not to confyrme & ſtrengthen the doctrine of the Churche. I leaue oute here the lawe (as they call it of Canon. c. Sancta Romana. xv. diſtinc. where he ſheweth his iudgemente. Lykewyſe the Gloſe of. c. Canones. xvi. diſtin. which ſayth, that men reade thē, but not in generall: as though he ſhulde ſaye, that generally and thorouly they are not alowed. And not without a cauſe: For that they haue bene corrupted and falſifyed in many places, it appeareth ſufficiently by Euſebius in hys boke called Hiſtoria Eccleſiaſtica: Whyche thynge is eaſye to be knowen euen now a dayes in certen poyntes, namely in the bokes of the Machabees: whoſe ſecond boke S. Hiero. confeſſeth that he founde not in the Hebrue, by the meanes wherof it is become vnto vs the more ſuſpect and the leſſe receaued. In lyke maner is it of the thyrde and fourthe boke of Eſdras, whiche S. Hierome proteſteth that he wolde not haue tranſlated, eſteamyng thē for dreames: where as Ioſephus yet in hys booke of his Antiquities declareth the ſumme of the matter after the maner of a ſtorye, as well of the boke of Machabees as of the iij. of Eſdras: all though he eſteme the bokes cōpyled from the raygne of kynge Artaxerſes vnto hys tyme, to be Hagiogripha.

Wherfore then, whē thou wilt maynteyne any thynge for certen, rendryng a reaſon of thy fayth, take heade to procede therin by the lyuynge and pytthye Scriptures, folowynge S. Peter, which ſayth: He yͭ ſpeaketh, let hym ſpeake as though he ſpake the worde of God. He ſayth the worde of God, as a thyng moſt true and certen, opened by the Prophetes and Apoſtles, inſpyred with the holy gooſt: of whom we haue witneſſe more cleare then the daye. Lawers hauynge greate deſyre to confyrme and ſtablyſhe theyr opinions by the lawe of man, ſaye, that they ſhame to ſpeake without law: How moch more feare and dreade then ought to haue, that ſayth he is a Chriſtian, the whiche holdeth not hym ſelfe, or reaſteth not in the lawes of yͤ lyuinge God: but in mennes inuencions, iudgynge of all thynges accordynge to them, and leaninge to an vncerten ymaginacion and phantaſye: Let vs therfore that are buylded on the foundacion of the holy Prophetes and Apoſtles, and on the heade corner ſtone (on whiche they them ſelues were founded, and which they preached, that is Ieſus Chriſt, the ſure ſtone) leaue the thynges that are vncerten to folowe the certen: holdynge vs and reaſtynge vs in them, and faſtenyng oure ancre there, as in a ſure place. For oure Chriſten fayth conſyſteth not in doutefull thynges, but in playne and mooſt certen aſſuraunce, and in mooſt true perſuaſyon, taken & confyrmed by infallible verite. In whyche God graunte vs to walke perpetually, to thyntent that accordynge to it (fulfyllynge hys holy wyll in vs, and ſettyng aſyde all inuencyons contrary vnto hym) we maye lyue to hys honour, and to the edifyinge of hys Churche.

¶ Joſias holdeth Paſſeouer. After hys death is Jechonias hys ſonne made kynge in hys ſteade: whome the kynge of Egypte putteth out, and ſetteth in hys brother Joachim. Jeruſalem is deſtroyed, and Sedechias is taken.

A *ij.pa.xxv.a iiii.re.xxiii.e

AND * Joſias helde the feaſt of Eaſter in Jeruſalem vnto the Lorde, and ſlewe yͤ Paſſeouer the .xiiii. daye of the fyrſte moneth. He ſet the preſtes alſo in order (accordinge to theyr dayly courſes) beynge arayed in longe garmentes in the temple of the Lorde. And he ſpake vnto the Leuites the holy miniſters of Iſrael, that they ſhulde halowe themſelues vnto the Lorde, to ſet the holy Arcke of the Lord, in the houſe that kynge Salomon the ſonne of Dauid had buylded, and ſayd: Ye ſhal nomore beare the Arcke vpon your ſhulders. Now ſerue your Lorde and take the charge of hys people of Iſrael, after youre villages and your trybes: accordynge as kynge Dauid the kynge of Iſrael hath ordened, and accordynge as Salomon hys ſonne hath honorably prepared: yee, loke that ye al do ſeruice in the temple, accordynge to the ordrynge & diſtribucion of the principall men whych are appoynted out of the tribes, to do ſeruice for the chyldren of Iſrael. *Exo.xii.b. * Kyll the Paſſeouer, and prepare offerynges for your brethren, & do accordynge to the commaũdement of the Lorde, which was gyuen vnto Moſes. And vnto yͤ people that was founde Joſias gaue xxx, thouſande of ſhepe, lãbes, kyddes, & goates, B and thre thouſande oxen. These yͤ kinge (of hys kyngly lyberalitie) gaue vnto yͤ people, accordynge as he had promyſed: & to the Preſtes for the Paſſeouer, he gaue two. M. ſhepe, and an hundreth oxen. Moreouer Jechonias and Semeias, & Nathanael his brethren, and Haſabias, Jehiel, and Joſabab gaue them to the Paſſeouer, fyue thouſande ſhepe and fyue hundred bullockes.

And whan theſe thynges were brought to paſſe, the Preſtes and the Leuites ſtode goodly in theyr ordre, & had the vnleuened breade thorow out the trybes. And after yͤ ordringe of the principall men in the trybes, they offered vnto the Lorde in the ſyght of the people *Exo.xii.b. accordynge * as it is wrytten in the booke of Moſes, & ſo they roſted the Eaſter lambe as accordynge was. As for the thãkofferynges and the other, they dyght them in kettels & pottes, & ſet them before the people wͭ good wyll, and afterward before them ſelues, and the Preſtes. For the Preſtes offered the fat, vntyll the tyme was expyred, but yͤ Leuites prepared for themſelues & for theyr brethren the chyldren of Aaron. The holy ſingers alſo the chyldren of Aſaph ſtode in theyr order, accordynge as Dauid deuyſed. So dyd Aſaph zachary & Iduthun, which were appointed by the kynge. Moreouer the porters and dore kepers ſtode by the dores, that diligẽtly, C ſo that none went out of hys ſtandynge & ſeruice: for theyr brethren (the Leuites) prepared for them. Thus were all thynges performed, that belonged to the offerynge of yͤ Lorde. In that day they helde the Paſſeouer and offered thankeſofferynge beſyde the ſacrifice of the Lord, accordynge to yͤ commaundement of kynge Joſias.

So the chyldren of Iſrael whych were thẽ preſent helde an honourable Paſſeouer, and the feaſt of ſwete breade .vii. dayes lõge. Yee ſuch a Paſſeouer was not kept in Iſrael, frõ the tyme of the prophet Samuel. And al the kynges of Iſrael held not ſuch an Eaſter, as thys whych kyng Joſias held, & the preſtes, the Leuites, the Jewes, and all Iſrael, of all thẽ yͭ were at Jeruſalẽ. And in the .xviii. yere of the raygne of Joſias was thys Paſſeouer kept. And wyth a parfyte harte dyd kynge Joſias order all hys workes, before yͤ Lord, and the thynges that were wrytten of hym in tymes paſt, cõcernynge thoſe yͭ ſinned and were vngodly agaynſte the Lorde before all people, & yͭ ſoughte not the worde of yͤ Lorde vpon Iſrael. * After al theſe actes of kynge *iiij.Regū. xxiii.e ij.pa.xxxv.d Joſias Pharao yͤ kynge of Egipte wente vp & came towarde Carmis by Euphrates, and Joſias went to mete hym. Thẽ ſent yͤ kynge of Egypte vnto Joſias, ſayeng: what haue I to do wyth yͤ, O kyng of Juda? I am not ſent of the Lorde to fyght againſt the, for my warre is vpon Euphrates, go thou thy way D home agayne in all yͤ haſt. And Joſias wold not turne againe vpon his charet, but vndertoke to fight againſt hym, and herkened not vnto the worde of the Prophete, whyche he tolde hym out of the mouth of God, but pytched a battayll agaynſte hym in the felde of Mageddo. And yͤ prynces preaſſed to kinge Joſias. Then ſayd the kynge vnto hys ſeruauntes: Cary me a way out of the battayl, for I am ſore woũded. And immediatly hys ſeruauntes toke hym awaye out of the front of the battayll. Then ſat he vp vpon the ſeconde charet, came to Jeruſalẽ, dyed, & was buried in hys fathers ſepulcre. And in al Jury they mourned for Joſias, yee, the rulers alſo wyth theyr wyues made lamentacion for hym vnto thys daye: And thys was done euer ſtyll in Iſrael.

These thynges are wrytten in the boke of the ſtories of the kynges of Juda, namely, all the actes and workes of kynge Joſias, his kyngly power & maieſty, his vnderſtandyng in the lawe of God, & what he dyd, yee thynges whych are not wrytten in the boke *iiij.Regum. xxiii.f. ij.Pa.xxxvi.a. of the kynges of Iſrael and Juda. *And the people toke Jechonias the ſonne of Joſias & E made hym kynge in ſteade of Joſias hys father, whan he was .xxiii. yeare olde. And he raygned ouer Iſrael thre monethes. And the kynge of Egypte put him downe, yͭ he ſhuld not raygne in Jeruſalem, & rayſed vp a taxe of the people: namely, an .C. talentes of ſyluer and one talent of golde. The kynge of Egypte alſo made Joachim hys brother kynge of Juda and Jeruſalem. As for them of the kynges councel wyth the kynge hymſelfe & zaraceles hys brother, he toke them & caryed them awaye preſoners into Egipte. Fyue and twenty yeare olde was Joachim, whan he was made kynge in the lande of Juda & Jeruſalem, & he dyd euell before yͤ Lord. *iiij. Regũ. xxiiii.a. After thys, *Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babilon came vp, & bounde hym wͭ bandes of yron, & caryed hym vnto Babilon. Nabuchodonoſor alſo toke al yͤ veſſels yͭ were halowed in yͤ tẽple of the Lorde, & al the Jewels, & caryed them vnto Babilon, & brought thẽ into hys awne tẽple at Babilon. Of hys vnclennes & vngodlynes, it is wryttẽ in yͤ boke of the actes of the kynges. And Joachim his F ſonne raygned in hys ſteade: He was made kynge beynge .xviii. yeare olde, and raygned but thre monethes and .x. dayes in Jeruſalẽ, & dyd euel before the Lorde. So after a yeare Nabuchodonoſor ſent and cauſed hym to be brought vnto Babilon wyth the holy veſſels of the Lorde, & made Sedechias his brother kynge of Juda & Jeruſalẽ, whẽ he was .xxi. yeare olde: and he raygned .xi. yeare.

And he dyd euell alſo in the ſyght of the Lorde, & cared not for the wordes that were *Je.xxvi.a. ſpokẽ vnto hym *by the prophet Jeremy at yͤ mouth of yͤ Lord. And where he had made an oth vnto kynge Nabuchodonoſor, he forſwore hym ſelfe, and fell from hym hauyng a ſtyfneck & a herte, & tranſgreſſed al the ſtatutes and ordinaunces of the Lorde God of Iſrael. The rulers alſo and yͤ heades of the people of the Lorde dyd moch euel, & became vngodly, more then the heathen, beynge defyled in al maner of abhominacions: Yee, & defiled the holy tẽple of the Lorde at Jeruſalẽ. And the God of theyr fathers ſent hys meſſaungers vnto thẽ, to turne them backe & to call thẽ agayne frõ theyr ſynnes: for he wold fayne haue ſpared them for his holy taberna G cles ſake. Neuertheles, they had hys meſſaũgers in deriſion: & loke what god ſpake vnto thẽ by hys prophetes, they made but a ſporte of it. Thys drewe on ſo longe tyll the Lorde was wroth with his people for theyr vngodlynes, & tyl he cauſed the kynges of the Caldees to come vp, which ſlewe theyr yõge mẽ with the ſwerde, yee, euen in the compaſſe of theyr holy temple, & ſpared no body, neyther yonge nor olde, nether maydẽ nor yonge mã: but they were all delyuered into the power of the kynges of the Caldees, and al the holy veſſels of the Lorde and the kynges treaſures toke they, and caried them vnto Babilõ. *As for the house of the Lorde, they wẽt vp *Je.xxxix.b. and.lij.b. into it, and brent it, & brake downe the walles of Jeruſalem, ſet fyre vpon her towres, deſtroyed al her noble buyldynges & brought them to nought, & the people that were not ſlayne wyth the ſwearde, they caryed vnto Babylon.

Thus became they preſoners and bondemen of the kynge of Babylon, tyl they were delyuered & raygned for themſelues, *when *Jer.xxv.c. and.xxix.c. the wordes of yͤ Lorde were fulfylled, which he promyſed them by the mouth of the prophet Jeremy, and tyll the lande had her reſt: namely, all the tyme that it laye wayſt, had it reſt and quyetnes .lxxvii. yeares.

The .ij. Chapter.

Cyrus gyueth lycence to the Jewes to returne to Jeruſalem, & reſtoreth them the veſſels of the tẽple After that are there letters ſente to Artharerſes, which acuſe the Jewes for buyldynge of the cytie: and ſo is the buyldynge dryuen of untyll the ſecõde yeare of Darius.

Nowe *whã kinge Cyrus raygned A *ij.pa.xxxvi a. ouer the Perſians, & whẽ the Lord wolde perfourme the word that he had promyſed by the mouth of the prophete Jeremy: the Lord raiſed vp the ſpyrite of Cyrus, the kynge of Perſians, ſo that he cauſed thys wrytynge to be proclaymed thorow out hys whole realme, ſayng: Thus ſayeth the kynge of Perſians: The Lorde of Iſrael that hye Lorde hath made me kynge of the lande, and commaunded me to buylde hym an houſe at Jeruſalẽ in Jewry. Yf there be any now of your people, the Lord be with hym, and go vp wyth him to Jeruſalẽ. And all they that dwell rounde aboute that place ſhall helpe them, whether it be wyth golde, with ſyluer, wyth gyftes, wyth horſes & neceſſarye catell, and all other thinges that are brought wyth a frewyll to the houſe of the Lorde at Jeruſalem.

Then the principall men out of the tribes and vyllages of Juda and Beniamin ſtode vp: ſo dyd yͤ Preſtes alſo & the Leuites (whõ the Lorde had moued) to go vp, & to buylde the houſe of the Lorde at Jeruſalem. And they that were aboute them, helped thẽ with all maner of golde, and ſyluer, and catell alſo and wyth many lyberall gyftes, & this dyd many one, whoſe mynde was ſtered vp therto. *Kynge Cyrus alſo brought forth yͤ veſ- B *i.Eſdr.i.c. ſels and ornamẽtes, that were halowed vnto the Lorde (whyche Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babilon had caryed awaye frõ Jeruſalem, and conſecrated them to hys Idoll and ymage) and delyuered them to Mithridatus hys treaſurer, & by hym they were delyuered to Salmanaſar ẏ debyte in Jewry. And this was the nõbre of thē: Two thouſande ⁊.iiij.C. ſyluer boules.xxx. ſyluer baſens.xxx. baſens of golde.ij.M:⁊.iiij.C. veſſels of ſyluer, and a thouſande beſyde. All ẏ veſſels of golde and ſyluer were.v.M.viij.c and.lx. Theſe were nõbred vnto Salmanaſar, and to thē that were come agayne with hym to Jeruſalē out of the captiuite of Babylon. * Now in the tyme of kyng Artaxerſes the kyng of Perſia, theſe men: Balemus ⁊ Mithridatus, Sabellius, Rathimꝰ, Balthemus, Semelius the Scribe, ⁊ other that dwelt in Samaria ⁊ in other places vnder ẏ domyniō therof, wrote a letter vnto kynge Artaxerſes, wherin they complayned vnto the kynge of them in Jewry and Jeruſalem The letter was made after thys maner.

* i. Eſd. iiij. b

C Syr, thy ſeruaũtes Rathimus the ſtory wryter, Sabellius the Scribe, ⁊ other iudges of the courte in Celoſyria ⁊ Phenyces. Be it knowen ⁊ manyfeſt to oure Lorde the kyng, ẏ the Jewes which are come vp from you vnto vs into the rebellious ⁊ wicked citye, begynne to buylde it agayne, ⁊ the walles aboute it, and to ſet vp the temple a new. Now yf thys cytie ⁊ the walles therof be ſet vp agayne, they ſhall not onely refuſe to geue trybutes ⁊ taxes, but alſo rebell vtterly agaynſt the kynge. And for ſo moch as they take thys in hāde now aboute the tēple, we thought it reaſon, to thynke no ſcorne of it, but to ſhewe it vnto oure Lorde the kyng, ⁊ to certyfie hym therof: to thintent that yf it pleaſe ẏ Kynge, he may cauſe it to be ſought in the bokes of olde: ⁊ thou ſhalt fynde ſoche warnynge wryttē, ⁊ ſhalt vnderſtāde, that thys cytye hath alwaye bene rebellyous and diſobediēt, that it hath ſubdued kynges and cytyes, and that ẏ Jewes which dwell therin, haue euer bene a rebellyous, obſtynate, vnfaythfull, ⁊ fyghtyng people, for ẏ which cauſe thys cytye is waſted. Wherfore now we certyfye oure Lorde the Kynge, ẏ yf this cytye be buylded ⁊ occupyed agayne, and the walles therof ſet vp a new, thou canſt haue no paſſage into Celoſyria and Phenices.

Then wrote the kynge to Rathimus ẏ D ſtory wryter, to Balthemus, to Sabellius the Scribe, ⁊ to the other officiers ⁊ dwellers in Syria and Phenices, after thys maner: I haue red the epiſtle which thou ſenteſt vnto me, ⁊ haue commaunded to make diligēt ſearch, and haue foūde, ẏ the cytye hath euer reſyſted kynges, ẏ the ſame people are dyſobedient, and haue cauſed moche warre, and that myghty kynges haue raygned in Jeruſalem, whiche alſo haue rayſed vp taxes of Syria and Phenices. Wherfore, I haue cōmaunded thoſe people, ẏ they ſhall not buylde the cytye, that they make nomore in it, ⁊ that they proceade no forther with the buyldynge: for ſo moche as it myghte be the cauſe of warre, and diſpleaſure vnto kynges.

Now when Rathymus and Sabellius the Scrybe, ⁊ the rulers in the lande had red the writinge of kynge Artaxerſes, they gat them together, ⁊ came in all the haſte to Jeruſalem wͭ an hooſt of horſmen, and wͭ moch people of fote, ⁊ forbad thē to buylde. And ſo they lefte of from buyldynge of the temple, vnto the ſecond yeare of kynge Darius.

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

¶ Darius maketh a feaſt. The thre ſentēces of the thre yonge men, of which the fyrſt is declared.

Kynge Darius made a great feaſt vnto hys ſeruauntes, vnto all his courte, ⁊ to all ẏ officers of Medea ⁊ Perſia, yee to all the debites and rulers that were vnder him, frō India vnto Ethiopia, an hundreth ⁊.xxvij. coūtres. So when they had eaten and dronken beyng ſatyſfyed, and were gone home agayne, Darius the kyng wente into hys chābre, layed hym downe to ſlepe, and ſo awaked. A

Then the thre yonge men, that kepte the kynges perſonne, and watched hys body, cō- B moned amonge them ſelues, ⁊ ſpake one to another: let euery one of vs ſaye ſome thing, ⁊ loke whoſe ſentence is wyſer and more excellent then the other, vnto hym ſhall kynge Darius geue greate gyftes, and clothe hym with purple. He ſhall geue hym veſſels of golde to drynke in, clothes of golde ⁊ couerynges: he ſhall make hym a coſtely charet ⁊ a brydle of golde, he ſhall geue hym a bonet of whyte ſylke, and a cheyne of golde about hys neck: yee, he ſhalbe the ſeconde and principall nexte vnto kyng Darius, and that becauſe of hys wyſdome, and ſhalbe called the kynges kynſman.

So, euery one wrote hys meaning, ſealed it, and layed it vnder the kynges pelowe, ⁊ ſayde: when the kyng aryſeth, we wyl geue hym oure writinges, and loke whoſe worde the kynge and hys chefe Lordes iudge to be C the mooſt wyſely ſpokē, the ſame ſhall haue the victory. One wrote: Wyne is a ſtronge thynge. The ſecond wrote: The kyng is ſtrōger. The thyrd wrote: Womē haue yet more ſtrēgth, but aboue all thynges ẏ trueth beareth awaye the victory. Now whē the kyng was ryſen vp, they toke theyr wrytynges ⁊ delyuered them vnto hym, and ſo he red thē. Then ſent he forth to cal all his chefe lordes, all the debites and rulers of the contrees of Medea and Perſia. And whē they were ſet downe in the councell, the wrytynges were red before thē. And he cōmaunded to call for the yonge mē, that they myght declare their meanynges thē ſelues by mouth. So when they were ſent for, ⁊ came in, the kyng ſayde vnto thē: ſhewe vs ⁊ make vs to vnderſtāde what the thinges are that ye haue written.

D Then beganne the fyrſt (which had ſpokē of the ſtrēgth of wyne) and ſayde: O ye mē, *wyne is maruelous ſtronge, and ouercommeth thē yͤ drynke it: it diſceaueth yͤ mynde, and bryngeth both the poore man ⁊ the kyng to dotage ⁊ vanite. Thus doth it alſo with the bōdmā and with the fre, with the poore and riche: it taketh awaye theyr vnderſtandyng, and maketh them carleſſe and mery, ſo that none of thē remembreth any heuynes det or dewtye. It cauſeth a man to thynke alſo that the thinge which he doth, is honeſt and good: and remembreth not that he is a kyng, nor that he is in auctorite, and that he ought not to do ſoch thīges. Moreouer, whē men are drynkyng, they forget all frēdſhyp, all brotherly faythfulnes and loue: but as ſoone as they are dronkē, they drawe out the ſwerde ⁊ wyll fyght: ⁊ when they are layed downe frō the wyne, ⁊ ſo ryſen vp agayne, they cā not tell what they dyd: iudge ye now is not wyne yͤ ſtrongeſt? For who wolde els take in hand to do ſoch thynges? And when he had ſpoken this, he helde hys tonge.

¶ The.iiii.Chapter.

¶ The declaracion of the.ii.laſt ſentences of the yonge men, propounded in the Chapter before: of whiche the laſt, that is, that veritye beareth the victorye in all thynges, is moſt cōmended ⁊ alowed. Darius wryteth letters to all the rulers vnder hym, that they ſhulde ayde Zorobabel to the buyldynge of Jeruſalem.

A THen the ſecōde (which had ſayd) that the kynge was ſtronger) beganne to ſpeake, ſaying: O ye men, are not they the ſtrongeſt ⁊ mooſt excellent, that conquere yͤ lande and the ſee, and all that is in the ſee ⁊ in the earth? Nowe is the kynge lorde of all theſe thynges, and hath dominiō of them all and loke what he commaundeth, it is done. If he ſende his men forth a warfare, they go and breake downe hylles, walles ⁊ towres. They are ſlayne, and ſlaye (other mē) them ſelues, and ouerpaſſe not the kynges worde. If they get the victory, they brynge yͤ kyng all the ſpoyle. Lykewyſe, yͤ other that medle not with warres and fyghtynge, but tyll the grounde: when they reape, they brynge tribute vnto the kynge. And yf the kynge alone do but commaunde to kyll, they kyll: yf he commaunde to forgeue, they forgeue: yf he commaunde to ſmyte, they ſmyte: yf he byd dryue awaye, they dryue awaye: yf he commaunde to buylde, they buylde: yf he cōmaūde to breake downe, they breake down yf he commaunde to plante, they plante. The commen people and the rulers are obedient vnto hym. And the kyng in the meane ſeaſon ſytteth hym downe, eateth, and drynketh, and taketh hys reſte: then kepe they watche rounde aboute the kynge, and not one of them darre get hym out of the waye, to do his awne buſines, but muſt be obediēt vnto the kynge at a worde. Judge ye nowe, O ye men, howe ſhuld not he go farre aboue vnto whom men are thus obedient? And whan he had ſpoken thus, he held his tonge.

B The thyrde, whoſe name was Zorobabel, whych had ſpoken of wemen and of truth, began to ſaye after this maner: O ye men, it is not the great kynge, it is not the multitude of men, nether is it wyne that excelleth: Who is it then that hath the lorſhyp ouer them? Haue not wemen borne the kynge, and all the people that rule thoſe thynges? Haue not wemen borne them, ⁊ brought them vp, that plāte the vynes, wherout the wyne cōmeth? They make garmētes for all men, they gyue honoure vnto all men, and without women can not men lyue. Yf they gather golde ⁊ ſyluer and all precious thynges, and ſe a fayre wel fauoured woman, they leaue altogether and turne theyr eyes only vnto the woman, ⁊ gape vpō her, ⁊ haue more deſyre vnto her, then vnto the ſyluer and gold, or any maner of precious thynge. *A man leaueth hys father that brought hym vp, leaueth his awne natural countre, ⁊ cleaueth vnto the womā: yee he ieopardeth hys lyfe with the womā, ⁊ remembreth neyther father, nor mother, nor countre. By this then ye muſt nedes knowe, that wemen haue dominion ouer you.

C *Gene.ii.d. Math.xix.a. i.Corin.vi.d. Ephe.v.g.

Doth it not greue you? A man taketh his ſwearde, ⁊ goeth hys waye to ſteale, to kyll, to murther, to ſayle vpon the ſee, and ſeyth a Lyon, ⁊ goeth in the darkenes: and when he hath ſtollen, diſceaued and robbed, he bryngeth it vnto hys loue. Agayne, a mā loueth hys wyfe better than father and mother: yee many one there be, yͤ renne out of theyr wyttes, and become bondmen for theyr wyues ſakes: many one alſo haue periſhed, haue ben ſlayne, and haue ſynned bycauſe of women.

And nowe beleue me, I knowe a kynge whyche is great in hys power, and al landes ſtande in awe of hym, and no man dare laye hande vpon hym: yet dyd I ſe, that Apame (the daughter of the great kyng Bartacus) the kynges concubine, ſat beſyde the kynge vpon the ryght hande, ⁊ toke of hys crowne from hys heade, ⁊ ſet it vpon her awne head, and ſmote the kynge wyth her lefte hande. Moreouer, the kynge loked vpon her wyth open mouth: yf ſhe laughed vpon hym, he laughed alſo: but yf ſhe toke any diſpleaſure wyth hym, the kynge was fayne to flatter her, and to gyue her good wordes, tyll he had gotten her fauoure agayne.

O ye men, are not wemen then ſtronger? Great is the earth, ⁊ hye is the heauen. Who doth theſe thynges? Then yͤ king ⁊ the princes loked one vpon another. So he began to ſpeake of yͤ truth: O ye men: are not wemen ſtronger? Great is the earth, hye is the heauen, ſwyft is the courſe of the ſunne, *he cōpaſſeth the heauen roūde about, and fetcheth his courſe

hys courſe agayne to hys awne place in one daye. Is he not excellēt that doth thys? Yee, great is the trueth, & ſtronger then all thynges. All the earth calleth vpō the trueth, the heauen prayſeth it, all workes ſhake & treble at it, and with it is no vnryghteous thyng. Wyne is vnryghteous: the kyng is vnryghteous: wemē are vnrighteous: all the chyldren of men are vnryghteous, yee, all theyr workes are vnryghteous, and there is no E trueth in thē, in theyr vnryghteouſnes alſo ſhall they be deſtroyed and peryſh. As for yͤ trueth, * it endureth, & is alwaye ſtronge: it lyueth and conquereth for euermore worlde without ende.

* Eſaie.xl.a. Pſal.cxvij.a.

The trueth accepteth no perſonnes, it putteth no differēce betwixte riche or poore, betwyxte the myghtye or ſymple, but doth ryght vnto euery mā, whether they be euell or good, & all men are louingly dealt with all in the workes of it. In the iudgemēt of it there is no vnryghteous thynge but ſtrēgth kyngdom and power and maieſty for euermore. Bleſſed be the God of trueth.

And with that he helde hys tōge, and all the people cried, & ſayde: Great is the trueth and aboue all. Then ſayde the kynge vnto him: Aſke what thou wylt, more then is appoynted in the wrytinge, and I ſhall geue it the, for thou art founde wyſer then thy companyons, thou ſhalt ſyt next me, and be my kynſman. Then ſayde he vnto the kynge: Remembre thy promyſe and vowe, which thou haſt vowed and promiſed (in the daye whē thou cameſt to yͤ kyngdome) to buylde vp Ieruſalē, & to ſende agayne all yͤ veſſels and Iewels, that were taken awaye out of Ieruſalem: which Cyrus ſeparated, whē he offred in Babylō, & wolde ſende thē agayne. And thy mynde was to buylde vp the temF ple, which the Edomytes brent, whē Ieruſalem was deſtroyed by the Chaldees. This onely (O kyng) is the thynge that I requyre, thys is the maieſty, which I deſyre and aſke of the: that thou perfourme the vowe, whiche thou with thyne awne mouth haſte made vnto the kynge of heauen.

Then Darius the kynge ſtode vp, and kyſſed hym, * & wrote a letter vnto all yͤ debytes and ſhreues, to all the Lordes and nobles, that they ſhulde conueye hym forth, & all them yͤ wolde go vp with him. He wrote a letter alſo vnto all the Shreues that were in Celoſyria and Phenices, and vnto Lybanus, that they ſhuld drawe Cedre trees from Lybanus vnto Ieruſalē, to buylde the cytie withal. Moreouer, he wrote vnto all the Iewes that were gone out of hys realme into Iewry becauſe of yͤ fredome, that no officier no ruler, nor Shreue, ſhuld come to their dores, and that all theyr lande which they had conquered, ſhuld be fre & not tributary: And that yͤ Edomites ſhulde geue ouer the cities and villages of the Iewes, whiche they had takē in: yee, and that they ſhulde yearly geue .xx. talētes to the buyldinge of the tēple, vntyll the tyme that it were fynyſhed, and to yͤ dayly halowynge of the brentoffringes (as it is commaunded) ten talentes yearly alſo: And that all they which come frō Babylon to buylde the cytie, ſhulde haue fre lybertye, they and theyr chyldren, & all the Preaſtes.

*j. Eſd.j.b. &.iij.Eſ.vi.d.

He wrote the greatneſſe alſo, & commaunded that the holy garmēt ſhulde be geuē thē, wherin they miniſtred: and wrote that commaundemētes ſhulde be geuen to the Leuytes, vntyll the daye, that the houſe were fynyſhed, and Ieruſalem buylded vp: and cōmaūded that all they that watched the cytye ſhulde haue theyr porcyons and wages.

He gaue ouer alſo all the veſſels that Cy G rus had ſeparated from Babylon: and all yͤ Cyrus had geuen in commaundement, the ſame charged he alſo, that it ſhulde be done and ſent vnto Ieruſalem. Now when thys yōge mā was gone forth, he turned his face towarde Ieruſalem, and prayſed the kynge of heauen, and ſayde: * Of the commeth the victory, of the cōmeth wyſdome & clearneſſe, & I am thy ſeruaūt. Bleſſed art thou, which haſt geuen me wyſdome: that will I prayſe, O Lord, thou God of oure fathers.

* Eccle.i.a.

And ſo he toke the letters, & wente vnto Babylon. And when he came there, he tolde thys vnto all his brethren that were at Babylon, and they prayſed the God of theyr fathers, that he had geuē them refreſhyng and lyberte to go vp, and to buylde Ieruſalē and the tēple (wherin the name of yͤ Lord is called vpon) and they reioyſed with inſtrumētes and gladneſſe ſeuen dayes longe.

The .v. Chapter.

They that returne to Ieruſalē are nombred. They begynne to laye the foundacyon of the temple, but are let by the meanes of enemyes: and ſo is the buyldyng dryuen of by the ſpace of two yeares.

After thys were the principal A men of all yͤ villages choſen in the trybes and kynredes, that they ſhuld go wͭ theyr wyues & chyldrē, wͭ theyr ſeruaūtes & maydens, wͭ all theyr catell & ſubſtaūce. And Darius yͤ kyng ſent wͭ them a thouſande horſmen, to cōueye them ſafely vnto Ieruſalem: and theyr brethren were glad, playeng vpon inſtrumentes, and ſyngynge. E Theyr heades alſo and the rulers in ẏ tribes, when they came to Jeruſalem, ⁊ wolde buylde and ſet vp the temple of God agayne in hys place, they gaue (after theyr abilitie) vnto the temple, to the treaſure and to ẏ ſeruice of ẏ Sãctuary.xii.M.poũdes of golde, fyue thouſande of ſyluer, ⁊ an hundred Preſtes garmentes. And ſo dwelt the Preſtes ⁊ the Leuytes, and the people that wente out to Jeruſalem, ⁊ in the countre there about, ẏ ſyngers alſo and the porters, euery one of Iſrael in hys owne lande.

* So whan the ſeuenth moneth came, *i.Eſd.iii.a. and whan the chyldren of Iſraell were euery man at hys buſynes, they came all wyth one conſent into the court, whych was before the Eaſt dore. And there ſtode Jeſua the ſõne of Joſedec and hys brethren the Preſtes, and zorobabell the ſonne of Salathiell and hys brethren, ſettyng vp an aulter, to offer brent ſacrifices vpon it, as it is wryttẽ in the law of Moſes.

There came people alſo of other coũtrees, and the Heathen out of al landes to ſet vp the aulter in hys place, and offred ſacrifices and brent offrynges vnto the Lorde in the mornynge. And ſo they helde the feaſt of taber- * Leu.xxiii.f Num.xxix.b ii.Mach.i.c. nacles, * as it is commaunded in the lawe. And dayly offred they as accordynge was, and made ẏ ſacrifices appoynted, the offrin- i.Eſd.iii.b ges alſo of the Sabbathes ⁊ of the new mones, and all holy feaſtes. * And all they that vowed offerynges vnto the Lorde, beganne at the newe moone of the.vii.moneth to offre vnto God, for the temple of the Lorde was not yet builded. And they gaue vnto the maſons and carpenters, money, meate, ⁊ drinke F wyth chearfulneſſe. Unto them of Sidon alſo ⁊ Tyre they gaue carres, that they ſhulde cary Cedre trees from Lybanus to be ioyſtes and beames, and that they ſhulde make ſhyppes in the hauen of Joppe, accordynge as it was appoynted ⁊ ordeyned by Cyrus kyng of the Perſians.

And in the ſeconde yeare they came into *Ec.xxix.b.c the temple of God at Jeruſalem. * In the ſeconde moneth began zorobabel the ſonne of Salathiel, and Jeſua the ſonne of Joſedec ⁊ theyr brethren the Preſtes and Leuites, and al they that were come vnto Jeruſalem oute of the captiuite of Babilon, ⁊ layed the foũdacion of the temple, in the newe mone of the ſecond moneth in ẏ ſecond yeare ẏ they were come into Jewry ⁊ Jeruſalẽ. And they appoynted the Leuites (that were aboue.xx. yeare olde) vnto ẏ ſeruice of the Lorde: ſo Jeſua ⁊ hys ſonnes ⁊ hys brethren, al the Leuites ſtode together, ⁊ perfourmed the lawe ⁊ ordynaunce in the houſe of the Lorde.

And the Preſtes ſtode, ⁊ had theyr garmentes and trompettes, ⁊ the Leuites, the ſonnes of Aſaph had Cymbals, gyuyng thãkes and prayſes vnto the Lorde, accordynge * as Dauid the kynge of Iſrael had ordey- *i.Pa.xvi.b ned. And the ſonge that they dyd ſynge vnto the Lorde, was after thys maner. + O ſynge +Pſa.cxxxv.a Eſay.xii.b. vnto the Lorde, for he is gracious, and hys goodnes vpon Iſrael endureth for euer. And al the people blew out with trompettes, and ſonge wyth loude voyce, prayſynge ẏ Lorde G together in the rearynge vp of ẏ houſe of the Lorde. * There came alſo from amonge the *i.Eſd.iii.d. Preſtes ⁊ Leuites the rulers ⁊ elders, accordynge to the trybes ⁊ kynredes (ſoch as had ſene the houſe afore) to the buyldyng of this temple with great crye ⁊ great mournynge, many alſo wyth trompettes and great ioye: In ſo moch, that the trompettes myghte not well be hearde for the wepynge and mournynge. For the commen people blewe goodly vpon the trompettes. *i.Eſd.iiii.a

* Then came the enemyes of the trybes of Juda and Beniamin, to know what that trompettynge and noyſe of ſhawmes might be. And they perceyued ẏ it was they whych were come agayne out of captiuitie, ⁊ wold buylde the temple vp a newe vnto the Lord God of Iſrael. So they went to zorobabell and Jeſua, and to the rulers of the vyllages, and ſayd vnto them. Shall we buylde wyth you alſo? For we lykewyſe haue herde your Lorde, and we walke after the ſame maner, from the dayes of Aſuazareth the kynge of Aſſyria, whych brought vs hyther. Then zorobabel and Jeſua and the rulers of the vyllages of Iſrael ſayd vnto them. It is not mete, that ye ſhulde buylde the temple of our God wᵗ vs: we oure ſelues alone wyll buylde vnto the Lorde, lyke * as Cyrus the kynge *i.Eſd.i.a of the Perſians hath commaunded vs.

But the Heathen in the lande layed them ſelues agaynſt thoſe ẏ were in Jewry, helde vp the buyldynge from them, layed wayte vpon them preuely, ſtopped ſoch as brought any thynge to them, forbad them to buylde, and hyndered thoſe that made them paſſage, that the buyldynge ſhulde not be fyniſhed: ⁊ thys continued ſo longe as kynge Cyrus lyued: and ſo they put of the buyldynge for the ſpace of two yeares, vntyll the raygne of kynge Darius.

¶ Aggeus and zachary prophecye. They buylde the temple wythout let or hynderaunce, by the commaundement of Darius.

A NOtwythſtandynge in the ſeconde yeare of yͤ raygne of Darius, *i.Eſd.v.a. *Aggeus ⁊ zacharye the ſonne of Addo prophecied vpon them in Jewry, ⁊ Jeruſalem, in the name of the God of Iſrael *Agge.i.c. *Then zorobabel the ſonne of Salathiel, ⁊ Jeſua the ſonne of Joſedec ſtode vp, and began to buylde the houſe of the Lorde at Jeruſalẽ, whã yͤ prophetes of the Lord helped thẽ. At the ſame tyme came Siſennes the vnder ſhreue in Syria and Phenices, with the lãdelordes and hys companions, and ſayd vnto them: Who hath bydden and cõmaũded you to buylde the houſe, to make the roufe and all other thynges agayne? And who are the workmen, that buylde them? Neuertheles, the elders of the Jewes had ſuch grace of the Lorde, that they wolde not be let (thoughe they were prouoked therto) but buylded on ſtyll, vntyll the tyme yͤ kynge Darius were certifyed therof, ⁊ an anſwere receyued from hym. The letter yͤ theſe men ſent vnto kynge Darius, was after thys maner.

Syſennes the vnder Shreue in Syria and Phenices, and the landlordes with theyr companions, whych are headrulers in Syria and Phenices, ſende theyr ſalutacion vnto Darius the kynge. We certifye the Lorde the kinge, that we came into the lãde of Jewrye, and wente to Jeruſalẽ: where we foũde them buyldynge the great houſe of God and the tẽple, with great coſtly free ſtone ⁊ wyth goodly timber for the walles: yee, they make great haſt wyth the worke, ⁊ helpe one ano- B ther, and it goeth forth proſperouſly in theyr handes, and wyth great diligence and worſhyp is it made. Then aſked we the elders, who had commaunded them to make vp the houſe and the buyldynge, and thys we dyd, to the intent that we myght certifye the perfectly, ⁊ wryte vnto the, the names of thoſe that were the rulers of the worke. So they gaue vs thys anſwere: *iij.Re.vi.a we are the ſeruauntes of the Lorde, which made heuen ⁊ earth: and as for thys houſe, *it hath ben buylded and ſet vp afore tyme by the great ⁊ myghty kynge of Iſrael. But whẽ our fathers prouoked God vnto wrath, *iiii.re.xxiiij xxv. ⁊ ſynned agaynſt the God of Iſrael, *he gaue them ouer into the Jer.xxxix.ij. power of Nabuchodonoſor kynge of Babilon the kynge of the Caldees, whyche brake downe the houſe, and brente it, and caryed awaye *i.Eſd.v.c the people preſoners vnto Babilon. *Neuertheles, in the fyrſt yeare that kynge Cyrus raygned at Babilon, Cyrus the king wrote and commaunded to buylde vp thys houſe agayne: and all the ornamentes that Nabuchodonoſor caryed awaye from Jeruſalem vnto Babilon, and appropriated vnto his awne tẽple: theſe brought Cirus forth agayne, and delyuered them to zorobabell and to Salmanaſar the vnder ſhreue, commaundynge them that they ſhulde brynge thoſe ſame ornamẽtes agayne to Jeruſalem into the temple, and to begynne from that tyme forth, to buylde the temple agayne in hys awne place. Then Salmanaſar layed the foundacion of the Lordes houſe at Jeruſalem, and euer ſence haue they buylded, and yet is it not ended. And therfore, O kynge, C yf thou thynkeſt it good, let it be ſoughte in the Lybraries and rolles of kynge Cyrus. yf it be founde then, that it is done wyth yͤ coũcell and conſent of kynge Cyrus, and yf oure lorde the kynge be ſo mynded, let hym wryte vnto vs therof.

*Then cõmaũded kynge Darius to ſeke *i.Eſd.vi.a. ij.Eſd.iiii.c in the Lybraries: and ſo at Egbathanis in a lytle cytie in Medea there was founde ſuche a wrytynge. In the fyrſt yeare of the raygne of Cyrus, the ſame kinge Cyrus cõmaunded that the houſe of the Lorde at Jeruſalẽ ſhuld be buylded agayne (and odoures to be made there cõtinually vnto yͤ Lord) whoſe heygth ſhalbe .x. cubites, ⁊ the bredth, thre ſcore cubites, ⁊ foureſquare with thre hewen ſtones, wyth a lofte of tymber of the ſame countre, yee, wyth a newe loft, and the expenſes therof to be geuen of the houſe of kynge Cyrus. And the ornamentes of gold and ſyluer, that Nabuchodonoſor toke out of the houſe of the Lorde at Jeruſalem, ſhalbe ſet agayne in the temple at Jeruſalẽ, where they were afore. Siſennes alſo the vndershreue in Siria and Phenyces, the princes and theyr companiõs and the other that be head rulers in Syria ⁊ Phenices, ſhal not medle nor haue any thĩge to do wyth that place.

I Cyrus haue cõmaunded alſo, that they D ſhal builde the houſe of the Lorde whole vp, and haue ordeyned them, to helpe thoſe that be come out of captiuitie: tyl the houſe of the Lorde be fyniſhed: and out of the tribute and taxynge that is yearly rayſed vp in Syria ⁊ Phenices, diligently to geue them a certaine ſumme to the offerynge of the Lorde: and the ſame to be delyuered vnto zorobabel the officer, that he therwythall maye ordeyne oxen, rammes, lambes, and corne, ſalte, wyne and oyle, and that continually euery yeare: after the expenſes *which the preſtes that be at *i.Eſd.vi.b Jeruſalem, ſhewe to be made daily: this ſhal be geuẽ vnto them wythout delay, that they maye offer ſacrifices dayly to the hyeſt God, for the kynge and for hys ſeruauntes, and to praye for theyr lyues. Let it be proclaymed alſo on euery ſyde, that whoſoeuer breaketh or dyſpyſeth this cõmaundemẽt of the kyng, ſhalbe hanged vpon a galowes (made of his awne good) and all hys goodes ſhalbe ſeaſoned vnto yͤ kyng. The Lord therfore (whoſe name is there called vpon) roote out and deſtroye all the kynges and people, that vndertake by violẽce to hynder yͤ ſame, or to deale vncurteouſly with the houſe of the Lorde at Jeruſalem. I Darius the kynge haue ordeyned, that theſe thynges ſhalbe done wyth all diligence.

¶ The.vii.Chapter.

¶ The temple is fynyſhed and dedicate: and the feaſt of the vnleuened breade is holden.

A Then Syſennes the vnderſhreues in Celoſyria, and Phenices, and the other landlordes wyth theyr companions, obeyed the thinges that kynge Darius had ordeyned, and were diligent in the holy workes, and were felow helpers with the olde rulers of the Jewes: And ſo the worke of the Sanctuary went forth and proſpered, when Aggeus and zachary prophecied. And they perfourmed all thynges thorow the cõmaundement of the Lorde god of Iſrael, and after the deuyſe of Cyrus, Darius and Artaxerſes kynges of Perſia.

B And thus was our houſe fynyſhed vnto the.xxiii.day of the moneth Adder in the.vi. yeare of kynge Darius: And the chyldren of Iſrael the Preſtes and the Liuites, and the other that were come out of captiuitie, and ſuche as were ioyned vnto them, dyd accordynge as it is wrytten in yͤ boke of Moſes. And in the dedication of the temple: they offered an hundred oxen, two hundred rãmes, foure hundred lambes, and twelue goates for the ſynnes of all the people of Iſraell, after the nombre of the trybes of Iſrael. The C preſtes alſo and the Leuites ſtode arayed in the preſtly garmentes, after the trybes, ouer all the workes of the Lorde god of Iſrael accordynge to the boke of Moſes, and the porters by all dores.

And the chyldren of Iſrael (wyth thoſe yͭ were come out of captiuitie) helde the Paſſeouer the fouretenth day of the fyrſt moneth, when the Preſtes and the Leuites were ſanctifyed. They yͭ came out of captiuitie, were not all ſanctifyed together: but the Leuites were all ſanctifyed together, and ſo all they that came out of captiuitie, killed the Eaſter lambe for theyr brethren, for the preſtes and for themſelues. And the chyldren of Iſraell that came out of captiuitie, and eſcaped frõ D al the abhominacions of the Heathen, ſought the Lord, and kept the feaſt of the vnleuened breade ſeuen dayes longe, eatynge and drynkynge and were mery before the Lorde: that the Lorde had turned the deuyce of the kinge of Aſſyria, and cõforted theyr handes to the workes of the Lorde God of Iſrael.

¶ Eſdras cauſeth the people to aſſemble and come together, and then readeth them the lawe. They kepe the feaſte of tabernacles.

A And after hym * when Artaxerſes the kynge of the Perſians raygned, there wente vnto hym Eſdras the ſonne of Sarayas, the ſonne of Azarias, the ſonne of Helchiach, the ſonne of Sallum, the ſonne of Sadoch, the ſonne of Achitob, the ſonne of Amarias, the ſonne of Azarias, the ſonne of Boccus, the ſonne of Abyſu, the ſonne of Phineas, the ſonne of Eleazar, the ſonne of Aaron the fyrſt preſt. This Eſdras went vp from Babilon (for he had good vnderſtandynge in the lawe of Moſes, that was geuẽ of the Lord God of Iſrael, to be taught and done in dede.) And the kynge fauoured him, and dyd hym great worſhyppe and honoure after all hys deſyres. There wente vp wyth hym alſo certayne of the chyldren of Iſrael, of the preſtes, of the Leuites, of the ſyngers, porters and miniſtres of the temple at Jeruſalem.

In the ſeuenth yeare of the raygne of kyng Artaxerſes, in the fyueth moneth, that is in the ſeueneth yere of the raygne, they wẽt from Babylon in the newe moone of the.v. moneth, and came the hye waye to Jeruſalẽ after hys commaundement, like as the Lord had proſpered theyr iourney. For in theſe Eſdras gat greate inſtruccion, that he ſhulde leaue none of the thynges behinde, which are in the lawe and commaundementes of God. And he taught whole Iſraell all ryghteouſnes and iudgement.

Then came the Secretaries of kynge Artaxerſes, and delyuered the wrytinges (that were come frõ Artaxerſes the kynge (to Eſdras the Preſt and reader of the lawe of the Lorde: And thys is the copye of the letter: Kynge Artaxerſes ſendeth hys gretynge vnto Eſdras the Preſt and reader of the law of the Lorde. Of frendſhyppe and good wyll I haue ordeyned and charged, yf ther be any of the Jewes, of the preſtes and Leuites in my realme, whych deſyreth and is content to go with the vnto Jeruſalem, that he may do it. Therfore, yf any be mynded to beare the cõpany, let them come together, & go wyth the B (lyke as I am content and my ſeuẽ frendes, my councelers) to ſe what they do at Jeruſalem and in Jewry, and kepe the thynges accordynge as thou haſt in the lawe of yͤ Lord: & to brynge the gyftes vnto God the Lorde of Iſrael, that I & my frẽdes haue promyſed to Jeruſalem, and all the ſyluer & golde that is in the countre of Babylon, vnto the Lord to Jeruſalem, wyth the thynge that is geuẽ for the people in the Lordes temple at Jeruſalem. Yee, that the ſame ſiluer and gold may be gathered, and oxen, rammes, ſhepe and goates and other that belonge to theſe thynges: and that they maye offer ſacrifices vnto the Lorde, vpon the aulter of theyr Lorde, whych is at Jeruſalem.

And what ſoeuer thou and thy brethren wyll do wyth the ſyluer and golde, that do after thy mynde, accordynge to yͤ cõmaundement ment of the Lord thy God, & lykewyſe, with the holy veſſels that are geuẽ the, for the ſer-alſo an hundred meaſures, and tyl an hũdred veſſels of wyne, and other plẽteous thynges wythout nombre. Let all thynges be done after the law of the hyeſt God, that the wroth of God aryſe not in the realme of the kynge, and of hys ſonnes. I cõmaũde you alſo, that ye requyre no taxe nor tribute of the preſtes, Leuytes, ſyngers, and myniſters of the tem-

C authoritie to medle any thynge agaynſt thẽ.
As for the (O Eſdras) ſet thou iudges & arwyth death, wyth paine, to be condemned in money, or to be banyſhed.

*i.Esd.vii.a Then ſayd Eſdras the wryter. *Bleſſed them that they ſhulde ſpeake vnto Loddeus and to hys brethren and to thoſe that were in yͤ treaſury, to ſende vs ſoch men, as might execute the preſtes offyce in the houſe of the Lorde our God. And with the myghtie hãd of our Lord God, they brought vnto vs mẽ of good experience, from amonge the ſonnes of Moolius, the ſonne of Leui, the ſonne of Iſrael, Sebebeiam and the ſonnes and hys brethrẽ Aſbin & Anin, of whom there were.

xviij. From amonge the chyldren of the ſon-nes of Cananeus, and theyr ſonnes were .xx.
men. And of them that ſerued in the temple, whome Dauid had ordeyned, and the princi-pall men that miniſtred for the worke vnto the Leuytes in the temple two hundred and twentye men, whoſe names are all tokened vp in wrytynge.

*Then cõmaunded I a faſting vnto the yonge men before the Lorde, that I myghte *i.Esd.i.a. deſyre of hym a proſperous iourney and a good waye for vs, yee for vs, for oure chyldren & for the cattell, becauſe of the layenges awayte, and I durſte not requyre of yͤ kyng men of horſe and of fote, to conueye vs ſafely agaynſt oure enemies, for we had ſayde vnto the kynge, that the power of the Lorde oure God ſhuld be with them, that ſeke him with theyr whole hert. And therfore, we be-ſought God oure Lorde earneſtly becauſe of theſe thynges, & he was mercyfull vnto vs, and hearde our prayer. And I ſeparated frõ amonge the rulers of the people, and frõ the preſtes of the temple .xij. men, and Sebeia & Aſania, and ten men of theyr brethren wyth them. And I weyed them the golde and the ſyluer and all the preſtly ornamentes of the houſe of oure God, whych the kyng, and his councell, and hys Princes, and whole Iſrael had geuẽ. And when I had weyed it, I ga-ue them an hundred and fyfty talẽtes in ſyluer, and an hundred talẽtes of ſyluer veſſell, an hundred talentes of golde, and of golden veſſell ſeuen tymes twentye, and veſſels of other metal (yee, of good metal) twelue, gliſterynge as the golde, and ſayde vnto them: ye are holy vnto the Lorde, and the veſſels are holy, and the golde and the ſyluer is promyſed vnto the Lorde God of oure fathers. Be dyligēt nowe and kepe it, vntyll the tyme that ye deliuer it to the rulers of the people, to the preſtes, to the Leuytes, and to the principall men of the cyties of Iſraell in Ieruſalem, and in the chambre of the houſe of oure God.

*i. Eſ. viij. d *So, the Preſtes and the Leuites which receaued of me the golde, the ſyluer and the veſſell, brought it vnto Ieruſalē into yͤ temple of the Lord. And from the ryuer of Thia we brake vp the twelueth daye of the fyrſte moneth, tyll we came to Ieruſalē. And whē the thyrde daye was paſt, the weyed golde, and ſyluer was delyuered in the houſe of the Lorde the fourth daye, vnto Marimoth the ſonne of Ior the preſte, and wyth hym was Eleazar the ſonne of Phineas, and with thē were Ioſabdꝰ the ſonnes of Ieſnet, Medias and the ſonne of Banus, and certayne of the Leuites to the nombre and to the wayght: ⁊ the wayght of them was written vp the ſame tyme. As for thoſe that were come out of captiuyte, they offred ſacryfyce vnto yͤ Lord the God of Iſraell: euen twelue oxen for all Iſrael. lxxxvi. rammes. lxxij. ſhepe. xij. goates for ſynne, twelue kyne for a thākoffring all to the ſacryfyce of the Lord. And the kynges commiſſion delyuered they vnto the ſtewardes and debytes of the kynge, and to the vndershreues in Celoſyria and Phenices.

*i. Eſd. ix. a. *Nowe, when theſe thynges were done, the rulers came vnto me, and ſayde: The generacion of Iſrael, the Princes, the Preſtes, and Leuytes, the ſtraunge people ⁊ indwellers of the lande, haue not put awaye theyr vnclenneſſe, from the Cananites, Hethytes, Phereſytes, from the Moabites, Egipcyās and Edomytes. For both they ⁊ theyr ſonnes haue myngled them ſelues wͭ the daughters of them, and the holy ſede is mixte with the outlandyſhe Heathen, ⁊ ſens the begynnynge of theyr raygne haue the rulers ⁊ heades bene partetakers of theyr wyckedneſſe.

*i. Eſd. ix. a *As ſoone as I had hearde theſe thinges, immediatly I rente my holy garmētes, and pulled out the heare of my heade ⁊ my beerd, and ſat me downe ſorowfull and heuy. So all they that were moued thorow the worde of the God of Iſraell, came vnto me: ⁊ I ſat ſtill, full of heuyneſſe vntyll the euenyng ſacrifyce. Then ſtode I vp from faſtynge, hauyng rente clothes ⁊ the holy garment, kneled downe vpon my knees, helde out my hādes vnto the Lord, and ſayd: O Lord, I am confoūded and aſhamed before thy face, for our ſynnes are become many vpon oure heades, and our wyckedneſſes are exalted vnto the heauen: for ſens the tyme of oure fathers we are in great ſynne vnto thys daye. And for the ſynnes of vs and oure fathers, we wͭ our brethren and with our preſtes haue bene delyuered vnto the kynges of the earth, into the ſwerd, and into captyuyte, and became a ſpoyle with confuſion and ſhame vnto thys daye. And nowe, O Lord God, howe great is the mercy that we haue gotten of the: in yͭ thou haſt left vs a rote and a name in yͤ place of thy Sanctuary, to diſcouer oure lyght in yͤ houſe of the Lord our God, ⁊ haſt geuē vs meate at all tymes of our mynyſtracyon And when we were in captyuyte, we were not forſakē of the Lord our God: but he made the kynges of Perſia gracyous ⁊ fauourable vnto vs, ſo that they gaue vs vytayles and meate, yee, and leaue to buyld vp the temple of our Lorde God agayne, to repayre the waſted places of Syō, and to dwel in Iewry and Ieruſalem. And now, O Lord, what ſhall we ſaye, hauynge all theſe thynges in poſſeſſyon? For we haue broken thy commaundementes, which thou gaueſt vnto G vs by the hādes of thy ſeruauntes yͤ prophetes, ſayinge: The lande that ye go vnto and that is geuen you for an heritage to haue in poſſeſſion, is defyled with the vnclēnes and fylthynes of the Heathen, and wͭ theyr abhominacyon haue they poluted it altogether. Therfore, ſhal ye not ioyne your daughters, vnto theyr ſonnes, ner mary your ſonnes vnto theyr daughters. Moreouer, ye ſhall neuer ſeke to make peace with thē, that ye maye increaſe and eate the beſt in the lād, and that ye maye deuyde the inheritaunce of the lande vnto youre chyldren for euermore. As for the thyng that now happeneth vnto vs, it commeth all for our wycked workes and great ſynnes, yet haſt thou geuē vs ſoch a rote, yͭ we are come agayn into oure awne lande, and we are ſo wycked yͭ we haue broken thy ſtatutes ⁊ commaūdemētes agayne and mengled oure ſelues with the vnclēnes of the outlandyſhe Heathen. O Lorde, arte thou angrye with vs? wilt thou rote vs cleane out? that our rote and name remayne no more? O Lord God of Iſrael thou art true, for oure rote endureth yet vnto thys preſēte daye. And beholde, now are we before the in our ſynnes, now can we not ſtāde before the in them.

*And when Eſdras wͭ thys prayer had knowledged the ſynne, wepyng, and lyeng flat vpon the grounde before the tēple, there gathered vnto hym from Ieruſalem a great multytude of men and wemē, of yonge men and maydens, for there was a very greate wepyng and mournyng in the congregaciō. So when Iechonias the ſonne of Iehell one of the chyldren of Iſrael cryed, he ſayd vnto Eſdras: we haue ſynned agaynſt the Lord *i. Eſd. x. a. becauſe we haue maried outlandiſch wemen of the Heathē. Now art thou ouer all Iſrael We wyll ſweare an othe therfore vnto the Lorde, that we ſhall put awaye all our wyues, which we haue takē of the Heathē, with theyr chyldrē: lyke as it is appoynted the by oure fore elders. Stande vp then, open thou it, & declare it playnely vnto vs, accordyng to the lawe of the Lord: for the matter belōgeth vnto the, and we wyll helpe the, quite thy ſelfe manly. So Eſdras aroſe, and toke an othe of the rulers of the preſtes, and of yͤ Leuytes, & of Iſrael, to do after theſe thynges: and they ſware.

¶ The.ix, Chapter.

¶ After Eſdras had reade the lawe, the people put awaye theyr ſtraunge wyues: and then returneth euery man merely vnto hys owne dwellynge.

A *i. Eſd. x. b. THen Eſdras ſtode vp frō yͤ courte of the tēple without, and wēt into the chamber of Ionathas yͤ ſonne of Naſabus, & remayned there and dyd eat no meat, nor dronke drynke, for the multitude of the wickednes of the people. And there was made a proclamacyon in all Iewry and at Ieruſalem, for all ſoche as were gathered at Ieruſalem out of captiuyte, yͭ whoſoeuer came not to Ieruſalē within two or thre dayes (accordynge to the iudgement of the olde lordes of yͤ coūcell) hys goodes ſhulde be taken from hym, and be excluded from the congregacion of the captyuyte. And in thre dayes were all they of the trybe of Iuda and Bēiamin gathered together at Ieruſalem, the twentyeth daye of the nynth moneth. And the whole multitude ſat tremblynge in the courte of the temple, for it was wynter. So Eſdras aroſe vp, & ſayde vnto them: ye haue done vnrighteouſly, in that ye haue taken outlandyſche wyues to mariage, and ſo to increaſe the ſynnes of Iſrael. And now knowledge the ſame, and geue prayſe vnto the Lord God of our fathers, and perfourme hys wyll, departynge from the Heathen of the lande, and frome the outlandyſche B wyues. Then cryed the whole multytude wͭ loude voyce, and ſayd: lyke as thou haſt ſpoken, ſo wyll we do: but for ſomoch as yͤ people are many, and the wynter here, we may not ſtande without the houſe: agayne, thys worke is not a thynge, that can be fyniſched in a daye or two, for we be many that haue ſynned in theſe thynges. Ordeyne therfore yͭ the rulers of the multitude and they yͭ dwell with vs, & as many as haue outlandyſche wyues, the preſtes alſo and iudges of euery place may ſtande in the tyme appoynted, till they ſwage the wrath of the Lord in thys buſynes.

Then Ionathas the ſonne of Ezely, and Ozias and Thecā receaued yͤ charge of thys matter, and Bozoramus, and Leius, & Sabatheus helpeth them therto. After this, all they ſtode vp that were come oute of captyuite. And Eſdras the preſte choſe vnto hym the principall men from among the fathers accordyng to theyr names, & in the new mone of the tenth moneth they ſat together, to examen this matter. And ſo the matter was C a determyng (concernyng the men that had outlandyſh wyues) vntyll the new mone of the fyrſt moneth. And of yͤ preſtes that had mixte them ſelues with outlandyſh wyues, there were founde. * Of the ſonnes of Ieſu *i. Eſd. x. c. the ſonne of Ioſedec and hys brethren, Mazeas, Eleazar, Ioribus and Ioadeꝰ, whych offred thē ſelues to put awaye theyr wyues and to offre a ramme for theyr ignoraunce. And of the ſonnes of Semmeri, Maſſeas, & Eſſes, and Ieelech, Azarias. Of the ſonnes of Foſera, Limoſias, Hiſmaen, Nathanea, Iuſſio, Ieddus, and Talſas. And of the Leuytes Ioſabdus, Semeis, and Colnis, Caletas, Facteas, Colnas, and Elionas. Of yͤ ſyngers of the Sanctuary, Eliarib, zackarus. Of the porters, Sallumus and Tolbanes. And of Iſrael, of the chyldren of Foro, Oſi, and Remias, and Geddias, and Melchias, Michelus, Eleazarus, Iemmebias, & Bannas. And the children of Iolamā, Chanias, zachari, Ieizrelus, Ioddiꝰ, Erimoth, and Elias. And of yͤ ſonnes of Ioathoim, Eliadas, Liaſamus, and zochias, Larimoth, D Sabdis, and Tebedias. And of the ſonnes of zebes, Iohānes, Imanias, zabdias, and Emmeus. And of yͤ ſonnes of Bannꝰ, Olāmus, Maluchus, Ieddus, Iaſub, Aſabus, & Ierimoth. And of yͤ ſonnes of Addin, Naatus, and Mooſias, and Caleꝰ, and Raanas, Maaſuas, Mathathias, Beſel, Bannꝰ, and Manaſſes.

And of the ſonnes of Naue, Nones, Afeas, Melchias, Sameas, Simon, Beniamī, Malchus and Marras. And of the ſonnes of Aſom, Carianeus, Mathathias, Bannus, Eliphalach, Manaſſes, Semei. Of the ſonnes of Bannus, Ieremy, Moodias, Abramas, Iohel, Baneas, Peliaas, Iona, Marimoth, Eliaſib, Mathaneus, Eliaſis, Ozias, Vielus, Semedius, zambris, & Ioſeph. Of the ſonnes of Nobeus, Idelus, Mathathias, Sabadus, zecheda, Sedmi, Ieſſeus, and Baneas. All theſe had taken outlandiſch E wemen to mariage, and they put thē awaye with theyr chyldren. The preſtes and Leuites, and all they that were of Iſraell, dwelt at Ieruſalem and thorowout all the land, in the new moone of the ſeuenth moneth, and the chyldren of Iſraell were in theyr dwellynges: And the whole multytude came together vpon the floore at the Eaſte ſyde of yͤ holy porte of the tēple. And they ſpake vnto Eſdras the hye preſte and reader, yͭ he wolde brynge the lawe of Moſes, which was geuē of the Lorde God of Iſraell. So Eſdras the hye Preſt brought the lawe vnto the whole multitude, to mã and woman and to al preſtes, that they myght heare the law, *in the new moone of the .vii. moneth. And he red in the flore that is before yͤ holy porte of the temple, from the mornynge early vnto the euenynge, before men and women. And they applyed theyr mynde all vnto the lawe.

F And Eſdras yͤ Preſt & reader of the lawe ſtode vp vpon a pulpit of wood, which was made therfore: & vpon his ryght hande there ſtode by him Mathathias, Samus, Ananias, Azarias, Vrias, Ozechias, and Balſamus: Vpon hys lefte hande ſtode Faldeus- Miſael, Malachias, Abuſchas, Sabus, Nabadias & zachary. Then toke Eſdras yͤ boke before the whole multitude, for he was the principal and had in mooſt honoure of them all. And whan he had red out the law, they ſtode al ſtraught vpõ theyr fete. So Eſdras prayſed the Lorde the mooſt hye God, yͤ Almyghty God of Hooſtes. And all the people anſwered: Amen: and helde vp their handes, fell downe flat vpon the earth, & prayſed the Lorde. And Ieſus, Beneas, Sarebias, Iaddimus, Accubus, Sabbatheus, Calithes, Azarias, Ioradus, Ananias, and Philias the Leuites lyfte theyr handes vpward, and bowed theyr faces to the grounde, and prayſed the Lorde: Thoſe were they whych taught yͤ G lawe of the Lord, & red the law of the Lord, in the congregacion: and euery man ſet them before that vnderſtode the law. Then ſpake Atharates vnto Eſdras the hye Preſt & reader, and to the Leuites that taught the multitude, ſayenge: Thys daye is holy vnto the Lorde, and all they that had herde the lawe, wepte. So Eſdras ſayde: *Departe youre waye then, and eate the beſt, and drynke the ſweteſt, and ſende gyftes vnto them yͤ haue nothynge: for thys day is holy vnto yͤ Lord, and be not ye ſory, for the Lorde wyl brynge you to honoure. Then went they theyr way euerychone, and dyd eate and drynke, & were mery, and ſent rewardes vnto them that had nothynge, that they alſo myghte eate wyth gladneſſe: for they were excedynge reioyſed, thorowe the wordes that were red vnto them in the lawe: And ſo they were all gathered together at Ieruſalem to holde the feaſt, accordynge to the couenaunt of the Lorde God of Iſraell.

Be ioyfull, O thou mother with thy chyldren, for I wyll delyuer the ſayth the Lorde. Remembre thy deed chyldrẽ, for I ſhall brynge them out of the earth, and ſhewe mercy vnto them, for I am mercyfull, ſayth the Lord almyghty.

Embrace thy chyldren, vntyll I come, & ſhewe mercy vnto them, for my welles runne ouer, and my grace ſhall not fayle.

I Eſdras receaued a charge of the Lorde vpon the mount Oreb, that I ſhuld go vnto Iſrael. But whẽ I came vnto Iſrael they ſet me at naught, and deſpyſed the commaundement of the Lorde. And therfore I ſaye vnto you, O ye Heathen that heare and vnderſtand: Loke for youre ſhepherde, he ſhall geue you euerlaſtynge reſt, for he is nye at hãd, that ſhall come in the ende of the world: Be readye to the rewarde of the kingdome, for the euerlaſtynge lyght ſhall ſhyne vpon you for euermore. Fle the ſhadowe of thys worlde, receaue the ioyfulnes of your glory. I teſtifye my ſauyour openly: O receaue the gyft that is geuẽ you, and be glad, geuynge thanckes vnto hym, that hath called you to the heauenly kyngdome.

Aryſe vp, and ſtande faſt: beholde the nõbre of thoſe that be ſealed in the feaſt of the Lorde, which are departed from the ſhadow of the worlde, and haue receaued gloryous garmentes of the Lorde. Take thy nombre O Syõ, and ſhut vp thy purified, which haue fulfylled the lawe of the Lorde. The nõbre of thy chyldren whom thou lõgedeſt for, is fulfylled, beſeche the power of the Lorde, that thy people which haue bene called from the begynnynge, maye be halowed:

*I Eſdras ſawe vpon the mount Sion a great people, whom I coulde not nombre, and they all prayſed the Lorde with ſonges of thankeſgeuynge. And in the myddeſt of them there was a yonge man of an hye ſtature, more excellent then all they, and vpon euery one of theyr heades he ſet a crowne, & was euer hygher and higher, which I marueled at greatly. So I aſked the aũgel, and ſayde: Syr, what are theſe? He anſwered & ſayde vnto me: Theſe be they, that haue put of the mortall clothynge and put on the inmortall, and haue teſtyfyed and knowleged the name of God. Nowe are they crowned, and receaue the rewarde.

* Apoc.vij.c.

Then ſayde I vnto the aungell: what yonge perſonne is it, that crowneth them, and geueth them the palmes in theyr handes? So he anſwered, and ſayd vnto me: It is the ſonne of God, whõ they haue knowledged in the worlde. Then beganne I greatly to cõmende them, that ſtode ſo ſtifly for the name of the Lorde. And ſo the aungell ſayde vnto me: Go thy waye, and tell my people, what maner of thynges and howe greate wonders of the Lorde thy God, thou haſt ſene.

The.iij. Chapter.

The wonderous workes whych God dyd for the people are recyted, Eſdras marueleth that God ſuffreth the Babylonians to haue rule ouer hys people, whych yet are ſynners alſo.

A

IN the thyrtye yeare of yͭ fall of the cytie, I was at Babylõ, & laye troubled vpon my bed and my thoughtes came vp ouer my hert: for I ſawe the deſolacyõ of Syõ, & the plenteous wealth of them yͭ dwelt at Babylon: and my ſprete was ſore moued, ſo that I beganne to ſpeake fearfull wordes to the moſt hyeſt, and ſayd: O Lord Lorde, thou ſpakeſt at the begynnynge, whẽ thou plantedſt the earthe (and that thy ſelfe alone)and gaueſt commaundemēt vnto the people, and a body vnto Adam, whych was a creature[illegible]y handes, and haſt brethed in hym the b[illegible] of lyfe: and ſo he lyued before the, and thou leddeſt hym into Paradyſe, whych garden of pleaſure thy ryght hande had planted, or euer the earth was made:

And vnto hym thou gaueſt commaundemēt immedyatly yͧ appoyntedeſt death in hym, and in hys generacyons. Of hym came nacyons, trybes, people and kynredes out of they deſpyſed them.

*Gene.vij.b *But in proceſſe of tyme thou broughteſt thē thou lefteſt: namely Noe with hys houſholde, of whome came all ryghteous men.

And it happened that when they that dwelt vpon the earth, beganne to multiplye, and had gotten many chyldren, and were a great people, they began to be more vngodly then the fyrſt.

wente thorowe foure portes of fyre, & earthquakes, and wyndes, and colde: that thou myghteſt geue ẏ lawe vnto ẏ ſede of Jacob, & diligēce vnto the generacion of Iſrael.

And yet tokeſt thou not awaye from them that wycked hert, ẏ thy lawe myght brynge

a wycked hert, tranſgreſſed, and was ouercome, & ſo be all they that are borne of hym.
*Rom.vij.a *Thus remayned weaknes wyth the lawe

This was done now many yeares. Then the inhabiters of the cyte forſoke the, and in all thynges dyd euē as Adam and all his generacyons had done: for they alſo had a wicked herte.

And ſo thou gaueſt thy cyte ouer into the D handes of thyne enemyes. Are they of Babylon then better and more ryghteous then thy people, that they ſhall therfore haue the dominyon of Syon? For when I came there, and ſawe theyr vngodlynes, and ſo greate wyckedneſſe, that it coulde not be nombred:
yee when my ſoule ſawe ſo many euel doers (in the thirtye yeare) my herte fayled me, for I ſawe, howe thou ſuffreſt them in ſoch vngodlynes, and ſpareſt the wicked doers: but thyne awne people haſt thou roted out, and preſerued thyne enemyes, and this haſt thou not ſhewed me.

I cannot perceaue howe thys happeneth:
Do they of Babylon then better, then they of Syon? Or is there any other people, that knoweth the, ſauynge the people of Iſrael?
Or what generacyon hath ſo beleued thy couenauntes, as Jacob? And yet theyr rewarde appeareth not, and theyr labour hath no frute. For I haue gone here and there thorowe the Heathen, and I ſe that they be rych and wealthy, and thyncke not vpon thy commaundementes.
Weye thou therfore oure wyckdneſſe now in the balaunce, and theirs alſo that dwell in the worlde, and ſo ſhall thy name be no where founde but in Iſrael.
Or where is there a people vpō earthe, that hath not ſynned before the? Or what people hath ſo kepte thy commaundemētes? Thou ſhalt fynde, that Iſrael by name hath kepte thy preceptes, but not the other people and Heathen.

The.iiij.Chapter.

The Angell reproueth Eſdras, becauſe he ſemed to enter into the profounde iudgementes of God.

And the Angell that was ſent A vnto me (whoſe name was Vriell) gaue me an anſwere, and ſayd: Thy hert hath taken to moch vpō it in this worlde, and thou thynckeſt to cōprehende the waye of the hyeſt. Then ſayde I: Yee my Lorde. And he anſwered me, & ſayd:
I am ſent to ſhewe the thre wayes, & to ſett forth thre ſymplitudes, before the: wherof yf thou canſt declare me one, I wyll ſhewe the alſo the waye, that thou deſyreſt to ſe:
and I ſhall ſhewe the from whence the wicked herte commeth. And I ſayde: Tell on my Lorde. Then ſayde he vnto me: Go thy waye, weye me the weyght of the fyre, or meaſure me the blaſt of the winde, or call me agayne

agayne the daye that is paſt. Then anſwered I and ſayde: What man borne is able to do that? Why requireſt thou ſoch of me? And he ſayde vnto me: If I ſhulde aſke the, howe depe dwellynges are in the ſee? Or howe great water ſprynges are vpon the fyrmamēt? Or howe great water ſprynges are in the begynnynge of the depe? Or whych are the out goynges of Paradyſe? Peraduēture thou woldeſt ſaye vnto me: I neuer wente downe yet into the depe nor hel, nether dyd I euer clyme vp into heauen. Neuertheleſſe, nowe haue I aſked the but only of fyre, and wynde, and of the daye, where thorow thou haſt trauayled, and frō the whych thou canſt not be ſeparated: and yet canſt thou geue me no anſwere of them.

He ſayde moreouer vnto me: Thyne awne thynges, & ſoch as are growen vp wᵗ the, canſt thou not knowe: howe ſhulde thy veſſel then be able to comprehende the waye of the Hyeſt, and nowe outwardly in the corrupte worlde, to vnderſtande the corrupcyon ỹ is euident in my ſyght? Then ſayde I vnto hym: It were better that we were not at all, then that we ſhulde lyue in wyckedneſſe, & to ſuffre, and not to knowe wherfore. B He anſwered me, & ſayde: I wente in a wood, and * the trees toke ſoch a deuyce and ſayde: Come let vs go, and fyght agaynſt the ſee, that it maye departe awaye before vs, and that we maye make vs yet more woddes.

The floudes of the ſee alſo in lyke maner toke thys deuyce, and ſayd: Come, let vs go vp, and fyght agaynſt the trees of the wodd that we maye make oure lande the wyder. The thought and deuyce of the wodde was but vayne and nothynge worth, for the fyre came and conſumed the wodd: The thought of the floudes of the ſee came lykewyſe to naught alſo, for the ſande ſtode vp and ſtopped them.

If thou were iudge nowe betwixte theſe two, whom woldeſt thou iuſtifye, or whom woldeſt thou condemne? I anſwered & ſayd: Verely it is a folyſh thought that they both haue deuyſed. For the grounde is geuen vnto the wodd, & the ſee alſo hath hys place to beare hys floudes. Then anſwered he me, & ſayde: Thou haſt geuen a ryght iudgement, why iudgeſt thou not thy ſelf alſo? For lyke as the grounde is geuen vnto the wodd, and the ſee to hys floudes: euen ſo * they ỹ dwell vpon earth, maye vnderſtāde nothynge, but that which is vpon earth: and he that dwelleth aboue the heauēs, may only vnderſtand the thynges, ỹ are aboue the heauens. Then anſwered I, and ſayd: I beſeche the, O lord, let me haue vnderſtandynge: for it was not my mynde to be curious of thy hye thinges, but of ſoch as we dayly medle wythall, namely, wherfore that Iſrael is blaſphemed of the Heathē, and for what cauſe the people (whom thou euer haſt loued) is geuen ouer, to be punyſhed of vngodly nations: & why ỹ lawe of our fathers is brought to naught, and the wrytten couenauntes come to none effecte, and we paſſe awaye out of ỹ worlde as ỹ greſhoppers, and our lyfe is a very feare, & we are not worthy to optayne mercy. What wyll he do then vnto his name, which is called vpon ouer vs? Of theſe thynges haue I aſked queſtyon.

C Then anſwered he me, & ſayd: The more thou ſearcheſt, the more thou ſhalt maruell, for the worlde haſteth faſt to paſſe awaye, & cannot comprehende the thynges, ỹ are promyſed for the righteous in tyme to come, for * thys worlde is full of vnrighteouſnes and weaknes.

But as concernynge the thynges wherof thou aſkeſt me, I wyll tell the. The euell is ſowne, but the deſtruccyon therof is not yet come. Yf the euell now that is ſowne, be not turned vpſyde downe, & yf the place where the euell is ſowne, paſſe not awaye, then cānot the thynge come that is ſowne wᵗ good. For the corne of euell ſede hath bene ſowne in the hert of mā from the begynnynge, and howe moch vngodlynes hath he brought vp vnto thys tyme? and howe moch ſhall he yet brynge forth, vntyll he come into the barne? Pōdre nowe by thy ſelfe, whē the corne of euell ſede is cutt downe, how greate a barne ſhall it fyll? I anſwered and ſayd, How and whē ſhal theſe thinges come to paſſe? Wherfore are our yeares fewe & euell? And he anſwered me, ſayinge: Haſte not thou to moch vpon the hyeſt, for thy haſtynes to be aboue hym is but vayne, thou makeſt to moch a do. Dyd not the ſoules alſo of the ryghteous aſke queſtyon of theſe thynges in theyr holynes, ſayinge: * Howe longe ſhall I hope of thys faſhyon? When cōmeth the frute of my barne, and my rewarde? And vpon this Ieremiel the Archangel gaue thē anſwere, and ſayde: Euen when the nombre of the ſedes is fylled in you, for he hath weyed the worlde in the balaunce: in meaſure & nombre hath he meaſured the tyme, & moueth it not, vntyll the ſame meaſure be fulfylled. Then anſwered I & ſayde: O Lorde, Lord, nowe are we all full of ſynne, and for oure ſake peraduenture it is not, that the barne of the ryghteous ſhall not be fylled, becauſe of the ſynnes of them that dwel vpon the earth.

D So he anſwered me, & ſayd: Go thy waye to a womā wyth chyld, and aſke of her, whē ſhe hath fulfylled her nyne monethes, yf her childebed maye kepe the byrth any longer wᵗin her. Then ſayde I: No Lord, that can ſhe not. And he ſayde vnto me: In hell the ſecret places of ſoules are lyke the preuy chamber of a woman. For lyke as a woman that tra-

Loke what thou deſyreſt to ſe, it ſhalbe ſhewed the from the begynnynge. Then anſwered I, and ſayde: If I haue founde fauoure in thy ſyght, and yf it be poſſyble, and yf I be mete therfore, ſhewe me then, whether there be more to come then is paſt, or more paſt then is for to come. What is paſt, I knowe: but what is for to come, I knowe not.

And he ſayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon the ryght ſyde, and I ſhall expounde the ſymylitude vnto the. So I ſtode, and behold, an whote burnynge ouē wente ouer before me: and it happened that when the flamme was gone by, the ſmoke had the vpper hāde. After thys there went ouer before me a watery cloude, and ſent downe moch rayne wᵗ a ſtorme: & when the ſtormy rayne was paſt the droppes remayned ſtyll. Then ſayde he vnto me: lyke as the rayne is more then the droppes, and as the fyre exceadeth the ſmoke, euen ſo the meaſure of the thynges that are paſt, hath the vpperhande. Then wente the droppes and the ſmoke aboue: and I prayed and ſayde: May I lyue (thynkeſt thou) vntyll that tyme? Or what ſhall happen in thoſe dayes? He anſwered me, and ſayde: As for the tokēs wherof thou aſkeſt me, I maye tell the of them in parte: but as touchynge thy lyfe, I maye not ſhewe the, for I am not ſent therfore.

¶Eſdras and the Angell commen together.

A NEuertheleſſe, as cōcernynge the tokens, marke thys: Beholde, the dayes ſhall come, that they whych dwell vpon earthe, ſhalbe taken in a great nōbre, & the waye of the trueth ſhalbe hyd, and the lande ſhalbe baren frō fayth: but * iniquyte ſhall haue the vpperhande, lyke as thou haſt ſene now, and as thou haſt hearde longe agoo. And the lande that thou ſeyſt now to haue rule, ſhalt thou ſhortly ſe waſte. But yf God graūte the to lyue, thou ſhalt ſe after the thyrd trompet, that the ſunne ſhall ſodenly ſhyne agayne in the nyght, & the moone thre tymes in the daye, and bloud ſhall droppe out of wodd, and the ſtone ſhall geue hys voyce, & the people ſhalbe vnquyete: and euen he ſhall rule, whō they hope not, that dwell vpon earth, and the foules ſhall flyt, & the Sodomyſh ſee ſhall caſt out hys fyſh, and make a noyſe in the nyght, whych many ſhall not knowe, but they ſhal all heare the voyce therof.

There ſhalbe a confuſyon alſo in many places, & the fyre ſhalbe oft ſent agayne, and the wylde beaſtes ſhall go theyr waye, and menſtruous wemen ſhall beare mōſtres, and ſalt waters ſhalbe founde in the ſwete: one frēde ſhall fyght agaynſt another: then ſhall all wyt and vnderſtandyge be hyd and put aſyde ito their ſecrete places, & ſhalbe ſought of many, and yet not be foūde: then ſhall vnryghteouſnes and voluptuouſnes haue the vpperhande vpon earth. One lāde alſo ſhall aſke another, and ſaye: Is ryghteouſnes gone thorowe the? And it ſhall ſaye: No. At the ſame tyme ſhall men hope, but nothynge optayne: they ſhall laboure, but theyr wayes ſhall not proſpere.

To ſhewe the ſoche tokens I haue leue, and yf thou wylt praye agayne, & wepe as nowe, and faſt ſeuen dayes, thou ſhalt heare yet greater thynges. Then I awaked, and a fearfulnes wente thorowe all my body, and my mynde was feble and carefull, ſo that I almoſt ſowned withall. B So the aungel that was come to talke wyth me, helde me, comforted me, and ſet me vpon my fete.

And in the ſeconde nyght it happened, ỹ Salathiel the captayne of the people came vnto me, ſaying: Where haſt thou bene? and why is thy countenaunce ſo heuy? Knoweſt thou not, that Iſrael is cōmytted vnto the, in the lande of theyr captyuite? Vp then, and eate, & forſake vs not, as the ſhepherde that leaueth hys flocke in the handes of wycked wolues. Then ſayde I vnto hym: Go thy wayes fro me, and come not nye me: and he hearde it, and as I ſayd: ſo wēte he his waye fro me. And ſo I faſted ſeuen dayes, mournynge and weppynge, lyke as Vriel the aungell commaunded me. And after ſeuē dayes it happened, that the thoughtes of my herte were very greuous vnto me againe, and my ſoule receaued the ſprete of vnderſtandyng, and I beganne to talke with the mooſt hyeſt agayne, and ſayde: O Lorde, Lorde, of euery wood of the earth and of al the trees therof, thou haſt choſen the one onely vyneyard: and of all landes of the whole worlde thou haſt choſen one pyt: and of all floures of the grounde thou haſt choſen the one lylye: and of all the depthes of the ſee thou haſt fylled the one ryuer: and of all buylded cytyes thou haſt halowed Sion vnto thy ſelfe: and of all the foules that are created, thou haſt named the one doue: & of all the catell that are made thou haſt prouyded the one ſhepe: and amōg all the multytudes of folckes thou haſt gotten the one people, & vnto this people whom thou louedeſt, thou gaueſt a lawe, that is proued of all.

And nowe, O Lorde, why haſt thou geuen thys one people ouer vnto many? and vpon the one rote thou haſt prepared other, and why haſt thou ſcatred thy one only people amonge many? which treade them downe, yee, whych haue euer withſtāde thy promyſes, and neuer beleued thy couenauntes?

And though thou wereſt enemye vnto thy people, yet ſhuldeſt thou punyſh them wyth C thyne awne hādes. Nowe whē I had ſpokē, theſe wordes the Angel that came to me the nyght afore, was ſent vnto me, and ſayd vnto me: Heare me, and herken to the thynge ẏ I ſaye, & I ſhall tell the more. And I ſayde: Speake on my Lorde. Then ſayde he vnto me. Thou art ſore vexed and troubled for Iſraels ſake. Loueſt thou that people better then hym that made them? And I ſayde: No Lorde, but of very grefe & compaſſyon haue I ſpoken. For my reynes payne me euery houre, becauſe I wolde haue experiēce of the waye of the moſt hyeſt, and to ſeke out parte of his iudgemēt. And he ſayde vnto me: that ẏ mayeſt not. And I ſayde: wherfore Lorde? Where vnto was I borne then? Or why was not my mothers chyldebed then my graue? So had I not ſene the myſery & trouble of Iacob, and the trauayle of my people of Iſrael.

And the ſayde vnto me: Nombre the thynges that are not yet come: gather me together the droppes, ẏ are ſcatred abrode: make me the floures grene agayne, that are withered: open me the thynge that is cloſed: and brynge me forth the wyndes, that are ſhut vp: Shewe me the ymage of a voyce, and then ſhall I declare the thynge, that thou laboureſt to knowe. And I ſayde: O Lorde, Lorde, who maye knowe theſe thynges, but he that hath not hys dwellynge wyth men? As for me, I am vnwyſe: howe may I then ſpeake of theſe thynges wherof thou aſkeſt me? Then ſayd he vnto me: lyke as thou cāſt do none of theſe thynges that I haue ſpoken of, euen ſo canſt thou not fynde out my iudgement, or in the ende the loue that I haue promyſed vnto my people. And I ſayd: Beholde, O Lorde, yet art thou nye vnto them that haue no ende: and what ſhall they do, ẏ haue bene before me, or we that be nowe, or they that ſhall come after vs? And he ſayde vnto me: I wyll lyken my iudgement vnto a rynge. Lyke as there is no ſlackneſſe of the laſt, euē ſo is there no ſwyftneſſe of the fyrſt. So I anſwered and ſayde: couldeſt thou not make thoſe (that haue bene made, & be now, and that are for to come) in one, that thou myghteſt ſhewe thy iudgement the ſooner? D Then anſwered he me, and ſayde: The creature maye not haſte aboue the maker, nether maye the world holde thē at once, that ſhalbe created.

And I ſayde: Howe haſt thou ſayde then vnto thy ſeruaunte, that thou lyuynge maker, haſt made the creature lyuynge at once, & the creature bare it? euen ſo myght it now alſo beare them that be preſent, at once. And he ſayde vnto me: Aſke the chyldebeb of a woman, and ſaye vnto her: If thou bryngeſt forth chyldren, why doeſt thou it not together, but one after another? Praye her therfore, to bringe forth ten chyldrē at once. And I ſayde: ſhe cannot, but muſt do it one after another.

Then ſayde he vnto me: Euen ſo haue I geuē a chyldebed vnto the earth, for thoſe ẏ be ſowē vpō it by proceſſe of tyme. For lyke as a yonge chyld maye not brynge forth the thynges that belonge to the aged: euē ſo haue I ordened the worlde whych I made.

And I aſked and ſayde: Seynge thou haſt now geuen me a waye, I will ſpeake before the: for our mother of whom thou haſt tolde me, is yet yonge, and nowe ſhe draweth nye vnto age. He anſwered me, and ſayde: Aſke a woman that beareth chyldrē, and ſhe ſhall tell ẏ. Saye vnto her: wherfore are not they (whom thou haſt nowe brought forth) lyke thoſe that were before the, but leſſe of ſtature? And ſhe ſhall anſwere the: They that be borne in the youth of ſtrength, are of one faſhyon and they that are borne in the tyme of age, (when the chyldebed fayleth) are otherwyſe. Conſydre nowe thy ſelfe, how that ye are leſſe of ſtature, then thoſe that were before you, & ſo are they that come after you, leſſe then ye: as the creatures whych nowe begynne to be olde, and haue paſſed ouer the ſtrength of youth. Then ſayde I: Lorde I beſeche the, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy ſyght, ſhewe thy ſeruaunt, by whom doeſt thou vyſet thy creature?

¶ The. vj. Chapter.

¶ The Angell inſtructeth Eſdras, and geueth hym anſwere to hys queſtyons.

ANd he ſayd vnto me: In the begynnyng whē the groūde was made: before the worlde ſtode, A or euer the wyndes blewe, before it thondred and lyghtened, or euer the foundacyons of Paradyſe were layed, before the fayre floures were ſene, or euer ẏ moueable powers were ſtablyſſhed, before the innumerable multytude of Angels were gathered together, or euer the hyghneſſes of the ayre were lyfted vp, afore the meaſures of the firmamēt were named, or euer the chymneys in Syon were hote, and or the preſente yeares were ſought out, and or euer the inuencyons of them that now ſynne, were put aſide, before they were ſealed that nowe gather fayth for a treaſure: then dyd I conſydre and pondre all theſe thynges, & they all were made thorowe me, and thorowe none other: by me alſo they be ended, and by none other. Then anſwered I and ſayd: which ſhall be the parting aſunder of the tymes? Or whē ſhalbe the ende of the fyrſt, and the begynnynge of it ẏ foloweth? And he ſayde vnto me: From Abraham vnto Iſaac, when Iacob and Eſau were borne of hym, Jacobs hande helde fyrſt the hele of Eſau: for Eſau is the ende of thys worlde, and Jacob is the begynnynge of it that foloweth. The hande of mā betwixte the hele and the hande. Other queſtyon (Eſdras) aſke thou not.

I anſwered then, & ſayd: O Lorde, Lord, If I haue founde fauoure in thy ſyght, I beſeche the, ſhewe thy ſeruaunt the ende of thy tokens, whereof thou ſhewedeſt me parte the laſt nyght. So he anſwered and ſayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon thy fete, and heare the perfecte voyce and ſoūde. There ſhall come a greate mocyon, but the place where thou ſtandeſt ſhall not be moued. And therfore whē thou heareſt the wordes, be not afraied: for of the ende ſhall the worde and foundacyon of the earth be vnderſtande. And why? the word therof trembleth and quaketh, for it knoweth, that it muſt be chaunged at the ende. And it happened, ẏ when I had hearde it, I ſtode vp vpon my fete, and herkened: & beholde, there was a voyce that ſpake, & the ſoūde of it was lyke the ſounde of many waters, and it ſayde: Beholde, the dayes come, that I wyll begynne to drawe nye, & to vyſet them that dwell vpon earth, and will begynne to make inquyſycyon of them, what they be that haue hurt equyte with vnryghteouſnes, and when the lowe eſtate of Sion ſhalbe fulfylled: and when the worlde, that ſhall vanyſh awaye, ſhalbe ouerſealed, then wyll I do theſe tokens.

B The bookes ſhalbe opened before the fyrmament, and they ſhall ſe all together, & the chyldrē of a yere olde ſhall ſpeake with theyr voyces: the women wyth chylde ſhall bryng forth vntymely chyldren of thre or foure monethes olde, and they ſhall lyue, and be rayſed vp: and ſodēly ſhall the ſowen places appeare as the vnſowen, the full ſtore houſes ſhall ſodenly be foūde emptye, and the trompet ſhall geue a ſounde, which whē euery mā heareth, they ſhalbe haſtely afrayed. * At ẏ tyme ſhall frēdes fyght one agaynſt another lyke enemyes, and the earth ſhall ſtande in feare wyth them.

* Mich.vii.a
Mat.x.c.

The ſprynges of the welles ſhall ſtande ſtyll, and in thre houres they ſhall not renne. Whoſoeuer remayneth from all theſe thynges that I haue tolde the, ſhall eſcape, and ſe my ſaluacyon, and the ende of your worlde. And the men that haue receaued, ſhall ſe it, they that haue not taſted death from theyr byrth: and the hert of the indwellers ſhalbe chaunged, & turned into another meanynge: for euell ſhalbe put out, and dyſceate ſhalbe quenched. As for fayth, it ſhall floryſh, corrupcyō ſhalbe ouercome: & the trueth, which hath bene ſo longe wythout frute, ſhalbe declared. And it happened when he talked wt me, that I loked demurely vpō hym, before whom I ſtode, and theſe wordes ſayd he vnto me: I am come to ſhewe the, the tyme of the nyght for to come.

If thou wylt praye yet more, and faſt ſeuen dayes agayne, I ſhall tell the more thinges, and greater then before: for thy voyce is heard before the hyeſt: for why? the myghtye hath ſene thy ryghteous dealinge, he hath C ſene alſo thy chaſtyte, whych thou haſt had euer ſence thy youth: & therfore hath he ſent me to ſhew the all theſe thynges, and to ſaye vnto the: Be of good cōforte, and feare not, and haſte not wyth the tymes that are paſt to thyncke vayne thynges, & make not haſt of the latter tymes.

And it happened after this, that I wepte agayne, and faſted ſeuen dayes in lyke maner, ẏ I myght fulfyll the thre wekes: which he told me. In the eyght night was my hert vexed wythin me agayne, and I beganne to ſpeake before the Hyeſt: for my ſprete was greatly ſet on fyre, and my ſoule was in diſtreſſe, & I ſayd: O Lorde, thou ſpākeſt vnto thy creature from the begynnynge (euen the fyrſt daye) and ſaydeſt: * Let heauen & earth be made, and thy worde was a perfecte worcke. And then was there the ſprete, & the darkeneſſes were yet on euery ſyde, and ſylence: there was no mans voyce as yet from the. Then commaundeſt thou a fayre lyght to come forth out of thy treaſures, ẏ thy worcke myght appeare and be ſene.

* Gene.i.a.

Upon the ſeconde daye thou madeſt the ſprete of the fyrmamēt, and commaundeſt it to part aſunder, and to make a deuyſyon betwixte the waters, that the one part myght remayne aboue, and the other beneth. Upon the thyrde daye thou broughteſt to paſſe, ẏ the waters were gathered in the ſeueth part of ẏ earth: Syxe partes haſt thou dryed vp, and kepte them, to thyntent that mē myght ſowe & occupye huſbandrye therin. As ſoone as thy worde wente forth, the worcke was made. For immediatly there was greate innumerable frute, & many diuerſe pleaſures and deſyres of temptacyon, floures of chaūgeable couloure and ſmell, and this was done the thyrde daye.

D * Upō the.iiij. daye thou commaundedſt that the Sunne ſhulde geue hys ſhyne, & the moone her lyght: the ſtarres dydeſt thou ſet in order, and gaueſt them a charge: to do ſeruyce euē vnto mā, that was for to be made. Upon the fyft daye thou ſaydeſt vnto the ſeuenth part (where the * waters were gathered) that they ſhulde brynge forth diuerſe beaſtes, foules and fyſhes. And ſo it came to paſſe, that the domme water and without ſoule, brought forth lyuynge beaſtes, at the commaundement of God, that all people myght prayſe thy wonderous worckes. Then dydeſt thou preſerue two ſoules, the one thou calledſt Enoch and the other Leuiathan, and dydeſt ſeparate the one frõ the other: for the ſeuenth parte (namely, where the water was gathered together) myght not holde them bothe. Unto Enoch thou gaueſt one parte, which was dryed vp ẏ thyrde daye, that he ſhulde dwell in the ſame parte, wherin are a thouſande hylles. But vnto Leuiathan thou gaueſt the ſeuenth part, namely the moyſt, & haſt kepte hym to deuoure what thou wylt, and whan. Upon the ſyxte daye thou gaueſt commaundement vnto the earth, that before the, it ſhulde brynge forth beaſtes, catell, and all that crepe, and (beſydes thys) Adã alſo, whõ thou madeſt Lorde of all thy creatures. Of hym come we all, & the people alſo, whom thou haſt choſen ſpecially vnto thy ſelfe. All thys haue I ſayde nowe and ſpoken before the, that I myght ſhewe howe that the worlde is made for our ſakes. As for the other people whych alſo come of Adam thou haſt ſayd that they are no thynge, but be lyke a ſpetle, & haſt lyckened the aboundaũce of them vnto a droppe (that falleth) from the rofe of the houſe.

And nowe, O Lorde, the heathen whych haue euer bene reputed as nothing, haue begonne to be Lordes ouer vs, and to deuoure vs: but we thy people (whom thou haſt called the fyrſt borne, thy only begottẽ, and thy feruent louer) are geuen into theyr handes and power. Yf the worlde nowe be made for our ſakes, why haue we not the inheritaũce in poſſeſſyon wyth the worlde? Howe longe ſhall thys endure?

¶ The. vij. Chapter.

¶ The Angell ſheweth Eſdras many thynges to come.

A AND it happened after that I had ſpoken out theſe wordes, there was ſent vnto me an Angell, whych had bene by me alſo the nyghtes afore, and he ſayd vnto me: Up Eſdras, & heare the wordes that I am come to tell the. And I ſayd: ſpeake on Lord my God. Then ſayd he vnto me. The ſee is ſet in a wyde place, that it myght be depe and greate: but the entraunce is narow and ſmall lyke a ryuer. For who wolde go into the ſee, to loke vpon it, and to rule it? If he wente not thorowe the narowe, howe myght he come into the brode?

Item another: A cyte is buylded and ſet vpon a brode felde, and is full of all goodes: the entraũce is narow and ſodayne, lyke as yf there were a fyre at the ryght hãde, and a depe water at the left, and as it were onely one ſtrayte path betwixte thẽ both, ſo ſmall that there coulde but one man go there.

Yf thys cytie nowe were geuẽ to an heyre, & he neuer wẽte thorowe the parelous waye, howe wolde he receaue his enheritaũce? And I ſayde: It is ſo Lorde. Then ſayde he: Euẽ ſo is Iſrael alſo a porciõ. And why? for their ſakes haue I made the worlde: & when Adã trãſgreſſed my ſtatutes, then was the thyng iudged that was done. Then were the entraunces of the worlde made narowe, full of ſorowe & trauayle. They are but fewe and euell, full of parels and laboure. For the entraunces of the fore worlde were wyde and ſure, and brought immortall frute.

If they nowe which are entred into thys worlde, maye not comprehende theſe ſtrayte and vayne thynges, moch leſſe maye they cõprehende and vnderſtande the ſecrete thynges: Why diſquieteſt thou thy ſelf then ſeyng thou art but a corruptyble man? And what woldeſt thou knowe, where as thou art but mortall? And why haſt thou not receaued in to thyne herte the thinge that is for to come, but that is preſent?

Then ſayde I: O Lorde, Lorde, *thou haſt ordeyned in thy lawe, that the ryghteous ſhulde inherett theſe thynges, but ẏ the vnfaythfull & vngodly ſhulde peryſhe. Neuertheleſſe, the righteous ſhall ſuffre ſtrayte thynges, & hope for wyde: for they that haue lyued vngodly and ſuffred ſtrayte thynges, ſhall not ſe the wyde.

* Deu. [illegible]

And he ſayde vnto me: There is no iudge aboue God, and none that hath vnderſtandynge aboue the hyeſt. For there be many ẏ periſh, becauſe they deſpyſe the lawe of God that is ſet before them. For God hath geuẽ ſtrayte cõmaundement to ſoch as come, that they knowe what they do, and howe they ſhulde lyue: & yf they kepte thys, they ſhulde not be punyſhed.

Neuertheleſſe, they were not obediẽt vnto hym, but ſpake agaynſt hym: ymagyned vayne thynges, and purpoſed to ſynne, and ſayd moreouer, that there was no God, and that God regarded it not. Hys wayes haue they not knowẽ, hys lawe haue they deſpyſed, and denyed hys promyſes: in hys ſtatutes & ordynaũces haue they not bene faythfull and ſtedfaſt, and haue not perfourmed hys worckes.

And therfore Eſdras: vnto the full, plenty: and to the emptye, emptyneſſe. Beholde, the tyme ſhall come, that theſe tokens which I haue tolde the, ſhall come to paſſe, and the bryde ſhall apeare, and the earth that nowe paſſeth awaye, ſhalbe ſhewed: and whoſoeuer is delyuered frõ the forſayde euels, ſhall ſe my wonders. For my ſonne Jeſus ſhalbe opẽly declared, with thoſe that be with him: & they that remayne, ſhall be mery in foure hundred yeares.

After theſe ſame yeares ſhall my ſonne Chriſt dye, and all men that haue lyfe, & the world ſhalbe turned into the olde ſylence ſeuen dayes, lyke as in the fore iudgementes, ſo that no mã ſhall remayne. And after ſeuẽ dayes, the worlde yͭ yet awaked not, ſhalbe rayſed vp, and ſhall dye corrupte. And the earth ſhall reſtore thoſe that haue ſlepte in her, & ſo ſhall the duſt thoſe that dwell in ſylence, & the ſecrete places ſhall delyuer thoſe

C yͭ be cōmytted vnto thē: And the moſt hyeſt ſhall be openly declared vpō the ſeate of iudgement, and all myſery ſhall vaniſh awaye, and lōge ſuffryng ſhalbe gathered together. But the iudgemēt ſhall continue, the treuth ſhall remayne, and fayth ſhall waxe ſtrong, the worke ſhall folowe, & the rewarde ſhall be ſhewed: the ryghteouſnes ſhall watch, & the vnryghteouſnes ſhall beare no rule.

*Ge.xviij.d ‡Exo.xxxij.d Then ſayde I: *Abraham prayed fyrſt for the Sodomytes, ‡and Moſes for the fathers that ſynned in the wyldernes, & he yͭ came after hym for Iſrael, in the tyme of Achas & Samuel: and *David for the deſtruccyon *ij.re.xxiiij b ‡ij.Par.v.c. *iij.re.xvij.a James.v.c. ‡and Salomon for them that came in to the Sanctuary, *& Helias for thoſe that receaued rayne, & for the deed, that he might liue, & Ezechias for the people in the tyme of Sēnacherib: & diuerſe other in lyke maner, whych haue prayed for many.

Euen ſo nowe, ſeynge the corrupte is growne vp, & wyckednes increaſed, and the ryghteous haue prayed for the vngodly, wherfore ſhall it not be ſo nowe alſo?

He anſwered me, and ſayd: Thys preſent worlde is not yͤ ende, there remayneth moch honoure in it, therfore haue they prayed for the weake. But the daye of dome ſhalbe the ende of this tyme, and the begynnyng of the immortalite for to come, wherin all corrupciō is vanyſhed, all volupteouſnes is louſed, all myſbeleue taken awaye, ryghteouſnes growne, and the veryte ſpronge vp. Then ſhall no man be able to ſaue hym that is deſtroyed, ner to oppreſſe hym yͭ hath gotten the victory. I anſwered then, and ſayd: This is my fyrſt & laſt ſayinge: yͭ it had bene better, not to haue geuen the earthe vnto Adam: or els when it was geuen hym, to kepe hym yͭ he ſhuld not ſynne. For what profyt is it for men nowe in this preſent tyme to lyue in heuynes, & after death to loke for punyſhment. O thou Adam, what haſt thou done? For though it was thou yͭ ſynned, thou art not fallē alone, but we all that come of the. For what profyt is it vnto vs, yf there be promyſed vs an immortall tyme, where as we medle wyth deadly worckes? and that there is promyſed vs an euerlaſtyng hope, where as oure ſelues are euell & vayne, and that there are layed vp for vs dwellynges of health & fredome, where as we haue lyued euell, & yͭ the worſhyppe of the hyeſt is kepte to defēde them, whych haue led a pacient lyfe, where as we haue walcked in the moſt wycked wayes of all? And that there ſhalbe ſhewed a paradyſe, whoſe frute endureth for euer, wherin is fredome and medycyne, where as we ſhall not go in? for we haue walcked in vnpleaſaunt places: And that the faces of D them, whych haue abſteyned, ſhall ſhyne aboue the ſtarres, where as oure faces ſhalbe blacke and darcke? For whyll we lyued and dyd vnryghteouſly, we cōſydered not, that we ſhulde ſuffre therfore after deeth?

Then anſwered he me, and ſayde: Thys is the conſyderacion and thought of the battayle, whych man hath vpon earthe: that yf he be ouercome, he ſhall ſuffre as thou haſt ſayde. But yf he gett the victory, he ſhall receaue the thynge that I ſaye. For this is the lyfe, wherof Moſes ſpake vnto the people, whyle he lyued, ſayinge: *Choſe the lyfe, yͭ *Deu.xxx.d.
thou mayeſt lyue. Neuertheles, they beleued hym not, nether the Prophetes after hym. No, ner me whych haue ſpoken vnto them, that heuynes ſhulde not reach vnto them to theyr deſtruccion, lyke as [illegible] is for to come ouer thoſe that haue ſuffred them ſelues to be enfourmed in ſaluacyon.

I anſwered then, and ſayde: I knowe Lorde, that the hyeſt is mercyfull, in that he hath mercy vpon them, whych are not yet in the worlde, and vpon thoſe alſo that walcke in hys lawe: and that *he is pacient and lō- *Roma.ij.a. ge ſuffrynge towarde thoſe that haue ſynned in theyr worckes, and that he is liberall to geue where as it requyreth: and that he is of great mercy, for he multyplied hys louynge kyndneſſes towarde thoſe that are preſent, and that are paſt, and to thē whych are for to come. For yf he multiplye not hys mercyes, the worlde ſhall not be made lyuynge, with thoſe that dwell therin. He geueth alſo, for yf he gaue not of hys goodnes, that they whych haue done euell, myght be eaſed, from theyr wyckednes, the ten thouſande parte of men ſhulde not be made lyuynge. And yf the iudge forgaue not thoſe that be healed with hys worde, & yf he wold deſtroye the multytude that ſtryueth, there ſhulde be very fewe left in an innumerable multytude.

The.viij.Chapter.

Eſdras prayeth God rather to loke vpon hys awne mercye, then on the ſynnes of the people.

AND he anſwered me, ſayinge. A
The moſt hyeſt mad this worlde for many, but the worlde to come for fewe. I will tell the a ſymplitude, Eſdras: As when yͧ aſkeſt the earth, it ſhall ſaye vnto the, yͭ it geueth moch moulde, where of earthen veſſels are made, but lytle of it yͭ golde commeth of. ꝑſerued. Then anſwered I & ſayd: Thē ſwalowe vp the wytt (thou ſoule) & deuoure the vnderſtanvnderſtandynge, for thou art agreed to herken and to geue eare, and wyllynge to prophecye: for thou haſt no longer ſpace geuen the, but onely to lyue, O Lorde, wylt thou not geue thy ſeruaunt leaue, that we maye praye before the, and that thou mayeſt geue ſede vnto oure herte, and buylde oure vnderſtandynge, that there maye come frute of it: and yᵗ euery one whych is corrupte, and beareth the ſtate and place of a man, maye lyue?

For yͧ art alone, ⁊ we all are one worckmanſhyppe of thy handes, lyke as thou haſt ſayde, and lyke as yͤ body is faſhioned nowe in the mothers wombe, and thou geueſt the membres, ⁊ thy creature is preſerued in fyre and water: ⁊. ix. monethes doth thy worke ſuffre thy creature, which is faſhioned in her: but the thynge that preſerueth, and it that is preſerued, ſhall both be kepte together: ⁊ when tyme is, the wombe delyuereth the thynge that is kepte and growen in her.

For thou haſt cōmaunded the breſtes to geue mylcke vnto the frute, that the thynge which is created and faſhioned, maye be noriſhed for a tyme: and then thou diſpoſeſt and ordreſt it wyth thy mercy, bryngeſt it vp w̄ thy ryghteouſnes, nurtureſt it in thy lawe, and refourmeſt it with thy vnderſtandynge, B mortifyeſt it as thy creature, ⁊ makeſt it lyuynge as thy worcke. Seynge then yᵗ thou deſtroyeſt hym, whych w̄ ſo great labours is created and faſhyoned thorowe thy commaundement, thou couldeſt lyghtly ordeyne, alſo, that the thynge whych is made, myght be preſerued.

And thys I ſpeake nowe of all men in generall, as thou knoweſt: but of thy people, for whoſe ſake I am ſory: and of thy inheritaunce: for whoſe cauſe I mourne: and of Iſrael, for whom I am wofull: and for Iacob, for whoſe ſake I am greued, therfore begynne I to praye before the, for my ſelfe and for them, for I ſe the fall of vs, euen of vs, that dwell vpon earth. But I haue herde the ſwyftnes of yͤ iudge, which is to come: therfore heare my voyce, and vnderſtande my wordes, and I ſhall ſpeake before the.

Thys is the begynnynge of the wordes of Eſdras, before he was receaued: O Lord, thou that dwelleſt in euerlaſtingneſſe, whoſe eyes are lyft vp in the ayre, whoſe ſtoole is exceadyng hye, whoſe glory ⁊ maieſty maye not be comprehended, before whom the Hoſtes of heauen ſtande with trēblynge, whoſe keppynge is turned in wynde and fyre, whoſe worde is true, whoſe talckynge is ſtedfaſt, whoſe commaundement is ſtronge, whoſe ordinaunce is fearfull, whoſe loke drieth vp the depthes, whoſe wrath maketh the mountaynes to melt awaye, and whoſe trueth beareth wytnes: O heare the prayer of thy ſeruaunt, and marck wyth thyne eares the peticyon of thy creature.

For whyle I lyue, I wyll ſpeake, and ſo longe as I haue vnderſtandynge, I wyll anſwere. O loke not vpon the ſynnes of thy people, whych ſerue in the trueth. Haue no reſpecte vnto the wicked ſtudies of the Heathen, but to the deſyre of thoſe that kepe thy teſtimonyes wyth ſorowes. Thyncke not vpon thoſe that haue walked faynedly before the, but vpon them, whych wyth wyll haue knowen thy feare.

Let it not be thy wyll to deſtroye them, which haue had beaſtly maners, but to loke vpō them that haue clearly taught thy lawe Take thou no indignacyon at thē, which are worſe then beaſtes: but loue them, that alwaye put theyr truſt in thy ryghteouſnes ⁊ glory: for we and oure fathers haue all the ſame ſycknes ⁊ dyſeaſe, but becauſe of oure ſynnes thou ſhalt be called mercyfull.

For yf thou haſt mercy vpon vs, yͧ ſhalt be called mercyfull, where as we haue no worckes of ryghteouſnes: for the ryghteous C whych haue layed vp many good worckes together, ſhall out of theyr dedes receaue rewarde. For what is man, that thou ſhuldeſt take diſpleaſure at him? Or what is the corruptible mortall generacyon, that thou ſhuldeſt be ſo rough towarde hym?

*For of a truthe there is no man amōge them that be borne, but he hath dealt wyckedly: and amonge the faythfull there is none, which hath not done amyſſe. For in thys (O Lord) thy ryghteouſnes and thy goodnes ſhalbe prayſed and declared, yf thou be mercyfull vnto them, which are not rych in good worckes.

g. Para. vi. e.
i. John. i. b.

Then anſwered he me and ſayde: Some thinges haſt thou ſpoken a ryght, and accordyng vnto thy wordes it ſhall be. For I will not verely conſydre the worckes of them, whych haue ſynned before death, before the iudgement, before deſtruccyon, but* I wyll reioyſe ouer the worcke and thought of the righteous. I will remembre alſo the pylgremage, the holy makynge and the rewarde. Lyke as I haue ſpoken now, ſo ſhalt it come to paſſe. For as the huſbande man ſoweth moch ſede vpon the grounde, and planteth many trees, and yet alwaye the thynge that is ſowne or planted is not all kepte ſafe, nether doth it all take rote: Euen ſo is it of thē that are ſowen in the worlde, they ſhall not all be preſerued.

* Gene. iij. a

I anſwered then and ſayde: If I haue foūde grace, then let me ſpeake. Lyke as the huſbande mans ſede peryſheth, yf it receaue not rayne in due ſeaſon, or yf there come to moch rayne vpon it: Euen ſo peryſheth man alſo, which is created wyth thy handes, and is lyke vnto thyne awne ymage and to thy ſelfe, for whoſe ſake thou haſt made all thinges, and lykened hym vnto the huſbande mans ſede. Be not wroth at vs, O Lorde, but ſpare thy people, and haue mercy vpon thyne awne inheritaunce: O be mercyfull vnto thy creature.

D Then anſwered he me & ſayde: Thynges preſent are for the preſent, and thynges to come for ſoch as be to come. For thou lackeſt yet moch, ſeynge thou mayeſt loue my creature aboue me: I haue oft tymes drawne nye vnto the, but neuer to the vnryghteous. In thys alſo thou art maruelous before yͤ Hyeſt in that thou haſt humbled thy ſelfe, as it becommeth the, and haſt not regarded thyne awne ſelfe, that thou art had in ſoch honoure amonge the ryghteous. Therfore ſhall great wretchednes and miſery come vpō thē, that in the latter tyme ſhall dwell in the worlde, becauſe they haue walcked in greate pryde.

But vnderſtand thou for thy ſelfe, and ſeke out glory for ſoch as be lyke the: for vnto you is paradyſe opened, the tre of lyfe is planted, the tyme to come is prepared, plenteouſnes made ready, a cytie is buylded for you, ād a reſt is prepared, yee, perfecte goodnes and wyſdome. The rote of euell is marcked from you, the weaknes ād moth is hyd frō you, ād into hell flyeth corrupciō in forgetfulnes. Sorowes are vanyſhed awaye, and in the ende is ſhewed the treaſure of immortalite. And therfore aſke thou no more queſtions, concernynge the multitude of thē that peryſhe. For they haue taken libertye, deſpyſed the Hyeſt, thought ſcorne of his lawe, and forſaken his wayes.

Moreouer, they haue troden downe hys ryghteous, and * ſayde in theyr herte, that there is no God, yee, and that wyttingly, for they dye. For like as the thynge that I haue ſpoken of, is made ready for you: Euen ſo is thyrſt ād payne prepared for them. For it was not hys wyll that man ſhulde come to naught: but they which be created haue defyled the name of hym that made them, and are vnthanckfull vnto him, which prepared lyfe for them. And therfore is my iudgment nowe at hād. Theſe thinges haue I not ſhewed vnto all men, but vnto fewe, namely vnto the, and to ſoch as be lyke the.

*Pſa.xiiij.a

Then anſwered I and ſayde: Beholde O Lorde, now haſt thou ſhewed me the multitude of the tokens, which thou wylt begyn to do at the laſt: but at what tyme & when, thou haſt not ſhewed me.

¶ The.ix.Chapter.

¶ Eſdras hath vyſyons ſhewed vnto hym.

A HE anſwered me then and ſayd: Meaſure thou yͤ tyme diligētly in it ſelfe, when thou ſeyſt that one parte of the tokens come to paſſe, which I haue tolde yͤ before: ſo ſhalt thou vnderſtande, that it is the very ſame tyme, wherin the Hyeſt wyll begynne to vpſet the worlde, which he made. And when there ſhalbe ſene earth quake and vproare of the people in the worlde, thē ſhalt thou wel vnderſtande, that the moſt Hyeſt ſpake of thoſe thynges, from the dayes that were before the, euen from the begynnynge.

For lyke as all that is made in the world hath a begynnyng and ende, and the ende is manyfeſt: Euen ſo the tymes alſo of yͤ Hyeſt haue playne begynnynges in wonders and ſygnes, and the ende in worckyng and in tokens. And euery one that ſhalbe ſaued, and ſhalbe able to eſcape by hys worckes and by faith, wherin ye haue beleued ſhalbe preſerued from the ſayde parels, and ſhall ſe my Sauyoure in my lande and within my borders, for I haue halowed me frō the world. Thē ſhall they be in carefulneſſe, which now haue abuſed my wayes: and they yͤ haue caſt thē oute deſpytefully, ſhall dwell in paynes.

For ſoch as in theyr lyfe haue receaued benefytes, and haue not knowne me, & they that haue abhorred my lawe, whyle they had yet fredome, and whē they had yet open leyſure of amendement and cōuerſyon, and vnderſtode not, but deſpyſed it: yͤ ſame muſt knowe it after death in payne. And therfore be thou nomore carefull, how the vngodly ſhalbe puniſhed, & how the ryghteous ſhalbe ſaued, and whoſe the worlde is, & for whō the worlde, and when it is. B Then anſwered I and ſayde: * I haue talcked before & now I ſpeake, and wyll ſpeake alſo herafter, that there be many moo of them which peryſch, thē ſhalbe ſaued, lyke as the floude is greater then the droppes.

And he anſwered me, ſayinge: like as the felde is, ſo is alſo the ſede: as the floures be, ſo are the coulours alſo, ſoch as the worckman is, ſoch is alſo the worcke: and as the huſband mā is hym ſelfe, ſo is hys huſbandrye alſo, for it was the tyme of the worlde. And when I prepared for them that are now, or euer the worlde was made, where in they ſhulde dwell, then was there noman that withſtode me. Now when euery one was, and the maker alſo in the worlde which is now prepared, ād the moneth that ceaſeth not, and the lawe which is vnſearcheable, theyr maners were corrupte. So I conſydred the worlde, ād beholde, there was parell, becauſe of the thoughtes that were come in to it. And I ſawe, and ſpared them greatly, and haue kepte me a wynebery of the grapes, and a plante from amonge many generacyons. Let the multitude peryſh then, which are growen vp in vayne, and lett my grape and wynebery be kepte: euen my plante, for with greate laboure haue I made it vp.

Neuertheles, yf thou wylt take vpon the yet ſeuen dayes mo (but thou ſhalt not faſt in them) go thy waye then in to the felde of floures) where no houſe is buylded, and eate onely of the floures of the felde, taſte no fleſh, drynke no wyne, but eate floures onely. Praye vnto the Hyeſt continually, ſo wyll I come, and talke with the.

C So I went my waye and came into the felde whych is called Ardath (lyke as he cōmaunded me) and there I ſat amonge the floures, & dyd eate of the herbes of the felde, and yͤ meate of the ſame ſatiſfyed me. After ſeuen dayes I ſat vpon the graſſe, and my herte was vexed wythin me lyke as afore: & I opened my mouth, and beganne to talke before the Hyeſt, and ſayde: O Lorde, thou * Exo.xix.d. and.xxiiij.a. Deute.iiij.b. that ſheweſt thy ſelfe vnto vs, * thou haſt declared and opened thy ſelfe vnto oure fathers in the wyldernes, in a place where no man dwelleth, in a baren place, when they came out of Egypt, and thou ſpakeſt, ſaynge: Heare me O Iſrael, and marke my wordes thou ſede of Iacob. Beholde, I ſowe my lawe in you, and it ſhall brynge frute in you & ye ſhalbe honoured in it for euer. For oure fathers whych receaued yͤ lawe, kepte it not and obſerued not thy ordinaunces and ſtatutes, and the frute of thy lawe was not declared: for it myght not, for why? it was * Deu.xxxi.c thyne. * For they that receaued it, peryſhed, becauſe they kepte not the thynge that was ſowen in them.

It is a cuſtome when the grounde receaueth ſede, or the ſee a ſhyp, or a veſſell meate and drincke, that whē it peryſheth or is broken wherin a thynge is ſowē, or wherin eny thynge is put: the thynges alſo peryſhe and are broken, whych are ſowen or put therin D But vnto vs it hath not happened ſo: for we that haue receaued the lawe, peryſh in ſynne, and oure herte whych alſo receaued yͤ lawe: * Eſa.xl.a. ij.Timo.ij.a. not withſtādynge * the lawe peryſheth not, but remayneth in hys laboure.

And when I conſydered theſe thynges in my herte after thys maner, I loked aboute me with myne eyes, and vpon the ryght ſyde * iiij.eſd.x.d. * I ſawe a woman, whych mourned ſore, made greate lamentacyon, and wepte wyth loude voyce: her clothes were rent in peces, and ſhe had aſſhes vpon her heade.

Then let I my thoughtes go, that I was in, and turned me vnto her, and ſayde: wherfore wepeſt thou? why art thou ſo ſory and diſcomforted? And ſhe ſayde vnto me: Syr, lett me bewayle my ſelfe and take yet more ſorowe: for I am ſore vexed in my mynde, and brought very lowe. And I ſayde vnto her: what ayleth the? Or who hath done eny thynge to yͤ? tell me. She ſayde: I haue bene vnfrutefull and baren, and haue had an huſband thyrtie yeares. And theſe .xxx. yeares I do nothynge els daye and nyght and all houres, but make my prayer to the Hyeſt. After thyrtie yeares God herde me thy hādmayden, loked vpon my miſery, conſydred my trouble, and gaue me a ſonne, and I was glad of hym, ſo was my huſband alſo and all my neyghbours, and we gaue greate honoure vnto the Myghtie. And I noryſhed hym wᵗ great trauayle. So when he grewe vp, and came to the tyme, that he ſhulde haue a wyfe, I made a feaſt.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ Eſdras and the woman that appeareth vnto hym commen together.

And it happened that when my ſonne wente in to hys chamber he fell downe, and dyed: then ouerthrewe we all the lyghtes, and all my neyghbours roſe vp to comforte me. A Then toke I my reſt vnto the ſecōde daye at nyght: and when they had all reſted, that they myght comforte me, I reſted & alſo roſe vp by nyght, & fled, and am come hyther in to thys felde, as thou ſeyſt: & am purpoſed not to come in the cytie, but to remayne here, and nether to eate ner drynke but continually to mourne and to faſt, vntyll I dye.

Then let I my meditacyons & thoughtes fall, that I was in, & ſpake to her in diſpleaſure: Thou folyſhe woman, ſeyſt thou not oure heuynes and mournynge, & what happeneth vnto vs? how Syon oure mother is all woful and ſory, and how ſhe is cleane brought downe and in myſery? ſeynge we be all nowe in heuynes, & make oure mone (for we be all ſorouful.) As for the heuynes that thou takeſt, it is but for one ſōne. Demaūde the earth, and ſhe ſhall tell the, that it is ſhe whych ought (by reaſon) to mourne, for the fall of ſo many that growe vpon her.

For frō the begynnynge all men are borne of hyr, and other ſhall come: & beholde, they walke all moſt all in to deſtruccyō, and many of them ſhalbe roted out.

Who ſhulde then (by reaſon) make more mournynge, then ſhe, that hath loſt ſo great a multitude? & not thou whych art ſory, but for one. But yf thou woldeſt ſaye vnto me: My mournynge is not lyke the mournynge of the earth, for I haue loſt the frute of my body, which I bare wᵗ heuynes: but the earth is accordynge to the maner of the earth, and the preſent multitude goeth agayne into her as it is come to paſſe. Then ſaye I vnto the: lyke as yᵘ haſt borne wyth trauayle and ſorowe, euē ſo yͤ earth alſo frō the begynnynge geueth her frute vnto man, for him that made her. And therfore withholde thy ſorowe and heuynes by thy ſelfe * loke what happeneth vnto the, beare it ſtrongly. * Heb.xij.a. For yf thou iudgeſt the marcke and ende of God to be ryghteous and good, & receaueſt hys coũcell in tyme, ẏ ſhalt be commēded therin. Go thy waye then into the cytie to thy huſbāde.

B And ſhe ſayde vnto me: that wyll I not do, I wyll not go in to the cytie, but here wyll I dye. So I cōmuned more wyth her, and ſayde: Do not ſo, but be counceled, and folowe me: for howe many falles hath Syō? Be of good comforte becauſe of the ſorowe of Jeruſalem. For thou ſeyſt that our Sanctuary is layed waſte, oure aulter broken, oure temple deſtroyed, oure playenge of inſtrumentes and ſyngynge layed downe, the thankeſgeuynge put to ſylence, our myrth is vanyſhed awaye, the lyght of oure candelſtyck is quenched, the arcke of the couenaunt is taken from vs, all oure holy thynges are defyled, and the name that is called vpon ouer vs, is dishonoured: oure chyldren are put to ſhame, oure preſtes are brēt, oure Leuites are caried awaye in to captiuyte, oure virgins are defyled, and oure wyues rauyſhed, oure ryghteous men ſpoyled, and oure chyldren deſtroyed, oure yonge men are brought in bondage, and our ſtronge worthyes are become weake: and Syon (whych ſeale is the greateſt of all) is lowſed vp from her worſhyp: for ſhe is delyuered in to the handes of them that hate vs.

And therfore ſhake of thy great heuynes, and put awaye the multitude of ſorowes: that the Myghtye maye be mercyfull vnto the, and ẏ the Hyeſt maye geue the reſt from thy laboure and trauayle. And it happened, that when I was talkynge with her, her face dyd ſhyne and glyſter, ſo ẏ I was afrayed of her, & muſed what it myght be. And immediatly ſhe caſt oute a greate voyce, very fearfull, ſo that the earth ſhoke at the noyſe of the woman: and I loked, and beholde, the woman appeared vnto me nomore: but there was a cytie buylded, ād a place was ſhewed from the grounde & foundacyon.

C Then was I afrayed, and cryed, wyth loude voyce, and ſayde: where is Uriel the angell, *which came to me at the fyrſt? For he hath cauſed me to come in many conſyderacyons and hye thoughtes, and myne ende is turned to corrupcyon, and my prayer to rebuke. And as I was ſpeakynge theſe wordes, he came vnto me, and loked vpon me, & I laye as one that had bene deed, and myne vnderſtādynge was altered, and he toke me by the ryght hande, and cōforted me, and ſet me vpon my fete, and ſayde vnto me: what ayleth the? and why is thyne vnderſtādynge vexed? and the vnderſtandynge of thy herte, and wherfore art thou ſory? And I ſayde: Becauſe thou haſt forſaken me: and I haue done *accordynge vnto thy wordes, I wēte in to the felde, and there haue I ſene thynges that I am not able to expreſſe. He ſayde vnto me: Stande vp and be manly, and I ſhall geue the exhortacyon.

*iiij.eſ.iiij.a

*iiij.Eſ.ix.a

Then ſayde I: ſpeake on to me my Lorde forſake me not, leſt I dye in vayne: for I haue ſene that I knewe not, and herde that I do not knowe. Or ſhall my vnderſtandynge be diſceaued, and my mynde? But nowe I beſeche the, that thou wylt ſhewe thy ſeruaūt of thys wōder. He anſwered me then & ſayd: heare me, and I ſhall enfourme the, and tell the wherfore thou art afrayed, for the Hyeſt hath opened many ſecrete thynges vnto the.

He hath ſene that thy waye is ryght, and that thou takeſt ſorowe continually for thy people, and makeſt greate lamentacyon for Syon: and therfore vnderſtande the vyſion which thou ſaweſt a lytle whyle agoo after thys maner: Thou ſaweſt a woman mournynge, and thou haſt comforted her: Neuertheles now ſeyſt thou the lykenes of the woman nomore, but thou thoughteſt there was a cytie buylded: and lyke as ſhe tolde ẏ of the fall of her ſonne, ſo is thys the anſwere: The woman whom thou ſaweſt, is Syon, and where as ſhe tolde ẏ, that ſhe hath bene thyrtye yeares vnfrutefull and baren, thoſe are the. xxx. yeares, wherin there was no offerynge made in her.

D But after. xxx. yeares Salomō buylded her, & offred, and then bare the baren a ſonne. And where as ſhe tolde the: ẏ ſhe noryſhed hym with laboure, that was the dwellynge of Jeruſalem. But where as ſhe tolde the ẏ her ſonne dyed whā ſhe came in to her chamber, that is the fall of Jeruſalem. And thou ſaweſt her lykeneſſe, howe ſhe mourned for her ſonne: and what els happened vnto her, I haue ſhewed the. And nowe God ſeyth, ẏ thou art ſory in thy mynde, and ſuffreſt from thy herte for her, & ſo hath he ſhewed the her clearneſſe, and the fayrnes of her bewtye.

And therfore I bad the remayne in the felde where no houſe is builded. For I knew that the Hyeſt wolde ſhewe thys vnto the, therfore I commaunded the to goo into the felde, where no foundacyon ner buyldynge is. For in the place where the Hyeſt will ſhewe hys cytie, there ſhall be no mans buyldynge. And therfore feare not, and let not thyne herte be afrayed, but go thy waye in, and ſe the gloryous and fayre buyldynge, and how greate it is, and howe greate thou thynckeſt it after the meaſure of thyne eyes, and then ſhalt thou heare as moch as thyne eares maye cōprehende. For thou art bleſſed aboue many other, and art called wyth the Hyeſt, as the fewe. But tomorowe at nyght thou ſhalt remayne here, and ſo ſhall ẏ Hyeſt ſhewe the vyſyons of hye thynges, which he wyll do vnto them, that dwell vpon earth in the laſt dayes. So I ſlepte the ſame nyght lyke as he commaunded me.

The

¶ The.xj.Chapter.

¶ In thys Chapter and in the. ij. next enſuynge, he entreateth of certen vyſyons and of the interpretacyons therof.

A Then ſawe I a dreame: and beholde, there cam vp from the ſee an Aegle, whych had. xij. wynges & thre heades: And I ſawe, and behold, he ſprede hys wynges ouer all the earth, and all the wyndes of the ayre blewe in them, and ſo they were put together agayne. And I behelde, and out of hys fethers there grewe other lytle contrary fethers: the heades reſted, the head in yͤ myddeſt was greater then the other, yet reſted it with the reſydue.

Moreouer I ſawe, that the Aegle flewe wyth hys wynges, and raygned vpõ earth, and ouer all them that dwell vpõ the earth: and I ſawe that all thynges vnder heauen were ſubiecte vpõ hym, & no man ſpake agaynſt hym, no not one creature vpon earth. I ſawe alſo that the Aegle ſtode vp vpon hys clawes, and gaue a ſounde with his fethers, and a voyce ſayinge after thys maner: watche not all together, ſlepe euery man in his awne place, and watche for a tyme, but let the heades be preſerued at the laſt. Neuertheles I ſawe, that the voyce wente not oute of his heades, but from the myddeſt of hys body. And I nombred hys cõtrary fethers, and beholde, there were eyght of them. And I loked, and beholde vpon the ryght ſyde there aroſe one fether, & raygned ouer all the earth. And it happened, that when it raygned, the ende of it came, and the place therof appeared nomore. B So the nexte folowynge ſtode vp, and raygned, and had a greate tyme: and it happened, that when it raygned, the ende of it came alſo lyke as the fyrſt, ſo that it appeared nomore.

Then came there a voyce vnto it, & ſayde, Heare thou yͤ haſt kepte in the earth ſo longe thys I ſaye vnto the, before thou begynneſt to appeare nomore: There ſhall none after the atteyne vnto thy tyme. Then aroſe the thyrde, and raygned as the other afore, and appeared nomore alſo. So went it wyth all the reſydue one after another, ſo that euery one raygned, and then appeared nomore: Then I loked, and beholde, in proceſſe of tyme the fethers that folowed were ſet vp vpõ yͤ ryght ſyde, that they myght rule alſo: and ſome of thẽ ruled, but wythin a whyle they appeared nomore: for ſome of them were ſet vp, but ruled not. After this I loked, and beholde the. xij. fethers appeared nomore, and the two wynges: & there was nomore vpon the Aegles body, but two heades that reſted, and ſyxe fethers. Then ſawe I alſo, that the ſyxe fethers were parted in two, and remayned vnder the head, that was vpõ the ryght ſyde, for the foure contynued in theyr place. C So I loked, & beholde, they that were vnder yͤ wynges, thought to ſet vp thẽ ſelues, and to haue the rule. Then was there one ſet vp, but ſhortly it appeared nomore, & the ſecõde was ſooner awaye then the fyrſt. And I behelde & lo, yͤ two thought alſo by thẽ ſelues to raygne: & when they ſo thought, beholde, there waked one of the heades that were at reſt, namely, it that was in the myddeſt, for that was the greater of yͤ two heades. And thẽ I ſawe, that the two heades were fylled with him, and the head was turned with thẽ that were by hym, and dyd eate vp the two vnder wynges, that wolde haue raygned.

But this head put yͤ whole earth in feare, and bare rule in it, ouer all thoſe that dwelt vpon earth with moche laboure, and he had the gouernaunce of the worlde, ouer all the foules that haue bene. After thys I loked, & beholde, the head that was in the myddeſt, ſodẽly appeared nomore, lyke as yͤ wynges: then came the two heades, which ruled vpon earth, & ouer thoſe that dwelt therin. D And I behelde, & lo, the head vpon yͤ ryght ſyde, deuoured it that was vpõ the left ſyde. And I herde a voyce, which ſayde vnto me: loke before the, and conſydre the thynge that thou ſeyſt. Then I ſawe, and beholde, as it were a lyon that roareth, rennynge haſtely out of the wod, and he ſent out a mans voyce vnto the Aegle, & ſayde: Heare thou, I wyll talke with the, & the Hyeſt ſhall ſaye vnto the: Is it not thou that haſt the victory of the foure beaſtes, whom I made to raygne vpõ earth and in my worlde, and that the ende of theyr tymes myght come thorowe them?

And the fourth came, and ouerwanne all the beaſtes that were paſt, and had power ouer the worlde with greate fearfulnes, and ouer the whole cõpaſſe of the earth wyth the moſt wicked laboure, & ſo longe tyme dwelt he vpon the earth wyth diſceate, & the earth haſt thou iudged not wyth trueth. For thou haſt troubled the meke, thou haſt hurte the peaceable & quyete, thou haſt loued lyers, & deſtroyed the dwellynges of them yͤ brought forth frute, and haſt caſt downe the walles of ſoch as dyd the no harme. Therfore is thy wrongeous dealynge and blaſphemye come vp vnto the Hyeſt, and thy pryde vnto the Myghty. The Hyeſt alſo hath loked vpon yͤ proude tymes, and beholde, they are ended, and their abhominacyons are fulfylled. And therfore appeare nomore thou Aegle, & thy horrible wynges, and thy wycked fethers, & thy vngracyous heades, and thy ſynfull clawes, and all thy vayne body: that the earth maye be refreſhed, and come agayne to her ſelfe, whan ſhe is deliuered frõ thy violence, and that ſhe maye hope for the iudgemẽt and mercy of hym that made her.

The.xij.Chapter

A And it happened when the Lyon ſpake theſe wordes vnto yͤ Aegle, I ſawe, & beholde, the head that afore had the vpperhand, appeared nomore: nether dyd yͤ foure wynges appeare any more, that came to hym, and were ſet vp to raygne: and their kyngdome was ſmall and full of vproure. And I ſawe, and beholde, they appeared nomore, and the whole body of the Aegle was brēt, and the earth was in greate feare. Thē awaked I out of the traunce of my mynde, & from greate feare, and ſayde vnto my ſprete: Lo, thys haſt thou geuen me in that thou ſearcheſt out the wayes of the hyeſt: lo, yet am I weery in my mynde, and very weake in my ſprete, and lytle ſtrength is there in me, for the greate feare yͭ I receaued thys nyght. Therfore wyll I nowe beſeche the Hyeſt, that he wyll comforte me vnto the ende: and I ſayde, Lorde Lorde, yf I haue foūde grace before thy ſyght, and yf I am iuſtifyed with the before many other, and yf my prayer be come vp before thy face, comforte me then, and ſhewe me thy ſeruaunt the interpretacyon and playne difference of thys horryble ſyght, that thou mayeſt perfectly comforte my ſoule: for thou haſt iudged me worthy, to ſhewe me the laſt of tymes.

And he ſayde vnto me: thys is the interpretacyon of thys ſyght. The Aegle whome thou ſaweſt come vp frō the ſee, is the kyngdome * whych was ſene in the viſyon of thy B brother Daniel, but it was not expounded vnto hym, for now I declare it vnto yͤ. Beholde, the dayes come, that there ſhall ryſe vp a kyngdome vpō earth, and it ſhalbe feared aboue all the kyngdomes that were before it: In the ſame kyngdome ſhall .xij. kynges raygne, one after another. For the ſeconde ſhall begynne to raygne, and ſhall haue more tyme then the other twelue: and this do the twelue wynges ſignifye, which thou ſaweſt. As for the voyce that ſpake, and that thou ſaweſt go out from the heades, but not from the body, it betokeneth, that after the tyme of yͭ kyngdome there ſhall aryſe great ſtryuynges, and it ſhall ſtande in parell of fallynge: neuertheles it ſhall not yet fall, but ſhalbe ſet in to his begynnynge. And yͤ eyght vnder wynges whych thou ſaweſt hāge vnto the wynges of hym, be token, that in hym there ſhall aryſe eyght kynges, whoſe tyme ſhalbe but ſmall, and theyr yeares ſwyfte, & two of them ſhall beare. But when the myddeſt tyme commeth, there ſhalbe foure kepte in the tyme, when hys tyme begynneth to come that it maye be ended, but two ſhalbe kepte vnto the ende.

C And where as thou ſaweſt thre heades reſtynge, thys is yͤ interpretacyon: In hys laſt ſhall the Hyeſt rayſe vp thre kyngdomes, & call many agayne in to them, and they ſhall haue the dominyon of the earth, and of thoſe that dwell therin, wyth moch labour aboue all thoſe that were before thē. Therfore are they called the heades of the Aegle: for it is they that ſhall brynge forth hys wyckednes agayne, and that ſhall perfourme and fyniſh hys laſt. And where as thou ſaweſt, that the greate head appeared nomore, it ſygnifyeth, that one of them ſhall dye vpon hys bed, and yet with payne, for the two yͭ remayne, ſhalbe ſlayne with the ſwerde. For the ſwerde of the one ſhall deuoure the other, but at yͤ laſt ſhall he fall thorowe the ſwerde hym ſelfe.

And where as thou ſaweſt two vnderwynges vpon the head that is on the ryght ſyde, it ſygnifyeth that it is they, whome the Hyeſt hath kepte vnto their ende: thys is a ſmall kyngdome, and full of trouble. The Lyon whom thou ſaweſt ryſynge vp out of the wodd, and roarynge, and ſpeakynge vnto yͤ Aegle, and rebukynge hym for hys vnryghteouſneſſe, is yͤ wynde whych the Hyeſt hath kepte for them and for their wyckedneſſe vnto the ende: he ſhall reproue them, and rente them a ſunder before them. For he D ſhall ſet them lyuynge before the iudgemēt, and ſhall rebuke them: for the reſydue of my people ſhall he delyuer with trouble, thoſe yͭ be preſerued ouer myne endes: and he ſhall make them ioyfull vntyll the commynge of the daye of iudgemēt, wherof I haue ſpoken vnto the from the begynnynge. Thys is the dreame that thou ſaweſt, and thys is the interpretacyon. Thou onely haſt bene mete to knowe the ſecrete of the Hyeſt.

Therfore wryte all theſe thynges yͭ thou haſt ſene in a boke, and hyde them, and teach thē the wyſe in the people, whoſe hertes thou knoweſt maye comprehende and kepe theſe ſecretes. But wayte thou here thy ſelf yet ſeuen dayes moo, that it maye be ſhewed the, whatſoeuer it pleaſeth the Hyeſt to declare vnto the, and with that he went hys waye.

And when all the people perceaued, that the ſeuen dayes were paſt, and I not come agayne into the cytie, they gathered thē all together frō the leaſt vnto the moſt, and came vnto me, and ſayde: what haue we offended the? & what euell haue we done agaynſt the, that thou forſakeſt vs, and ſytteſt here in thys place? For of all people thou onely art left vs, as a grape of the vyne, and as a cādell in a darcke place, & as an hauen & ſhyp preſerued from the tempeſt. Haue we not els aduerſite ynough, but thou muſt forſake vs? Were it not better for vs, that we had bene brent wyth Syon? For we are not better, then they that dyed there: and they wepte wͭ loude voyce. Then anſwered I thē & ſayde: Be of good comforte O Iſrael, and be not heuy thou houſe of Iacob: for the Hyeſt hath you in remembraũce, and the Myghtie hath not forgotten you in temptacyõ. As for me, I haue not forſaken you, nether am I departed frõ you: but am come into thys place to praye, becauſe of the myſery of Iſrael, that I myght ſeke mercy for the lowe eſtate of youre Sãctuary. And nowe go youre waye home euery man, and after theſe dayes wyll I come vnto you. So the people went theyr waye in to the cytie, lyke as I commaunded them: but I remayned ſtyll in the felde ſeuen dayes, as the Angell bad me, and dyd eate onely of the floures of the felde, and had my meate of the herbes in thoſe dayes.

¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

A AND it happened after the ſeuen dayes, that I dreamed a dreame by nyght. And beholde, there aroſe a wynde from the ſee, that it moued all the floudes therof. And I loked, & beholde, the man was ſtrõge and increaſed wyth the cloudes of heauen: and when he turned hys countenaunce to cõſyder, all the thynges trẽbled that were ſene vnder hym: and when the voyce went out of hys mouth, all they brent that herde hym, lyke as the earth when it feleth the fyre.

After theſe I ſawe, & beholde, there was gathered together a multitude of men out of nombre from the foure wyndes of the heauen, to fyghte agaynſt the man, that came oute from the ſee. And I loked, and beholde, he graued hym ſelfe a greate moũtayne, and flewe vp vpõ it. But I wolde haue ſene the border or place, wherout the hyll was grauen, and I coulde not.

I ſawe after theſe, that all they whych came to fyght agaynſt hym, were ſore afrayed and yet durſt they fyght. Neuertheles, when he ſawe yͤ fearſneſſe and violẽce of the people, he nether lyft vp his hãde ner helde ſwerde, ner eny weapen: but onely (As I ſawe) he ſent out of hys mouth as it had bene a blaſt of fyre, and out of hys lyppes the wynde of the flamme: and out of hys tonge he caſt out ſparkes and ſtormes. & they were all myxte together: the blaſt of fyre, the wynde of the flammes, and yͤ greate ſtorme, and fell wyth a ruſſhe vpon the people, whych was prepared to fyght and brent them vp euerychone: ſo that of the innumerable multitude there was nothynge ſene, but onely duſt & ſmoke. When I ſawe thys, I was afrayed.

B Afterwarde ſawe I the ſame man come downe from the mountayne, and callynge vnto him another peaceable people: and there came moch people vnto him: ſome were glad ſome were ſory, ſome of them were bounde, ſo that they were caryed and brought forth.

Then was I ſycke thorow greate feare, and I awaked, and ſayde: thou haſt ſhewed thy ſeruaunt all thy wonders from the begynnynge, and haſt coũted me worthy, that thou myghteſt receaue my prayer: ſhewe me nowe yet the interpretacyon of this dreame. For thus I conſydre in my vnderſtãdynge: wo vnto thẽ that ſhall be lefte in thoſe dayes and moch more wo vnto thẽ that are not left behynde: for they that were not left, were in heuynes.

Nowe vnderſtãde I the thynges that are layed vp in the latter dayes which ſhall happen vnto them, and to thoſe that are not left behynde. Therfore are they come into great parelles, and many neceſſities, lyke as theſe dreames declare. Yet is it eaſyer, yͭ he which ſuffreth hurte, come in theſe, then to paſſe awaye as a cloude out of yͤ worlde, and nowe to ſe the thynges that ſhall happen in yͤ laſt.

Then anſwered he me, and ſayde: The interpretacyon of the ſyght ſhall I ſhewe yͤ, and I wyll open vnto the, the thynge yͭ thou haſt required. For thou haſt ſpoken of them that are left behynde, and thys is the interpretacyon. He that taketh awaye the parell in that tyme, hath kepte him ſelf. They that be fallen into harme, are ſoche as haue workes and fayth vnto the Moſt myghtie. Knowe thys therfore, that they which be left behynde, are more bleſſed, then they yͭ be deed. Thys is the meanynge of the vyſion. Where as thou ſaweſt a man commynge vp frõ the depe of the ſee, the ſame is he whom God the Hyeſt hath kepte a greate ſeaſon, whych by his awne ſelfe ſhall delyuer his creature, and he ſhall ordre them yͭ are left behynde. And where as thou ſaweſt, yͭ oute of hys mouth there came a blaſt of wynde, fyre and ſtorme, and howe that he lyft vp nether ſwerde nor weapen, but that the ruſſhynge in of him deſtroyed the whole multitude, that came to fyght agaynſt him: it ſignifyeth, yͭ the dayes come, whan God will delyuer them that are C vpon earth, and in a traunce of mynde ſhall he come vpon them, that dwell in the earth. And one ſhall vndertake to fyght agaynſt another, one cyte agaynſt another, one place agaynſt another * one people agaynſt another, and one realme agaynſt another. When thys commeth to paſſe, then ſhall the tokens come, that I ſhewed the before: and thẽ ſhall my ſonne be declared, whõ thou ſaweſt clyme vp as a man. And when all the people heare hys voyce, euery man ſhall in theyr awne lande leaue the battayll that they haue one agaynſt another, and an innumerable multitude ſhalbe gathered together, as they yͭ be wyllinge to come, and to ouercome hym by fyghtynge. But he ſhall ſtãde vpõ the toppe of the mount Syon. Neuertheleſſe Syon ſhall come, and ſhalbe ſhewed, beynge prepared and buylded for all men, lyke as thou ſaweſt the hyll grauẽ forth without any hãdes.

* Mat.xxiiii. a.

des. But my ſonne ſhall rebuke the people that are come, for their wyckednes, with the tempeſt, and for their euell ymaginacyons: and their paynes wherwyth they ſhalbe punyſhed, are lyckened vnto the flamme: and with out any laboure, ſhall he deſtroye thē, euen by the lawe, whych is compared vnto the fyre.

And where as thou ſaweſt, that he gathered another peaceable people vnto him: thoſe are the ten trybes which were caryed awaye preſoners out of their awne lande, * in the tyme of Oſeas the kyng, whom Salmanaſar the kynge of Aſſyria toke preſoner, and caryed thē ouer the water, and ſo came they into another lande. *iiij.re.xvij. a.

But they gaue them thys councell, that they ſhulde leaue the multitude of the heathen, and to go forth into a farther countre, where neuer mankynde dwelt: that they myght there kepe their ſtatutes, whych they neuer kepte in their awne lande. And ſo they entred in at the narowe paſſages of the water of Euphrates, D and God ſhewed tokens for thē, * and helde ſtyll the floude tyll they were paſſed ouer, *Exo.xiiij.c. Ioſu.iij.d. for thorowe the countre there was a greate waye, namely of a yeare and a halfe iourney, for the ſame regyon is called Aſareth. Then dwelt they there vnto the latter tyme: and when they come forth agayne, the hyeſt ſhall holde ſtyll the ſprynges of the ſtreame agayne, that they maye go thorowe, therfore ſaweſt thou the multitude with peace. And they ẏ be left behynde of thy people, are thoſe that be foūde wythin my border. Nowe when he deſtroyeth the multitude that is gathered together, he ſhall defende hys people that remayne, and then ſhall he ſhewe them greate wonders.

Then ſayde I: O Lorde, Lorde, ſhewe me thys, wherfore haue I ſene the man cōminge vp frō the depe of the ſee? And he ſayde vnto me: Lyke as thou canſt nether ſeke out nor knowe theſe thynges that are in the depe of the ſee, euen ſo mayeſt thou not ſe my ſonne, or thoſe that be with him, but in the tyme of the daye. Thys is the interpretacyon of the dreame whych thou ſaweſt, therfore ẏ onely art here lyghtened: for thou haſt forſaken thyne awne lawe, and applyed thy diligence vnto myne, and ſought it. * Thy lyfe haſt thou ordred in wyſdome, & * haſt called vnderſtandynge thy mother, and therfore haue I ſhewed the, the treaſure of the hyeſt. After thre dayes I wyll ſhewe the more, and talke with the at more large, yee heuy and wonderous thynges wyll I declare vnto the. *iij.Re.iij.a. Prou.vii.a.

Then went I forth into ẏ felde, geuynge prayſe and thanckes greatly vnto God, becauſe of hys wonders which he dyd in tyme, and becauſe he gouerneth the ſame, and ſoche as is in tyme, and there I ſatt thre dayes.

The.xiiij.Chapter.

God appeareth vnto Eſdras in the buſhe, and ſheweth hym what he ſhall do.

Vpon ẏ thyrde daye I ſat vnder an A oke tree, then came there a voyce vnto me out of ẏ buſhe, and ſayde: Eſdras, Eſdras? And I ſayde: here am I Lorde, and ſtode vp vpon my fete. Then ſpake he vnto me: * in the buſhe dyd I appeare vnto Moſes, & talked with hym, *Exo.iii.a. when my people ſerued in Egypte, And I ſent hym, and led my people out of Egypt, and brought hym vpon the mount Syon, where I helde hym by me a lōge ſeaſon, and tolde hym my wonderous workes, and ſhewed hym the ſecretes of the tymes and the ende, and commaunded him, ſayinge: Theſe wordes ſhalt thou declare, & not hyde them. And nowe I ſaye vnto the, that thou laye vp in thyne herte the dreames that thou haſt ſene, and the interpretacyons which I haue ſhewed the: for thou ſhalt be receaued of all, thou ſhalt be turned and remayne with my councell, and with ſoche as be lyke the, vntyll the tymes be ended. For the worlde hath loſt hys youth, and the tymes begynne to waxe olde. For the tyme is deuyded into twelue partes, and ten partes of it are gone all ready, and halfe of the tenth parte: yet remayneth there that which is after the halfe of the tenth parte.

Therfore, prepare and ordre thy houſe, B and refourme thy people: comforte ſoche of them as be in trouble: and tell nowe of ẏ deſtruccyō: let go from the, mortall thoughtes: caſt awaye the burthens of man: put of the weake nature: laye vp in ſome places the thoughtes that are moſt heuy vnto the, and haſte the to flye from theſe tymes: for ſoche euell and wickedneſſe as thou haſt now ſene happē, ſhall they do yet moche worſe. * For the weaker that the worlde and the tyme is, ẏ more ſhall ſynne and wickedneſſe increaſe, in them that dwell vpon earth. For the trueth is fled farre awaye, & leſynge is harde at hande. For nowe haſteth the viſyō to come, that thou haſt ſene. *Mat.xxiiii. a. i.Iohn.ii.c.

Then anſwered I before the, and ſayde: Beholde Lorde, I will go as thou haſt commaūded me, and refourme the people which are preſent. But they ẏ ſhalbe borne afterwarde, who wyll exhorte or rebuke them? Thus ẏ worlde is ſet in darcknes: and they ẏ dwell therin, are without light: for thy lawe is kyndled, becauſe no man knoweth ẏ thinges that are done of the, or that ſhalbe done. If I haue founde grace before the, ſende the holy gooſt into me, and I ſhall wryte all ẏ hath bene done in the worlde ſens the begynnynge, which was wryttē in thy lawe, that men maye fynde the path, and ẏ they which will lyue in the latter dayes, maye lyue.

And he anſwered me, ſayinge: Goo thy waye, gather the people together, and ſaye vnto them, that they ſeke the not for fourty dayes, but loke thou gather the many boxe trees, and take with the Sarea, Dabria, Selemia, Ecanus and Aſiell, theſe fyue, which are ready to wryte ſwyftly, & come hyther, and I ſhall lyght a candle of vnderſtandynge in thyne hert, whiche ſhall not be put out, tyll ye thinges be perfourmed which thou ſhalt begynne to wryte. And then ſhalt thou declare ſome thynges openly vnto the perfecte, and ſome thynges ſhalt thou ſhew ſecretly vnto the wyſe. To morowe thys houre ſhalt thou begynne to wryte.

C Then wente I forth (as he commaunded me) and gathered all the people together, and ſayde: Heare theſe wordes O Iſrael: Oure fathers at the begynnynge were ſtraungers in Egypte, frome whence they were delyuered, and receaued the lawe of lyfe * whiche they kepte not, which ye alſo haue tranſgreſſed after them. Then was thys lande and the lande of Syon parted amonge you by lot to poſſeſſe. But your fathers and ye your ſelues alſo haue done vnryghteouſnes, & haue not kepte the wayes which the Hyeſt commaunded you. And for ſo moch as he is a ryghteous iudge, he toke from you in tyme the thynge that he had geuen you. And now are ye here and your brethren amonge you. Therfore yf ſo be that ye wyll ſubdue your awne vnderſtandynge, & refourme your herte, ye ſhall be kepte alyue, and after death ſhall ye opteyne mercy. For after death ſhall the iudgement come, when we ſhall lyue agayne: and then ſhall the names of the ryghteous be manifeſt, & the workes of the vngodly ſhal be declared. Let no man therfore come nowe vnto me, nor aſke any queſtyon at me theſe fourtye dayes.

*Deut.iiij.d.

D So I toke the fyue men (as he commaunded me) and we wente in to the felde, and remayned there. The next daye a voyce called me ſayinge: Eſdras * open thy mouth, and drynke that I geue the. Then opened I my mouth, & beholde, he reached me a ful cuppe whiche was full as it were with water, but the colour of it was lyke fyre. And I toke it and dranke. And when I had dronke it, my hert had vnderſtandyng, & wyſdome grewe in my breſt: for my ſprete was kept in remembraūce, and my mouth was opened and ſhut nomore. The Hyeſt gaue vnderſtandynge vnto the fyue men, that they wrote the hye thinges of the night, which they vnderſtode not. But in the nyght they dyd eate bred: as for me, I ſpake in the daye & helde not my tonge by nyght. In .xl. dayes, they wrote .ij. hundred and foure bokes.

*Eze.iii a.
Apocalip.x.b.

And it happened when the fourtye dayes were fulfylled, that the Hyeſt ſpake, ſaying. The fyrſte that thou haſt wrytten, ſpeake openly, yt ye worthy & vnworthy maye rede it. But kepe the .lxx. laſt, that thou mayeſt ſhew it onely to ſoch as be wyſe amonge thy people. For in them is the ſprynge of vnderſtandynge, the fountayne of wyſdome, and the ſtreame of knowledge. And I dyd ſo.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

¶ The punyſhment that euell people ſhall haue, which God commaundeth Eſdras to ſhew vnto them.

A BEholde, ſpeake thou in the eares of my people the wordes of prophecie whyche I wyll put in thy mouth, ſayeth the Lorde: and cauſe thē to be wrytten in a letter, for it is the trueth. Feare not the ymaginacions agaynſt ye. Let not the vnfaythfulnes of them trouble the, that ſpeake agaynſt ye. For all the vnfaythfull ſhall dye in theyr vnfaythfulnes. Beholde ſayeth the Lorde, I wyll brynge plages vpon the worlde, the ſwerde, honger, death and deſtruccion, for wyckednes hath the vpperhāde in all ye earth, & theyr ſhamefull workes are fulfylled

Therfore ſayeth the Lorde: I will holde my tonge nomore vnto theyr wyckedneſſe, which they do ſo vngodly: nether will I ſuffre thē in the thynges, that they deale wyth all ſo wyckedly. Beholde * the innocent bloud of the troubled cryeth vnto me, and ye ſoules of the ryghteous complayne contynually: and therfore (ſayeth the Lord) I wil ſurely auenge, & receaue vnto me all the innocent bloude from amonge them:

*Apoca.vi.b
and.xix.a.

* Beholde, my people is led as a flock of ſhepe to be ſlayne, I wyll not ſuffre them now to dwell in Egypte, but wyll brynge them out with a myghtie hand & a ſtretched out arme, and ſmyte it with plages as afore and will deſtroye all the lande of it. Egypte ſhall mourne, and the foundacions of it ſhal be ſmytten with the plage and punyſhment that God ſhall brynge vpon it.

B They that tyll the grounde, ſhall mourne, for theyr ſedes ſhallbe deſtroyed thorowe the blaſtynge and hayle, and an horryble ſtarre. Wo worthe the worlde and them that dwell therin, for the ſwerde and theyr deſtruccyon draweth nye, and one people ſhall ſtande vp to fyghte agaynſte another, and ſwerdes in theyr handes. For men ſhall be vnſtedfaſt, and ſome ſhall do vyolence vnto other: they ſhal not regarde their king and prynces, the wayes of theyr doynges and handelynges in theyr power. A man ſhall deſyre to go into the cytye, and ſhall not be able. For becauſe of theyr pryde the cytyes ſhalbe broughte in feare, the houſes ſhall ſhake, and men ſhalbe afrayed.

A man ſhall haue no pytye vpon hys neyghbour, but one ſhall pꝛouoke another vnto batayl to ſpoyle theyꝛ goodes, becauſe of the honger of bꝛed, and becauſe of the greate trouble.

D Beholde, I gather and call together all the kynges of the earth whiche are from the vpꝛiſyng, from the South, from the Eaſt ⁊ Lybanus to turne vnto thẽ, and reſtoꝛe the thinges that they haue geuen them. Lyke as they do yet this daye vnto my choſen, ſo wil I do alſo, and recõpenſe thẽ in theyꝛ boſome. Thus ſayeth the Loꝛde God: My ryghte hande ſhal not ſpare ẏ ſynners, ⁊ my ſwerde ſhall not ceaſſe ouer them, that ſhed the innocent bloude vpon earth. The feare is gone out from hys wꝛath, and hath conſumed the foundaciõs of the earth, and the ſynners lyke the ſtraw that is kyndled. Wo woꝛth thẽ that ſynne, ⁊ kepe not my commaundementes, ſayeth the Loꝛde. I wyll not ſpare thẽ. Go youre waye ye chyldꝛen frome vyolence defyle not my Sanctuary: foꝛ the Loꝛd knoweth all them that ſynne agaynſt hym, and therfoꝛe delyuereth he them vnto death and deſtruccyon: For now are the plages come vpon the woꝛlde, ⁊ ye ſhall remayne in thẽ. For God ſhall not deliuer you, becauſe ye haue ſynned agaynſt hym.

E Beholde, an hoꝛrible vyſyon commeth from the Eaſt, where generacions of Dꝛagõs ſhall come out, and the people of the Arabies with many charettes, and the multitude of them ſhalbe as the wynde vpon earth that all they whiche heare them ragynge in theyꝛ wꝛath, maye feare and be a frayed, and as the wylde boꝛes oute of the wod, ſo ſhall they go out, and wyth greate power ſhall they come, and ſtande fyghtyng with them and ſhall waſte the poꝛcyon of the lande of the Aſſyꝛians.

And then ſhall the Dꝛagons haue the vpper hande, not remembꝛinge theyꝛ byꝛth, ⁊ ſhall turne aboute ſwearynge together in great power, to perſecute them. But theſe ſhalbe afrayed, and kepe ſylence at theyꝛ power, and ſhall fle: and one out of the lande of the Aſſyꝛians ſhall beſege thẽ, and conſume one of them, and in theyꝛ hooſt ſhall be feare and dꝛede, and ſtryfe amõge theyꝛ kynges.

F Beholde cloudes from the Eaſt, and from the Noꝛth vnto the South, and they are very hoꝛryble to loke vpon, full of wꝛath ⁊ ſtoꝛme. They ſhal ſmyte one vpon another, and they ſhall ſmyte at the greate ſtarre vpõ earth and theyꝛ ſtarre, and the bloude ſhall be from the ſwerde vnto the bely, and the ſmoke of man vnto the Camels lytter: And there ſhalbe great fearfulnes ⁊ tremblynge vpon earth, and they that ſe the wꝛath, ſhal be afrayed, ⁊ a tremblynge ſhall come vpon them.

And then ſhall there come greate raynes from the South and frõ the Noꝛth, ⁊ parte from the Weſt, and from the ſtoꝛmy wynde from the Eaſt, and ſhall ſhut thẽ vp agayne and the cloude which he rayſed vp in wꝛath, and the ſtarre to cauſe feare towarde ẏ Eaſt ⁊ Weſt wynde, ſhalbe deſtroyed: ⁊ the great cloudes ſhalbe lyfte vp, ⁊ the myghtye cloudes full of wꝛath, and the ſtarre, that they maye make all the earth afrayed and them that dwell therin, and that they maye poure oute over all places an hoꝛryble ſtarre, fyꝛe and hayle and flyenge ſweardes, and many waters: that all feldes maye be full, and all ryuers, and they ſhall bꝛeake downe the cytyes and walles, moũtaynes and hylles, all trees, wood, and the graſſe of the medowes ⁊ all theyꝛ frute. And they ſhall go ſtedfaſte vnto Babilon, and make her afrayed, they ſhall come to her and beſege her: the ſtarre ⁊ all wꝛath ſhall they poure out vpon her.

G Then ſhall the duſt ⁊ ſmoke go vp vnto the heauen, and all they that be aboute her, ſhall be wayle her: and they that remayne vnder her, ſhall do ſeruice vnto them that haue put her in feare. And thou Aſia ẏ comfoꝛteſt thy ſelfe alſo vpõ the hope of Babylon, and art a woꝛſhyp of her perſonne: Wo be vnto the thou wꝛetch, becauſe thou haſt made thy ſelfe lyke vnto her, ⁊ haſt deckte thy daughters in whoꝛdome, that they myght triũphe and pleaſe thy louers, whiche haue alwaye deſired to cõmitte whoꝛdome with the: thou haſte folowed the abhominable cytye in all her woꝛkes and inuencions.

Therfoꝛe ſayeth God: I will ſende plages vpõ the, wyddowhode, pouerte, hõger, warres, and peſtilence, to waſte thy houſes with deſtruccion and death, and the gloꝛy of thy power ſhalbe dꝛyed vp as a floure, whẽ the heate ryſeth ẏ is ſent ouer the: Thou ſhalt be ſyck as a pooꝛe wyfe that is plaged ⁊ beaten of wemẽ: ſo that the myghtie and louer ſhall not be able to receaue the. Wolde I ſo hate the ſayeth the Loꝛd? If thou haddeſt not alwaye ſlayne my choſen, exaltinge the ſtroke of thy handes, and ſayde ouer theyꝛ death, when thou waſt dꝛonken: ſet foꝛth ẏ bewtie of thy countenaunce.

The rewarde of thy whoꝛdome ſhalbe recompenſed the in thy boſome, therfoꝛe ſhalt thou receaue rewarde.

H Lyke as thou haſt done vnto my choſen (ſayeth the Loꝛde) euẽ ſo ſhall God do vnto the, and ſhal delyuer the into the plage. Thy chyldꝛen ſhall dye of honger, and thou ſhalt fall thoꝛow the ſwerde. Thy cytyes ſhalbe bꝛoken downe, ⁊ all thyne ſhall periſh with the ſwerde in the felde. They that be in the mountaynes ſhall dye of honger, and eate their owne fleſh, ⁊ dꝛinke theyꝛ owne bloude foꝛ very honger of bꝛed and thyꝛſt of water.

Thou vnhappye ſhalt come thorow the ſee, and receaue plages agayne.

In the paſſage they ſhall caſt downe the ſlayne cytye, and ſhall rote out one parte of thy lande, and conſume the porcyon of glorye. They ſhall treade the downe lyke ſtubble, and they ſhall be thy fyre and ſhall conſume the: thy cities and thy lande. thy wood and thy frutefull trees ſhall they burne vp with the fyre. Thy chyldren ſhall they cary awaye captyue, and loke what thou haſte, they ſhall ſpoyle it, and marre the bewtye of thy face.

¶ The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ The Heathen ſhall be punyſhed.

A WO be vnto yͤ Babilō & Aſia, wo be vnto the Egipt & Syria: gyrde your ſelues wͭ clothes of ſack & heare, & mourne your chyldren, be ſory, for your deſtrucciō is at hāde. A ſwerde is ſent vpō you, & who wyll turne it back? A fyre is kyndled amonge you, & who wyll quench it? Plages are ſent vnto you, & what is he that wyll dryue them awaye? Maye any man dryue awaye an hōgrie lyō in the wood? Or maye any man quench the fyre in ſtubble, whā it hath begōne to burne? Maye one turne agayne the arowe, that is ſhot of a ſtrōge archer? The myghtye Lord ſendeth the plages, and what is he that will dryue them awaye? The fyre is kyndled and gone forth in his wrath, and what is he that wyll quench it? He ſhall caſte lyghteninges, and who ſhall not feare? He ſhall thonder, & who ſhall not be afrayed? The Lord ſhall threaten, and who ſhall not vtterly be beatē to poulder at hys preſence? The earth quaketh, and the foundaciōs therof: the ſee aryſeth vp with waues from the depe, and the floudes of it are vnquyete & the fyſſhes therof alſo before the Lord, and before the glory of hys power. For ſtronge is hys ryghtehand that holdeth yͤ bowe, hys arowes that he ſhoteth, are ſharpe, and ſhall not myſſe, when they begynne to be ſhot into the endes of the worlde.

B Beholde, the plages are ſente, & ſhall not turne agayn, tyll they come vpō earth. The fyre is kyndled, and ſhall not be put out, tyll it cōſume the foūdacions of the earth. Lyke as an arowe which is ſhot of a myghtye archer, returneth not backwarde: euen ſo the plages that ſhall be ſent vpon earthe, ſhall not turne agayne. Wo is me, wo is me, who wyll delyuer me in thoſe dayes? The begynnynge of ſorowes and great mournyng: the begynnynge of darth and greate death, the begynnynge of warres, & the powers ſhall ſtande in feare: the begynnyng of euels, and they ſhall tremble euery one. What ſhall I do in theſe thynges, when the plages come? Beholde, hōger, and plage, trouble and anguyſh are ſent, as ſcourges for amendemēt. But for all theſe thiges they ſhall not turne frome theyr wickedneſſe, nor be all waye myndefull of the ſcourges.

C Beholde, vitayles ſhalbe ſo good cheape vpon earth, that they ſhal thynke thē ſelues to be in good caſe: & euen then ſhall myſchefe growe vpō earth, warres, dearth and great diſquyetnes. For many of them that dwell vpon earthe ſhall peryſhe of honger, and the other that eſcape the honger, ſhall yͤ ſwerde deſtroye: & the deed ſhalbe caſte out as dōge, and there ſhalbe no mā to cōforte them. For the earth ſhalbe waſted, and the cytyes ſhalbe caſt downe: there ſhalbe no mā left to tyll the earth & to ſowe it. The trees ſhall geue frute, & who ſhall plucke them of and gather them? The grapes ſhall be rype, & who ſhall treade them? For all places ſhalbe deſolate of men, ſo that one man ſhall deſyre to ſe another, or to heare hys voyce. For of one whole cytie there ſhalbe ten left, and two in the felde, which ſhal hyde them ſelues in the thycke buſſhes, and in the clyfes of ſtones: lyke as whē there remayne thre or foure olyues vpon the olyue tre, or as when a vineyarde is gathered, there are lefte ſome grapes, of them that diligently ſought thorow the vyneyarde.

D Euen ſo in thoſe dayes there ſhalbe thre or foure left, for thē that ſearch theyr houſes with the ſwerde. And the earth ſhalbe lefte waſte, and the feldes therof ſhall waxe olde: and her wayes and al her pathes ſhal growe full of thornes, becauſe no mā ſhall trauayle there thorow. The daughters ſhal mourne, hauynge no brydegromes: yͤ wemen make lamentacyon, hauynge no huſbandes, theyr daughters ſhall mourne, hauynge no helpe of theyr brydegrome. In the warres ſhall they be deſtroyed, and theyr huſbādes ſhall periſh of honger. O ye ſeruauntes of yͤ Lord heare theſe thynges, and marke them. Beholde, the worde of the Lorde, O receaue it: beholde, the plages drawe nye, and are not ſlack in taryenge. Lyke as a trauaylinge womā, which after the.ix.moneth bryngeth forth a ſonne, when the houre of the byrth is come, an houre two or thre a fore that yͤ paynes come vpon her body, and when yͤ chylde commeth to the byrthe, they tary not the twyncklyng of an eye: Euen ſo ſhall not the plages be ſlack to come vpon earth, and the worlde ſhall mourne, & ſorowes ſhall come vpon it on euery ſyde.

E O my people, heare my worde, make you redy to the battayll: and in all euell be euen as pylgrems vpō earth. * He that ſelleth, let hym be as he that flyeth hys waye: and he that byeth as one that wyll leſe. *i.Cor.vij.d.

Who ſo occupieth marchaundies, as he that wynneth not: & he that buyldeth, as he that ſhal not dwell therin: he that ſoweth, as one that ſhal not reape: he that twyſteth the vyneyarde, as he that ſhall not gather the grapes: they that mary, as they that ſhall get no chyldren: and they that mary not: as the wyddowes: & therfore * they that laboure, labour in vayne. For ſtraungers ſhall reape their frutes, & ſpoyle their goodes, ouerthrowe theyr houſes, & take theyr chyldren captiue, for in captiuite and honger ſhall they get chyldren. And they yͤ occupye their marchaundies with robbery, howe longe decke they theyr cyties, theyr houſes, theyr poſſeſſions, & perſonnes: the more wyll I puniſhe them for theyr ſynnes, ſayeth the Lord. Like as an whore enuyeth an honeſte woman, ſo ſhall ryghteouſnes hate iniquite, when ſhe decketh her ſelfe, and ſhall accuſe her to her face, when he cōmeth that defendeth, whiche ſhall make inquiſiciō for all ſynne vpō earth And therfore be not ye like therunto, nor to the workes therof: for or euer it be lōge, iniquite ſhalbe taken a waye out of the earth, & ryghteouſnes ſhall raygne amonge you.

*Gene.i.a.

F Let not the ſynner ſaye, that he hath not ſynned: for coles of fyre ſhal burne vpon his head, which ſayeth before the Lord God and his glory: I haue not ſynned. Beholde, the Lord knoweth all the workes of men, their ymaginacions, theyr thoughtes and theyr hertes. * For he ſpake but the worde: let the earth be made, and it was made: let the heauen be made, & it was made. In hys worde were the ſtarres made, and he knoweth the nombre of them. He ſearcheth the groūde of the depe, & the treaſures therof: he hath meaſured the ſee, and what it cōteyneth. He hath ſhut the ſee in the myddeſt of the waters, and with his worde hath he hāged the earth vpō the waters. He ſpredeth out the heauen lyke a vawte, vpō the waters hath he foūded it: In the deſerte and drye wyldernes hath he made ſprynges of water, and poles vpō the toppe of the mountaynes, that the floudes myght poure downe from the ſtony rockes to water the earth. He made man, & put hys herte in the myddeſt of the bodye, and gaue hym breth, lyfe and vnderſtandyng, yee, and the ſprete of yͤ almyghtye God, which made all thinges, and hath ſearched the ground of all the ſecretes of the earth.

G He knoweth your imaginacions and inuencions, and what ye thynke whē ye ſynne and wolde hyde youre ſynnes. Therfore hath the Lorde ſearched and ſought out all your workes, and he ſhall bewraye you all. And whē your ſynnes are brought forth, ye ſhalbe aſhamed before mē, & your awne ſynnes ſhalbe youre accuſers in yͤ daye. What wyll ye do? Or how will ye hyde your ſynnes before God and his Aungels? Beholde God hym ſelfe is the iudge, feare hym, leaue of from youre ſynnes, and forget youre vnryghteouſneſſes, & medle nomore with thē: ſo ſhall God leade you forth, and deliuer you from all trouble. For beholde, the heate of a great multitude is kyndled ouer you, & they ſhall take a waye certayne of you, and fede the ydle with Idols: & they that cōſent vnto thē, ſhalbe had in diriſiō, laughed to ſcorne, and troden vnderfote.

For vnto the places there ſhalbe a place, H and in the next cytyes a greate inſurreccyon vpon thoſe that feare the Lorde. They ſhall be lyke mad mē, they ſhall ſpare no mā: they ſhal ſpoyle & waſte ſoch as feare the Lorde, theyr goodes ſhall they take from them, and ſhutte them out of theyr houſes. Thē ſhal it be knowen who are my choſen, & they ſhalbe tryed as the golde in the fyre. Heare O ye my beloued, ſayeth the Lorde: beholde, the dayes of trouble are at hāde, but I wyl delyuer you from the ſame. Be not ye afrayed, diſpayre not, for God is youre captayne.

Who ſo kepeth my commaundementes and preceptes (ſayeth the Lord God) let not youre ſynnes weye you downe, and let not youre vnryghteouſneſſe be lyfte vp. Wo be vnto them that are ſubdued vnto theyr ſynnes, and tangled in theyr wyckedneſſe: lyke as a felde is hedged in with buſſhes, and the path therof couered with thornes, that no man maye trauayle thorow: and ſo is he taken, and caſte in the fyre, and brent.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ Tobias beynge taken pryſoner, forſaketh not the lawe of truthe. The mercy and charyte of Tobias and the maners of hym in his youth. He taketh Hannah to wyfe, by whome he hath a ſonne named Tobias. He ſuccoureth Gabell with money. He ⁊ his are fayne to flye, but after the deeth of Sennaherib they retourne agayne.

A Tobias was of the trybe and cytye of Nephtali, whiche lyeth in the hye countrees of Galile aboue Naaſon the waye towarde the Weſt, hauynge the cytye of Sephet vpon the left ſyde.

Though he was taken pryſonner in the dayes of Salmanaſar kyng of the Aſſyriās neuertheles beynge in captiuite, he forſoke not yͤ waye of trueth: In ſo moch that what ſoeuer he myghte get, he parted it daylye wͭ his felow preſoners and brethren, that were of hys kynred. And though he were yonger then all in the tribe of Nephtali, yet dyd not he behaue hym ſelfe chyldeſhly in hys workes And when all the other wente to the golden calues, whiche Jeroboam the kynge of Iſraell had made, he hym ſelfe alone fled all theyr companies, and gat him to Jeruſalem vnto the temple of the Lorde, and there worſhypped the Lord God of Iſrael, faythfully offeringe of all his fyrſt frutes and tythes, ſo that in the thyrde yeare he miniſtred all the tythes vnto the ſtraungers and conuertes. Theſe and ſoch lyke thynges dyd he obſerue accordinge to the lawe of God, whē he was yet but yonge.

B But when he was a man, he toke out of hys owne trybe a wyfe called Anna, and of her he begat a ſonne, whome he called after hys awne name, and taught hym from hys youth vp, to feare God, ⁊ to refrayne frome all ſynne,

Now when he with hys wyfe, hys ſonne and with all hys kynred was come in captiuite vnto the cytye of Niniue, what tyme as they all dyd eate of the meates of the Heathen, he kepte hys ſoule, and was neuer defyled in theyr meates. And for ſo moch as he was myndefull of the Lorde in all his hert, God gaue hym fauoure in the ſyght of Salmanaſar the kynge, whiche gaue hym power to go where he wolde, and ſo had he lyberte to do what ſoeuer hym lyſt.

C So wente Tobias vnto all them yͤ were in preſon, and comforted them, and gaue thē wholſome exortacions. And when he came to Rages a cytie of the Medes, hauinge ten talētes of ſyluer (of the thynges where with the kyng had honoured him) ⁊ ſawe among a greate company of people of hys kynred, one Gabelus (whiche was of hys awne trybe) beyng in neceſſyte, he gaue hym the ſayd weyght of ſyluer vnder an hand wrytynge.

After a longe ſeaſon when Salmanaſar the kynge was deed, and Sennaherib hys ſonne reygned in his ſteade, which hated the chyldren of Iſrael, Tobias went daylie thorow out all his kynred, and comforted thē, ⁊ gaue of hys goodes to euery one of them, as moch as he myght: he fed the hongrie, clothed the naked, ⁊ buryed the deed ⁊ ſlayne, ⁊ that diligently.

D And when Sennaherib the kynge came agayne and fled out of Jewry (what tyme as God puniſhed hym for hys blaſphemy) ⁊ in hys wrath ſlewe many of the chyldren of Iſrael. Tobias buryed theyr bodyes. But when it was tolde the kynge, he commaunded to ſlaye hym, and toke awaye all hys gooddes. Neuertheles, Tobias wyth hys ſonne and with hys wyfe fled hys waye, ⁊ was hyd naked, for there were many that loued hym. But after .xlv. dayes the kynge was ſlayne of his awne ſonnes. Then came Tobias agayne to hys houſe, ⁊ all hys goodes were reſtored vnto hym.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

¶ Tobias byddeth ſoche of his frendes as feare God to a bancquet or feaſt. He is reproued of hys frendes. He feareth God moare then the kynge. He becōmeth blynde by the permiſſion and ſuffraunce of God. Hys kynſfolckes mocke hym.

A After theſe thynges vpon a ſolempne daye of the Lorde Tobias made a good feaſte in hys houſe, and ſayde vnto hys ſonne: Go thy waye and bryng hyther ſome of oure trybe, ſoche as feare God, yͭ they maye make mery with vs. And whē he was gone, he came agayne, and tolde hys father, that one of the chyldrē of Iſrael laye ſlayne vpō yͤ ſtrete. And immediatly he leapte frō his table, left the feaſt, came faſtynge to the deed coarſe, toke hym ⁊ bare hym preuely in to hys houſe, that when the Sunne was downe, he might ſafely burye him. And when he had hyd the coarſe, he dyd eate hys meate with mournynge and feare, remembrynge the wordes, that the Lorde ſayed by the prophet Amos: youre hye feaſtes ſhalbe turned to ſorowe and heuynes.

But when the Sunne was downe, he went his waye and buried him. B Thē all his neyghbours reproued him, ſaying: It is not longe, ſens it was commaunded to ſlaye the because of thys matter, and haſt ſcarce eſcaped the daunger of death, and buryeſt thou the deed agayne? Neuertheles, Tobias fearinge God moare then the kyng, toke the bodyes of the ſlayne, and hyd thē in hys houſe, and buryed them at mydnight.

It happened vpon a daye, that he had buried yͤ deed, ⁊ was wery, cam home, ⁊ layed hym downe by the wall & ſlepte. And whyle he was a ſlepe, there fell downe vpon hys eyes warme donge out of the ſwaloes neſt, ſo that he was blinde. This temptacion dyd God ſuffre to happen vnto hym, that they which came after, myghte haue an exãple of hys pacience, lyke as of holy Job. For in ſo moch as he euer feared God from hys youth vp, & kepte hys cõmaundementes, he grud= ged not agaynſt God, that yͤ plage of blynd nes chaunſed vnto hym, but remayned ſted= faſt in the feare of God, & thanked God all yͤ D dayes of hys lyfe.

For lyke as bleſſed Job was had in dery ſion of kynges, euen ſo was he laughed to ſcorne of hys elders and kynſfolkes, whiche ſayde vnto hym: where is thy hope, for the= which thou haſt done almes and buryed the deed? But Tobias rebuked thẽ, and ſpake: Saye not ſo, for we are the chyldren of holy men, and loke for the lyfe, whiche God ſhall geue vnto thẽ, that neuer turne theyr beleue from hym. Anna hys wyfe wente daylye to the weeuinge worke: & loke what lyuynge ſhe coulde get with the laboure of her hãdes ſhe brought it. And it happened yͭ ſhe toke a kyd, and brought it home.

And when her huſbande herde it crye, he ſayd, loke yͭ it be not ſtollẽ, reſtore it agayne to the owners: for it is not laufull for vs, to eate or to touch any thynge of thefte. Then was hys wyfe angrie, & ſayde: Now is thy hope become vayne openly, and thy almes dedes are manifeſt. With theſe and ſoch lyke wordes dyd ſhe caſt hym in the tethe.

¶ The .iij. Chapter.

¶ The prayer of Tobias. Sara the daughter of Ra= guell is ſclaundred of her fathers ſeruaunte. The prayer and faſtynge of Sara. And alſo the innocency and chaſtytie of her. The prayers of Tobias and of Sara are hearde.

A THen Tobias toke it heuely & wͭ teares begãne to make his prayer ſaying: O Lorde thou art righteous, & all thy iudgemẽtes are true, yee, al thy waies are mercy, fayth= fulnes & iudgement. And now O Lorde be myndefull of me, & take no vengeaũce of my ſynnes, nether remẽbre my miſdedes, nether the miſdedes of my elders. For we haue not bene obediẽt vnto thy cõmaundemẽtes, ther= fore are we ſpoyled broughte into captiuite, into death, into deriſion & ſhame vnto all na cions, amõg whom yͧ haſt ſcatered vs. And now O Lord, thy iudgemẽtes are great, for we haue not done according to thy cõmaun demẽtes, nether haue we walked innocẽtly before yͤ. And now O Lorde, deale wͭ me ac= cordinge to thy wyll, & cõmaunde my ſprete to be receaued in peace, for more expedient were it for me to dye, then to lyue.
B At the ſame tyme it happened, that Sara the daughter of Raguel at Rages a cytie of the Medes was ſclaundred of one of her fa= thers handmaydes, namely, that ſhe ſhulde haue had ſeuen huſbandes, whiche as ſoone as they were gone in vnto her, were ſlayne of yͤ deuel called Aſmodeus. Therfore, whẽ ſhe reproued the maydẽ for her faute, ſhe an= ſwerde her, ſayeng: God let vs neuer ſe ſõne nor daughter of the more vpon earth, thou kyller of thy huſbandes. Wylt thou ſlay me alſo, as thou haſt ſlayne ſeuen men? At thys voyce wente Sara in to an hye chamber of her houſe, and thre dayes and thre nyghtes ſhe nether ate nor dranke, but contynued in prayer, and beſought God with teares, that he wolde deliuer her from thys rebuke.

Upon the thyrd daye it chaunced, yͭ when C ſhe had made an ende of prayer, ſhe prayſed the Lorde ſayenge: Bleſſed be thy name O God of oure fathers, which when thou arte wroth, ſheweſt mercy, & in tyme of trouble thou forgeueſt the ſynnes of them, that call vpon the. Unto the O Lord turne I my face vnto the lyft I vp myne eyes. I beſeche the O Lorde, loſe me out of the bondes of thys rebuke, or els take me vtterly a waye frome of the earth. Thou knoweſt Lord, that I ne= uer had deſyre vnto man, and that I haue kepte my ſoule cleane from all vnclenly luſt I haue not kepte company with thoſe that paſſe theyr tyme in ſporte, nether haue I ma de my ſelfe partaker with them that walke in lighte behauour. Neuertheles an huſbãd haue I cõſented to take, not for my pleaſure but in thy feare.

Now peraduẽture ether I haue bene vn= D worthy of them, or els were they vnmete for me, for thou happly haſt kept me to another huſband. For why? thy councel is not in the power of man. But whoſoeuer loueth the & ſerueth the a ryght, is ſure of thys, that yf hys lyfe be tempted and proued, it ſtandeth in the trieng, and yf he endure in pacience, he ſhall haue a rewarde and be hylye crowned: and yf he be in trouble, that God (no doute) ſhall deliuer hym: and yf hys lyfe be in cha= ſtenynge, yͭ he ſhall haue leaue to come vnto thy mercy.

For thou haſt no pleaſure in oure damp= nacion: and why? after a ſtorme thou makeſt the wether fayre and ſtyll: after wepynge & heuynes thou geueſt greate ioye. Thy name O God of Iſrael, be prayſed for euer. At the ſame tyme were both their prayers hearde in the ſyghte of the mageſty of the Hyeſt God.
And Raphael the holy Aungell of the Lord was ſent to helpe them both, whoſe prayers came at one tyme together before God.

¶ The .iiij. Chapter.

¶ Tobias thynckyng to dye geueth a godly exhorta= cion and monycion to hys ſonne.

A So whē Tobias thought his prayer to be herde, that he myght dye, he called vnto hym hys ſonne Tobias and ſayde vnto hym: My ſonne, heare ẏ wordes of my mouth, & laye them in thyne herte as a foundacion. When God taketh awaye my ſoule, burie thou my body and holde thy mother in honoure all ẏ dayes of her lyfe. For thou oughteſt to remembre, what and how greate parels ſhe ſuffred for the in her wombe. And whē ſhe alſo hath fulfylled the tyme of her lyfe, bury her beſyde me. Haue God in thy thought all the dayes of thy lyfe, & beware, leſt at any tyme thou conſent vnto ſynne, and leſte thou let ſlyppe the cōmaundemētes of the Lord oure God.

Geue almes of thy goodes, and turne neuer thy face frō the poore: and ſo ſhall it come to paſſe, that the face of the Lord ſhall not be turned awaye from the. Be mercyfull after B thy power. If thou haſte moche, geue plenteouſly: yf thou haſt lytle, do thy dylygence, gladly to geue of that lytle. For ſo gathereſt thou thy ſelfe a good rewarde in the daye of neceſſite. For mercy delyuereth frō all ſynne and from death, and ſuffreth not the ſoule to come in darkenes. A greate comforte is mercy before the hye God, vnto all them that ſhewe it.

My ſonne, kepe the well from all whoredome, and (beſide thy wyfe) ſe that no faute be knowen of ẏ. Let neuer pryde haue rule in thy mynde nor in thy worde, for in pryde beganne all deſtruccion.

Whoſoeuer worketh any thynge for the, immediatly geue him his hyre, and loke that thy hired ſeruaūtes wagies remayne not by ẏ ouer night. Loke that thou neuer do vnto another man, the thynge that thou woldeſt not another man ſhulde do vnto the. Eate C thy bred with the hongrie and poore, and couer the naked with thy clothes. Set thy bred and wyne vpon the buriall of the ryghteous, and do not thou eate and drinke therof with the ſynners. Aſke euer councell at the wyſe.

Be alwaye thankful vnto God, and beſeche him, that he will ordre thy wayes, and that what ſoeuer thou deuyſeſt or takeſt in hande, it maye remayne in hym. I certifye ẏ alſo my ſonne, that (when thou waſte yet, but a babe) I delyuered ten talentes of ſyluer vnto Gabelus, at Rages a cytye of the Medes, and hys hande wrytinge haue I by me. And therfore ſeke ſome meanes, howe thou mayeſt come by hym, & receaue of hym the ſayde weight of ſyluer, and geue him his hand wrytinge agayne.

My ſonne, be not afraied: trueth it is, we leade here a poore lyfe: but greate good ſhal we haue, yf we feare God, and departe from all ſynne and do well.

¶ The. v. Chapte.

¶ The obedience of yonge Tobias to hys father, which is ſent in to Rages. An Aungell accōpanieth with hym in hys iourney.

Then anſwered Tobias his father A and ſayde: father, all that thou haſt commaunded me, wyll I do and that dyligently. But how I ſhall requyre thys money I can not tell? Nether dothe he knowe me, nor I hym. What token ſhall I geue hym? And as for the waye thyther, I neuer knewe it. Then hys father anſwered hym, and ſayde: I haue hys hande wrytynge by me, whiche whē thou ſheweſt hym, immediatly he ſhall paye the. But go thy waye nowe, and get the ſome faithful man to go with the for an hyre, that thou mayeſt receaue the money, whyle I am yet lyuynge. Then wente Tobias out, and vpō the ſtrete he foūde a fayre yonge man ſtandynge, gyrded vp, and as it were one ready to take hys iourney. And he knewe not that it was an aungell of God but ſaluted him, and ſayde: From whēce art thou, thou good yonge man? He anſwered: Of the chyldren of Iſrael,

And Tobias ſayd vnto hym: knoweſt ẏ B the waye, that ledeth vnto the countre of the Medes? He anſwered: I knowe it wel, and all thoſe ſtretes haue I gone oft tymes, and haue lodged with oure brother Gabelus, ẏ dwelleth in Rages a cytye of the Medes, which lyeth vpon the mounte Egbathanis. Tobias ſayd vnto him: I praye the, tary for me, till I haue tolde my father theſe thinges. Then wente Tobias in, and tolde his father all. At the which his father marueled, and prayed, that he wolde come in vnto him.

Now when the aungel came in, he ſaluted him, and ſayd: Ioye be with ẏ for euermore. And olde Tobias ſayd: what ioye can I haue C ẏ ſyt here in darknes, & ſe not the lyght of heauē? The yonge man ſayde vnto him: Be of good cheare, God ſhall helpe the ſhortely. And Tobias ſayd vnto him: Canſt ẏ bringe my ſonne to Gabelus, vnto the cytye of Rages in Medea? And when ẏ cōmeſt agayne, I ſhall paye the thy hyre. And the Aungell ſayde vnto him: I ſhall leade thy ſonne, and bringe him to the agayne. Then Tobias anſwered him: tel me I praye ẏ, of what houſe or of what trybe art thou? The Aungel Raphaell ſayde vnto him: Aſkeſt thou after the kynred of an hyrelyng, or ſekeſt thou a gyde for thy ſonne to go with hym? But that I make ẏ not carefull, I am Azarias ẏ ſonne of great Hananias. And Tobias anſwered: thou art come of a great kinred: but I praye the, be not diſpleaſed, that I deſyred to know thy kynred. The Aungell ſayde vnto hym: thy ſonne ſhall I leade forth ſafely, & brynge hym whole to the agayne.

D Then anſwered Tobias, and ſayde: wel, go on youre waye, and God be in your iourney, and his Angel beare you company. So when they had prepared all thynges, that they wolde take with them in theyr iourney Tobias bad hys father and hys mother fare well, and they went on theyr waye both together. Now when they were gone: his mother beganne to wepe, and ſayde: The ſtaf of oure age haſt thou taken awaye, and ſente hym from vs.

Wolde God that money had neuer bene, for the which thou haſt ſent hym awaye. If we had bene content with oure pouerte, this had bene greate ryches vnto vs, that we ſawe oure ſonne here. Then ſayde Tobias vnto her: wepe not, oure ſonne ſhall come to vs agayne ſafe and ſounde, and thyne eyes ſhall ſe hym. For I truſt, that the good Angell of God ſhall beare hym companye, and ordre well all the thynges that he doth: ſo yͭ he ſhall come to vs agayne wͭ ioye. At theſe wordes hys mother left of from weppynge, and helde her tonge.

¶The. vi. Chapter.

¶Yonge Tobias is delyuered from the fyſhe, by the Angell. The Angell exhorteth Tobias to take Sara to hys wyfe.

A SO Tobias wente on hys waye, & a dogge folowed him, and the fyrſt nyghte they abode by the water of Tygris. Then wẽt he out to waſh his fete, and beholde, there came forth an horrible fyſh to deuoure hym. Of whome Tobias was afrayed, and cryed with a loude voyce, ſayenge: Lorde, he commeth vpõ me. And the Angell ſayde vnto hym: Take hym by the gyll, & drawe hym to the. And he dyd ſo, & drew him vpon the lande. And the fyſh beganne to leape at hys fete.

Then ſayde the Angell vnto hym: take out the bowels of thys fyſhe, and as for the herte, the gall & the leuer, kepe them by the. B For theſe thinges are neceſſary and good for medecyne. Tobias dyd ſo, and roſted the fyſh, and they toke hym with them in theyr iourney: the reſydue they ſalted, as moch as was ſuffyciente for them, tyll they came to Rages a cytye of the Medes. Then Tobias aſked the Angell, and ſayde vnto hym: I praye the brother Azaria, tell me, wher to are theſe thynges good of the fyſh that thou haſt bydden me kepe?

The Aungell anſwered hym and ſayde: If thou layeſt a pece of the herte vpon the coales, the ſmoke therof dryueth awaye all maner of euell ſpretes, whether it be frome man or from woman, ſo that frome thence forth the ſame ſhall come nomore vnto thẽ. The gall is good to anoynte or to ſtryke the eyes withall, where as there is any blemiſh in them, ſo that they ſhalbe whole.

And Tobias ſayde vnto hym: where wilt C yͧ that we remayne? The Angell anſwered and ſayd: Here is a nye kynſmã of thine, one Raguell by name, whiche hath a daughter called Sara, & hath nether ſonne nor daughter but her. All hys good belõgeth vnto the, and thou muſt mary her, and therfore deſyre her of her father, and he ſhall geue her the to wyfe. Then anſwered Tobias and ſayde: As I vnderſtãde, ſhe hath ben maried vnto ſeuen huſbandes, and they all are deed: and I haue herde ſaye, that the deuell ſlewe thẽ. I am afrayed therfore, leſt ſoch thinges happen vnto me alſo: whyche yf it came to paſſe (ſeynge I am the onely ſonne of my father & my mother) I ſhulde brynge them in theyr age with ſorowe to theyr graues.

Then ſayde yͤ Angell Raphael vnto him: D Heare me, & I wyll tell the what they be, of whom the deuell hath power. Namely, they that receaue mariage of ſoch a faſhion, that they ſhut God out from thẽ, & frõ theyr hert & geue thẽ ſelues to theyr awne luſt, euen as it were an horſe & Mule, which haue no vnderſtandinge: vpon ſoche hath the deuell power. But when thou takeſt her, & arte come into the chãber, withholde thy ſelfe frome her thre dayes, and geue thy dylygence vnto nothynge but vnto prayer with her.

And in the fyrſt nyght, roſte the leuer of yͤ fyſh, & the deuell ſhalbe dryuen awaye. The ſecõde nyght ſhalt thou be receaued into the company of the holy patriarkes. The thyrd nyght ſhalt thou opteyne yͤ bleſſyng of God ſo that whole chyldren ſhalbe borne of you. After yͤ thyrde night take the mayden in the feare of God, and more for the deſyre of chyldren, then for any fleſhly luſt: that in the ſede of Abraham thou mayeſt optayne the bleſſynge in chyldren.

¶The. vij. Chapter.

¶Yonge Tobias and the Angell come to the houſe of Raguell. He requireth Raguels daughter to a wyfe, and obtayneth her.

THen wente they in to Raguell, A which receaued thẽ ioyfully. And whẽ Raguel loked vpõ Tobias he ſayde vnto Anna hys wyfe: How lyke is thys yonge man vnto my ſyſters ſonne? And when he had ſpoken this, he ſayd: whẽce be ye good brethren? They ſaid: Of the trybe of Nephtaly, out of the captyuyte of Niniue. Then ſayde Raguell vnto them: knowe ye my brother Tobias? They ſayde: yee, we knowe hym well. And when he had ſpoken moche good of hym, the Aungell ſayde vnto Raguel: Tobias of whome thou aſkeſt, is thys yonge mans father. Then Raguell bowed hym ſelfe downe, and wepte, toke hym aboute the necke, and kyſſed hym, and ſayde: Gods bleſſinge haue thou my ſonne, for thou arte the ſonne of a good vertuous man. And Anna hys wyfe & Sara hys daughter wepte alſo.

B Now whē they had talked together, Raguel bad kyll a wether, and to make a feaſt: And whan he prayed them to ſyt downe to dynner, Tobias ſayd: I wyll neyther eate nor drynke here this daye, excepte thou firſt graunt me my peticion, & promiſe me to geue thy daughter Sara. Whē Raguel herd this, he was aſtonnyed, for he knewe, what had happened vnto yͤ other ſeuen men, that wēt in vnto her: and he beganne to feare, that it ſhulde chaunce vnto hym alſo in lyke maner:

And whyle he ſtode ſo in doute, and gaue the yonge man no anſwere, the aungell ſayd vnto hym: Feare not to geue hym thy daughter, for vnto thys man that feareth God, belōgeth thy daughter to wyfe, therfore might none other haue her:

C Then ſayde Raguell: I doubte not, but God hath accepted my prayers and teares in hys ſyght: and I truſt he cauſed you to come vnto me for the ſame intēt, that thys daughter of myne myghte be maryed in her owne kynred, accordynge to the lawe of Moſes. And nowe doubt thou not, but I wyll geue her vnto the: So he toke the ryghte hande of hys daughter, and gaue her into the ryghte hande of Tobias, and ſayde: The God of Abrahā, the God of Iſaac, and the God of Iacob be with you, ioyne you together, and fulfyll hys bleſſynge in you. And they toke a letter, and made a wrytynge of the mariage. And then made they mery, and prayſed God And Raguell called Anna hys wyfe vnto hym, and bad her prepare another chamber, and thyther he brought Sara hys daughter, and ſhe wepte. Then ſayd he vnto her: Be of good cheare my daughter, the Lorde of heauen geue the ioye, for the heuynes that thou haſt ſuffred.

The. viii. Chapter.

The angell byndeth the deuell, Tobias exhorteth hys wyfe to prayer, and they pray thre dayes before they lye together.

A NOwe after yͭ they had ſupped, they brought the yonge man in to her. Then thought Tobias vpon the wordes of the angel: and toke oute of hys bagge a pece of the leuer of the fyſhe, & layed it vpon the hote coales. So the aungell Raphaell toke holde of the deuell, & ſent him awaye and bounde hym in the wyldernes of the hyer Egypte. Then ſpake Tobias vnto the virgin, and ſayd: Vp Sara, let vs make our prayer vnto God to day, to morow, and ouermorow: for theſe thre nyghtes wyll we reconcyle our ſelues wyth God: and whan the thyrde holy nyght is paſt, we ſhall ioyne together in the dutye of mariage. For we are the chyldren of holy men, and we maye not come together as the Heathē that know not God.

B Then ſtode they vp both together, and beſought God earneſtly, that he wolde preſerue them. And Tobias ſayd: O Lorde God of oure fathers, prayſed be thou of heauen and earthe, of the ſee, welles & floudes, and of all thy creatures that be therin. Thou madeſt Adam of the *moulde of the earthe, & gaueſt hym Eua for an helper. And nowe Lorde thou knoweſt that it is not becauſe of voluptuouſnes, yͭ I take this ſyſter of myne to wyfe, but onely for the loue of chyldren, in whō thy name be bleſſed for euer. And Sara ſayd: haue mercye vpon vs (O Lorde) haue mercy vpon vs, and let vs both come whole and ſounde together to a good age.

* Gene. ii.

And aboute the cocke crowinge, it happened, that Raguell called his ſeruaūtes, and they wente with hym, to make a graue. For he ſayde: it is chaunced nowe vnto hym peraduenture, as it dyd vnto the other ſeuē mē, that went in vnto her. Nowe when they had made yͤ graue, Raguell came agayne to his wyfe, and ſayde vnto her: ſende one of thy maydens, to loke yf he be dead, that I maye bury hym afore it be lyght daye. So ſhe ſent a mayden to ſe, which when ſhe came into yͤ chamber, founde them whole and ſounde, ſlepyng together. And ſo ſhe came agayne, and brought good tydynges. Then Raguell and Anna his wyfe prayſed the Lorde, and ſayd: Prayſed be thou, O Lord God of Iſraell, for it is not happened vnto vs, as we thought.
For thou haſt dealt mercyfully with vs and D put awaye from vs the enemye that perſecuted vs, and haſt ſhewed mercye vnto yonder two beloued. O Lorde, cauſe them to magnifye the more perfectlye, and to offre the ſacrifice of thy prayſe, and of theyr health: that all people maye knowe, that thou only art God in all the earth:

And immediatly Raguel commaunded his ſeruauntes, to fyll the graue, that they had made, with earthe, afore it was lyghte, and bad his wyfe prepare a feaſte, & to make readye all thynges that were neceſſarye for meate, to ſoch as wente by the waye. He cauſed two fat kyne alſo, and foure wethers to be ſlayne, and meates to be prepared for all his neyghboures and frendes. And Raguell charged Tobias, to remayne with him two wekes. As for all the good yͭ he had, he gaue Tobias the halfe of it, and made this wrytynge, that the halfe which remayned, ſhuld fall vnto Tobias after theyr death.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Angell goeth to Gabelus, at the deſyre of Tobias: whyche delyuereth the letter, and receaueth the money.

A THen Tobias called vnto hym the Angel, whome he thought to haue bene a man, and ſayd vnto hym: Brother Azarias, I praye the herken vnto my wordes:
yf I ſhulde geue my ſelfe to be thy ſeruaunt,
I ſhall not deſerue thy prouidence. Neuertheleſſe, I beſeche the, that thou wylte take the beaſtes and the ſeruaũtes, ⁊ go vnto Gabelus in rages the cyte of Medes, ⁊ deliuer him his hande writing, and receaue the money of him, and praye hym to come to my mariage.
B For thou knoweſt thy ſelfe, that my father doth nombre the dayes: ⁊ if I tary one day to longe, he wylbe ſory in his minde. Now ſeiſt thou howe earneſtly Raguel hath requyred me, ſo that I cannot ſay hym nay:

Then toke Raphaell foure of Raguels ſeruauntes, and two Camels, ⁊ wente vnto Rages the cyte of the Medes: ⁊ when he had founde Gabelus, he gaue him his handwrytyng, and receyued all the money. He tolde C him alſo of Tobias the ſonne of Tobi, howe all thynges had happened, and cauſed him to come with him to the mariage. Nowe when he came into the houſe of Raguel, he founde Tobias ſyttyng at the table: and he leaped vp, and they kyſſed one another, and Gabelus wepte, and prayſed God, and ſayde: the bleſſynge of the God of Iſrael haue thou, for thou arte the ſonne of a ryght vertuous and iuſt man, and of one that feareth God, ⁊ geneth great almes: And bleſſynge haue thy D wyfe, and your elders, that ye maye ſe youre chyldren and youre chylders chyldren, vnto the thyrde and fourth generacion, and youre ſede be bleſſed of the God of Iſraell, whyche raygneth worlde wythout ende. And whan they all had ſayd Amẽ, they went to yͤ feaſt, but wyth yͤ feare of the Lorde helde they the feaſt of the mariage.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ Tobias and hys wyfe are ſadde for the taryaunce of theyr ſonne. Raguel ſendeth agayne Tobias with hys wyfe.

A NOwe whyle yonge Tobias made longe taryenge, by reaſon of yͤ mariage, hys father was full of care ⁊ heuynes, and thought: what ſhulde be the cauſe, that my ſonne taryeth ſo longe?
Or why ſhuld he be kept ſo longe there? Peraduenture Gabelus is deade, and nomã wil geue hym the money. Thus beganne he to be very ſorowfull, he and Anna hys wyfe with hym, and began to wepe both together, becauſe theyr ſonne was not come agayne vnto them at the daye appoynted. As for hys mother, ſhe wepte wyth diſcomfortable teares, and ſayd: Wo is me, my ſonne: Oh what B ayled vs to ſende the awaye into a ſtraunge countre, thou lyght of oure eyes, thou ſtaffe of oure age, thou comforte of oure lyfe, thou hope of our generacion? Seynge al the thynges that we haue are only in the, we ſhulde not haue ſent the awaye from vs.

Then Tobias comforted her, and ſayd:
hold thy tonge, and be not dyſcomforted, our ſonne is whole and ſounde: the man that we ſent hym wythall, is faythfull ynough. Neuertheleſſe, ſhe myght in no wyſe be comforted:
but dayly wente out, loked aboute, and wẽte about al yͤ ſtretes, wherby ſhe thought he ſhulde come agayne: that (yf it were poſſible) ſhe myghte ſe hym commynge afarre of.

But Raguell ſayde vnto hys ſonne in lawe: O tary here, and I ſhal ſende a meſſaunger vnto thy father Tobias, to tell hym C that thou arte in good health. Tobias ſayd vnto hym: I am ſure, that my father and my mother coũte euery daye, and that theyr hertes are ſory.

So when Raguel prayed Tobias wyth many wordes, and wolde in no wyſe heare hym, he delyuered Sara vnto hym, and the halfe parte of al hys good: in ſeruauntes and handmaydens, in ſhepe, in Camels, and in kyne, and moch money, ⁊ ſo ſent him awaye from him with peace and ioye, and ſayd:
The holy Aungell of the Lorde be with you D in youre iourneye, and bringe you forth ſafe and ſounde, that ye maye fynde all thinges in good caſe with youre elders, ⁊ that myne eyes maye ſe youre children afore I dye. So the elders embraced theyr daughter, kyſſed her, and let her go, exhortinge her to honoure her father ⁊ mother in lawe, to loue her huſbande, to rule well her houſholde, to kepe her houſe in good ordre, and to ſhew her ſelfe fauteleſſe.

¶ The .xi. Chapter.

¶ Yonge Tobias leuynge hys wyfe and houſholde in the mydde waye, commeth before wyth the Aungell. The dreame of hys mother lokyng after her ſõne. He is ioyfully receaued of hys father and mother. Sara cõmeth ſeuen dayes after.

AS they now were goynge homeward A agayne, vpon the .xi. day, they came to Charra, whych lyeth in the halfe way towarde Niniue. And the Angel ſayd: Brother Tobias, thou knoweſt howe thou haſte lefte thy father: therfore yf it pleaſe the, we two wyl go before, ⁊ let the houſholde wyth thy wyfe ⁊ the catel come ſofte ⁊ fayre after vs. And whan Tobias was cõtent that they ſhuld go before, Raphael ſayde vnto hym: Take of the gall of the fyſhe with the, for it ſhalbe neceſſary. So Tobias toke of yͤ gal, ⁊ B they went theyr waye. But Anna yͤ mother of Tobias ſat dayly by yͤ waye ſyde vpõ the toppe of an hyll, from whence ſhe myghte ſe farre about her. And while ſhe was waiting there

there for hys commynge, ſhe loked afarre of, and anone ſhe perceyued her ſonne cõmynge, and ranne and tolde her huſbande, ſayenge: Beholde thy ſonne commeth. And Raphael ſayd vnto Tobias: As ſoone as thou comeſt into the houſe, immediatly worſhyp yͤ Lorde thy God, and geue thankes vnto hym: then go to thy father, and kyſſe hym, and ſtryke hys eyes ouer wyth the gall of the fyſhe, that thou haſt brought wyth yͤ. For be ſure, that hys eyes ſhall ſtrayght waye be opened, and thy father ſhall ſe the lyght of heauen, & ſhall reioyſe at the ſyght of the: Then the dogge that had bene with thẽ in theyr iourney, rãne before, and came as a meſſẽger, and wagged hys tayle for gladneſſe.

C So the blynde father aroſe, and beganne to runne and ſtombled wyth hys fete, & gaue a ſeruaunt hys hande, rãne to mete his ſõne, receyued him, and kyſſed him, he & his wyfe, and they beganne to wepe for ioye.

Now when they had worſhypped & thanked God, they ſat downe. Then toke Tobias of the fyſhes gall, & anoynted hys fathers eyes: and taryed halfe an houre, and then began the blemyſhe to go out of his eyes, lyke as it had bene the whyte ſkynne of an egge: which Tobias toke, and drewe frõ his eyes, and immediatly he receyued hys ſyght.

D Then they praiſed God, he and his wyfe, and all they that knewe hym. And Tobias ſayd: O Lord God of Iſrael, I geue yͤ praiſe and thankes, for thou haſt chaſtened me, and made me whole . And lo, nowe do I ſe my ſonne Tobias. After ſeuẽ dayes came Sara hys ſonnes wyfe alſo whole & ſounde wyth al the houſholde and catell, wyth camels and moch money of hys wyues, and wyth yͤ money that he had receaued of Gabelus: and he tolde hys father and hys mother all the benefytes, whych God had done for hym, by the man that led hym. Achior alſo and Nabath Tobias ſyſter ſonnes came, and were glad, and reioyſed wyth hym, by reaſon of all the good that God had ſhewed vnto hym. And ſo for the ſpace of ſeuen dayes they made mery, and were ryght ioyfull euerychone.

¶The.xij.Chapter.

¶ Yonge Tobias rekened vp vnto hys father the pleaſures that the angell dyd hym. He offred vnto the aungell halfe the goodes that he brought wyth hym.

A When Tobias called hys ſõne vnto hym, and ſayde: What maye we gyue thys holy man, yͭ went with the? Tobias anſwered his father,, and ſayd: Father, what reward ſhall we geue hym? Or what thynge can deſerue hys benefytes? He hath bene my gyde, and brought me ſafe agayne: he receyued the money frõ Gabelus, he cauſed me to get my wyfe, he droue the euel ſprete frõ her, he hath ben an occaſion of gladneſſe to her father & mother: he delyuered me, that I was not deuoured of the fyſh, he hath made the to ſe the lyght of heauen, yee, we al haue receyued great good of hym. Howe ſhuld we worthely deſerue theſe thynges vnto hym? But I praye the my father, that thou wylte deſyre hym, yf haply he wyl vouchſafe, to take wͭ hym the halfe of al that we haue brought.

B So the father and the ſonne called hym, toke hym aſyde, and beganne to praye hym, that he wolde be contente to take in good worthe, the halfe parte of all that they had brought, Then ſayd he ſecretly vnto them. Prayſe ye the God of heauen, and geue thankes vnto hym before all men lyuynge, for he hath ſhewed hys mercy vnto vs. It is good to hyde the kynges ſecrete, but to ſhewe & to prayſe yͤ workes of God, it is an honorable thynge. Prayer is good wyth faſtynge, and mercy is better, thẽ to hoorde vp treaſures of golde. For mercy delyuereth from death, clenſeth ſynne, and cauſeth to fynde euerlaſtinge lyfe. But they that do ſynne & vnryghteouſnes, are the enemyes of theyr awne ſoule.

C Wherfore I tel you the trueth, and wyll hyde nothynge from you. When thou prayedeſt wyth teares, and buryedſt the dead, and lefteſt thy dyner, and hyddeſt the dead in thy houſe vpon the daye tyme, that thou myghteſt bury thẽ in the night, I offred thy prayer before the Lorde. And becauſe thou waſt accept and beloued of God, it was neceſſarye, that temptacion ſhulde trye the. And nowe hath the Lorde ſent me to heale the and to delyuer Sara thy ſonnes wyfe from the euell ſprete: For I am Raphaell an Angell, one of the ſeuen that ſtande before God.

D When they herde thys, they were ſore afrayed, and trembled, and fell downe vpon theyr faces vnto the grounde. Then ſayd the Angell: Peace be with you, feare not. Whereas I haue bene wyth you, it is the wyll of God: geue prayſe and thankes vnto hym.

You thought that I dyd *eat and drynke wyth you, but I vſe meate that is inuiſible, and drynke that can not be ſene of men.

*Ge.xviij.a. Iudic.xiij.c.

Nowe therfore is the tyme that I muſte turne agayne, vnto hym that ſent me: but be ye thankfull vnto God, and tell out all hys wonderous workes.

And whan he had ſpoken thoſe wordes, he was taken awaye out of theyr ſyghte, ſo that they ſawe hym nomore. Then fell they downe flat vpon theyr faces by the ſpace of thre houres, and prayſed God: when they roſe vp, they tolde all hys wonderous workes.

¶The.xiij.Chapter.

Then

A Then olde Tobias opened hys mouth and prayſed yͤ Lorde and ſayde: Great arte thou O Lorde for euermore, and thy kyngdome world wythout ende: for yͭ ſcourgeſt & heleſt thou leadeſt vnto hel, & bringeſt out againe, and there is none that may eſcape thine hāde O gyue thankes vnto the Lorde, ye chyldrē of Iſrael, and prayſe hym in the ſyght of the Heathen. For amonge the Heathen whyche knowe hym not hath he ſcatered you, to thintent that ye ſhulde ſhewe forth hys marueIous workes: & cauſe them for to know, that there is none other God almyghtye but he. He hath chaſtened vs for our myſdedes, and for hys owne mercy ſake ſhall he ſaue vs.

Conſyder then, howe he hath dealte wyth you, & prayſe hym wyth feare and drede, and magnifye the euerlaſtynge kynge in youre workes. I wyl prayſe hym euen in the lande B of my captiuitie, for he hath ſhewed hys maieſtye vnto a ſynful people. Turne you therfore O ye ſynners, and do ryghteouſnes before God, and be ye ſure, that he wyll ſhewe hys mercy vpon you. As for me, & my ſoule, we wyll reioyſe in God. O prayſe the Lorde al ye hys choſen, hold the dayes of gladneſſe, and be thankfull vnto hym. O Jeruſalē thou cytie of God, the Lorde hath punyſhed yͤ for the workes of thyne owne handes. O prayſe the Lorde in thy good thynges, and geue thākes to yͤ euerlaſting God, that he may buyld vp hys tabernacle againe in the, that he may call agayne vnto the, all ſoch as be in captiuitie, & that thou mayeſt haue ioye for euermore. Wyth a fayre lyght ſhalt thou ſhyne, & all the endes of the worlde ſhall honoure the. The people ſhall come vnto the from farre, they ſhall brynge gyftes, and worſhyppe the Lorde in the, and thy lande ſhal they haue for a Sanctuary, for they ſhall cal vpon yͤ great name in the.

C Curſed ſhall they be that deſpyſe the, and al that blaſpheme the, ſhalbe condēpned: but bleſſed ſhall they be that buylde the vp. As for the, thou ſhalte reioyſe in thy chyldrē, for they al ſhalbe bleſſed, and gathered together vnto the Lorde. Bleſſed are they al that loue the, & that be glad of thy peace. Prayſe thou the Lorde, O my ſoule, for the Lorde our god hath delyuered hys cytie Jeruſalem from al her troubles. I wyll counte my ſelfe happye, yf my ſede remayne to ſe the clearnes of Jeruſalem.

The gates of Jeruſalem ſhalbe buylded wyth Saphyre and Smaragde, and all the compaſſe of her walles with precious ſtones All her ſtretes ſhalbe paued with whyte marble ſtone, and in all ſtretes ſhall Alleluya be ſonge. Prayſed be the Lorde, whych hath exalted her, that hys kyngdome maye be vpon her for euermore. Amen. And ſo Tobias made an ende of hys talkynge.

¶ The .xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Tobias propheceyeth the deſtruccion of Niniue. Hys ſōne returneth to Raguel, after the deceſſe of hys father and mother.

A And after that Tobias had gotten hys ſyght agayn, he lyued .xlii. peares, and ſawe hys chylders chyldrē. Now whā he was, C. and .ii. peare old, he dyed: and was buryed honorably in Niniue. For when he was ſyxe and fyftye peares of age he loſt the ſyght of hys eyes, and whē he was thre ſcore peare olde, he gat hys ſyght agayne. The reſydue of hys lyfe led he in ioye, and increaſed well in the feare of God, & departed in peace.

But in yͤ houre of hys death he called vnto hym hys ſonne Tobias, and ſeuen yonge B ſpryngaldes hys ſonnes chyldren, and ſayde vnto them: The deſtruccion of Niniue is at hāde, for yͤ worde of the Lorde cannot fayle, and oure brethren that are ſcatred out of the lande of Iſrael, ſhall come thyther agayne. And the whole lāde of it that hath ben waſt, ſhalbe filled: and the houſe of God that was brent in it, ſhalbe buylded agayne: & all ſuch as feare God, ſhall returne thyther: the Heathen alſo ſhal forſake theyr Idols, & come to Jeruſalem, and dwell there, and all the kynges of the earth ſhalbe glad of her, and worſhyp the Lorde God of Iſrael.

C And therfore my chyldren, heare your father: Serue the Lorde in the trueth, ſeke after hys wyll, and do the thynge that pleaſeth hym. Cōmaunde your chyldren that they do ryght, geue almes, be myndfull of God, and euer to be thankfull vnto hym in trueth and wyth all theyr power: Heare me nowe therfore my chyldren, and abyde not here: but in what daye ſo euer ye haue buryed youre mother beſyde me, get you from hence. For I ſe, that the wyckedneſſe of it ſhall brynge it to deſtruccion and ende.

After the death of hys mother, Tobias de- D parted awaye from Niniue, wyth hys wyfe and chyldren, and with his chylders childrē, and came agayne to hys father & mother in lawe, and founde them whole and in a good age, and toke the care of them. And he cloſed theyr eyes, and was heyre vnto all Raguels goodes, and ſawe the fyfth generacion, and hys chylders chyldrē. And when he was .xcix. peare of age, he dyed in the feare of the Lord, and hys kynſfolkes buryed hym. And al hys poſterite continued in a good lyfe, and holy conuerſacion: ſo that they were loued and accepted both of God and men, and of al yͤ people of the lande.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ The buyldynge of Egbathanis. The vyctory of Nabuchodonoſor agaynſt Arphaxath. The meſſengers of Nabuchodonoſor is dyſpyſed.

A ARphaxat the kynge of the Medes ſubdued many people vnto hys dominion, and buylded a noble ſtronge cytie, which he called Egbathanis: The walles of it made he of fre ſtone, foure ſquared, ſeuenty cubites hye, & thyrtye cubites brode. He made towres there vpon an hũdreth cubites hye. But vpon the foure corners euery ſyde was twenty fote brode. He made the portes in the heygth, lyke as the towres. Thys kynge truſted in hys myghty hooſt, and in hys glorious charettes.

B So in the twelfth yeare of hys raygne it happened, that Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of the Aſſirians (whych raygned in the great cytie of Niniue) fought agaynſt Arphaxat, and ouercame hym in the greate felde called Ragau, beſyde Euphrates and Tygris and Jadaſon in the felde of Erioth the kynge of the Elykes.

Then was the kyngdome of Nabucho-donoſor exalted, and hys herte was lyft vp:
and he ſent vnto all them that dwelt in Ce-licea, in Damaſcus, in Libanus, & vnto the Heathen that dwelte in Carmell and Cedar, and to ſoche as dwelt in Galile in the greate felde of Eſdrelon, to al thẽ that dwelt in Sa-C maria, and beyonde the water of Jordane vnto Jeruſalem and the whole lande of Jeſ-ſe vnto the mountaynes of Ethiopia. Unto all theſe dyd Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of the Aſſirians ſende meſſaungers. But they all wyth one conſente wolde not agre vnto hym, and ſent the meſſaũgers agayne empty and put them awaye without honoure. Thẽ Nabuchodonoſor the kynge toke indignaci-on at al thoſe lãdes, and ſware by hys trone, and by hys kyngdome, that he wolde be auẽged of all thoſe countrees.

¶ The ii. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes is ſent of Nabuchodonoſor, to ſubdue all the worlde. The preparacion and purſuete of Holofernes.

A IN the thyrtenth yeare of kynge Nabuchodonoſor, vpon the .xij. daye of the fyrſte moneth, it was deuyſed in the courte of Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of the Aſſirians, that he wolde defende hymſelfe. So he called vnto hym all the elders, all hys captaynes, and men of warre, and ſhewed them his ſecrete councel, and tolde them that hys purpoſe was, to brynge the whole earth vnder hys dominion. Now whan they were all content wyth thys ſayenge, Nabuchodonoſor the kynge called Holofernes the chefe captayne of hys warres, and ſaid vnto him: Go thy waye forth agaynſt all the kyngdomes of the weſt, and ſpecially agaynſt thoſe that haue deſpyſed my cõmaũdement. Thou ſhalt ſpare no realme, all ſtronge cyties ſhalt thou brynge in ſubiection vnto me.

B Then Holofernes called together all the captaynes and rulers of all the power in Aſ-ſiria, & muſtred the ſouldyers vnto the hooſt (lyke as the kynge commaũded hym) namely an hundred and twentye thouſande fyghtynge men vpon fote, and twelue thouſande archers vpon horſebacke. All hys ordinaũce ſente he before wyth an innumerable multitude of camels, ſo that ỹ hooſt was wel prouided for wyth oxen, and ſmall cattell, and that wythout nombre. He cauſed corne to be prepared out of al Siria for his hooſt. Moch golde and ſyluer alſo toke he out of the kyn-C ges houſe. So he toke hys iourney, he and all his hooſt wyth charettes, horſemen, and archers, of whõ there were ſo many, that they couered the grounde of the lande, lyke ỹ greſhopers.

And when he was gone paſt the borders of the Aſſyrians, he came towarde the great mountaynes of Ange, which lye vpon ỹ left ſyde of Celicia: & ſo he went vp into all theyr caſtels, add wanne euery ſtronge holde. As for the welthye cytie of Melothus, he brake it downe, and ſpoyled al the chyldrẽ of Tharſis and the Iſmaelites, whych laye towarde the wylderneſſe, and vpõ the South ſyde of the lande of Chelon. He went ouer Euphra-D tes alſo, & came into Meſopotamia, & brake downe all the hye cyties that were there, frõ the broke of Mambre tyll a man come to the ſee: and he toke the borders in from Celicia vnto ỹ coaſtes of Japhet toward ỹ South:
He carryed awaye all the Madianites, & ſpoyled al theyr goodes, & whoſoeuer wythſtode hym, he ſlewe them wyth the ſwerde. After thys he wente downe into the felde of Da-maſcus in the tyme of harueſt, and brent vp all the corne and all the trees, and cauſed the vynes to be cut downe. And the feare of hym fell vpon all them that dwelte in the earth.

¶ The .iij. Chapter.

¶ Kynges become wyllyngly ſubiecte to Holofernes. The tyranny and crueltye of hym.

A SO the kynges and princes of al cyties and landes ſent theyr Embaſſatours: namelye they of Syria and Meſopotamia, Syria, Sobal: and Lybia and Celicia, whych came to Holofernes and ſayde: Let thy wrath ceaſſe towarde vs: It is better for vs to ſerue ẏ great kinge Nabuchodonoſor wyth our lyues, and to be ſubiecte vnto the, then that we ſhulde dye, ⁊ be ſlayne, and receyue great hurte. All oure cyties and poſſeſſions, all mountaynes and hylles, al feldes, great and ſmal catell, ſhepe goates, horſes, ⁊ camels, all our goodes and houſholdes, be in thy power, vnder thy ſubiection be it altogether. We our ſelues alſo ⁊ oure chyldren wylbe thyne awne, come vnto vs a peaceable lorde, ⁊ vſe our ſeruyce at thy pleaſure.

B Then came Holofernes downe from the mountaynes wyth horſemen and great power, ⁊ cōquered al ſtronge fenſed cyties, and al that dwelt in the lande. And out of all cyties he toke ſtrong men, and ſoche as were mete for the warre, to helpe him. There came ſoch a feare alſo vpon thoſe countrees, that the indwellers of all the cyties, the princes ⁊ rulers, and the people together went forth to mete hym as he came, and receaued hym honorably wyth garlandes and torches, wyth daunſes, tabrettes and pypes.

C Neuertheleſſe, though they dyd thys, yet myghte they not ſwage hys rygorous ſtomacke: but he deſtroyed theyr cyties, and hewed downe theyr woddes. For Nabuchodonoſor the kynge had cōmaunded him that he ſhulde roote out all the goddes of the lande: to the intent ẏ he only might be called ⁊ takē for God, of the nacyons whyche Holofernes wyth hys power brought vnder hym. So went he thorow Syria Sobal, and thorow all Appamia, ⁊ all Meſopotamia, ⁊ came to the Idumeans, in the lande of Gabaa ⁊ Septopoly, and toke theyr cyties and remayned there thyrtye dayes, wherin he cauſed all the whole multitude of his hooſt to be gathered together.

The .iiij. Chapter.

Iſrael requyreth helpe of God, agaynſt Holofernes. They faſt and praye.

A When the childrē of Iſrael that dwelt in Jewry herde this, they were ſore afrayed of him. There came ſoch trēblynge alſo and feare vpon thē, that they ſorowed he ſhulde do vnto the cytie of Jeruſalem, and the temple of the Lorde, as he had done to other cyties and theyr tēples. So they ſent into all Samaria roūde about vnto Jericho, toke in and occupied al the toppes of the moūtaynes, made faſt the townes with walles, and prepared cornē for them agaynſt the battayl.

Eliachim alſo the Preſte wrote vnto all them that dwelt towarde Eſdrelon (whych lyeth ouer agaynſt the great feld by Dothaim) and vnto all thoſe by whom men myght haue paſſage vnto thē, that they ſhulde take in the wayes of the mountaynes, whereby there myght be any waye and paſſage to Jeruſalem, and that they ſhulde holde diligent watch where any ſtrayte was betwixte the mountaynes. And the chyldrē of Iſrael dyd, as Eliachim the Preſt of the Lorde had commaunded them. B And al the people cryed earneſtly, and hūbled theyr ſoules wyth faſtynges and prayers, they and theyr wiues. The Preſtes put on hearry clothes, and layed the yonge babes before the temple of the Lorde, and couered the aulter of the Lorde wyth an hearry cloth. And with one accorde they cryed vnto the Lorde God of Iſraell, that theyr chyldren ſhulde not be gyuen into a praye, ⁊ theyr wyues into a ſpoyle, that theyr cyties ſhulde not be layed waſt, ⁊ that theyr Sanctuary ſhulde not be vnhalowed, and ſo they to be a ſhame and rebuke vnto the Heathen.

Then Eliachim the hye Preſt of ẏ Lorde wente rounde aboute all Iſraell, and ſpake vnto them, ſayenge: Be ye ſure, that ẏ Lord wyll heare your peticions, yf ye cōtinue ſted C faſt in faſtynges and prayers in the ſyght of the Lorde. Remember Moſes the ſeruaūt of the Lorde, whych ouerthrew the Amalechites (that truſted in theyr myght and power, in theyr hooſt, in theyr ſhyldes, in theyr charrettes and horſemen) not wyth weapēs, but wyth holy prayers. Euen ſo ſhall all the enemyes of Iſrael be, yf ye cōtinue in this work that ye haue begonne. So vpon thys exhortacion they continued in prayer before the Lorde. In ſo moch that they whyche offered brent ſacrifices vnto the Lord, offred the offrynges vnto the Lorde, beynge arayed in hearry clothes ⁊ aſhes vpon theyr heades. And they all beſought God frō theyr whole herte, ẏ he wold vyſyte hys people of Iſrael.

The .v. Chapter.

Holofernes is diſcontent wyth the Jewes. Achior ſheweth vnto Holofernes the maruelles of God done vnto the Jewes, for whych thynge the rulers vnder Holofernes were very angry wyth hym.

A And worde came to Holofernes Prynce of ẏ warres of the Aſſyrians, that the chyldrē of Iſrael prepared themſelues to make reſyſtaunce, ⁊ how they had ſtopped the wayes betwixte the mountaynes. Then was he excedynge wroth, ⁊ called all the princes of Moab, ⁊ the captaynes of Ammon, ⁊ ſaid vnto them. Tel me, what people is thys, that kepeth in the mountaynes? Or what maner of cities are they? What is their power? Or what maner of hooſt haue they? who is theyr captayne? And whey do they deſpyſe vs (more then all thoſe that dwell in the eaſt) and come not forth to mete vs, that they myght receyue vs wyth peace? Then Achior the captayne of all the Ammonites anſwered, and ſayde: Syr, yf it pleaſe the to heare, I wyll tell the trueth before the concernynge thys people that dwel in the mou̅taynes, and there ſhall no lye go oute of my mouth.

Thys people is of the generacion of the B Caldees, they dwelt fyrſt in Meſopotamia, for they wolde not folowe yͤ goddes of their fathers that were in the lāde of the Caldees, and ſo forſoke they the cuſtome of theyr fore fathers (whych had many goddes) and worſhipped one God, that made heauen ⁊ earth: whych alſo cōmaunded them, that they ſhuld go from thence, and dwell at Haran. Nowe whē there came a dearth into yͤ whole lande, they went downe to Egypte, and there they *Gene.xv.c. Actes.vii.a. Exodi.xii.f. Gala.iii.c. dwelt *foure hundreth yeares, in the whych they multiplyed ſo greatly, that theyr hooſte myght not be nombred. And when the kynge of Egypt oppreſſed them, and ſubdued them in buyldynge of hys cyties with makyng of claye and bryke, they cryed vnto God theyr Lorde, whych punyſhed the whole lande of Egypte wyth dyuerſe plages.

C Nowe when the kynge of Egypte let thē go theyr waye, and the plage ceaſſed, ⁊ then folowed after them, to take them ⁊ to bryng thē agayne into hys ſeruice, whyle they were flyenge awaye, the God of heauen opened yͤ ſee, ſo that the waters ſtode faſt vpon bothe the ſydes as a wall, and theſe wente thorow the botome of the ſee drye ſhod. In the which place whan an innumerable people of the Egipcians folowed vpon them, they were ſo ouerwhelmed with the waters: that there remayned not one to tell them that came after, howe it happened. So whan thys people was paſſed thorowe the reed ſee, they came into the wyldernеſſe of mount Sinai, where neuer man myght dwell afore, and where yͤ ſonne of man had neuer reſted. There were the bytter waters made ſwete for them, that they myght drynke, and fortye yeares hadde they meate from heauen. Wherſoeuer they wente (wythout bowe and arowe, without D bukler or ſwerde) theyr God fought for thē, and cauſed them to haue the victory. Yee, no man was able to hurte thys people, except it were, that they departed vnfaythfully from the worſhippynge of the Lorde theyr God. But as ofte as they worſhipped any other beſyde theyr God, he gaue them ouer to be ſpoyled, to be ſlayne, and to be put to confuſion. Neuertheleſſe as ofte as they were ſory for theyr departynge from the worſhippe of theyr God, the ſame God of heauen gaue them power ⁊ ſtrength to wythſtande theyr enemyes.

Moreouer, they ſlewe the kynge of the Cananites, Jebuſites, Phereſites, Hethites, Euites, and Amorites, and al the myghtye in Heſebon, and toke theyr landes and cyties in poſſeſſion: and ſo longe as they ſynned not in the ſyght of theyr God, it wente wel wyth thē, for theyr God hateth vnrighteouſneſſe. For in tymes paſt whē they went out of the waye, which God had gyuē them, that they ſhuld walk in it, they were deſtroyed E in dyuerſe bataylles of many nacions: and many of them were caried awaye preſoners vnto a ſtraunge countre. But nowe lately they haue turned them ſelues agayne vnto the Lorde theyr God, and are come together againe out of the conntrees where they were ſcatred abrod: and thus haue they conquered theſe mountaynes, and dwell therin: ⁊ as for Jeruſalem where theyr Sanctuary is, they haue it agayne in poſſeſſion.

And therfore my lorde make diligent inquiſicion, yf thys people haue done wyckedneſſe F in the ſyght of theyr God, then let vs go vp agaynſte them, for doubtles theyr God ſhall delyuer them into thy handes, and ſubdue them vnto thy power: But yf thys people haue not diſpleaſed theyr God, we ſhall not be able to withſtāde them, for theyr God ſhall defende them, and ſo ſhal we be a ſhame to all the worlde.

Now when Achior had ſpoken out theſe wordes, al the great mē of Holofernes were wroth, and thought to ſlaye hym, and ſayde one to another: what is he thys, whych dare ſaye, that the chyldren of Iſrael are able to wſtande Nabuchodonoſor the kynge and hys hooſt? where as they are an vnwepened people, wythout ſtrength or vnderſtandynge of the feates of warre? That Achior therfore maye knowe that he hath diſceaued vs we wyll go vp into the mountaynes: when the myghty men of them are taken, he alſo ſhall be ſtyckte wyth the ſwearde, that all people may knowe, that Nabuchodonoſor is the God of yͤ earth, and that there is none other wythout hym.

¶ The.vi.Chapter.

¶ Achior is committed into the handes of the Jewes by Holofernes. He is tyed to a tree, but is louſed of the Jewes. The prayer of the people. Achior is comforted of the Jewes.

SO when they had left of ſpeakyng, A Holofernes toke ſore indignacion, and ſayd vnto Achior: For ſo moch as thou haſt prophecyed vnto vs, ſayenge: that the people of Iſraell ſhalbe defended of theyr God, I wyll ſhewe the, that there is no God but Nabuchodonoſor. Yee, when we ſlaye them all as one man, thou alſo ſhalt peryſh wyth them thorow the ſwerd of the Aſſirians, ⁊ al Iſrael ſhalbe deſtroyed with the, and thā ſhalt thou fele, that Nabuchodonoſor is the Lorde of the whole earth. Then ſhall the ſwerde of my knyghthode go thorow thy ſydes, and thou ſhalt fall downe ſtyckte amonge the wounded of Iſraell, and ſhalt not come to thy ſelfe agayne, but be vtterly deſtroyed with them. But yf thou thinkeſt thy prophecie to be true, why doeſt thou then chaunge thy coloure? why arte thou afrayed?

Thynkeſt thou that my wordes are B not able to be perfourmed? But that thou mayeſt knowe, that thou ſhalt fele theſe thinges wyth them, behold, frõ thys houre forth wyll I ſende the vnto yonder people, that when the punyſhment of my ſwerde (whych they haue worthely deſerued) falleth vpon them, thou mayeſt be punyſhed wyth them.

So Holofernes cõmaunded hys ſeruaũtes to take Achior, & to carye hym vnto Bethulia, & to delyuer hym into the handes of the chyldren of Iſrael. Then Holofernes ſeruauntes toke him, & went thorowe ẏ playne felde. But whan they drewe nye vnto ẏ mouptaynes, the ſlynge caſters came out agaynſt them, Neuertheles, they gat them away by the ſyde of the mountayne, and boũde Achior hande and fote to a tree, and ſo lefte hym boũde wyth wythes, and turned agayne vnto theyr lorde.

Notwithſtandyng the chyldren of Iſrael went downe frõ Bethulia, came vnto hym, louſed hym, brought hym into Bethulia, ſet hym in the myddeſt of the people, and aſked hym what the matter was, that the Aſſirians had left hym bounde?

C Oſias the ſonne of Micha of the trybe of Symeon, and Charmim (whych is alſo called Gothoniel) were ẏ principal rulers at the ſame tyme. Nowe whan Achior ſtode in the myddeſt of the Senatours, and before them all he tolde them, what anſwere he gaue Holofernes, to the thynge that he aſked hym, & howe Holofernes people wolde haue ſlayne hym for ſo ſayenge, and howe Holofernes hymſelfe was wroth, and commaunded him for the ſame cauſe to be delyuered vnto ẏ Iſraelites:
that whan he ouercame the chyldrẽ of Iſrael, he myght commaunde Achior alſo to be put to death wyth dyuerſe tormentes, becauſe he ſayde: the God of heauen is theyr defender. And whã Achior had playnly told out al theſe thynges, al the people fel downe vpon theyr faces, prayſynge the Lorde, and poured out theyr prayers together vnto the Lorde, wyth a generall complaynt and wepynge, and ſayd: O Lorde God of heuen & of earth, beholde theyr pryde, and loke vpõ our lowlynes, & conſyder howe it ſtandeth wyth thy ſayntes, and make it to be knowen, that thou forſakeſt not thoſe, whyche holde them D faſt by the, and howe that thou bryngeſt thẽ lowe, that preſume of them ſelues, and make theyr boaſt in theyr awne ſtrength. So whã the wepyng and prayer of the people (which they had made the whole daye lõge) was ended, they comforted Achior, ſayenge: The God of oure fathers, whoſe power & ſtrẽgth thou haſt prayſed, ſhall ſo rewarde the, that thou ſhalte rather ſe theyr deſtruccion. When the Lorde our God then ſhal geue hys ſeruaũtes thys libertie, God be alſo wᵗ the amonge vs: ſo that yf it pleaſe the, thou with al thyne mayeſt dwell wyth vs.

Nowe whan Oſias had ended the coũcel, he toke hym into his houſe, and made a great ſupper, called the elders to it, and ſo they refreſhed them ſelues after the faſtynge. And afterwarde was al ẏ people called together, whych made theyr prayers al the nyght lõge in the congregacion, and beſought the God of Iſraell for helpe.

¶ The vii. Chapter.

¶ Bethulia is beſeged of Holofernes. The people requyreth helpe of God. They of Bethulia wolde geue ouer the cytie for wante of water. The prayer of the people wyth teares and lamentacion.

THe next daye, Holofernes cõmaũded A his hoſt to go vp agaynſt Bethulia.
There were an hundred & twenty thouſande fyghtynge mẽ on foote, and two and twẽty thouſand horſemen, beſyde the preparynge of thẽ that were wonne: and came to them on euery ſyde oute of the countrees and cyties whych he had taken.
All theſe prepared them ſelues vnto the battayl agaynſt the Iſraelites, and came on by the hyll ſyde, vnto the toppe that loketh ouer agaynſt Dothaim, frõ the place whyche is called Belma, vnto Chelmõ that lyeth toward Eſdrelon.

Now, when the chyldren of Iſraell ſawe B ſo great a multitude of the Aſſirians, they fel downe flat vpon the groũde, ſtrawed aſhes vpon theyr heades, & prayed wᵗ one accorde, that the God of Iſrael wolde ſhewe hys mercye vpon hys people: And ſo they toke theyr weapens, and ſat betwixte the mountaynes in the narow place, and kepte the waye daye and nyght. But whyle Holofernes was goynge aboute, he founde the water ſprynge, whych from the South ſyde was conueyed into the cytie by a condyte: thys cõmaunded he to be dyrecte another waye, & to cut theyr cõdyte in ſunder. There were welles alſo not farre from the walles, which they vſed ſecretely, more for pleaſure then for neceſſitie.

Then went the Ammonites & the Moabites C vnto Holofernes, & ſayd: The chyldren of Iſrael truſte neyther in ſpeare nor arowe, but haue taken in, and kepe the mountaynes and hylles. That thou mayeſt ouercome thẽ therfore without ẏ ſtrykinge of any batayl, ſet men to kepe the welles that they drawe no water out of them: ſo ſhalt thou deſtroye thẽ wythout ſwerd, or at the leaſt they ſhall be ſo feble, that they muſte be fayne to gyue ouer the cytie: whyche they thynke not able to be wonne, for ſo moche as it lyeth in the mountaynes

moũtaynes. These wordes pleaſed Holofernes well ⁊ all his mē of warre, and he ſet an hundreth at euery well rounde aboute.

D And when this watch had endured twētye dayes, the Ciſternes ⁊ all that had water, fayled thē that dwelt in the cyte of Bethulia, ſo that in the whole cyte they had not dryncke ynough for one daye, for the people had water geuen them daylye in a meaſure. Then came the men and wemen, yonge perſonnes and chyldren all vnto Oſias, ⁊ ſayde all wyth one voyce: God be iudge betwyxte vs and the, for thou haſt dealt euel with vs: thou woldeſt not ſpeake peaceably with the Kynge of the Aſſyryans, therfore hath God ſolde vs in theyr handes, and there is no mā to helpe vs where as we are brought downe before theyr eyes in thirſt and great deſtrucyon. Therfore gather nowe together all the people that be in the cytie, that we maye all yelde oure ſelues wyllyngly vnto the people of Holofernes: for better it is that we be captyue and prayſe the Lord wyth our lyues, then to be ſlayne and peryſhe, and to be laughed to ſcorne and ſhamed of euery man, when we ſe our wyues and chyldren dye before oure eyes. We take heauen and earthe thys daye to recorde, and the God of our fathers (which punyſheth vs accordyng to the deſeruyng of our ſynnes) and geue you warnynge, yͤ ye geue vp the cytie nowe into the power of Holofernes hooſt, that oure ende maye be ſhorte wyth the ſwerde, whych els ſhall endure longe, for wante of water and for thyrſt.

E When they had ſpoken out theſe wordes, there was a greate weppynge and howlynge in the whole congregacyon, and that of euery man, and they cryed an whole houre lōge vnto God with one voyce, ſayenge: we haue ſynned wyth oure fathers, we haue done amyſſe, we haue dealt wyckedly. Thou that art gracyous, haue mercy vpon vs, punyſh our vnrighteouſnes with thine awne ſcourge, and geue not thoſe ouer that knowledge, the, vnto a people whych knowe the not, leſt they ſaye amonge the Heythen: where is theyr God?

And when they were ſo weery wyth thys cryenge and weppynge, that they helde theyr tunges, Oſias ſtode vp wyth watrye eyes, and ſayde: O take good hertes vnto you, (deare brethren) and be of good cheare, and let vs wayte yet theſe fyue dayes for mercy of the Lorde: peraduenture he ſhall put awaye hys indignacyon, and geue glory vnto hys name. But yf he helpe vs not when theſe fyue dayes are paſt, we ſhall do as ye haue ſayde.

¶ Of the vertuouſe woman Judith, whych reproueth the auncientes becauſe they tempted the Lord. She alſo moueth them to encorage and herten the people, ⁊ ſheweth her councell agaynſt the enemyes of the Jewes.

ANd it happened whē theſe wordes came to the eares of Judith a wyddowe, whych was the daughter of Merari, the ſonne of Idox, the ſonne of Joſeph, yͤ ſonne of Oſia, yͤ ſonne of Elai, yͤ ſōne of Jamor, yͤ ſonne of Jedeō, yͤ ſonne of Raphoim, the ſonne of Achitob, the ſonne of Melchia, the ſonne of Euam, the ſonne of Nathania, the ſonne of Salathiel, the ſōne of Symeō, the ſonne of Rubē. And her huſbād was called Manaſſes, whych dyed in the dayes of yͤ barlye harueſt. For whyle he was byndinge the ſheues together in the felde, the heate came vpō his head, ⁊ he dyed at Bethulia hys cytie, and there was he buryed beſyde his fathers. Nowe was Judith his deſolate wyddowe thre yeres and ſyxe monethes. And in the hyer partes of her houſe ſhe made her ſelf a preuy chābre, where ſhe dwelt, beynge cloſed in with her maydens. She ware a ſmock B of heare, and faſted all the dayes of her lyfe, excepte the Sabbathes, and newe mones ⁊ the ſolempne dayes that the people of Iſrael kepte. She was a very fayre and bewtyfull perſonne. Her huſbād alſo had left her greate ryches, a plenteous houſholde, great vnmoueable poſſeſſyōs and many catell. This Judith was a woman of a very good reporte wͭ euery one, for ſhe feared the Lorde greatly, and there was no body that ſpake an euel worde of her. A

When thys Judith hearde, howe Oſyas had promyſed the people, that after the fyfte daye he wolde geue vp the cyte vnto the Aſſyrians, ſhe ſent for the elders Chambri and Charmy, and when they came to her, ſhe ſayde: what thynge is thys, wherin Oſyas hath conſented, that yf God helpe not wythin fyue dayes, he wyll geue ouer the cytie to the Aſſyrians? What are ye, that ye tempte the Lorde? Thys deuyce optayneth no mercy of God, but prouoketh hym vnto wrath and diſpleaſure. Wyll ye ſet the mercy of the Lorde a tyme and appoynte hym a daye after youre wyll?

C Neuertheleſſe, for ſo moch as the Lorde is pacient, let vs rather repent, pourynge out teares, and beſeching him of grace. For God threateneth not as a man, nether wyll he be prouoked vnto wrath as the chyldren of mē. And therfore let vs hertely fall downe before hym, and ſerue him wyth a meke ſprete, ⁊ wyth weppynge eyes ſaye vnto the Lorde, that he deale wyth vs accordynge to hys awne wyll and mercy: that lyke as oure herte is nowe vexed, and brought lowe thorowe the pryde of thē, it maye ſo be conforted thorowe his grace: in ſo moch as we folowe not the ſynnes of oure fathers, whych forſoke theyr God, and worſhypped other goddes: for the whych ſynne they peryſhed wyth the ſwerde, were ſpoyled and brought to ſhame of all theyr enemyes. As for vs, we knowe none other God but onely him, for whoſe cōforte let vs tary with mekeneſſe. He ſhall requyre and make inquiſyciō for our bloud, from the vexacions of our enemyes: he ſhall brynge downe all the heythen, that ryſe vp agaynſt vs, & put them to diſhonoure, euen the Lorde oure God.

D Therfore deare brethren, ſeynge ye are the honorable & elders in the people of God, vnto whom all the people haue reſpecte, and vpon whom the lyfe of the people ſtandeth, lyft vp theyr hertes with youre exhortacyō that they may call to remembraunce, howe oure fathers alſo in tymes paſt were tempted, that they myght be proued, yf they worſhypped theyr God a ryght. They ought to remembre, howe *oure father Abraham beynge tempted, and tryed thorowe many tribulacyons, was founde a louer and frende of God. So was Iſaac, ſo was Iacob, ſo was Moſes, and all they that pleaſed God, beynge tryed thorowe many troubles, were founde ſtedfaſt in faytb. Agayne, they that receaued not theyr tentaciōs wyth the feare of God, but put them ſelues forth wyth vnpacyency and murmurynge agaynſt God, peryſhed of the deſtroyer, and were ſlayne of ſerpentes. And therfore ſhulde not we vndertake to be auenged, for the thynge that is done vnto vs: but to conſydre, that all theſe punyſhmentes are farre leſſe then oure ſynnes and myſdedes. Beleuynge alſo that this correccyon commeth vnto vs (as to the ſeruauntes of God) for amendement, and not for oure deſtruccyon.

E Then ſayde Oſias & the elders vnto Iudith: All that thou ſpeakeſt, is true, and no mā can reproue thy wordes. Praye thou for vs nowe therfore vnto God, for thou art an holy woman, and feareſt God. And Iudith ſayde vnto them: Seyng, ye knowe that my wordes are of God, then proue my councell and deuyce, yf it be of God: & beſeche God, ẏ he wyll brynge my councell to good ende.

Thus haue I deuyſed: Ye ſhall ſtāde this nyght before the porte, and I wyll go forth wyth Abra my mayden. Praye ye therfore vnto God, that he wyll gracyouſly remembre hys people of Iſrael wythin fyue dayes, as ye haue ſayde. As for the thyng that I go in hande wythall, aſke ye no queſtyōs of it, tyll I open it vnto you my ſelfe: do ye nothynge els but praye vnto the Lorde youre God for me. Then Oſias the prince of the people of Iuda ſayd vnto her: Go thy waye in peace, the Lord be with the, that we maye be auēged of our enemyes. And ſo they wēte from her agayne.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ The prayer of Iudith for the vyctorye.

A NOwe when they were gone theyr waye, Iudith wente into hyr cloſet, put on an hearrye ſmock, ſtrawed aſhes vpon hir head, fell downe before the Lorde, and cryed vnto hym, ſayenge: O Lord God of my father *Simeō, whych gaueſt hym a ſwerde for a defence agaynſt the enemyes, that vſed vyolence and wyllfulnes and that rauyſhed the vyrgin & put her to dyſhoneſty. Thou ẏ gaueſt theyr wyues into a praye, & theyr daughters into captyuyte, & all theyr praye for a ſpoyle vnto thy ſeruaūtes, which bare a zele vnto the, helpe me wydowe, O Lorde my God, I beſeche the. For thou haſt done all thynges frō the begynnynge: and loke what thou haſt taken in hande & deuyſed, it came euer to paſſe. For all thy wayes are prepared, & thy iudgementes are done in thy euerlaſtynge forknowledge. O loke nowe vpon the armyes of the Aſſirians, lyke as it was thy pleaſure ſomtyme to loke vpō the hooſt of the Egypcyans, when they beynge weapened, perſecuted thy ſeruauntes, and put theyr truſt in theyr charettes, horſmē, and in the multitude of theyr mē of warre. But thou lokedſt vpō theyr hoſt, caſtynge a thyck darcknes before them: and whē they came into depe, the waters ouerwhelmed them.

*Ge.xxxiiii. and.xlix.a.

B Euen ſo Lorde, let it go wyth theſe, that truſt in the power & multytude of theyr men of warre, in theyr charettes, arowes & ſpeares, and knowe not, that thou onely art oure God, which deſtroyeſt warres from the begynnynge, and that thou art the Lorde. O lyft vp thyne arme nowe, lyke as euer from the begynnynge, and in thy power brynge theyr power to naught, cauſe their myght to fall in thy wrath. They make theyr boaſt, ẏ they wyll vnhalowe and defyle thy Sanctuary, & to wayſt the tabernacle of thy name, & to caſt downe the horne of thyne aulter wͭ theyr ſwerde. Brynge to paſſe (O Lorde) ẏ the pryde of the enemye maye be cut downe with his awne ſwerde, that he maye be taken wͭ the ſnare of hys eyes in me, and ẏ thou mayeſt ſmyte hym with the lyppes of my toue. O geue me a ſtedfaſt mynde, that I maye deſpyſe hym and hys ſtrength, and ẏ I maye deſtroye hym.

C Thys ſhall brynge thy name an euerlaſtynge remembraunce, yf the hande of a woman ouerthrowe hym. For thy power (O Lord) ſtandeth not in the power of men, nether haſt thou eny pleaſure in the ſtrength of horſes. There was neuer proude perſone ẏ pleaſed the, but in the prayer of the humble & meke hath thy pleaſure bene euermore.

O thou God of the heauens, thou maker of the waters, and Lorde of all creatures, heare me poore womã, callynge vpon the, ⁊ puttynge my truſt in thy mercy. Remembꝛe thy couenaũt, O Loꝛde, and myniſter woꝛdes in my mouth, and ſtablyſh this deuice in my hert, that thy houſe maye contynue ſtyll in holynes, and that all the Heathen maye knowe, that thou art God, and that there is none other but thou.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

¶ Judith decketh her ſelfe to go to Holofernes. The bleſſynge that the Elders gaue Judith. Holofernes is in loue wyth Judith.

A AND when ſhe had left of cryeng vnto the Loꝛde, ſhe roſe vp frõ the place, where ſhe had lyẽ flat befoꝛe the Loꝛde, and called her mayden, went downe into her houſe, layed the hearrye cloth from her, put of the garmentes of hyꝛ wyddowhode, waſſhed her body, anoynted hyꝛ ſelfe wyth precyous thynges, of ſwete ſauoure, bꝛoyded ⁊ platted her hearre, ſett an hoove vpon hyꝛ heade, ⁊ put on ſoche apparell as belongeth vnto gladneſſe, ſlyppers vpon hyꝛ fete, armellettes, ſpãges, earynges, fyngerrynges, ⁊ decked herſelfe wyth all hyꝛ beſt araye.

The Loꝛde gaue her alſo a ſpeciall bewtye ⁊ fayꝛneſſe (foꝛ all thys deckynge of hyꝛ ſelfe was not done foꝛ eny voluptuouſneſſe and pleaſure of the fleſhe, but of a ryght dyſcrecyon and vertue, therfoꝛe dyd the Loꝛde increaſe hyꝛ bewtye) ſo that ſhe was exceadynge amyable and welfauoured in all mẽs eyes. She gaue hyꝛ mayde alſo a bottell of wyne, a pot wyth oyle, pottage, cake bꝛed ⁊ cheſe, and wente hyꝛ waye.

B Nowe whan ſhe came to the poꝛte of the cytie, ſhe founde Oſias and the elders of the cytie wayting there. Whych whã they ſawe her, they were aſtonnyed, ⁊ marueled greatly at her bewtye, Neuertheleſſe, they aſked no queſtiõ at her, but let her go, ſaying: The God of oure fathers geue the hys grace, and wyth [illegible] power perfourme all the deuyce of thy [illegible]te: that Jeruſalem maye reioyſe ouer the, and that thy name maye be in the nomboꝛe of the holy and ryghteous. And all they that were there, ſayde wyth one voyce: ſo be it, ſo be it. Judith made hyꝛ pꝛayer vnto the Loꝛde, and wente oute at the poꝛte, ſhe and hyꝛ mayde.

And as ſhe was goynge downe the moũtayne, it happened that aboute the ſpꝛynge of the daye, the ſpyes of the Aſſyꝛians met with her, and toke her, ſaying: whence commeſt thou? Oꝛ whither goeſt thou? She anſwered: J am a daughter of the Hebꝛues, ⁊ am fled from thẽ, foꝛ J knowe, ẏ they ſhalbe geuen vnto you to be ſpoyled: becauſe they thought ſcoꝛne to yelde thẽ ſelues vnto you, that they myght fynde mercy in your ſyght. Therfoꝛe, haue J deuyſed by my ſelfe after thys maner: J wyll go befoꝛe the pꝛince Holofernes, and tell hym all theyr ſecretes, and will ſhew him, how he maye come by them, and wynne them, ſo that not one man of his hooſt ſhall peryſh.

C And whan theſe mẽ had hearde hir woꝛdes, and conſydered hir fayꝛe face they were aſtonnyed (foꝛ they wondꝛed at hir excellẽt bewty) ⁊ ſaid vnto her: Thou haſt ſaued thy lyfe by fynding out this deuyce, ẏ thou woldeſt come downe to oure loꝛde: and be thou ſure, that whan thou commeſt vnto hym, he ſhall intreate the well, and thou ſhalt pleaſe hym at the herte: So they bꝛought her into Holofernes pauylion, and tolde hym of her. Nowe when ſhe came in befoꝛe hym, immedyatly he was ouercome and taken with his bewty. Thẽ ſayd his ſeruaũtes: who wolde deſpiſe the people of the Jewes, that haue ſo fayꝛe wemẽ? Shuld we not by reaſon fyght agaynſt thẽ foꝛ theſe? So whẽ Judith ſawe Holofernes ſyttynge in a canapy, that was wꝛought of purple, ſylke, gold, Smaragde and pꝛecyous ſtones, ſhe loked faſt vpõ him, ⁊ fell downe vpon ẏ earth. And Holofernes ſeruauntes toke her vp agayne, at their loꝛdes commaundement.

¶ The.xj.Chapter.

¶ Holofernes requyꝛeth of Juda the cauſe of her commyng, which geueth him a ſuttell anſwer.

A THen ſayd Holofernes vnto her: Be of good chere, and feare not ĩ thyne hert, foꝛ J neuer hurte man ẏ wold ſerue Nabuchodonoſoꝛ the kynge As foꝛ thy people, yf they had not deſpyſed me, J ſhulde not haue lyft vp my ſpeare agaynſt the. But tell me nowe, what is the cauſe that thou art departed from them, and wherfoꝛe art thou come vnto vs?

And Judith ſayde vnto hym: Syꝛ, vnderſtande ẏ woꝛdes of thy handmayden: foꝛ yf thou wilt do after the woꝛdes of thy hãdmayden, the Loꝛde ſhall bꝛynge thy matter to a pꝛoſperous effecte. As truly as Nabuchodonoſoꝛ a loꝛde of the lande lyueth, and as truly as his power lyueth, which is ĩ the to the punyſhment of all men that go wꝛõg, all men ſhall not onely be ſubdued vnto him thoꝛow the, but all the beeſtes alſo of ẏ feld. Foꝛ all people ſpeake of thy pꝛudẽt actyuite and it hath euer bene repoꝛted, howe ẏ onely art good ⁊ myghtye in all hys kyngdome, ⁊ thy diſcrecyon is cõmended in all landes.

B The thynge is manifeſt alſo, that Achioꝛ ſpake, and it is well knowen, what thou cõmaundeſt to do vnto hym. Foꝛ this is playne ⁊ of a ſuretye, that oure God is ſo wꝛath wyth vs (by the reaſon of oure ſynnes) that he hath ſhewed by hys Pꝛophetes vnto the people, howe that foꝛ theyꝛ ſynnes he wyll delyuer thẽ ouer vnto the enemye. And foꝛ ſo moch as the chyldrẽ of Iſrael knowe that they haue ſo dyſpleaſed theyr God, they are ſore afrayed of the.

They ſuffre greate honger alſo, and for wãte of water, they are deed nowe in a maner. Moreouer, they are apoynted to ſlaye all theyr catell, that they maye dryncke the bloude of them: and are purpoſed to ſpende all the holy ornamẽtes of theyr God (whych he hath forbydden them to touch) for corne, C wyne and oyle. Seynge nowe, that they do theſe thynges, it is a playne caſe, that they muſt nedes be deſtroyed. Whych when I thy handmayden perceaued, I fled from them, and the Lord hath ſent me vnto the, to ſhew the theſe thynges. For I thy handmayden worſhyppe God euen here nowe beſyde the, and thy handmayden ſhall go forth, and I wyll make my prayer vnto God, & he ſhall tell me when he wyll rewarde them theyr ſynne, then ſhall I come and ſhewe the and brynge the thorow the myddeſt of Ieruſalẽ, ſo that thou ſhalt haue all the people of Iſrael, as the ſhepe without a ſhepeherde: there ſhall not ſo moch as one dogge barck agaiſt the, for theſe thynges are ſhewed me by the prouydence of God: and for ſo moch as God is diſpleaſed with thẽ, he hath ſent me to tell the the ſame.

D These wordes pleaſed Holofernes & all hys ſeruaũtes, whych marueled at the wyſdome of her, and ſayde one to another: there is not ſoch a woman vpon earth, in bewtye and dyſcrecyon of wordes. And Holofernes ſayde vnto her: God hath done well, that he hath ſent the hyther before thy people, that ẏ mayeſt geue them into oure handes. And for ſo moch as thy promyſe is good, yf thy God perfourme it vnto me, he ſhal be my God alſo, & thou ſhalt be excellent and greate in the courte of Nabuchodonoſor, and thy name ſhalbe ſpoken of in all the lande.

¶The .xij. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes commaundeth that Iudith be well intreated. She deſyreth lycence to go out in the nyght ceaſon to praye, and optayneth it. Vagao is ſent vnto her, to moue her to come into Holofernes to a bancket. and ſhe commeth. Holofernes is droncken.

THen commaunded he her to go in, where hys treaſure laye, and charged that ſhe ſhulde haue her dwellynge there, and appoynted what ſhulde be geuen her from hys table. Iudith anſwered hym, and ſayde: As for the meate that thou haſt commaunded to geue me, I maye not eate of it as nowe (leſt I diſpleaſe my God) but wyll eate of ſoche as I haue brought wͭ me. Then ſayde Holofernes vnto her: If theſe thynges ẏ thou haſt brought wͭ the fayle, what ſhall we do vnto the? And Iudith ſayde: As truly as ẏ lyueſt my Lord, thy handmayden ſhall not ſpende all thys, tyll God haue brought to paſſe in my hand, the thynges that I haue deuyſed.

B So hys ſeruauntes brought her into the tent, where as he had appoynted. And as ſhe was goynge in, ſhe deſyred that ſhe myght haue leue to go forth by nyght & before daye, to her prayer and to make interceſſyon vnto the Lorde. Then commaunded Holofernes hys Chamberlaynes, that ſhe ſhulde go out & in at her pleaſure, to praye vnto God thoſe thre dayes.

And ſo in the nyght ſeaſon ſhe wẽte forth into the valley of Bethulia, & waſhed her ſelfe in the well water. Then wente ſhe vp, and beſought the Lorde God of Iſrael that he wolde proſpere her waye, for the delyueraunce of hys people. And ſo ſhe wente in, & remayned clene in her tent, tyll ſhe toke her meate in the euenynge.

C Vpon the fourth daye it happened, that Holofernes made a ſupper vnto hys ſeruaũtes, & ſayde vnto Vagao his chamberlayne: Go thy waye, and councell thys Hebrueſſe, that ſhe may be wyllynge to conſent to kepe company wyth me. For it were a ſhame vnto all the Aſſyrians, that a woman ſhulde ſo laugh a mã to ſcorne, ẏ ſhe were come from hym vnmedled wyth all.

Then wẽte Vagao vnto Iudith, & ſayd: Let not the good daughter be afrayed, to come into my Lord, that ſhe maye be honoured before hym, that ſhe maye eate and dryncke wyne, and be mery wyth hym. Vnto whom Iudith anſwered: Who am I, that I ſhulde ſaye my Lord naye? whatſoeuer is good before hys eyes, I ſhall do it: and loke what is hys pleaſure, that ſhall I thyncke well done, as longe as I lyue.

D So ſhe ſtode vp, and deckte her ſelfe wyth her apparell, and wente in, and ſtode before hym. And Holofernes herte was whole moued, ſo that he brent in deſyre towarde her. And Holofernes ſayd vnto her: drynke now and ſytt downe, and be mery, for thou haſt founde fauoure before me. Then ſayde Iudith: Syr, I wyll drynke, for my mynde is meryer to daye, then euer it was in all my lyfe. And ſhe toke, and dyd eate, and dranke before hym, the thynges that her maydẽ had prepared for her. And Holofernes was mery wyth her, and dranke more wyne, then euer he dyd afore in hys lyfe.

¶The .xiij. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes ſlepeth for very dronckenes, and Iudith cutteth of hys heade, & goeth therwyth to her awne people of whom ſhe is receaued wyth ioye. They geue thanckes vnto God, for theyr delyueraunce. Iudith ſpeaketh vnto Achior. Whych marueleth at her feate done to Holofernes.

A NOw whẽ it was late in the nyght, hys ſeruauntes made haſte euery man to hys lodgynge. And Vagao ſhut the chamber dores, and went hys waye, for they were all ouerladen with wyne. So was Iudith alone in the chāber. As for Holofernes he laye vpon the bed all drōcken, & of very dronckennes fell a ſlepe.

Then commaunded Iudith her mayden, to ſtāde wythout before the dore, & to wayte And Iudith ſtode before the bedd, makynge her prayer wyth teares, and moued her lyppes ſecretly, and ſayde: Strengthen me, O Lorde God of Iſrael, and haue reſpecte vnto the worckes of my handes in thys houre, that thou mayeſt ſet vp thy cytie of Ieruſalem, lyke as thou haſt promyſed: O graunte that by the I maye perfourme the thynge, whych I haue deuyſed thorowe the beleue ẏ I haue in the.

B And when ſhe had ſpoken this, ſhe wente to the bedſteade, and lowſed the ſwerde that hanged vpō it, and drewe it out. Then toke ſhe holde of the hearrye lockes of hys heade, and ſayde: Strengthen me, O Lorde God in thys houre, and wyth that, ſhe gaue hym two ſtrokes vpon the neck, and ſmote of his head. Then toke ſhe the canapy awaye, and rolled the deed body aſyde. Immediatly ſhe gat her forth, and delyuered the head of Holofernes vnto her mayden, and bad her put it in her wallet.

And ſo theſe two wente forth together after theyr cuſtome, as though they wolde praye, and ſo paſſed by the Hooſt, and came thorowe the valley vnto the porte of the cytye. And Iudith cryed afarre of vnto the watchmen vpon the walles: Opē the gates (ſayde ſhe) for God is wyth vs, whych hath ſhewed his power in Iſrael. And when they hearde her voyce, they called the elders of the citie together. And they came al to mete her, lytle and greate, yonge and olde, for they thought not that ſhe ſhuld haue come ſo ſoone. So they lyghted candels, and gathered aboute her euerychone: but ſhe wente vp in to an hye place, and cauſed ſylence to be proclamed.

C When euery man nowe helde hys tonge, Iudith ſayde: O prayſe the Lorde our God, for he hath not deſpyſed, nor forſaken them, that put theyr truſt in hym, & in me hys hādmaydē he hath perfourmed his mercy, which he promyſed vnto the houſe of Iſrael: yee, in my hand thys ſame nyght hath he ſlayne the enemy of hys people.

And wyth that ſhe toke forth the head of Holofernes out of the wallet, and ſhewed it them, ſayinge: Beholde the heade of Holofernes the captayne of the Aſſyrians, & thys is the canapy, wherin he laye in hys drōkēnes: where the Lorde oure God hath ſlayne hym by the hande of a woman.

But as truly as the Lorde lyueth, his Angell hath kepte me, goynge thyther, remaynynge there, & cōmynge hyther agayne from thēce. And the Lorde hath not ſuffred me his handmaydē to be defyled, but wythout any fylthynes of ſynne hath he brought me agayne vnto you: & that wͭ greate victory, ſo ẏ I am eſcaped, and ye delyuered. O geue thankes vnto hym euerychone, for he hys gracyous and hys mercy endureth for euer.

So they prayſed the Lorde altogether, & gaue thākes vnto him. And to her they ſayd: The Lorde hath bleſſed the in his power, for thorowe the he hath brought oure enemyes to naught. And Ozias the chefe ruler of the people of Iſrael, ſayde vnto her: Bleſſed art thou of the Lord the hye God, aboue all wemen vpon earth.

D Bleſſed be the Lord, the maker of heauē & earth, which hath gyded ẏ a ryght to woūde and to ſmyte of the head of the Captayne of oure enemyes. For thys daye he hath made thy name ſo honorable, ẏ thy prayſe ſhall neuer come oute of ẏ mouth of mē, which ſhall allwaye remembre the power of the Lorde, ſeynge: thou haſt not ſpared thine awne ſelf, but put the in ieopardy, cōſyderynge the anguyſh and trouble of thy people, and ſo haſt helped theyr fall before God oure Lord. And all the people ſayde: Amen, Amen.

E Achior alſo was called, & he came. Then ſayde Iudith vnto him: The God of Iſrael vnto whom thou gaueſt wytnes, ẏ he wold be auenged of hys enemyes, euē he hath thys nyght thorowe my hande ſmyttē of the head of all the vnfaythfull. And that thou mayeſt ſe that it ſo is, beholde thys is the head of Holofernes, whych in hys preſumptuous pryde deſpyſed the God of the people of Iſrael, & threatened the wyth deſtruccyon, ſayinge: when the people of Iſrael is taken, I ſhall cauſe the alſo to be ſtyckte wyth the ſwerde. When Achior ſawe Holofernes head, he fell downe before vpon hys face to the grounde for very anguyſh & feare, ſo that he ſowned wyth all. But after ẏ he was come agayne to him ſelfe, he fell downe before her, & prayſed her ſayinge: Bleſſed art thou of thy God in all the tabernacles of Iacob: for all the people that heare of thy name, ſhall prayſe the God of Iſrael becauſe of the.

¶ The .xiiij. Chapter.

¶ The councell of Iudith. Achior beynge an Heathen mā, turneth to God. The Aſſyrians are afrayed of the Iewes.

A IUdith ſayde vnto all the people: Brethren, heare me: Styck vp this heade vpon oure walles, and when the Sunne aryſeth, take euery mā hys weapen, and fall out vyolently: not as though ye wolde go beſyde them, but to rēne vpon them, wyth violence. When the ſpyes in the tētes ſe thys, they ſhall of neceſſyte be compelled to fle backward, and to rayſe vp theyr captaine to the battayll. So whē their captaynes come into Holofernes pauylyon, and fynde yͤ deed body wrapped in yͤ bloud, fearfulnes ſhall fall vpon them: and whẽ ye perceaue that they flye, folowe thẽ wythout all care, for God ſhall delyuer thẽ vnto you, to be deſtroyed.

Then Achior ſeynge the power of God which he had ſhewed vnto the people of Iſrael, fell of from hys heathenyſh beleſe, and put his truſt in God, and let hym ſelfe be circumcyſed: and ſo was he nombred amonge the people of Iſrael, he and all hys poſterite vnto thys daye.

B Nowe as ſoone as it was daye, they ſtyckt vp Holofernes head vpon the walles, and euery man toke hys weapen, ⁊ ſo they wẽte out wyth an horryble crye. When the ſpyes ſawe that, they ranne vnto Holofernes tẽt. And they that were wythin the tente, came before hys chamber, and made a greate ruſſhing to wake him vp, becauſe they thought wᵗ the noyſe to haue rayſed hym. For there durſt not one of the Aſſyrians knocke, go in or open:

But when the captaynes and Princes and all the chefe in the kynge of the Aſſyrians hooſt came together, they ſayde vnto the Chamberlaynes. Go youre waye in, and wake hym vp, for the myſe are crepte out of theyr holes, and darre prouoke vs vnto battayll.

C Then wente Vagao into hys chamber, ſtode before the bed, and clapped wyth hys handes, for he thought he had bene ſleppynge wyth Iudith.

But whẽ he had herkened perfectly wyth hys eares, and coulde perceaue no ſterynge, he wente nyer to the bed, and lyft it vp, and then ſawe he the deed body of Holofernes lyẽge there with oute a head, weltred in hys bloude vpon the earthe. Then cryed he with loude voyce, and wyth wepynge rent his clothes, and wente into Iudiths tent, ⁊ founde her not: And ſo he leapte out vnto the people and ſayde: one woman of the Iewes, hath brought al Nabuchodonoſors people to ſhame. For lo, Holofernes lyeth vpon the grounde and hath no head.

When the chefe of the Aſſyrians hooſt herd that, they rente theyr clothes, and there fell an intollerable feare ⁊ tremblynge vpon thẽ, so that theyr myndes were ſore afrayed. And there was an exceadynge greate crye in the whole hooſt.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

¶ The flyght of the Aſſyrians. The purſute of Iſrael after them. Iſrael becometh ryche, by the ſpoyles of the Aſſyrians. Iudith is prayſed of Ioachim and of the people.

A Nowe whẽ all the hooſt herde yͤ Holofernes was headed, theyr mynde and councell fell from them: and ſech a feare came vpon them, that they vndertoke to defẽde thẽ ſelues by flyẽg awaye: one ſpake not to another, but hãged downe theyr heades, left all behynde them, made haſte to eſcape from the Hebrues: for they herde, that they were haſtinge to come after wyth theyr weapens, and ſo they fled by the wayes of the feldes, and thorowe all the fote pathes of the dales.

And when the chyldren of Iſrael ſawe that they fled, they folowed vpon them, and wente downe wyth trompettes, blowynge and makynge a greate crye after them. As for the Aſſyriãs, they had no ordre, and kept not thẽ ſelues together, but fled theyr waye. Neuertheles, the chyldren of Iſrael fell vpõ them with one company and ordre; and diſcomfeted as many as they myght gett. And Oſias ſent meſſaungers vnto all the cyties and countrees of Iſrael.

So all the regions and euery cytie ſent B out theyr beſt mẽ after them in harneſſe, and ſmote them wyth the ſwerde, tyll they came to the vttemoſt parte of theyr borders. And the other that were in Bethulia came into the tentes of the Aſſyrians, and toke all that they whych were fled had left behynd them, and ſo they founde greate good. And they that came agayne to Bethulia frõ the battayll, toke wyth them ſoch thynges as had bene theyrs: there was no nombre of the catell, and of all coſtly Iewels, ſo that from the loweſt vnto the hyeſt, they were al made ryche of the ſpoyles of them. And Ioachim the Hye preſte at Ieruſalem, came to Bethulia wyth all the elders, that they myght ſe Iudith.

Nowe when ſhe came out vnto thẽ, they C beganne all to prayſe her wyth one voyce, ſayinge: thou worſhyppe of the cytie of Ieruſalem, thou ioye of Iſrael, thou honoure of oure people, thou haſt done mãly, and thy herte is comforted, becauſe thou haſt loued clenlynes and chaſtyte, and haſt knowen no man but thyne awne huſbãde: therfore hath the hande of the Lorde comforted the, ⁊ bleſſed ſhalt yͧ be for euer. And all people ſayde: ſo be it, ſo be it.

In thyrty dayes coulde the people of Iſrael ſcarſe gather vp the ſpoyles of the Aſſirians. But all that belonged vnto Holofernes, and had bene hys ſpecyally (whether it were of gold, of ſyluer, precyous ſtone, clothynge, and all ornamentes) they gaue it vnto Iudith. And all the people reioyſed, both wemen, maydens, and yonge people, wyth pypes and harpes.

¶ The .xvj. Chapter.

¶ The ſonge of Iudith for the vyctorye. After the victorye optayned, the people commeth to Ieruſalem, to worſhyp and prayſe God.

Then

A Then ſonge Judith thys ſonge vnto the Lorde: Begynne vnto the Lord vpon the tabrettes, ſynge vnto the Lord vpon the cymbales. O ſynge vnto him a newe ſonge of thankeſgeuynge, be ioyfull and call vpon hys name. It is the Lorde that deſtroyeth warres, euē the Lord is hys name. Which hath pitched hys tentes in the myddeſt of hys people, that he myght delyuer vs frō the hand of all oure enemies. Aſſur came out of the mountaynes of the North in the multytude of hys ſtrength. His people ſtopped the water brokes, and theyr horſſes couered the valleys. He purpoſed to haue brent vp my lande, & to ſlaye my yong men with the ſwerde.

B He wolde haue caryed a waye my childrē and virgyns into captiuite, but the almygh-tye Lorde hyndred hym, and delyuered hym into the handes of a woman, which brought hym to confuſyon. For theyr myghtye was not deſtroyed of the yonge men. It was not the ſonnes of Titan that ſlewe hym, nether haue the greate gyauntes ſet them ſelues agaynſt hym: but Judith ẏ daughter of Merari with her fayre bewtye hath diſcomfyted hym, and brought hym to naught. For ſhe layed a waye her wyddowes garment, and put on the apparell of gladneſſe to the reioy-ſynge of the chyldrē of Iſrael. She annoynted her face, and bounde vp her hearre in an hooue, to begyle hym. Her ſlyppers rauyſhed hys eyes, her bewtye captyuated his mynde, wyth the ſwerde ſmote ſhe of hys neck. The Perſians were aſtonnyed at her ſtedfaſtnes, and the Medes at her boldnes. Then how-C led the armyes of the Aſſyrians, when my ſymple appeared, drye of thyrſt. The ſonnes of the daughters haue pearſed thē thorowe and ſlayne them as fugytiue chyldren: they peryſhed in the battayl, for the very feare of the Lorde my God. Let vs ſynge a ſonge of thākeſgeuynge vnto the Lord, a new ſonge of prayſe wyll we ſynge vnto oure God: Lord, Lord, thou arte a greate God, myghtye in power, whom no man may ouercome.
All thy creatures ſhulde ſerue the: for thou ſpakeſt but the worde, and they were made:
thou ſenteſt thy ſpryte, and they were created, and no man can wythſtande thy voyce.
The mountaynes ſhall moue from the foun-dacyons wyth the waters, the ſtony rockes ſhall melt before the lyke waxe. But they ẏ feare the: ſhalbe greate with the in all thyn-ges. Wo vnto the people ẏ ryſe vp agaynſt my generacyon, for the almyghtye Lorde wyll auenge hym ſelfe of them, and in the daye of iudgement wyll he vyſet them. For he ſhall geue fyre & wormes into theyr fleſh, that they maye burne & fele it for euermore.

D After thys it happened, that after the victory, all the people came to Jeruſalem, to geue prayſe and thanckes vnto the Lorde. And whē they were puryfyed, they offred all theyr brētſacrifyces and theyr promyſed offrynges. And Judith offred all Holofernes weapēs, and all the Jewels, that the people had geuen her, and the canapy that ſhe toke from hys bed, and hanged them vp vnto the Lord. The people was ioyfull, as the vſe is: and thys ioye by reaſon of the victory, with Judith, endured thre monethes.

So after theſe dayes, euery man wente home agayne, and Judith was in greate reputacyon at Bethulia, and ryght honorably taken in all the lande of Iſrael. Unto her vertue alſo was chaſtyte ioyned, ſo that after her huſbande Manaſſes dyed, ſhe neuer knewe man all the dayes of her lyfe. Upon the hye ſolempne dayes ſhe wente out wyth greate worſhyppe. She dwelt in her huſbādes houſe an hundred and fyue yeare, & left her handmayden fre, and dyed, and was buryed beſyde her huſbande in Bethulia. And all the people mourned for her ſeuen dayes. So longe as ſhe lyued, there was none that troubled Iſrael, and many yeares alſo after her death.

The daye wherin thys victory was gotten, was ſolemply holden, and rekened of the Jewes in the nombre of the holy dayes, and it is yet greatly holden of the Jewes euer ſence, vnto thys daye.

¶ The dreame of Mardocheus.

A Mardocheus the ſõne of Jair, the ſonne of Semei, the ſonne of Ciſei of the tribe of BẽJamin, a Jewe: whych had his dwellynge in the cytie of Suſis, a mã of greate reputacyon, and excellent amõge all thẽ that were in the kynges courte. (Neuertheles, he was one of the ꝓſonners, whõ Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babylõ had caryed awaye from Jeruſalem vnto Babylon with Jechonias the kynge of Juda.) In the ſeconde yeare of the raygne of great Artaxerſes in the fyrſt daye of the moneth Niſan, had this Mardocheus ſoch a dreame: He thought he herde a greate tempeſt, horryble thõderclappes, erthquakes, & great vproure in the land, and that he ſawe two great dragons, ready to fyght one agaynſt another. Theyr crye was greate. At the whych roarynge & crye all yͤ heathẽ were vp, to fyght agaynſt the ryghteous people. And the ſame
B daye was full of darcknes & very vncleare, full of trouble and anguyſh, yee, a greate fearfulnes was there in all the lãde. The ryghteous were amaſed, for they feared the plage and euell that was deuyſed ouer them, and were at a poynte wyth them ſelues to dye. So they cryed vnto God: and whyle they were crienge, yͤ lytle well grewe into a great ryuer and into many waters. And with that it was daye, and the ſunne roſe vp agayne. And the lowly were exalted, and deuoured the gloryous and proude.

Nowe when Mardocheus had ſene thys dreame, he awoke, & muſed ſtedfaſtly in hys herte, what God wolde do: and ſo he deſyred to knowe, all the matter, & hys mynde was ther vpon vntyll the nyght.

¶ The .xij. Chapter.

¶ Mardocheus vttereth the treaſon deuyſed agaynſt the kynge, and is therfore rewarded of hym.

A AT the ſame tyme dwelt Mardocheus wyth Bagatha and Tares in the kynges courte the kynges Chamberlaynes and porters of the palace. But when he hearde theyr deuyce, and had dylygently conſydered theyr ymagynacyons, he perceaued that they wente aboute, to laye theyr cruell handes vpon the kynge Artaxerſes: and ſo he certifyed the kynge therof. Then cauſed yͤ kynge to examen the two gelded wyth tormentes. And when they had graunted it, they were put to death.

Thys the kynge cauſed to be put in the Cronycles for an euerlaſtynge remẽbraũce, and Mardocheus wrote vp the ſame matter.
B So the kynge commaunded that Mardocheus ſhulde remayne in the courte, & for thys faythfulneſſe of hys, he gaue hym a rewarde. But Aman the ſonne of Amadathu the Agagite, whych was holdẽ in greate honoure & reputacyon in the kynges courte vndertoke to hurte Mardocheus and hys people, becauſe of the two Chamberlaynes that were put to death.

A THe great kinge Artaxerſes which raygneth frõ India vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hundred and ſeuẽ and twentye landes, ſendeth his frẽdly ſalutacyõ vnto all the Princes and debytes of the countrees, whych be ſubiecte vnto hys dominyon. Whẽ I was made Lorde ouer many people, and had ſubdued the whole earthe vnto my domynyon, my mynde was not wyth crueltye and wronge to exalte my ſelf by the reaſon of my power: but purpoſed wyth equite alwaye and gentylnes, to gouerne thoſe that be vnder my iuriſdiccion, and wholy to ſet them in a peaceable lyfe, and therby to brynge my kyngdome vnto tranquillite, that men myght ſafely go thorowe on euery ſyde, and to renue peace agayne, whych all men deſyre.

myes and aduerſaryes, and that there ſhalbe no mercy ſhewed, and no man ſpared. And this ſhalbe done the.xiiij.daye of the moneth (called Adad) of thys yeare, that they which of olde (and now alſo) haue euer bene rebellious, maye in one daye wyth violence be thruſt downe into the hell, to the intent that after thys maner, oure empyre maye haue peace and tranquilite.

D But Mardocheus thought vpon all the workes and nobles actes of the Lorde, and made his prayer vnto him ſayinge: O Lord Lorde, thou valeaunt and almyghtie kynge (for all thynges are in thy power, and yf yͧ wilt helpe and delyuer Iſraell, there is no man that can withſtande ner let the: for thou haſt made heauen and earth, and what wonderous thynge ſo euer is vnder the heauen: thou art Lorde of all thynges, and there is no mā that can reſiſt thy maieſtye (O Lord) Thou knoweſt all thinges, yͧ woteſt Lorde, that it was nether of malyce, ner preſumpciō, ner for eny deſyre of glory, that I wolde not bowe downe my ſelfe ner worſhypp yonder proude preſumpteous Amā (for I wolde haue bene content, and that with good will, yf it myght haue done Iſrael eny good, to haue kyſt euen hys foteſteppes) but that I dyd it, becauſe I wolde not ſet the honoure of a man in the ſteade of the glorye of God, and becauſe I wolde worſhyp none but onely the my Lorde. And this haue I done in no pryde ner preſumpcyon.

And therfore O Lorde thou God & kyng, haue mercy vpō thy people for they ymagin howe they maye brynge vs to naught, yee, theyr mynde and deſyre is to deſtroye and to ouerthrowe the people, that hath euer bene thyne enheritaūce of olde. O deſpyſe not thy porcyō, whych thou haſt delyuered & brought oute of Egypte for thyne awne ſelfe. Heare my prayer, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, whom thou haſt choſen for an heretage vnto thy ſelfe. Turne oure complaynte and ſorowe into ioye, yͭ we maye lyue O Lorde, and prayſe thy name. O Lorde, ſuffre not the mouthes of thē yͭ prayſe the, to be deſtroyed.

All the people of Iſrael in lyke maner cryed as earneſtly as they coulde vnto the Lorde, for theyr death and deſtruccyon ſtode before theyr eyes.

The.xiiij.Chapter.

The prayer of Eſther for the delyueraunce of her and her people.

A Quene Eſther alſo beynge in yͤ battayll of death, reſorted vnto the Lorde, layed awaye her gloryous apparell, and put on the garmentes that serued for ſyghynge and mournynge. In the ſteade of precyous oyntment, ſhe ſcatered aſſhes and donge vpō her heade: and as for her body, ſhe humbled it wͭ faſtynge, and brought it very lowe. All the places where ſhe was wonte to haue ioye afore, thoſe fylled ſhe with the heare, that ſhe plucte of her ſelfe. She prayed alſo vnto the Lorde God of Iſrael with theſe wordes.

O my Lorde, thou onely art oure kynge, helpe me deſolate woman, whych haue no helper but the, for my myſery and deſtruccyō is harde at my hande. From my youth vp I haue herde oute of the kynred of my father, that thou tokeſt Iſrael from amōge all people (and ſo haue oure fathers of theyr fore elders) that they ſhulde be thy perpetuall inheritaunce, and loke what yͧ dydeſt promyſe them, thou haſt made it good vnto them.

Nowe Lorde, we haue ſynned before the, B therfore haſt thou geuen vs into the handes of oure enemyes, because we worſhypped theyr goddes. Lorde, thou art ryghteous. Neuertheles it ſatiſfyeth them not, that we are in bytter and heuy captiuite and oppreſſed amonge them, but thou haſt layed theyr handes vpon the handes of theyr goddes: ſo that they begynne to take awaye, the thinge that thou with thy mouth haſt ordened and appoynted, to deſtroye thyne inheritaunce, to ſhut and to ſtoppe the mouthes of thē that prayſe the, to quēche yͤ glory and worſhyppe of thy houſe and thyne aulter, and to open the mouthes of the Heathen, yͭ they maye prayſe the power and vertue of the goddes, and to magnifye the fleſhly kynge for euer.

O Lorde, geue not thy ſcepter vnto them that be nothinge, leſt they laugh vs to ſcorne C in oure miſery and fall: but turne their deuyce vpon thē ſelues, and punyſhe him, that hath begonne the ſame ouer vs, and ſett him to an example. Thyncke vpon vs O Lorde, and ſhewe thy ſelfe vnto vs in the tyme of oure diſtres and of oure trouble. Strength me O thou kynge of Goddes, thou Lorde of all power, geue me an eloquent & pleaſaunt ſpeach in my mouth before the Lyon. Turne hys hert in to yͤ hate of oure enemyes, to deſtroye hym, and all ſoch as conſent vnto hym. But delyuer vs with thy hāde, and helpe me thy hande mayde, which haue no defence ner helper but onely the. Lorde, thou knoweſt all thynges, thou woteſt yͭ I loue not the glory and worſhyp of the vnryghteous, and that I hate and abhorre the bed of the vncircumcyſed and of all Heathen.

Thou knoweſt my neceſſyte, that I hate the token of my preeminēce and worſhyppe, which I beare vpō my head, what tyme as I muſt ſhew my ſelfe and be ſene, and that I abhorre it as an vncleane cloth, and that I weare it not when I am quyete and alone by my ſelfe. Thou knoweſt alſo that I thy hande mayden haue not eaten at Amans table, and that I haue had no pleaſure nor delyte in the kynges feaſte, that I haue not droncke the wyne of the drynkoffringes, and that I thy hande mayden haue no ioye ſence the daye that I was brought hyther, vnto thys daye, but onely in the O Lord. O thou God of Abrahã, O thou myghtie God aboue all, heare the voyce of them, yͤ haue none other hope, and delyuer vs out of the hãde of the wycked, and delyuer me out of my feare.

¶ Mardocheus moueth Heſter to go into yͤ kynge, and make interceſſyon for her people, and ſhe performeth hys requeſt.

A MArdocheus alſo bad Heſter go in vnto the kyng, and praye for hyr people and for hyr countre. Remembre (ſayeth he) yͤ dayes of thy lowe eſtate, howe yͤ waſt noryſhed vnder my hãde: For Aman whych is next vnto the kynge, hath geuen ſentence of death agaynſt vs. Call thou therfore vpõ the Lorde, & ſpeake for vs vnto the kynge, & delyuer vs from death. And vpon the thyrde daye it happened, that Heſter layed awaye the mournynge garmentes, and put on her glorious apparell, and deckte her ſelfe goodly (after that ſhe had called vpõ God, whych is yͤ beholder and Sauioure of all thynges) toke two maydẽs with her: vpon the one ſhe leaned her ſelfe, as one that was tender: the other folowed her, and bare the trayne of her veſture. The ſhyne of her bewtie made her face roſe coloured. The ſimilitude of her face was chearfull & amiable, but her herte was ſorowfull for greate feare. She wẽte in thorowe all the dores, and ſtode before yͤ kynge. The kynge ſat vpon the trone of hys kyngdome, and was clothed in his goodly araye, all of golde, and ſet wyth precyous ſtones, & he was very terryble. He lyft vp hys face, that ſhone in the clearnes, and loked grymly vpon her. Then fell the Quene downe, was pale & faynt, leaned her ſelfe vpon the heade of the mayde that wente with her.

B Neuertheles, God turned the kynges mynde that he was gẽtle, that he leaped oute of hys ſeate for feare, and gat her in hys armes, and held her vp tyll ſhe came to her ſelfe agayne. He gaue her louynge wordes alſo, and ſayde vnto her: Heſter, what is the matter? I am thy brother, be of good cheare, thou ſhalt not dye: for oure commaundement toucheth the comõs and not the. Come nye. And with that he helde vp hys golden rodd, and layde it vpon her neck, and embraced her frendly, and ſayde: talke with me. Then ſayde ſhe: * I ſawe the (O Lorde) as an Angell of God, and my hert was troubled for feare of thy maieſty and clearneſſe: For excellẽt and wonderfull art thou (O Lorde) and thy face is full of amyte. But as ſhe was thus ſpeakynge vnto him, ſhe fell downe agayne for fayntnes: for the which cauſe the kynge was afrayed, and all hys ſeruauntes comforted her.

¶ The .xvj. Chapter.

¶ The Copye of the lettres of Artaxerſes, wherby he reuoketh thoſe whych he fyrſt ſent forth.

THe greate kynge Artaxerſes, A whych raygneth frõ India vnto Ethiopia ouer an hundreth and .xxvij. landes, ſendeth vnto the Prynces and rulers of the ſame landes, ſoch as loue him, his frendly ſalutacyõ. There be many that for the ſondrye frendſhyppes and benefytes whych are diuerſly done vnto them for their worſhyp, be euer the more proude and hye mynded, and vndertake not onely to hurte oure ſubiectes (for plenteous benefytes maye they not ſuffre, and begynne to ymagyn ſome thynge agaynſt thoſe that do them good, and take not onely all vnthankfulnes awaye from men) but in pryde and preſumpcyon (as they that be vnmyndefull & vnthankfull for the good dedes) they go about to eſcape the iudgemẽt of God, that ſeyth all thynges, whych (iudgement) hateth and punyſheth all wyckednes. It happeneth oft alſo, that they whych be ſet in offyce by the hyer power, and vnto whom the buſynes and cauſes of the ſubiectes are cõmytted to be handled, waxe proude, and defyle them ſelues wyth ſhedynge of innocent bloude, whych bryngeth them to intollerable hurte. Whych alſo wyth falſe & diſceatfull wordes and wyth lyenge tales, diſceaue and betraye the innocent goodnes of Prynces.

Nowe is it profitable and good, that we B take hede, make ſearche therafter, and conſyder, not onely what hath happened vnto vs of olde: but yͤ ſhamefull, vnhoneſt, and noyſome thynges, that the debytes haue nowe taken in hande before oure eyes, and therby to beware in tyme to come, that we maye make the kyngdome quyete and peaceable for all men, and that we myght ſometyme drawe it to a chaunge: and as for the thynge that nowe is preſent before oure eyes, to withſtande it, and to put it downe, after the mooſt frendly maner.

What tyme nowe as Aman the ſonne of Amadathu the Macedonian (a ſtraunger verely of the Perſiãs bloude, and farre from oure goodnes) was come in amonge vs as an aleaunt, and had optayned the frendſhyp that we beare towarde all people, ſo that he was called oure father, and had in hye honoure of euery man, as the nexte and pryncipall vnto the kynge, he coulde not forbeare hym ſelfe from hys pryde, hath vndertaken not onely to robbe vs of the kyngdome, but of oure lyfe.

With manyfolde diſceate alſo hath he de- C ſyred to deſtroye Mardocheus oure helper &

preſeruer, whych hath done vs good in all thynges: and innocent Heſter the lyke partaker of oure kyngdome, with all her people. For his mynde was (when he had taken thẽ oute of the waye, and robbed vs of them) by thys meanes to trãſlate the kyngdome of the Perſiãs vnto them of Macedonia. But we fynde, that the Iewes (whych were accuſed of yͤ wycked, that they myght be deſtroyed) are no euell doers, but vſe reaſonable and ryght lawes: and that they be the chyldren of the moſt hye lyuynge God, by whom the kingdome of vs and oure progenitours hath bene well ordred hytherto. Wherfore, as for the letters and cõmaundementes, that were put forth by Aman the ſonne of Amadathu, ye ſhall do well, yf ye holde them of none effecte: for he that ſet them vp and inuented thẽ, hangeth at Suſis before the porte, with all hys kynred, & God (which hath all thynges in hys power) hath rewarded hym after hys deſeruynge.

D And vpon thys ye ſhall publyſhe and ſet vp the copy of thys letter in all places, that the Iewes maye frely and without hinderaunce holde them ſelues after theyr awne ſtatutes, and that they maye be helped, and that vpon the .xiij. daye of the .xij. moneth. Adar, they maye be auenged of them, whych in the tyme of theyr anguyſhe and trouble, wolde haue oppreſſed them. For the God that gouerneth all thynges, hath turned to ioye the daye, wher in the choſen people ſhulde haue peryſhed.

Moreouer, amonge the hye ſolẽpne dayes yͭ ye haue, ye ſhall holde thys daye alſo wyth all gladneſſe: that now and in tyme to come, thys daye maye be a remembraũce to good, for all ſoch loue the proſperite of the Perſiãs: but a remembraunce of deſtruccyon to thoſe that be ſedicyous vnto vs.

All cyties & landes that do not this, ſhall horribly peryſhe and be deſtroyed wyth the ſwerde and fyre, and ſhall not onely be nomore inhabited of men, but be abhorred alſo of the wylde beaſtes and foules.

The ende of the reaſt of the boke of Eſther.

The boke of wyſdome.

The fyrſt Chapter.

Howe we ought to ſearche and enquyre after God, and who be thoſe that fynde hym. Of the holy gooſt. We ought to flye from backbytynge & murmuringe &c.

O Sett youre affeccyon vpon ryghteouſneſſe, ye yͭ be iudges of yͤ earth. Haue a good opinion of the Lorde, and ſeke hym in the ſyngleneſſe of herte. For he wyll be founde of thẽ that tempte him not, and appeareth vnto ſoche as put theyr truſt in hym. As for frowarde thoughtes, they ſeparate from God, but vertue (yf it be alowed) refourmeth the vnwyſe. And why? wyſdome ſhal not entre into a froward ſoule ner dwell in the body that is ſubdued vnto ſynne. For the holy gooſt abhorreth fayned nurtoure, and withdraweth him ſelfe frõ the thoughtes that are without vnderſtãdynge: and where wyckednes hath the vpper hãde, he flyeth from thence. For the ſprete of wyſdome is louynge, gentle and gracious, & will haue no pleaſure in hym that ſpeaketh euell with hys lyppes. For God is a wytneſſe of hys reynes, a true ſearcher out of hys herte, & an hearer of hys tonge. For the ſprete of the Lorde fylleth the rounde cõpaſſe of yͤ worlde: and yͤ ſame that vpholdeth all thynges, hath knowledge alſo of the voyce. A

Therfore, he that ſpeaketh vnryghteous thynges, can not be hydd, nether maye he eſcape the iudgement of reprofe. And why? inquiſycion ſhalbe made for the thoughtes of the vngodly, and the reporte of hys wordes ſhall come vnto God, ſo that his wickednes ſhalbe punyſhed. For the eare of gelouſy heareth all thynges, and the noyſe of the grudginges ſhall not be hydd. Therfore, be ware of murmurynge, whych is nothynge worth, and refrayne youre tonge frõ ſclaunder. For there is no worde ſo darck and ſecrete, that it ſhall goo for naught: and yͤ mouth that ſpeaketh lyes, ſlayeth the ſoule. B

O ſeke not your awne death in the errour of your lyfe, deſtroye not your ſelues thorow the workes of youre awne handes. For God hath not made death, nether hath he pleaſure in the deſtruccyon of the lyuynge. For he created all thynges, that they myght haue their beynge: yee, all the people of the earth hath he made that they ſhulde haue health, that there ſhulde be no deſtruccyon in them, and that the kyngdome of hell ſhulde not be vpõ earth (for ryghteouſnes is euerlaſtynge and immortall, but vnryghteouſnes bryngeth death.) Neuertheleſſe, the vngodly call C her vnto them both with woꝛdes & woꝛkes: and whyle they thyncke to haue a frende of her, they come to naught: foꝛ the vngodly that are confederate wyth her and take her parte, are woꝛthy of death.

¶The ymaginacyons and deſyꝛes of the wycked, and theyꝛ councell agaynſt the faythfull.

A FOꝛ the vngodly talke and ymagin thus amonge them ſelues (but not ryght:) The tyme of oure lyfe is but ſhoꝛt and tedyous: and whẽ a mã is once gone, he hath no moꝛe ioye ner pleaſure, nether knowe we eny man that turneth agayne from death: foꝛ we are boꝛne of naught, and we ſhall be herafter as though we had neuer bene. Foꝛ oure bꝛeth is as a ſmoke in oure noſetrels, and the woꝛde as a ſparck to moue oure herte. As foꝛ oure body, it ſhalbe very aſſhes that are quẽched, and our ſoule ſhall vanyſhe as the ſoft ayꝛe. Oure lyfe ſhall paſſe awaye as the trace of a cloude, and come to naught as the myſt that is dꝛyuen awaye wyth the beames of the Sonne, and put downe wyth ẏ heate therof. Oure name alſo ſhalbe foꝛgottẽ by lytle and lytle, and no man ſhall haue oure woꝛckes in remembꝛaunce.

B Foꝛ oure tyme is a very ſhadowe that paſſeth awaye, and after oure ende there is no returnynge, foꝛ it is faſt ſealed, ſo that no man commeth agayne. Come on therfoꝛe, let vs enioye the pleaſures that ther are, and lett vs ſoone vſe ẏ creature lyke as in youth. Let vs fyll oure ſelues with good wyne and oyntment, and let there no floure of the tyme go by vs. Let vs crowne our ſelues wͭ roſes afoꝛe they be wythered. Let there be no fayre medowe, but oure luſt goo thoꝛowe it. Let euery one of you be partaker of oure voluptuouſnes. Let vs leaue ſome tokẽ of our pleaſure in euery place, foꝛ that is oure poꝛcyon, els get we nothynge. Let vs oppꝛeſſe the pooꝛe ryghteous, let vs not ſpare the wyddowe ner olde man: let vs not regarde ẏ heades that are graye foꝛ age. Let the lawe of vnryghteouſneſſe be oure auctoꝛyte, foꝛ the thynge ẏ is feble is nothynge woꝛth. C Therfoꝛe let vs defraude ẏ ryghteous, and why? he is not foꝛ oure pꝛofyt, yee, he is cleane contrary to oure doynges. He checketh vs foꝛ offendynge agaynſt the lawe, and ſclaũdꝛeth vs as tranſgreſſours of all nurtour. He maketh hys boaſt to haue ẏ knowledge of God, yee, he calleth hym ſelfe Goddes ſonne. He is the bewꝛayer of our thoughtes: It greueth vs alſo to loke vpon hym, foꝛ hys lyfe is not lyke other mens, hys wayes are of another faſhyon. He counteth vs but vayne perſonnes, he wythdꝛaweth hym ſelfe from oure wayes as from fylthynes: he commendeth greatly the latter ende of the iuſt, and maketh hys boaſt ẏ God is hys father. Let vs ſe then yf hys woꝛdes be true, let vs pꝛoue what ſhall come vpon hym: ſo ſhall we knowe what ende he ſhall haue. D Foꝛ yf he be the true ſonne of God, he wyll receaue hym, and delyuer hym from the handes of hys enemyes. Let vs examen hym wyth deſpytefull rebuke and toꝛmentynge, that we maye knowe hys dignyte, and pꝛoue hys pacience. Let vs condemne hym with the moſt ſhamefull death: foꝛ lyke as he hath ſpoken, ſo ſhall he be rewarded.

Soch thynges do the vngodly ymagyn, and go aſtraye, foꝛ theyꝛ awne wyckednes hath blynded them. As foꝛ the myſteries of God, they vnderſtande thẽ not: they nether hope foꝛ the rewarde of ryghteouſneſſe, ner regarde the woꝛſhyp that holy ſoules ſhall haue: Foꝛ God created man to be vndeſtroyed, yee, after the * ymage of hys awne lyckeneſſe made he hĩ. Neuertheleſſe, thoꝛow enuye of ẏ deuell came death in to ẏ woꝛlde: and they that holde of his ſyde, do as he doth.

*Gene.i.b.

¶The.iij.Chapter.

¶The conſeruacyon and aſſurance of the ryghteous. The rewarde of the faythfull.

A BUt the ſoules of the ryghteous are in the hãde of God, and the payne of death ſhall not touche them. In the ſyght of ẏ vnwyſe they appeared to dye, and theyꝛ ende is taken foꝛ very deſtruccyon. The waye of the ryghteous is iudged to be vtter deſtruccyon, but they are in reſt. And though they ſuffre payne befoꝛe men, yet is theyꝛ hope full of immoꝛtalyte. They are punyſhed but in fewe thynges, neuertheleſſe in many thynges ſhall they be well rewarded. Foꝛ God pꝛoueth them, and fyndeth them mete foꝛ hym ſelfe: yee, as the golde in the foꝛnace doth he trye thẽ, and receaueth them as a bꝛent offerynge, and whẽ the tyme commeth, they ſhalbe loked vpon.

B The ryghteous ſhall ſhyne as ẏ ſparkes that renne thoꝛow the red buſſhe. They ſhall iudge the nacyons, and haue domynyon ouer the people, and their Loꝛde ſhall raygne foꝛ euer. They that put theyꝛ truſt in hym, ſhall vnderſtande the trueth, and ſoch as be faythfull, will agree vnto him in loue: foꝛ his choſen ſhall haue gyftes and peace. But the vngodly ſhalbe punyſhed accoꝛdynge to theyꝛ awne ymaginacions, foꝛ they haue deſpyſed the ryghteous, and foꝛſaken the Loꝛde.

Who ſo deſpyſeth wyſdome and nurtour, he is vnhappie, and as foꝛ the hope of ſoch, it is but vayne, theyꝛ labours vnfrutefull, and theyꝛ woꝛkes vnpꝛofitable. Theyꝛ wyues are vndiſcrete, and theyꝛ chyldꝛen moſt vngodly. Theyꝛ creature is curſed. Bleſſed is rather the baren and vndefyled, whych hath not knowne the ſynfull bedd: ſhe ſhall haue frute in the rewarde of the holy ſoules. And bleſſed is the gelded, which with hys handes D hath wrought no vnrighteouſneſſe, ner ymagined wycked thynges agaynſt God. For vnto hym ſhall be geuen the ſpecyall gyft of fayth, and the moſt acceptable porcyō in the temple of God. For glorious is the frute of good laboure, and the rote of wyſdome ſhall neuer fade awaye. As for the chyldren of aduouterers, they ſhall come to an ende, & the ſede of an vnryghteous bedde ſhalbe roted out. And though they lyue longe, yet ſhall they be nothynge regarded, and their laſt age ſhalbe without honoure. Yf they dye haſtely they haue no hope, nether ſhall they be ſpoken to in yͤ daye of knowledge. For horrible is the death and ende of the vnryghteous.

¶Of the chaſte generacyon of the faythfull, and of theyr felycite. Of the death of the ryghteous, and of the condemnacyon, of the vnfaythfull.

A O how fayre is a chaſte generacyon with vertue? The memoryall therof is immortall, for it is knowne with God and with men. When it is preſent, men take example there at: and yf it goo awaye, yet they deſyre it. It is allwaye crowned and holden in honour, and wynneth the rewarde of the vndefyled battayll. But yͤ multitude of vngodly chyldren is vnprofitable, and the thynges yͭ are planted wyth whoredome, ſhall take no depe rote, ner laye eny faſt foundacyon. Though they be grene in the braunches, for a tyme, yet ſhall they be ſhaken with the wynde: for they ſtande not faſt, and thorowe the vehemencye of the wynde they ſhalbe roted out. For the vnparfecte braunches ſhalbe brokē, their frute ſhalbe vnprofitable and ſowre to eate, yee, mete for nothinge. And why? all the chyldren that are borne of the wycked, muſt beare recorde of yͤ wyckedneſſe agaynſt their fathers & mothers, when they be aſked. But though the ryghteous be ouertaken wyth death, yet ſhall he be in reſt.

Age is an honorable thynge: neuertheles B it ſtandeth not onely in the length of tyme, ner in the multitude of yeares: but a mans wyſdome is the graye hearre, and an vndefyled lyfe is yͤ olde age. He pleaſed God, and was beloued of hym: ſo that where as he lyued amōge ſynners, he tranſlated him. *Yee ſodenly was he taken awaye, to the intent that wyckedneſſe ſhulde not alter hys vnderſtandynge, and that ypocryſie ſhulde not begyle hys ſoule. For the craftye bewitchynge of lyes make good thynges darck, the vnſtedfaſtneſſe alſo and wyckednes of volupteous deſyre turne aſyde the vnderſtandynge of the ſymple. Though he was ſoone deed, yet fulfylled he moch tyme. For hys ſoule pleaſed God: therfore haſted he to take hym awaye from amonge the wycked. Thys the people ſe, & vnderſtande it not: they laye not vp ſoche thynges in their hertes, howe that the louynge fauoure and mercy of God is vpon hys ſainctes, and that he hath reſpecte vnto hys choſen.

*Gene.v.c.

C Thus the ryghteous that is deed, condemneth the vngodly which are lyuynge: and the youth that is ſoone brought to an ende, the longe lyfe of the vnryghteous. For they ſe the ende of the wyſe, but they vnderſtande not what God hath deuyſed for hym, and wherfore the Lorde hath taken hym awaye. And why? they ſe him and deſpyſe him, therfore ſhall God alſo laugh them to ſcorne: So that they them ſelues ſhall dye here after (but wythout honour) yee, in ſhame amonge the deed for euermore. For without eny voyce ſhall he burſt thoſe that be puft vp, & remoue them from the foundacyons, ſo yͭ they ſhalbe layed waſte vnto yͤ hyeſt. They ſhall mourne, and theyr memoryall ſhall peryſhe. So they beynge afrayed ſhall remembre theyr ſynnes, and theyr awne wyckedneſſe ſhall bewraye them.

¶The.v.Chapter.

¶The conſtantnes of the ryghteous before theyr perſecuters. The hope of the vnfaythfull is vndurable and vayne. The bleſſednes of the ſainctes and godly.

A Then ſhall the ryghteous ſtande in great ſtedfaſtneſſe agaynſt ſoche as haue dealt extremely wͭ them, and taken awaye theyr labours. When they ſe it, they ſhalbe vexed with horrible feare, and ſhall wonder at the haſtyneſſe of yͤ ſodayne health: gronynge for very diſtreſſe of mynde, & ſhall ſaye wythin them ſelues, hauynge inwarde ſorowe, and mournynge for very anguyſhe of mynde.

Theſe are they, whom we ſomtyme had in deriſyon, & ieſted vpon. We fooles thought their lyfe very madneſſe, & their ende to be without honoure. But lo, howe they are counted amonge the chyldren of God, & theyr porcyon is amonge the ſaynctes. Therfore we haue erred from the waye of truthe, the lyght of ryghteouſneſſe hath not ſhyned vnto vs, and the ſunne of vnderſtandynge roſe not vp vpon vs. We haue weried our ſelues in the waye of wyckedneſſe and deſtruccyō. Tedious wayes haue we gone: but as for yͤ waye of the Lorde we haue not knowne it.

B What good hath oure pryde done vnto vs? Or, what profyt hath the pompe of ryches brought vs? All thoſe thynges are paſſed awaye lyke a ſhadowe, and as a meſſāger rennynge before: as a ſhyppe that paſſeth ouer the waues of the water, which when it is gone by, the trace therof cannot be founde nether the path of it in the floudes. Or as a byrde that flyeth thorow in the ayre, and no man can ſe eny token where ſhe is flowen, but onely heareth the noyſe of her wynges, beatinge the light wynde, partinge the ayre thorowe the vehemencye of her goynge, and flyeth on ſhakyng her wynges, where as afterwarde no token of her waye can be foun-de. Or lyke as when an arowe is ſhott at a marck, it parteth ẏ ayre, whych immediatly commeth together agayne, ſo that a mã can not knowe where it wẽte thorow. Euẽ ſo we in lyke maner as ſoone as we were borne, beganne immediatly to drawe to oure ende, and haue ſhewed no token of vertue, but are conſumed in oure awne wyckedneſſe.

Soch wordes ſhall they that haue ſynned
C ſpeake in the hell: for the hope of the vngodly is lyke a drye thyſtell floure (or duſt) that is blowen awaye with the winde: lyke a thyn-ne ſcomme that is ſcatred abrode with the ſtorme: lyke as the ſmoke whych is diſperſed here and there with the wynde, and as the re-membraunce of a ſtraunger that taryeth for a daye, and then departeth. But ẏ ryghteous ſhall lyue for euermore: their reward alſo is with the Lorde: and their remẽbraunce with the Hyeſt. Therfore, ſhall they receaue a glo rious kyngdome, and a bewtifull crowne of the Lordes hande: for with hys ryghthande ſhall he couer them and with hys awne holy arme ſhall he defende them. Hys gelouſy alſo ſhall take awaye the harneſſe, and he ſhall weapen the creature to be auẽged of the ene-myes. He ſhall put on righteouſnes for a breaſt plate, and take ſure iudgemẽt in ſtrade of an helmet. The inuincyble ſhylde of equyte ſhall he take, his cruell wrath ſhall he ſharpẽ for a ſpeare, and ẏ whole cõpaſe of ẏ worlde ſhall fyght with him agaynſt the vnwyſe.

D Then ſhall the thonder boltes go out of the lyghtenynges, and come out of the rayne bowe of the cloudes to the place apoynted:
out of the harde ſtony indignacyõ, there ſhall fall thyck hayles, and the water of the ſee ſhalbe wroth agaynſt them, and the floudes ſhall renne roughly together. Yee, a myghty wynde ſhall ſtande vp agaynſt them, and a ſtorme ſhall ſcater thẽ abrode. Thus the vn-ryghteous dealynge of them ſhall brynge all the lande to a wyldernes, & wyckednes ſhall ouerthrowe the dwellynges of the myghtie.

¶ The. vj. Chapter.

¶ The callynge of kynges, Prynces, and Iudges: whych are alſo exhorted to ſearche wyſdome.

A Wyſdome is better then ſtrẽgth, and a man of vnderſtandynge is more worth then one ẏ is ſtronge. Heare therfore (O ye kynges) and vn-derſtande: O lerne ye that be iudges of the endes of the earth. Geue care ye that rule the multitudes, and delyte in moch people. For the power is geuen you of the Lorde, and the ſtrength from the Hyeſt: whych ſhall trye youre worckes and ſearche out youre ymaginacyons: Howe that ye beynge offycers of hys kyngdome, haue not executed true iud-gement, haue not kepte the lawe of ryghteouſnes, nor walked after the wyll of God.
Horribly & that ryght ſoone ſhall he appeare B vnto you: for an harde iudgement ſhall they haue that beare rule. Mercye is grãted vnto the ſymple, but they that be in auctoryte ſhalbe ſore puniſhed. For God which is Lorde ouer all, ſhall excepte no mans perſonne, nether ſhall he ſtande in awe of any mans greatneſſe. For he hath made the ſmall and greate, & careth for all a lyke. But ẏ myghty ſhall haue the ſorer punyſhement.

Unto you therfore (O ye kynges) do I ſpeake, that ye maye lerne wyſdome and not go amyſſe. For they that kepe hys ryghteouſnes ſhalbe ryghteouſly iudged, and they that are lerned in ryghteous thynges, ſhall fynde to make anſwere. Wherfore, ſet youre luſt vpõ my wordes, and loue them, ſo ſhall ye come by nurtour. Wyſdome is a noble thynge, and neuer fadeth awaye: yee, ſhe is eaſely ſene of them that loue her, and founde of ſoche as ſeke her. She preuenteth them that deſyre her, that ſhe maye fyrſt ſhewe her C ſelfe vnto them. Whoſo awaketh vnto her by tymes, ſhall haue no greate trauayle, for he ſhall fynde her ſyttynge readye at hys dores. To thyncke vpon her, is parfecte vnderſtandynge: and whoſo watcheth for her, ſhalbe ſafe, and that ſoone. For ſhe goeth a-boute, ſekynge ſoch as are mete for her, ſheweth her ſelfe cherefully vnto them in theyr goynges, and meteth thẽ with all diligence.
For the vnfayned deſyre of refourmacyõ is her begynnynge: to care for nurtour is loue, and loue is the kepynge of her lawes. Now the kepynge of the lawes is perfeccyon and an vncorrupte lyfe, and an vncorrupte lyfe maketh a man familier wyth God. And ſo the deſyre of wyſdome leadeth to the kyngdome euerlaſtynge. If youre delyte be then D in royall ſeates and cepters (O ye kynges of the people) ſet youre luſt vpon wyſdome, ẏ ye maye raygne for euer more. O loue the light of wyſdome, all ye that be rulers of the people. As for wyſdome what ſhe is, and howe ſhe came vp, I wyll tell you, and wyll not hyde the myſteryes of God frõ you: but will ſeke her out from the begynnynge of the natiuite, and brynge the knowledge of her into lyght, and wyll not kepe back ẏ trueth: Nether wyll I haue to do with conſumynge enuye, for ſoch a man ſhall not be partaker of wyſdome. But the multitude of the wyſe is the welfare of the worlde, & a wyſe kynge is the vpholdynge of the people. O receaue nourtoure then thorowe my wordes, and it ſhall do you good.

❡Wyſdome ought to be preferred before all thynges.

A I My ſelfe alſo am a mortall man, lyke as all other, and am come of the earthy generacion of him that was fyrſt made, and in my mothers wombe was I faſhyoned to be fleſhe: In the tyme of ten monethes was I brought together in bloude thorow the ſede of man, and the cōmodyous appetyte of ſlepe. When I was borne, I receaued lyke ayre as other men, & fell vpō the earth (which is my nature) cryinge and wepynge at the fyrſt, as all other do. I was wrapped in ſwadlynge clothes, and brought vp with greate cares. For there is no kynge ỷ hath had eny other begynnynge of byrth. All men then haue one entraunce vnto lyfe, and one goynge out in lyke maner.

B Wherfore I deſyred, and vnderſtandynge was geuen me: I called, and ỷ ſprete of wyſdome came into me. I ſet more by her then by kyngdomes and royall ſeates, and counted ryches nothynge in comparyſon of her. As for precious ſtone, I cōpared it not vnto her: for all golde is but grauell vnto her, and ſyluer ſhalbe counted but claye before her ſyght. I loued her aboue wellfare and beutye, & purpoſed to take her for my lyght, for her lyght cannot be quenched. All good thinges came to me wyth her, and innumerable ryches thorowe her handes. I was glad in thē all, for thys wyſdome wente before me, and I knew not that ſhe is the mother of all good thynges. Nowe as I my ſelfe learned vnfaynedly, ſo do I make other men partakers of her, and hyde her ryches frō no man: for ſhe is an infinite treaſure vnto mē, which who ſo vſe, become partakers of ỷ loue and frendſhyppe of God, and are accepted vnto hym for the gyftes of wyſdome.

C God hath graunted me to talke wyſely, and conueniently to handle the thynges that he hath graciouſly lent me. For it is he, that ledeth vnto wyſdome, and teacheth to vſe wyſdome a ryght. In hys hand are both we & oure wordes: yee all oure wyſdome, oure vnderſtandynge and knowledge of all oure worckes. For he hath geuen me the true ſcience of theſe thynges: ſo that I knowe howe the worlde was made, and ỷ powers of the elementes: the begynnynge, endynge and myddeſt of the tymes: howe the tymes alter, howe one goeth after another, & howe they are fulfylled, the courſe of the yeare: the ordinaunces of the ſtarres: the natures & kyndnes of beaſtes: the furiouſneſſe of beaſtes: the power of the wyndes: the ymaginacyons of men: the dyuerſyties of yonge plantes: the vertues of rotes, and all ſoch thynges as are ſecrete and not loked for, haue I learned. For D the worckmaſter of all thynges hath taught me wyſdome. In her is the ſprete of vnderſtandynge, whych is holy, manyfolde, one onely, ſotyll, curteous, diſcrete, quyck, vndefyled, playne, ſwete, louynge the thynge that is good, ſharpe, whych forbyddeth not to do well, gentle, kynde, ſtedfaſt, ſure, free: hauynge all vertues, circūſpecte in all thynges: receauinge all ſpretes of vnderſtādynge beynge cleane and ſharpe. For wyſdome is nymbler then all nymble thynges: ſhe goeth thorowe and attayneth to all thynges, becauſe of her clēnes. For ſhe is the breth of the power of God, and a pure cleane expreſſynge of the clearnes of Allmyghtie God. Therfore can no vndefyled thinge come vnto her: for ſhe is the bryghtnes of the euerlaſtynge lyght, the vndefyled myroure of the maieſty of God, and ỷ ymage of hys goodneſſe. And for ſo moch as ſhe is one, ſhe maye do all thinges: E and beynge ſtedfaſt her ſelfe ſhe renueth all, and amonge the people conueyeth ſhe her ſelfe into the holy ſoules. She maketh Goddes fryndes and prophetes: for God loueth no man, but hym in whom wyſdome dwelleth. For ſhe is more beutyfull then ỷ Sunne, and geueth more lyght then the ſtarres, and the daye is not to be cōpared vnto her: for vpon the daye cōmeth nyght. But wyckedneſſe cānot ouercome wyſdome, and foolyſhnes maye not be with her.

❡The.viij.Chapter.

❡The effectes of wyſdome.

A Wyſdome reacheth from one ende to another myghtely, & louingly doth ſhe ordre all thynges. I haue loued her, and laboured for her, euen fro my youth vp: I dyd my diligence to mary my ſelfe with her, ſoch loue had I vnto her beutye. Who ſo hath the company of God, commendeth her nobilyte, yee, the Lorde of all thynges him ſelfe loueth her. For ſhe is the ſcolemaſtreſſe of the nurtour of God, and the choſer out of hys workes. Yf a man wolde deſyre ryches in this lyfe, what is rycher then wyſdome, that worketh all thynges? Thou wylt ſaye: vnderſtandynge worketh. What is it amonge all thynges, that worketh more thē wyſdome? If a man loue vertue and ryghteouſnes, let him laboure for wyſdome, for ſhe hath great vertues. And why? ſhe teacheth ſobernes & prudence, ryghteouſnes and ſtrength. which are ſoch thynges as men can haue nothynge more profitable in their lyfe. If a man deſyre B moch knowledge, ſhe can tell ỷ thynges that are paſt, and diſcerne thynges for to come: ſhe knoweth the ſoteltyes of wordes, and can expounde darcke ſentences. She can tell of tokens and wonderous thynges, or euer they come to paſſe, and ỷ endes of all tymes and ages. So I purpoſed after thys maner: I wyll take her vnto my company, and commen louyngly wᵗ her: no doute ſhe ſhall geue me good coūcell, and ſpeake cōfortably vnto me in my carefulnes and grefe. For her ſake ſhall I be well and honeſtly taken amonge the comens and lordes of ẏ coūcell. Though I be yonge, yet ſhall I haue ſharpe vnderſtādynge, ſo that I ſhalbe maruelous in the ſyght of greate men, and the faces of Prynces ſhall wonder at me. When I holde my tonge, they ſhall byde my leaſure: when I ſpeake, they ſhall loke vpō me, and yf I talke moch, they ſhall laye their handes vpō theyr mouth: Moreouer, by the meanes of her I ſhall obtayne immortalyte, and leaue behinde me an euerlaſtynge memoryall amonge them that come after me. I ſhall ſet the people in ordre, and the nacyons ſhalbe ſubdued vnto me. Horryble tyraūtes ſhalbe afrayed, when they do but heare of me: amonge the multitude I ſhalbe coūted good, and myghtye in batayll. When I come home, I ſhall fynde reſte wyth her: for her company hath no bytternes, and her felouſhyp hath no tedyouſneſſe, but myrth and ioye.

C Nowe when I conſydered theſe thynges by my ſelfe, and pondered them in my herte, howe that to be ioyned vnto wyſdome is immortalyte, and greate pleaſure to haue her frendſhyppe: howe that in the workes of her handes are infinyte ryches: howe that, who ſo kepeth cōpany with her ſhalbe wyſe: and that he which talketh with her, ſhall come to honoure: I wente aboute ſekynge, together vnto me. For I was a lad of a rype wytt, and had a good vnderſtandynge.

But when I grewe to more vnderſtandynge, I came to an vndefyled body. Neuertheles when I perceaued that I coulde not kepe my ſelfe chaſte, excepte God gaue it me (and that was a poynte of wyſdome alſo, to knowe whoſe gyft it was) I ſtepped vnto ẏ Lorde, and beſought hym, and wᵗ my whole herte I ſayde after thys maner.

¶ The.ix.Chapter.

¶ A prayer of Salomon to obtayne wyſdome.

A O God of my fathers, and Lorde of mercyes (thou that haſt made all thinges with thy worde, and ordeyned mā thorowe thy wyſdome, that he ſhulde haue * dominyon ouer the creature whych thou haſt made: that he ſhulde ordre the worlde accordynge to equyte and ryghteouſnes, and execute iudgement wyth a true hert) geue me wyſdome, which is euer about thy ſeate, and put me not out from amonge thy chyldren: for I thy ſeruaunt and ſonne of thy hand maydē am a feble perſonne, of a ſhorte tyme, and to younge to the vnderſtādynge of iudgement and the lawes. And though a man be neuer ſo parfecte amonge the chyldren of men, yet yf thy wyſdome be not with hym, he ſhalbe nothynge regarded. But thou haſt choſen me to be a kynge vnto thy people, and the iudge of thy ſonnes and daughters.

*Gene.i.d.

B Thou haſt commaunded me to buylde a temple vpon thy holy mount, and an aulter in the cytie wherin thou dwelleſt: a lyckneſſe of thy holy tabernacle whych thou haſt prepared from the begynnynge, and thy wyſdome with the, which knoweth thy workes which alſo was with the, when thou madeſt the worlde, and knewe what was acceptable in thy ſyght and ryght in thy commaundementes. O ſende her out of thy holy heauens and from the trone of thy maieſty, that ſhe maye be with me, and laboure with me: that I maye knowe, what is acceptable in thy ſyght. For ſhe knoweth and vnderſtandeth all thynges: & ſhe ſhall lede me ſoberly in my workes, and preſerue me in her power So ſhall my workes be acceptable, and then ſhall I gouerne thy people ryghteouſly, and be worthy to ſyt in my fathers ſeate. For what man is he, that maye knowe the councell of God? Or, who can thynke what the wyll of God is? For the thoughtes of mortall men are myſerable, and oure forcaſtes are but vncertayne. C And why? a mortall and corruptible body is heuy vnto the ſoule, and the earthy manſyon kepeth downe that vnderſtādynge that muſeth vpon many thynges. Very hardly can we diſcerne the thynges that are vpō earth, & greate labour haue we, or we can fynde the thynges whych are before oure eyes: Who will then ſeke oute the grounde of the thynges that are done in heauen? Oh Lorde, who can haue knowledge of thy vnderſtandynge and meanynge, excepte thou geue wyſdome, & ſende thy holy gooſt from aboue? that the wayes of them whych are vpō earth, maye be refourmed: that men maye learne the thinges ẏ are pleaſaūt vnto the, and be preſerued thorow wyſdome.

¶ The delyueraunce of the ryghteous commeth through wyſdome.

¶ The .xiij. Chapter.

¶ All thynges be vayne, excepte the knowlege of God. Idolaters and Idols are mocked.

Vayne are all men, whiche haue not A knowledge of God: * as were they * Roma.i.b. that out of the good thinges which are ſene, knewe not hym, yͭ of hym ſelfe is euerlaſtynge. Nether toke they ſo moche regarde of ẏ workes that are made, as to

as to knowe, who was the crafteſmã of thẽ but ſome toke the fyre, ſome the wynde or ayre, ſome the courſe of the ſtarres, ſome the water, ſome toke Sunne and Moone, or the lyghtes of heauen whiche rule the earth, for goddes. But though they had ſoch pleaſure in their beuty, that they thought thẽ to haue bene goddes: yet ſhulde they haue knowen, how moch more fayrer he is that made thẽ.

B For the maker of beuty hath ordened all theſe thynges. Or yf they marueled at the power and workes of them, they ſhuld haue perceaued therby, that he whiche made theſe thynges, is myghtyer then they.

For by the greatneſſe and beuty of the creature, the maker therof may playnely be knowen. Not withſtandynge they are the leſſe to be blamed, that ſeke God, and wolde fynde hym, and yet myſſe. And why? for ſo moche as they go about in hys workes and ſeke after them, it is a token, ẏ they regarde and holde moche of hys workes that are ſene how be it they are not wholy to be excuſed. For yf theyr vnderſtandynge & knowledge be ſo greate, that they can diſerne the worlde and the creatures, why do they not rather fynde out the Lorde therof?

But vnhappye are they, and amonge the deed is theyr hope, that call them Goddes whiche are but the workes of mens handes: golde, ſyluer, and the thynge that is founde out by connynge, the ſimilitude of beaſtes, or any vayne ſtone that hath bene made by hande of olde. *Or as when a carpẽter cutteth downe a tree out of the wood, and pareth of the bark of it conningly: and ſo with the one parte maketh a veſſell to be vſed, & dreſſeth meate with the reſydue. As for the other parte that is left, whiche is profytable for nothyng (for it is a croked pece of wood C and full of knobbes) he carueth it diligently thorow hys vanite, and accordynge to the knowledge of hys connyng) he geueth it ſome proporcion, faſhioneth it after the ſymilitude of a man, or maketh it lyke ſome beaſt ſtraketh it ouer with red, and paynteth it, & loke what foule ſpot is in it he caſteth ſome coloure vpon it.

Then maketh he a conuenient tabernacle for it, ſetteth it in the wall, & maketh it faſte with yron, prouidynge ſo for it, leſt it happẽ to fall: for it is well knowen, that it can not helpe it ſelfe: And why? it is but an ymage, & muſt of neceſſite be helped.

D Then goeth he & offreth of his goodes vnto it, for hys chyldren and for hys wyfe: he ſeketh helpe at it, he aſketh councell at it: he is not aſhamed to ſpeake vnto it that hath no ſoule: for health, he maketh his peticiõ vnto hym that is ſycke: for lyfe, he prayeth vnto him that is deed: he calleth vpõ him for helpe that is not able to helpe hym ſelfe: & to ſende hym a good iourneye, he prayeth him ẏ may not go. And in all the thinges that he taketh in hãde (whether it be to obtayne any thyng or to worke) he prayeth vnto hym, that can do no maner of good.

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ The deteſtacyon and abhominacion of ymages. A curſe of them, and of hym that maketh them. The euelles that come of Idolatrye.

A Agayne, another mã purpoſing to ſayle, and beginning to take hys iourney thorowe the ragynge ſee, calleth for helpe vnto a ſtock, that is farre weaker then the tree that beareth him. For as for it, coueteouſneſſe of money hath founde it out, & the crafteſman made it with hys cõnyng.

But thy prouidence, O father, gouerneth all thynges frõ the begynninge: *For thou haſt made a waye in the ſee, and a ſure path in the myddeſt of ẏ waues: declarynge therby, that thou haſt power to helpe in all thinges, yee, though a man wẽte to the ſee without ſhyp. B Neuertheleſſe, that the workes of thy wyſdome ſhulde not be vayne, *thou haſt cauſed an arke to be made: and therfore do men committe theyr lyues to a ſmal pece of wod, paſſynge ouer the ſee in a ſhyp, & are ſaued.

*Exo.xiiii.d

*Gene.vi.b.

*For in the olde tyme alſo whẽ the proude gyauntes periſhed, he (in whom ẏ hope was left to increaſe the worlde) wente into the ſhyppe, whiche was gouerned thorowe thy hande, and ſo lefte ſede behinde hym vnto ẏ world. For happye is ẏ tree, where thorowe ryghteouſnes commeth: but curſed is ẏ ydol that is made with hãdes, *ye both it and he that made it. He, becauſe he made it: and it, becauſe it was called God, where as it is but a frayle thynge. *For the vngodly and hys vngodlines are both lyke abhominable vnto God. Euen ſo ẏ worke and he that made it alſo, ſhalbe punyſſhed together. Therfore ſhall there a plage come vpon the ydoles of the Heathen: for out of the creatoure of God they are become an abhomynacyon, a temptacyon vnto the ſoules of men, and a ſnare for the fete of the vnwyſe. And why, the ſekynge out of ydoles is the begynnynge of whoredome, and the bryngynge vp of thẽ is the deſtruccyon of lyfe. For they were not C from the begynnynge, nether ſhall they contynue for euer. The welthy ydelnes of men hath founde them out vpon earth, therfore ſhall they come ſhortly to an ende. When a father mourned for hys ſonne ẏ was taken awaye frõ hym, he made hym an ymage (in all ẏ haſte) of hys deed ſonne: & ſo begãne to worſhip him as God, which was but a deed man, & ordened hys ſeruaũtes to offre vnto hĩ. Thus by proceſſe of time & thorow an vngracious cuſtome, thys erroure was kepte:

*Gene.vii.d

and.cxxxv.c.

as a lawe, and tyraūtes compelled men by violence to honour ymages. As for thoſe ÿ were ſo farre of that men myghte not worſhyppe them preſently, theyr pycture was brought frō farre (lyke the ymage of a kyng whom they wolde honoure) to the intente ÿ with greate diligence they myght worſhyp hym whiche was farre of, as though he had bene preſent. Agayne, the ſingular cōninge of the crafteſman gaue the ignoraunt alſo a great occaſion to worſhyp ymages. For the workman wyllyng to do hym a pleaſure ÿ ſet hym a worke, laboured with all his conninge to make ÿ ymage of the beſt faſhion.

D And ſo (thorow the beuty of the worke) the comen people was diſceaued, in ſo moche ÿ they toke hym now for a God, which a lytle afore was but honored as a man. And thys was the erroure of mans lyfe, when men (ether for to ſerue theyr awne affecciō, or to do ſome pleaſure vnto kynges) aſcribed vnto ſtones and ſtockes ÿ name of God, which ought to be geuen vnto no man.

Moreouer, thys was not ynough for thē that they erred in the knowledge of God: but where as they lyued in the greate warres of ignoraunce, thoſe many ⁊ greate plages called they peace. For ether * they ſlue theyr awne chyldren, ⁊ offred them, or dyd ſacryfyce in ÿ nyghte ſeaſon, or els helde vnreaſonable watches: ſo that they kepte nether lyfe nor mariage cleane: but ether one ſlue another to death maliciouſly, or els greued hys neyghboure wyth aduoutrye. And thus were all thinges mixt together, bloud, E manſlaughter, theft, diſſimulacion, corrupcion, vnfaythfulneſſe, ſedicyon, periury, diſquietynge of good men, vnthankfulnes, defylinge of ſoules, chaungynge of byrth, vnſtedfaſtneſſe of mariage, miſorder of aduoutrye and vncleneſſe. And why? the honouringe of abhominable ymages is the cauſe, the begynnynge and ende of all euell. For they that worſhyppe Idols, ether they are mad when they be mery, or propheceye lyes, or lyue vngodly, or els lyghtly forſweare them ſelues. For in ſo moche as their truſt is in ÿ Idols (whiche haue nether ſoule nor vnderſtandynge) thoughe they ſweare falſely, yet they thynke it ſhall not hurte them.

and.xix.a.

Therfore commeth a greate plage vpon them, and that worthely: for they haue an euell oppinion of God, geuynge hede vnto Idols, ſwearynge vniuſtly to diſceaue, and deſpyſing ryghteouſnes. For theyr ſwearynge is no vertue, but a plage of them that ſynne, and goeth euer with the offence of the vngodly.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

¶ The voyce of the faythfull, prayſynge the mercy of God, for whoſe graces ſake they ſerue not Idols.

A But thou (O our God) art ſwete, lōg ſufferynge ⁊ true, and in mercy ordreſt thou all thynges.

Though we ſynne, yet are we thyne, for we knowe thy ſtrength. Yf we ſynne not, then are we ſure, that thou regardeſt vs. For to knowe the, is parfecte ryghteouſnes Yee, to knowe thy ryghteouſnes and power is the rote of immortalite. As for the thynge that men haue foūde out thorowe their euell ſcience, it hath not diſceaued vs: as the payntinge of the picture (an vnprofitable laboure) and carued ymage, with diuerſe colours, whoſe ſyght entyſeth the ignoraunt: ſo that he honoureth ⁊ loueth the picture of a deed ymage that hath no ſoule.

B Neuertheleſſe, they that loue ſoche euell thinges, are worthy of death: they that truſt in them, they that make them, they that loue them, and they that honoure them. The potter alſo taketh and tempereth ſoft earth, laboureth it, and geueth it ÿ faſſhyon of a veſſell, what ſoeuer ſerueth for oure vſe: and ſo of one pece of claye he maketh ſome cleane veſſell for ſeruice, and ſome contrary. But where to euery veſſel ſerueth, that knoweth the potter hym ſelfe. So with his vayne laboure he maketh a God of the ſame claye: thys doth euen he, whiche a lytle afore was made of earth hym ſelfe, and within a lytle whyle after (when he dieth) turneth to earth agayne.

C Notwithſtandyng, he careth not the more becauſe he ſhall labour, nor becauſe hys lyfe is ſhort: but ſtryueth to excell goldſmythes, the ſyluerſmythes and coperſmythes, ⁊ taketh it for an honour to make vayne thynges. For hys herte is aſhes, hys hope is but vayne earth, ⁊ his lyfe is more vile thē claye for ſo moch as he knoweth not his awne maker, that gaue hym hys ſoule to worke, and brethed in hym the breth of lyfe. They coūte oure lyfe but a paſtyme, and oure conuerſacion to be, but a market, and that men ſhuld euer be gettynge, and that by euell meanes. Now he that of earth maketh frayle veſſels and ymages, knoweth hym ſelfe to offende aboue all other.

D All ÿ enemyes of thy people ⁊ that holde thē in ſubiecciō, are vnwyſe, vnhappye, and exceadinge proude vnto theyr awne ſoules, for they iudge all the Idols of the Heathen to be goddes, which nether haue eye ſight to ſe, nor noſes to ſmell, nor eares to heare, nor fyngers of hādes for to grope: ⁊ as for theyr fete, they are to ſlowe to go. For man made them, ⁊ he that hath but a borowed ſprete, faſhioned them. But no mā can make a God lyke vnto hym: for ſeynge he is but mortall hym ſelfe, it is but mortall that he maketh with vnryghteous handes. He hym ſelfe is better then they whom he worſhyppeth, for he lyued though he was mortall, ſo dyd never they. Yee, they worſhyppe beaſtes alſo, which are moſt miſerable: for compare thinges that can not fele vnto thẽ, and they are worſe then thoſe. Yet is there not one of theſe beaſtes, that with hys ſyghte can beholde any good thing, nether haue they geuẽ praiſe nor thankes vnto God.

* For when ỹ vnryghteous thought *Exod.x.c. to haue thy holy people in ſubiecciō, they were bounde with the bandes of darkenes and longe nyght, ſhut vnder the rofe, thinkynge to eſcape the euerlaſtynge wyſdome. And whyle they thought to be hyd in ỹ darkneſſe of theyr ſinnes, they were ſcatered abrode in the very myddeſt of the darke couerynge of forgetfulnes, put to horrible feare and wonderouſly vexed: for the corner where they myghte not kepe them from feare (becauſe the ſounde came downe and vexed them) yee, many terryble and ſtraunge viſions made them afrayed.

B No power of the fyre myghte geue them lyght, nether myghte the cleare flammes of ỹ ſtarres lyghten ỹ horrible nyght. For there appeared vnto them a ſodayne fyre, very dredefull: At the which (whē they ſawe nothinge) they were ſo afrayed, ỹ they thought the thinge which they ſawe, to be the more fearfull. * As for ỹ ſorcery & enchauntemēt * Exo. vii. b. that they vſed, it came to deriſion, and the proude wyſdome was brought to ſhame. For they that promyſed to dryue awaye the fearfulnes and drede frome the weake ſoules, were ſick for feare them ſelues, and that with ſcorne. And thoughe none of the wonders feared thē, yet were they afrayed at the beaſtes which came vpon them, & at ỹ hyſſynge of the ſerpētes. In ſo moche that with trēblinge they ſowned, and ſayde they ſawe not ỹ ayre, which no man yet maye eſcape.

For it is an heuy thynge, when a mans C awne conſcience beareth recorde of hys wickednes and condempneth hym. And why? a vexed and wounded conſcience, taketh euer cruell thynges in hāde. * Fearfulnes is no- * Pſa. xxvi. a thinge els, but a declaring that a man ſeketh helpe and defence, to anſwere for hym ſelfe. And loke how moch leſſe the hope is within, the more is the vncertentye of the mater, for the which he is punyſhed. But they that came in the myghty nyght: ſlepte the ſlepe that fell vpon them from vnder and from aboue: ſomtyme were they afrayed thorow the feare of the wonders, and ſometyme they were ſo weake that they ſowned withall: for an haſty & ſodayne fearfulnes came vpon thē.

Afterwarde, yf any of them had fallen, he D was kepte and ſhut in preſon, but without chaynes. But yf any dwelt in a vyllage, yf he had bene an hearde or huſbandman he ſuffred intollerable neceſſite: for they were all bounde with one chayne of darkneſſe.

Whether it were a blaſynge wynde, or a ſwete ſonge of the byrdes amōge the thycke braunches of the trees, or the vehemencye of haſtye runnynge water, or greate noyſe of the fallinge downe of ſtones, or the playeng and runnynge of beaſtes whom they ſawe not, or the myghtye noyſe of roarynge beaſtes, or the ſownde that anſwereth agayne in the hye mountaynes: it made them ſowne for very feare. For all the earthe ſhyned wyth cleare lyghte, and no man was hyndered in hys labour. Onely vpon them there fell a heuy nyghte, an ymage of darckneſſe that was to come vpō them. Yee, they were vnto them ſelues the moſt heuy and horrible darkeneſſe.

Of that nyght were oure fathers certifyed afore, that they knowyng vnto what othes they had geuen credence, myght be of good cheare. Thus thy people receaued the health of the righteous, but the vngodly were deſtroyed. For lyke as thou haſt hurte oure enemies, ſo haſt thou promoted vs whom thou calledeſt afore. C * Nether were ỹ lyuinge ſufficient to bury * Exod. xii. e. ỹ deed, for in ỹ twinckelynge of an eye, ỹ nobleſt nacyon of them was deſtroyed. As oft as God helped them afore, yet wolde it not make thē beleue: but in the deſtruccion of the fyrſt borne they knowledged, that it was ỹ people of God. For whyle all thinges were ſtyll & whē the nyght was in the myddeſt of her courſe, thy Almighty worde (O Lorde) leapte downe from heauen out of thy royall trone, as a rough man of warre, in the myddeſt of the lāde that was deſtroyed: & ỹ ſharpe ſwerde perfourmed theyr ſtraite cōmaundement, ſtandynge and ſyllyng all thynges with death: yee, it ſtode vpō the earth & reached vnto the heauen. For he knew before what ſhulde happẽ vnto them: how yᵗ (whẽ they had conſented to let thẽ go, & had ſent out with greate diligence) they wolde repente, and folowe vpõ them. * For when they were yet moorning and makynge lamentacyon by the graues of the deed, they deuyſed another foolyſhnes: ſo that they perſecuted them in theyr flyenge, whome they had caſt out afore with prayer. Worthy neceſſyte alſo broughte them vnto thys ende, for they had cleane forgotten the thynges that happened vnto them afore. But the thynges that was wantynge of theyr punyſhmẽt, was requyſite ſo to be fulfylled vpon them with tormentes, that thy people myght haue a maruelous paſſage thorow, & that theſe myghte fynde a ſtraunge death.

B Thẽ was euery creature faſhyoned agayne of newe, accordinge to the will of theyr maker, obeynge thy commaundementes that thy chyldren myght be kept without hurte, For the cloude ouerſhadowed theyr tentes, & the drye earth appeared, where afore was water: ſo yᵗ in the red ſee there was a waye without impediment, & the greate depe became a grene felde: where thorow all yͤ people went that were defended with thy hand, ſeinge thy wonderous and maruelous workes. For as the horſes, ſo were they fed, and leapte lyke lambes, prayſinge yͤ (O Lorde) which haddeſt delyuered thẽ: and why? they were yet myndefull of the thynges, yᵗ happened whyle they dwelt in yͤ lande: how the grounde brought forth flyes in ſteade of catell: & how the ryuer ſcrauled with the multitude of frogges in ſteade of fyſſhes.

C * But at the laſt they ſawe a new creaciõ of byrdes, what tyme as they were diſceaued with luſt, and deſyred delicate meates. For when they were ſpeakynge of theyr appetite, the quayles came vp vnto them from the ſee, and punyſhmentes came vpon the ſynners, not without the tokẽs which came to paſſe afore by the vehemencye of the ſtreames: for they ſuffred worthely accordinge to theyr wickedneſſes, they dealt ſo abhomynably and churlyſhly wᵗ ſtraungers. Some receaued no vnknowen geſtes, ſome broughte the ſtraungers into bondage that dyd them good. Beſyde all theſe thynges there were ſome, that not onely receaued no ſtraungers with theyr willes, but perſecuted thoſe alſo, * and dyd them moche euell, that receaued them gladly. Therfore were they punyſhed with * blyndneſſe, lyke as they that were couered with ſodayne darkneſſe at the dores of the ryghteous, ſo that euery one ſoughte the entraunce of hys dore.

D Thus the elementes turned into them ſelues, lyke as when one tune is chaunged vpon an inſtrumente of muſyck, and yet all the reſidue kepe theyr melody: whiche maye eaſely be perceaued, by the ſyght of the thinges that are come to paſſe. The drye lande was turned into a watery, and the thynge that afore ſwamme in the water, were now vpon the drie grounde. The fyre had power in the water (contrary to hys awne vertue) & the water forgat hys awne kynde to quenche. Agayne, the flammes of the noyſome beaſtes burnt not the fleſh of them that were with them, nether melted they the yſe, which els melted lyghtely. ¶ The boke of Ieſus the ſonne of Syrach/ which is called in latyn/ Eccleſiaſticus.

¶ The Prologe of Ieſus the ſonne of Syrach vnto hys boke.

MAny and great mē haue declared wyſdome vnto vs out of yͤ law, out of the Prophetes & oute of other that folowed them. In the which thinges Iſrael ought to be commēded, by the reaſon of doctryne and wyſdome: Therfore, they yͤ haue it and reade it, ſhulde not onely thē ſelues be wyſe there thorow, but ſerue other alſo with teachynge and wrytynge.

After yͤ my grāude father IESUS had geuē diligēt labour to read the lawe, yͤ Prophetes & other bokes that were left vs of oure fathers, & had wel exercised hym ſelfe therin: he purpoſed alſo to wryte ſomethyng of wyſdome & good maners, to the intent that they which were willynge to learne & to be wyſe, myght haue yͤ more vnderſtandynge, and be the more apte to leade a good conuerſacyon.

Wherfore, I exhorte you to receaue it louyngly, to reade it with diligence, & to take it in good worth, though oure wordes be not ſo eloquent as the famous oratours. For the thyng yͤ is wrytten in the Hebrue tonge, ſoundeth not ſo well when it is tranſlated into another ſpeache. Not onely thys boke of myne, but alſo the lawe, the Prophetes & other bokes ſounde farre other wyſe, then they do, whē they are ſpokē in their awne language.

Now in the.xxxviij. yeare when I came into Egypte in the tyme of Ptolomy Euerges & continued there all my lyfe, I gat libertye to reade and wryte many good thinges Wherfore, I thought it good and neceſſary, to beſtowe my diligence and trauayle to interprete thys boke. And conſyderynge that I had tyme, I laboured and dyd my beſt to perfourme thys boke, and to brynge it vnto lyght:
that the ſtraungers alſo which are dyſpoſed to lerne, myght applye them ſelues vnto good maners and lyue accordynge to the lawe of the Lorde.

¶ wyſdome proceadeth and commeth of God. A prayſe of the feare of God. Ryghteouſnes is a degre to come by wyſdome.

A *iii. Re.iii.b and.iiii.d. Iob.xxviii.c. Iacobi.a.

ALl wyſdome * cōmeth of God the Lorde, and hathe bene euer with hym, & is before all tyme. Who hath nombred the ſande of the ſee, the droppes of the rayne, & the dayes of tyme? Who hath meaſured the heyght of heauen, the bredth of the earth, & the depneſſe of the ſee? Who hath ſought out the groūde of Goddes wyſdome, which hath bene before all thynges? * Wyſdome hath bene before all thynges, and the vnderſtandynge of prudence frome euerlaſtynge. (Gods worde in the heygth is yͤ wel of wyſdome, and the euerlaſtyng commaūdementes are the entraunce of her.)

*Roma.xi.c.

Unto whome hath the rote of wyſdome ben declared? Or who hath knowē her wyt? Unto whome hath yͤ doctrine of wyſdome bene diſcouered and ſhewed? and who hath vnderſtande yͤ manyfolde entraūce of her?

There is one: euen the hyeſt, the maker of all thynges, the Almyghtye, the kynge, of power (of whome men oughte to ſtande greatly in awe) which ſitteth vpō hys trone beynge a God of dominion: he hath created her thorowe the holy gooſt: he hath ſene her, nombred her, and meaſured her: He hath poured her out vpon all hys workes, and vpon all fleſhe accordynge to hys gyfte: he geueth her rychely vnto them that loue hym: The feare of the Lorde is worſhyppe and triumphe, gladneſſe & a ioyfull crowne: The feare of the Lorde maketh a mery herte, geueth gladneſſe, ioye and longe lyfe. Who ſo feareth the Lorde, it ſhall go well wyth hym at the laſte, and in the daye of hys death he ſhal be bleſſed. B

The loue of God is honorable wyſdome: loke vnto whome it appeareth, they loue it, for they ſe what wōderous thinges it doth. * The feare of the Lorde is yͤ beginninge of wyſdome, and was made with the faythful in the mothers wombe: it ſhall go wyth the choſen wemen, and ſhalbe knowen of the ryghteous and faythfull. D The feare of the Lorde is the rote of wyſdome, and her braunches are longe lyfe. In the treaſures of wyſedome is vnderſtādyng and deuocion of knowlege, but wyſedome is abhorred of ſynners. The feare of the Lorde dryueth out ſynne: for he ẏ is wythout feare can not be made ryghteous, and hys wylfull boldnes is hys owne deſtruccion. A SOme mā *reproueth hys neyghbour oft tymes, but not in due ſeaſon: *Eccl.xxxi.d Agayne, ſome man holdeth hys tonge, and he is wyſe and dyſcrete. It is moch better to geue warnynge and to reproue, then to beare euell wyll: for he that knowledgeth hym ſelfe openly, ſhalbe preſerued from hurt and deſtruccyon. Lyke as when a gelded mā thorowe deſyre and luſt defyleth a mayden, euen ſo is it wyth hym that vſeth violence: and vnryghteouſnes in the lawe. O howe good a thynge is it, a man that is reproued to ſhewe openly hys repentaunce: for ſo ſhalt thou eſcape wylfull ſynne.

Some man kepeth ſylence, and is founde wyſe: but he that is not aſhamed what he ſayeth, is hatefull. Some man holdeth hys tonge, becauſe he hath not the vnderſtādyng of the language: ⁊ ſome man kepeth ſylence, waytnge a conuenient tyme. *A wyſe man wyll holde hys tonge tyll he ſe oportunyte, *Eccle.iii.a. and.xxxii.a. but a wanton and vndyſcrete body ſhall regarde no tyme. He that vſeth many wordes, ſhall hurte hys awne ſoule: ⁊ he that taketh auctorytie vpon hym vnryghteouſly, ſhalbe hated. Some mā hath oft times proſperite in wycked thynges: Agayne, ſome mā getteth moch, and hath harme and loſſe. There is ſome gift ỳ is nothĩg worth: Againe there is ſome gyft, whoſe rewarde is double. Some man getteth a fall for beynge to proude, ⁊ ſome cōmeth to worſhipe frō lowe eſtate. Some man byeth moch for a lytle pryce, and muſt paye for it ſeuen folde.

B *Eccle.vi.d. *Eccl.xviij.c

*A wyſe man wyth hys wordes maketh hym ſelfe to be loued, but the fauoure of fooles ſhalbe poured out. The gyft of the vnwyſe ſhall do the no good, for hys eyes are ſeuenfolde. *He ſhall geue lytle, and ſaye he gaue moch: he openeth hys mouth and crieth out, as it were one that cryeth out wyne. To daye he lendeth, to morow aſketh he againe, and ſoche a man is to be hated: The foole ſayeth: I haue no frende, I haue no thancke for all my good dedes: yee, euen they that eat my bread, ſpeake no good of me. O how oft, & of how many ſhall he be laughed to ſcorne? He taketh a more perelous fall by ſoch wordes then yf he fell vpon the grounde: euen ſo ſhall the falle of wycked men come haſtely. In the mouth of hym that is vntaught, are many vnconuenient and vnmete wordes. A wyſe ſentence ſhall not be alowed at the mouth of the foole, for he ſpeaketh it not in due ſeaſon.

Some man ſynneth not, becauſe he hath not wher wythall, and in his reaſt he ſhalbe ſtynged. Some man there is that deſtroyeth hys awne ſoule wyth ſhame, and for an vnwyſe bodyes ſake deſtroyeth he it, and with acceptynge of perſonnes ſhall he vndo hym ſelfe. Some man promyſeth his frẽde a gyft for very ſhame, & getteth an enemye of hym for naught. A lye is a wicked ſhame in a mã, yet ſhall it be euer in the mouth of the vnwyſe. A thefe is better, then a mã that is accuſtomed to lye, but they both ſhall haue deſtruccyon to herytage. The condicyons of lyers are vnhoneſt, and theyr ſhame is euer wyth them.

D *Gene.xli.f Danie.v.g. *Prou.xij.b and.xxix.a. *Ecc.xxiii.a Deut.xvii.b. *Eccle.xli.c.

A wyſe man ſhall brynge hym ſelfe to honoure wyth hys wordes, * and he that hath vnderſtãdynge, ſhall be ſet by amõge greate men. * He that tylleth hys lande ſhall encreaſe hys heape of corne: he that worketh ryghteouſnes, ſhalbe exalted, and he ẏ pleaſeth great mẽ, ſhall eſcape moch euell. * Rewardes and gyftes blynde the eyes of the wyſe, and make hym domme, that he cannot tell mẽ their fautes. * Wyſdome that is hyd, and treaſure that is hoorded vp, what profytt is in them both? Better is he that kepeth hys ignoraunce ſecrete, then a man that hydeth hys wyſdome.

¶ The.xxj.Chapter.

¶ Of the repentaunce of ſynne. We maye not heape ſynne vpon ſynne. The boldneſſe of an heretyke. The ende of ſynners. Of the foole and of the wyſe man. Of hym that curſſeth the deuell.

A *Eccl.v.a. vii.a.e.xii.a. Pſal.xli.a. Luke.xv.c.

My ſonne, yf thou haſt ſynned, do it nomore: * but praye for thy foreſynnes, ẏ they maye be forgeuen the. Flee from ſynne, euen as from a ſerpent: for yf thou cõmeſt to nye her, ſhe wyll byte the. The tethe therof are as the teeth of a lyõ to ſley the ſoules of men. The wyckednes of man is as a ſharpe two edged ſwerde, whych maketh ſoch woundes that they cannot be healed.

*Exod.iii.b. and.xxii.c

Stryfe and wrongeous dealynge ſhall waſte a waye a mans goodes, and thorowe pride a rych houſe ſhalbe brought to naught: ſo the ryches of the proude ſhalbe roted out. *The prayer of the poore goeth oute of the mouth, and cõmeth vnto the eares, and hys vẽgeaunce (or defence) ſhall come, and that haſtely. Whoſo hateth to be refourmed, it is a token of a vngodly perſonne: but he ẏ feareth God, wyll remembre hym ſelfe. A myghtye man is knowen a farre of by hys tõge: but he that hath vnderſtãdynge, perceaueth that he ſhall haue a fall.

B *Eccl.xvi.a.

Who ſo buyldeth hys houſe wyth other mens coſt, is lyke one that gathereth ſtones in wynter. *The congregacyon of the vngodly is lyke ſtubble gathered together, theyr ende is a flamme of fyre. The waye of the vngodly is ſet wyth ſtones, but in theyr ende is hel, darcknes, and paynes. He that kepeth the lawe, wyll holde faſt the vnderſtandinge therof, and the ende of the feare of God is wyſdome and vnderſtandynge. He ẏ is not wyſe, wyll not be taught in good: but the vnwyſe man aboundeth in wyckedneſſe: and where bytternes is, there is no vnderſtandynge. The knowledge of the wyſe ſhall flowe lyke water that rẽneth ouer, and hys councell is lyke a fountayne of lyfe.

C *Eccl.xix.b.

The hert of a foole is lyke a broken veſſel, he can kepe no wyſdome. When a man of vnderſtãdynge heareth a wyſe worde, he ſhall commẽde it, and make moch of it. But yf a voluptuous man heare it, he ſhall haue no pleaſure therin, but caſt it behynde hys backe. The talkynge of a foole is lyke an heuy burthen by the waye: but to heare a wiſe man ſpeake, it is a pleaſure. Where a doute is in the cõgregacyõ, it is aſked at the mouth of the wyſe, and they ſhall pondre hys wordes in theyr hertes. Lyke as is a houſe that is deſtroyed, euẽ ſo is wiſdome vnto a foole. As for the knowledge of the vnwyſe, it is but darke wordes. Doctryne is vnto hym ẏ hath no vnderſtandynge, euen as fetters aboute hys fete, and lyke manycles vpon his ryght hande. *A foole lyfteth vp hys voyce wyth laughter, but a wyſe man ſhall ſkarſe laugh ſecretly.

Lernynge is vnto a wyſe man a Jewel of golde, & lyke an armelet vpon hys ryght arme. A foolyſhe mans fote is ſoone in hys neyghbours houſe, but one that hath experience, ſhalbe aſhamed at the perſonne of the myghty. A foole wyll pepe in at ẏ wyndow into the houſe, but he that is wel nourtured, wyll ſtande wythout. A foolyſhe man ſtan-deth herkenynge at the doꝛe, but he that is wyſe, wyll be aſhamed.

The lyppes of the vnwyſe wylbe tellyng foolyſh thynges, but the woꝛdes of ſoch as haue vnderſtādynge, ſhalbe weyed in the balaūce.
The hert of fooles is in theyꝛ mouth, but the mouth of the wyſe is in theyꝛ herte.
When the vngodly curſeth the blaſphemer
* Levi.xix.d he curſeth hys awne ſoule. * A pꝛeuy accuſer of other mē ſhall defyle hys awne ſoule, and be hated of euery man: (but he that kepeth hys tonge and is dyſcrete, ſhall come to honoure.)

¶ The.xxij. Chapter.

¶ The purgacyon of the ſlouthfull. Of the foolyſhe ſonne and daughter, we muſt haue diſcrecyon howe and to whom we ought to pꝛeache, of ſoꝛowynge vpon the deed. A foole is not to be moch talked wyth all. Iniuryes and wꝛonges do bꝛeake frendſhyp and amytye.

A A Slouthfull body is moulded of a ſtone of claye, and euery man wyll ſpeake to hys diſpꝛayſe. A ſlouthfull body is made of the donge of oxen and euery one that toucheth hym muſt waſh hys handes agayne. A myſnurtoꝛed ſonne is the dyſhonoure of the father. A foolyſhe daughter ſhalbe lytle regarded. A wiſe daughter is an herytage vnto her huſbande: but ſhe that commeth to dyſhoneſty, bꝛyngeth her father in heuynes. A daughter that is paſt ſhame, diſhonoureth both her father and her huſbande: the vngodly ſhall regarde her, but they both ſhall deſpiſe her. The playenge of Muſycke is not mete where heuynes is,
euē ſo is the coꝛreccyon and doctrine of wyſdome euer vnpleaſaunt vnto fooles:

Whoſo teacheth a foole, is euen as one ẏ B gleweth a potſherde together: as one that telleth a tale to hym that heareth hym not, ⁊ as one that rayſeth a man out of an heuy ſlepe. Who ſo telleth a foole of wyſdome, is euen as a man, whych ſpeaketh to one that is a ſlepe. When he hath tolde hys tale, he ſayeth: what is the matter? Whē one dyeth, lamentacyon is made foꝛ hym, becauſe the lyght fayleth hym: euen ſo let men mourne ouer a foole: foꝛ he wanteth vnderſtandyng.
Make but lytle weppyng becauſe of the deed: foꝛ he is come to reſt, but the life of the fole is woꝛſe then the deeth. Seuen dayes do men mourne foꝛ hym that is deed, but the lamentacyon ouer the vnwyſe and vngodly ſhuld endure all the dayes of theyꝛ lyfe.

C Talke not moch wyth a foole, and go not wyth hym that hath no vnderſtādynge. Beware of hym, leſt it turne the to trauayle, and thou ſhalt not be defyled wͭ hys ſynne.
Departe from hym, ⁊ thou ſhalt fynde reſt, and ſhalt not be drawen backe into hys foolyſhnes.
What is heuyer then leade? And what ſhulde a foole be called els but leade?
* Pro.xxvij.a. * Sande, ſalt, and a lumpe of yꝛon is eaſyer to beare then an vnwyſe, folyſh, ⁊ vngodly man. Lyke as the band of wood boūde together in the foundacyō of the houſe cannot be lowſed: euen ſo is it wyth the hert that is ſtablyſhed in ẏ thought of coūcell. The thought of the wyſe ſhall nether feare, ner be offended at any tyme.

Lyke as a fayꝛe playſtred wall in a wynter D houſe, and an hye buyldynge, may not abyde the wynde and ſtoꝛme: euen ſo is a foles hert afrayed in hys ymagynacyon, he feareth at euery thynge, and cannot endure. (A waueryng hart in the ymagynaciō of a fole wyll not euer ſtonde in awe, but he that abydeth allwaye feare.) He that nyppeth a mās eye, bꝛyngeth foꝛth teares: and he that pꝛycketh the hert, bꝛyngeth foꝛth the meanynge and thought: Who ſo caſteth a ſtone at the byꝛdes, frayeth thē awaye: and he that blaſphemeth hys frende, bꝛeaketh the frendſhyppe:

though thou dꝛeweſt a ſwerde at thy frēde, yet diſpayꝛe not, foꝛ ẏ mayeſt come agayne to thy frēde. If he ſpeake ſowꝛely, feare not, foꝛ ye maye be agreed together agayne: excepte it be that thou blaſpheme hym, diſdayne hym, open hys ſecretes ⁊ wounde hym traytoꝛouſly:

alſo in hys pꝛoſperyte. Abyde ſtedfaſt vnto hym in the tyme of hys trouble, that thou mayeſt be heyꝛe wyth hym in hys herytage.
Lyke as the vapour and ſmoke goeth out at the ouen befoꝛe the fyꝛe, euen ſo euell woꝛdes, rebukes and thꝛeatenynges go befoꝛe bloudſheddinge. Be not aſhamed to defende thy frende: as foꝛ me, I wyll not hyde my fallen wyth hys tonge, & that hath not bene fayne to ſerue ſoche as are vnmete for hym.

Wel is him, that fyndeth a faythfull frende:
and well is hym, which talketh of wyſdome to an eare that heareth hym. O howe great is he, ỷ fyndeth wyſdome and knowledge!
Yet is he not aboue hym, ỷ feareth the Lord.

The feare of God hath ſet it ſelfe aboue all thynges. Bleſſed is the man, vnto whom it is graunted to haue the feare of God. Unto whō ſhall he be lyckened, that kepeth it faſt? The feare of God is the begynnynge of hys loue, and the begynnynge of fayth is to cleue faſt vnto it. The heuynes of the hert is all ẏ punyſhement, and the wickednes of a woman goeth aboue all. All punyſhemēt ⁊ plage is nothynge in comparyſon of the plage of the hert, euen ſo all wyckednes is nothynge to the wyckedneſſe of a woman.

Whatſoeuer happeneth vnto a man is nothynge in cōparyſon of it, that hys euell willers do vnto hym: and all vengeaunce is nothynge to the vengeaunce of the enemye.

C There is not a more wycked heade then the heade of the ſerpent, ⁊ there is no wrath aboue the wrath of a womā. * I will rather dwell with a lyon and dragon, then to kepe houſe wyth a wycked wyfe. The wyckedneſſe of a woman chaūgeth her face, ſhe ſhall moſſell her countetaūce as it were a Beare, ⁊ as a ſack ſhall ſhe ſhewe it amonge ẏ neghbours. Her huſbande is brought to ſhame amonge his neghbours, and when he heareth it, it maketh him to ſyghe. All wyckednes is but lytle to the wyckednes of a woman, the porcyon of the vngodly ſhall fall vpon her.

The wrath of a woman is diſhonoure and great confuſyon. Yf a woman get the maſtrye, thē is ſhe contrary to her huſbande. A wycked wyfe maketh a ſory herte, an heuy countenaunce and a deed wounde. * (Weake hādes and feble knees is a woman that hyr huſbād is not the better for.) Of the woman came the begynnynge of ſynne, ⁊ thorowe her we all are deed. Geue thy water no paſſage, no not a lytle, nether geue a wycked womā her wyll. Yf ſhe walcke not after thy hande, ſhe ſhall confounde the in the ſyght of thy enemyes. Cut her of then frō thy fleſhe, that ſhe do not alwaye abuſe the.

The. xxvj. Chapter.

The prayſe of a good woman. Of the feare of thre thynges and of ẏ fourth. Of the Jelouze and droncken woman. Of two thynges that cauſe ſorowe, and of the thyrde whych moueth wrath.

A HAppye is the man that hath a verteous wyfe, for the nombre of hys yeares ſhalbe dubble. An honeſt woman maketh her huſbande a ioyfull man, ⁊ ſhe ſhall fyll the yeres of his lyfe in peace. A verteous woman is a noble gyft, whych ſhalbe geuen for a good porcyon vnto ſoch as feare God: Whether a man be ryche or poore, he maye haue euer a mery herte, and a chearefull countenaunce. There be thre thynges that my hert feareth, and my face is afrayed of the fourth. Treaſon in a cytie, a ſedicyous people, and noyſome tonges, all theſe are heuyer then the death. But when one is gelous ouer hys wyfe, it bryngeth payne and ſorowe vnto the hert: and a woman that telleth out all thynges, is a ſcourge of the tunge. Whē one hath an euell wyfe, it is euen as when an vnlyke payre of oxen muſt drawe together, * he that getteth her, getteth a ſcorpyon. A dronken woman is a greate plage, for ſhe cannot couer her awne ſhame.

B The whordome of a womā maye be knowen in the pryde of her eyes and eye lyddes. * Yf thy daughter be not ſhamefaſt, holde her ſtraytlye, leſt ſhe abuſe her ſelfe thorowe ouer moche lyberte. Beware of all the diſhoneſtye of her eyes, and maruell not yf ſhe do agaynſt the. Lyke as one that goeth by the waye and is thyrſtie, ſo ſhall ſhe open her mouth and dryncke of euery nexte water ẏ ſhe maye get. By euery hedge ſhall ſhe ſytt her downe, and opē her quyuer agaynſt euery arowe. A louynge wyfe reioyſeth her huſbande, and fedeth hys bones with her wyſdome. A woman of fewe wordes is a gyfte of God, ⁊ to all well nurtured myndes maye nothynge be compared.

*Eccl. xlii.b.

C An honeſt and manerly woman is a gyft aboue other gyftes, and there is no weyght to be compared, vnto a mynde that can rule it ſelfe. Lyke as the Sunne when it ariſeth, is an ornament in the hye heauen of the Lorde, ſo is a verteous wyfe the bewtye of all her houſe. Lyke as the cleare lyght is vpon the holy candelſtyck, ſo is the bewtye of the face vpon an honeſt body. * Lyke as the golden pilers are vpon the ſockettes of ſyluer, ſo are the fayre legges vpon a woman that hath a conſtant mynde. Perpetuall are the foundacyons that be layed vpō a whole ſtonye rocke, ſo are the commaundemētes of God vpon the herte of an holy woman.

*Cant. v.d.

D There be two thynges ẏ greue my herte and in the thyrde is a diſpleaſure come vpon me. When an experte man of warre ſuffreth ſcarſenes and pouerte. When men of vnderſtandynge ⁊ wyſdome are not ſett by: And when one departeth from ryghteouſnes vnto ſynne. Who ſo doth ſoche, the Lorde hath prepared hym vnto ẏ ſwerde. There be two maner of thynges, whych me thyncke to be herde and perylous. A marchaunt cannot lyghtely kepe him from wronge, nether a tauerner hym ſelfe from ſynne.
